Facts About Ceylon!

Ceylon has lakes of great beauty; and excellent canals made by the Dutch, a provision against drought.

There is no country that compares with Ceylon for the cultivation of tea. Climate and soil seem to be destined by the God of nature for its propagation.

Ceylon Teas are cured black or green, and commend themselves to tea-drinkers because of their flavor, strength and economy.

"His Money's Worth."

A commercial writer puts the case as follows:

> "The very essence of successful trading is now recognized to lie in the fair exchange, which secures to each successive purchaser 'his money's worth' by giving him what he wants, rather than in exacting more than your due out of his need."

That is strongly illustrated in the history of WOOD'S COFFEES, which for 25 years have given every purchaser "his money's worth" and are now more largely sold than ever before.

REPRESENTATIVE CANADIAN CROCERS

J. C. McKerchar, of Winnipeg.

THE oldest and one of the most prosperous grocers doing business in the City of Winnipeg to-day is J. C. McKerchar, and well it may be said does he deserve that distinction. Opening up in the grocery business over twenty years ago, when he and his partner, Mr. Pickworth, conducted a small grocery store on the east side of Main street, a few doors north of Market street, under the name of Pickworth & Co., after being one year in this place the property was sold and they were obliged to move to the corner of Main and Higgins streets, several blocks north on the same side of the street. They had only been in their new quarters three months when another unfortunate turn of things brought business to a sudden crisis, for here they were burned out early one evening shortly after closing up the store for the night.

Mr. McKerchar, acting with a prudence such as one would expect in a man of his calibre, immediately turned his attention to a consideration of his customers and their conveniences. How was he going to retain his hard worked for and well established trade? He at once arranged with a friend of his who was in the grocery business near by to fill all orders for his customers, and meanwhile by personal letters to every one of them he stated the circumstances and that he would be ready to welcome them back in a short time to a new store which he had secured a few doors north. Here he stayed for over 18 years, up to the time when he moved into his new store, a splendid three-storey brick block a few doors south of Logan street.

On Mr. McKerchar's books to-day may be seen the current accounts of customers who purchased their first bill of goods when he opened up in the year of 1881.

Nature of Trade.

The nature of his trade is both rural and urban, as he does an extensive mail order business, shipping goods to all parts of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. In Winnipeg he largely caters to the family trade, but in addition he has a large custom from the leading hotels throughout the city.

The stock carried by Mr. McKerchar is well assorted, and all lines are of the very finest grades obtainable, as he is particular when buying never to purchase inferior goods. A special line that he carries is jams, jellies and marmalades manufactured by the R. W. Scott Co., of Carluke, Scotland, for which he has the sole Canadian and United States agency. He also makes a specialty of a brand of baking powder known as the "Maple Leaf," so called after his store and expressly put up for his own trade.

Credit Business.

In conversation with a representative of The Grocer Mr. McKerchar stated that the credit system was both essential and beneficial. "Where you have a cash business," said he, "a customer is very likely to purchase numerous small groceries at other places more convenient to his residence. This arises owing to the fact that the payment of bills rendered is usually out of the question any oftener than monthly on account of the greater number of business firms paying salaries on the thirty day system. Thus the impracticability of conducting a city grocery business on a cash basis is easily seen."

Mr. J. C. McKerchar, retail grocer, Winnipeg.

Trade Journals.

In speaking of trade journals, Mr. McKerchar said he regarded The Canadian Grocer as an invaluable medium of information for the retail grocer. It touched on all points of interest regarding the trade. He himself had been a constant reader of The Grocer for years. Should a grocer desire to ascertain the latest news concerning the tea market, the sugar situation, or the canned good trade, all that was necessary was to refer to The Grocer, which contained concise and detailed reports which were indispensable to the tradesman wishing to purchase his goods on the best margin.

Window Display.

In window displays Mr. McKerchar is very particular. In his opinion the most careful attention should be given to the dressing of windows, as an attractive window is a splendid advertisement and acts as an index to a store's interior.

In 1879, when he was but a boy, Mr. McKerchar entered the employment of Wishart & Roy, retail grocers in the City of Winnipeg, who have since gone out of business. After two years experience his ambition persuaded him to strike out for himself. In 1881 he entered in partnership with Mr. Pickworth. This partnership was shortly afterwards dissolved, however, and Mr. McKerchar was left the sole proprietor and owner of the business.

Mr. McKerchar says the school of experience has taught him many useful maxims as he has gone along, for instance: "Pay as you go, meeting all papers when due in order to secure your discounts." "Buy sharp and buy the best that can be had." "Keep all details under your personal hand in regard to the management of your business." "Give special attention to the interior appearance of your store and the arrangement of the stock." "See that all orders sent out are satisfactory and that they meet with the approval of your customers."

New Premises.

The splendid three-storey brick block that Mr. McKerchar erected last Summer is a decided acquisition to the business section of Winnipeg. The interior of the store is very pleasing with its massive counter extending from end to end of the spacious floor. The well constructed shelves which face the two side walls from ceiling to floor are well stocked with neatly arranged and assorted goods of all lines which will always appeal to the artistic eye of the casual observer. The regularity and systematic way in which all orders are taken and dispatched by the large staff of efficient and obliging clerks is in itself a drawing card.

JAPANESE TEA REPORT

From Our Own Correspondent.

Kobe, June 6, 1904.

AT the beginning of the new tea season this year all the foreign firms adopted a cautious policy, hesitating to operate. At the time many of the principals were absent in Yokohama or elsewhere, studying the market and future prospects, and the consequnece was unusual quietness in the market. Thus, the few transsactions which occasionally transpired between the Japanese were at a much lower rate than last year, so much so that holders in many instances found it to their advantage to reship consignments to Yokohama.

The first business of the season took place on May 2, when a sample lot of ... piculs changed hands at 36 yen, and on the following day the Japan Tea Company commenced purchases ... they continued for several days at 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. lower than during the corresponding period last year. As prices at Yokohama gradually advanced, transhipments to the northern port rapidly increased. The result was a steady advance in values in Kobe. As soon as the heads of the firms arrived on the scene they began to operate, thus putting additional life into the market; prices in consequence advanced at one bound yen 2.00 per picul. The activity imported to the market was such that as soon as cargoes arrived from the interior they were eagerly taken up to replenish the bare markets. In order to avail themselves of the active market and favorable prices prevailing, producers in the interior also hurried their preparations and sent their tea to the market with all possible despatch. This has unfortunately brought about a reaction.

Cargoes accumulated and prices dropped; holders subsequently made further concessions in prices, which fell as low as y6 to y7 per picul from the highest point: These conditions continued until the end of May.

The unexpected advance in prices ruling at one time was due to the prices having gone up in sympathy with the Yokohama market, where exporters were obliged to buy on account of having engaged freight for outgoing steamers. The rise was in no way attributable to favorable market conditions in America. Directly, however, the immediate demand had been satisfied, the inquiry suddenly subsided, causing considerable drop in prices, as above stated.

There is a scarcity of superior leaf, the growth of which was rather rapid owing to rainfalls at the picking season. Another reason for the scarcity is the great haste displayed by producers who neglected to sort superior leaf from common stuff.

This is why the price of superior quality is maintained at a comparatively favorable level, in spite of lower grades undergoing a heavy drop in values. It is a pity when producers in their eagerness to take advantage of a favorable market forget to exercise ordinary care and attention in producing a desirable quality. The tendency is in the direction of the production of undesirable leaf in larger quantities than is prudent to maintain equilibrium, with a collapse in prices the inevitable result. Producers have too often been deceived by unsolicited advice volunteered by self-styled experienced tea men, who, boasting of their practical knowledge of the American markets, at one time declare that Americans want tea for price, while at another they advise the production of superior quality alone. In the face of such conflicting opinions, it is no wonder that producers are more inclined to follow the actual market and aval themseves of every opportunity to secure a favorable price.

According to the returns of the Agricultural and Commercial Department the total export of tea during 1903 was about forty million catties (400,000 piculs), valued at some y14,660,000. It is expected there will be no material decrease in this year's production, though it is ikely there will be a serious shrinkage in the value of tea.

The high price that at one time prevailed, as above stated, is alleged by an old tea man to have been due to eager purchases made by foreign firms in anticipation of a war tax on tea. Fortunately, or unfortunately, this has not materialized so far. The market is demoralized and foreign firms are disinclined to operate unless for a bargain.

The total quantity of tea brought to Kobe from various districts was 51,108 packages, a decrease of 3,293 packages as compared with arrivals in May, 1903, Japan tea is exported in the ratio of 60 per cent. from Yokohama, and 40 per cent. from Kobe; the quality also of

In consequence of the poor results obtained from the Government subsidy in the American markets, an exploitation of the Russian market was tried, with the most sanguine results. Several trial shipments of Japan black tea were made at the close of the last year, and would have continued in increased quantity this year had not the war broken out.

NEW STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

GREAT interest is being taken in Montreal just now in the probability of a new line of steamers being placed on the Atlantic service by the Canadian Lines, Ltd. This company is already doing business between Havre and Rotterdam, and Quebec and Montreal, and among their vessels are the steamers Halifax and Quebec. Last week the Elder-Dempster steamer Lake Simcoe, a large passenger vessel, was chartered by this company for this trade. There is a likelihood also of the well-known liner Lake Erie being added to the fleet. It is understood that Sir Alfred Jones, president of the Elder-Dempster Co., is extensively interested in this new movement. Many ideas have been discussed, referring to the possibility of expanding the service to Bristol, and to other well-known ports, in order to meet the requirements of the rapidly increasing Canadian trade.

"PROTECTION AND PRICES"

"and the Farmers' Home Market" is the title of an octavo volume of 250 pages, issued by Watson Griffin of Toronto. It is a collection of a number of editorial articles on protection and kindred subjects appearing in "Industrial Canada," the official organ of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association during the year 1903, and the first five months of 1904. That the first edition tion reached a circulation of 78,000 and that the present or second edition has already reached 20,000, speaks well for this interesting series of articles on the industrial conditions existing in Canada for the past two or three years. It will prove especially acceptable to those holding protectionist views, as it gives within small compass a reasonably complete and readable review of this aspect of the situation.

A JAPAN TEA MERCHANT.

FRESH from the Orient, Mr. J. H. Craven, a Japan tea merchant, arrived at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, this week, on his way to New York and London. He stated that he had been in Japan since the war broke out, and that trade had not been disturbed to any material extent by the war. There was a slight delay in the shipment of up-country teas, owing to the railways being occupied by war transport service. He visited Hankow, the great Chinese tea market, just before leaving the East. He mentioned the distance from the coast to Hankow as being 600 miles, and stated that the railway now under construction from Hankow to Pekin, was well under way. About 280 miles of the line had been completed. He referred in passing to the great fertility of the country, on both sides of the Yang-tse-Kiang River, emphasizing that it was easy to grow two crops of rice and wheat there. In referring to the war, he was confident of a Japanese victory all along the line.

NEWS FROM THE BAHAMAS.

LAST week Montreal was visited by the Hon. Anton Bertram, Attorney-General of the Bahama Islands. He is a well-known English barrister, and resides in Nassau, the capital of the islands. He is anxious for an extended trade relationship between Canada and the Bahamas. He touched upon the fact that the preferential clauses of the United States, in favor of Cuba, had worked against the Bahamas, and it remained to be seen how seriously the pineapple trade with the United States would be affected. Another industry which was occupying attention in the Bahamas was the preservation of the sponge beds. Another great asset of the Bahamas was sisal, which was so much used in the manufacture of binder twine. In this Canada was vitally interested. There might be much further development in sisal shipments to Canada, if greater attention was paid to it. Trade in flour could also be extended. Canadian flour had been much appreciated in the Bahamas. He was glad to say that large numbers of Canadian tourists visited the Bahamas Islands, but he was sorry to state that they did not tell much about what they had seen. Improvements were being made at the harbor of Nassau, which would enable larger steamers to call there.

NEW SALT COMPANY.

A company for the manufacture of salt from the wells of the Cleveland-Sarnia Sawmills Company's mills is being formed in Sarnia. The new company will be known as the Empire Salt Co., and will be capitalized at $50,000. J. I. Carter will be the manager. It has entered into a contract with the Cleveland-Sarnia Sawmills Company to operate the salt block at the mill property and will have a plant with a capacity of 50 barrels per day.

RUSSIAN CUSTOMS LAW.

SOME regulations in the Russian customs law governing fines imposed on foreign imports will be of interest to Canadian exporters in connection with the drawing up of invoices for Russia, as the strictest accuracy in the statements contained in invoices is essential to the avoidance of these fines.

Fines are imposed upon imports that do not correspond with invoices as follows:

1. For either discrepancy or excess in weight exceeding five per cent. and not caused by dampness or dryness during transportation, allowances being made in either case, a fine of double the regular duty is charged.

2. For difference in quality, a fine of two-thirds the regular duty is charged.

3. For difference in quantity—i.e., number of pieces—a fine of double the regular duty is charged.

4. In case of attempted fraud in the consignment of goods the goods are confiscated and the fine charged in addition.

Appeals can be made against these charges and decided by an expert commission.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Bacon vs. Heavy Pork.

SEVERAL years ago Canadian farmers produced heavy pork almost exclusively. This was before Canadian bacon had won its present enviable reputation in foreign provision markets. Then Canada exported little or no animal products, its yearly supply being required to feed the numerous lumbering and mining camps dotted here and there over the entire Dominion.

To-day the tables are reversed. Canadian farmers have been educated to grow the bacon hog for export, and that the change has brought money into their hands may be readily gathered from a minute's conversation with any Canadian exporter of provisions. At the same time, an epicurean tendency has taken possession of Canadian lumbermen and miners. Instead of long clear bacon and fat, dry pork, they're satisfied now with nothing less than the lightest ham and breakfast bacon, with other delicacies to correspond. A dinner in an up-to-date Canadian logging camp in 1904 is quite equal to the same meal served in an eastern hotel ten years ago.

In certain districts of Canada—the Ottawa Valley, for instance, there is still a demand for heavy meat. Ten thousand barels of American mess pork are sold to one of the lighter article as grown in Canada, and as a matter of fact it is the importation of American mess pork to Canada that causes a comparison of American exports in provisions to the United States and American importations to Canada to favor the States. Canadian farmers have decided that it pays better to raise light hogs, and are unable to supply the home demand that exists for heavy pork, the result being that the United States have entered this market.

English Provision Markets.

Latest reports of the London, Eng., provision market say the butter market is improving at advanced prices for some descriptions. Bacon has been in slow demand, and quotations have been generally reduced, while hams are in more request. In lard, trade has been dull for bladdered, pails, and boxes of all kinds. Eggs in best sizes are firm, while s all sizes are in less request. In cheese the market is quiet and prices are irregular.

"Dairymen Favor 'Preference.'"

THE Eastern Townships Dairymen's Exchange, Quebec, has passed the following resolution:

"That this exchange expresses its appreciation and hearty sympathy with the stand which the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is taking in Great Britain for an Imperial preferential tariff, whereby the low-priced dairy products of foreign countries shall not be allowed to compete on equal terms with the higher grade article exported to Great Britain from her colonies, of which Canada is proud to be one;

"It is furthermore resolved, that, in the opinion of this exchange, a surtax on all foreign dairy products would be beneficial to the colonies, which to-day play such an important role in affairs of the British Empire."

In seconding this motion, A. J. Brice, a prominent exporter, declared that Chamberlain's hands should be strengthened by the colonies, whom he was aiding, and that, since Canada was soon to receive great remuneration through the supply to England, not only of all her cheese and butter, but also from the great and growing Northwest, of all her bread, she must be prepared to assume certain obligations in the nature of naval and military support.

Waxed Cheese.

A large English cheese importer who has been paying close attention to waxed cheese arriving on the English market from various sources, gives the following as his opinion:

"The only advantage derived from waxed cheeses so far as I can see is, that they have a cleaner appearance when turned out of the boxes, and being practically hermetically sealed, do not lose the weight; in fact, in many cases I have seen them turn out over the weight marked on the boxes.

"In my opinion, in all cheese there is a natural evaporation of water and certain gases, which improves the cheese when kept some months and which is natural maturing, whereas in the waxed cheese this does not go on, but all the water, etc., is confined in the cheeses. These when kept any length of time, instead of becoming matured, are worse than they would have been if sold new. The water is secreted mostly around the sides, top and bottom, as though trying to find a way of escape, and when these cheese are tried they are usually found to be quite soft and watery."

Market for Canned Goods in England.

The commercial agent of the Dominion Government stationed at Leeds and Hull, Eng., reports a growing demand for canned goods (fruits, vegetables, etc.), and that as the freight from Montreal to Liverpool is only $1.25 per ton of 2,240 lbs., a large and lucrative business ought to be done in that market by the Canadian manufacturer.

Cool-Curing in New Zealand.

RECENT New Zealand papers mention the installation of an extensive plant for the cool-curing of cheese by the Dalefield Dairy Co., said to be the largest cheese factory in the world under one roof. The management of this factory have carefully watched the results obtained by cool-curing at the Government illustration stations in Canada and at the American experimental stations, and in consequence have been the first in New Zealand to adopt the new system. The machinery alone in the Dalefield cool-curing room cost nearly $2,500, and the proprietors expect that this outlay will be amply repaid. Canadian factory owners cannot afford to let their competitors in the sister colony get ahead of them in the matter of factory equipment and up-to-date methods of management.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—There has been a good demand for provisions on account of the hot weather, but stocks are heavy, and as the demand has not been sufficiently large there has been a drop all around. Pork is down 1-2c, and lard from 1-8 to 1-4c. The export market in fresh meats remains strong, and only fractional declines are noted in the high limits. Prices this week are:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 07¾	$0 08

Butter—There is no export demand for butter, and the local market is overcrowded. Supplies coming to hand are very large, and the quality good. Large dairy rolls have disappeared. We quote this week:

" solids, fresh	0 16	0 17
Dairy prints	0 13	0 15½

Cheese—Board prices, as predicted, came down 1-2c, and it is likely there will be a further decline. When England offers only a certain price, it is unreasonable for our factories to hold out for a higher price, since the market is controlled entirely by the English market. The factories that withheld their cheeses when 8c was offered, simply because 8 1-2c had been received, are now forced to accept from 7 1-2 to 7 3-4c. An English buyer in Toronto within the past week said that the English market for cheese was very poor. England is looking for cheaper cheese, and she will have it or do without. Cheese buyers are not controlled in the least by favors to customers, as the egg men are, and if they can't get what they want at the price they want, the factories must keep their stock. Board reports are as follows:

*Colored Cheeses.

A glance over this list will show that comparatively little has been sold. The same occurred last week, and stocks in the hands of factories must be getting large. In cases where there were no sales, the prices quoted are the highest offered. In most cases sellers were holding out for 8c, but 1-4c less was as high as was obtained. As a result of lower board prices, the dealers' list has come down. We quote:

Provisions—An easy feeling in the live hog market was the feature that attracted attention in the trade this week. The receipts on Monday were 380 packages of tinned meats, twenty-five packages lard, and nine boxes of ham and bacon. Despite the small offerings of hogs, the tone of the market was much easier. In fact, the market for dressed stock went down 25c per 100 lbs. The demand from butchers was fair for small lots, and fresh killed abattoir stock sold at $7.50 per 100 lbs. The movement of pork was slow and in lard business was quiet. Smoked meats went well and activity ruled. We quote:

Butter—Butter is still quiet. At country points an equivalent of 17 1-2c was paid for Townships butter, laid down here, while at the wharf on Monday 700 boxes changed hands at from 17 1-4 to 17 1-2c. For the season to date the export movement compares well with the last season, showing, in fact, by actual figures, 55 per cent. in advance. The total exports for the season were 52,108, against 33,617, a gain of 18,491. The arrivals of butter in Montreal have been much in excess of those last year, running into 141,504 boxes, against 122,473 last year.

Cheese—Dullness and heaviness still mark the cheese market. The demand is light from the Old Country, and it is generally thought that unless prices drop considerably no improvement will take place in the export trade. The decline has gone so far already that it seems foolish to expect further drops. Since last week a cent of decline has taken place, and the irregularity of the market has dampened enthusiasm among the producers. At the wharf Monday

Provisions—In barreled pork and beef, while there are fair stocks held, there is very little business. Prices in both lines are firmer, there being quite a little advance in pork. In pure lard, merchants advise limited sales. They are carrying full stocks, and while last lots were bought lower than ever, the market in the West seems firmer, and considering the exceptional low prices, it is thought still there is a fair chance for a good profit on the basis of these late prices. Refined and compound lard find but little sale. In fresh meat, particularly in beef, markets are firm. Beef is quoted for both domestic and western at quite an advance on the late prices. Lamb is still high, receipts being low. Mutton seems to be perhaps the one dull feature, although there is but a limited demand for pork. Veal commands full figures.

Cheese Storage on Sea-board

According to a report received by the Extension of Markets Division of the Department of Agriculture, a shipment of Canadian cheese was recently landed at London, England, in a heated condition, due to being carried across the ocean from Montreal in a poorly ventilated part of the ship. The Department points out that as the warm weather has now begun further complaints of a similar character are liable to be received unless the practice of stowing cheese in parts of the ship having no means of ventilation is stopped. In order to protect their own interests cheese exporters should insist that their cheese shall only be stowed in holds well equipped with ventilating apparatus.

Fresh and Cured Fish

RETAIL FISH TRADE OF MONTREAL.

THE retail fish trade of Montreal is confined to a small area. One large concern appears to dominate, while four or five others of considerable importance appear as comparatively small establishments. Montreal is distinctly a fish eating city, which may be explained partly by the fact that three-quarters of the population are Catholics, who during the Lenten season consume fish alone. Outside of this, however, there is an immense consumption of not only the commoner grades of fish, but of high-class southern products, such as butter fish, pompino, king fish, sheepsheads, porgies, red snappers, blue fish, etc., all of which find ready sale amongst the wealthy classes. In fact, it is to Montreal's credit that there is in the city a wholesale and retail dealer in fish, oysters, game, etc., who declares he is not only the largest in Canada, but in his own retail way claims that there is no other place on the continent with equal accommodation for storing and preserving fish, oysters and game.

Haddock is the standard fish, in fact it has been called the people's fish. Rich and poor buy haddock, and it is the handiest breakfast fish on sale. Certain dealers may change their price for haddock from time to time, but the high-class dealer maintains only one price, so that rich and poor receive the same grade of fish. Ask a fish man about haddock, and he will invariably shake his head. "What kind of haddock?" he will reply, with a knowing glance in his eye, at the same time sizing you up as he looks you over. There is the difficulty of pleasing everybody with even one price haddock. 'Tis a wholesome, easily cooked food, and is in steadily increasing demand all over the country. The next fish in popular demand is cod, which seems to increase in popularity daily. This fish, however, in no way interferes with the great lake favorites, trout and white fish. Their season lasts from the first of May until the closing of ocean navigation. During this period bass of all kinds, including the deep sea fish, dominate the market, and are consumed in large quantities.

White halibut is a much sought fish about this season of the year. It is expensive, too. It goes without saying that when certain Montreal firms prefer to depend on their own shippers from the Pacific Coast, and are willing to pay as much as seven cents per pound express, with ice expenses in addition, that it pays to handle this species of fish. Most of the dealers in the east get their supplies of halibut, white and grey, from Boston. It may be mentioned that it can be obtained cheaper from Boston than from the west direct, owing to the immense quantities shipped in bond to Boston by large concerns, who have establishments in both places. The large Montreal fish firms decline to handle a fish like pike. They say pike is all right in its way, but it does not suit their customers, and it is a cheap fish anyway.

Outside of the so-called "swell" trade, the staple lines are the fresh water fish, such as lake trout, brook trout, white fish, dore, black bass, sturgeon, yellow perch. Just now mackerel is in season, and is a delicious fish that appeals to nearly all fastidious people. However, probably the most useful fish for all classes is the halibut. Sometimes halibut sells at from 15c to 20c per pound, and in contrast with haddock seems a very expensive luxury, when haddock can be bought for 12c. The contrast, however, is sensibly marked when it is remembered that these is no fish on which there is more waste than on haddock. Sometimes as much as one-quarter of the quantity bought will be wasted, whereas with the halibut every part is useful, and it is profit from beginning to end.

An immense trade is done in Montreal in lower port salmon, commonly known as gaspe salmon. On the opening of navigation it supersedes entirely British Columbia salmon. For instance, one large dealer purchased a hundred thousand pounds of fresh salmon during last season, having bought twenty thousand of this enormous quantity from one man. Other dealers, of course, handle large quantities, but not in such large volumes.

The expensive luxurious fish, such as were mentioned at the beginning, sell from 15c to 30c, and are imported direct from New York. They are southern fish entirely, and are bought in Montreal in small quantities, daily supplies being sufficient to cover the ordinary demand. The season for shad roes is just over in Canada. Blue fish are still popular among the rich, and frog's legs sell at 40c to 45c a lb. Soft shell crabs are dear, and white bait, scollops, prawns, and boiled and live lobsters maintain a steady sale among connoisseurs. Oysters and little neck clams have a steadily increasing sale.

A unique feature of the Canadian fish trade is that Canadian smelts supply not only our own markets, but the New York markets as well. The season opens about September, and an enormous trade is done with different fisheries in the Maritime Provinces. In gathering little neck clams, large firms decline to tell where they get them. They have their own special beds, which are exclusive.

The retail fish trade in Montreal is probably on as high a plane as can be found in the Dominion.

An Eastern Opinion.

IN an interview with Mr. A. H. Brittain, representing Black Bros. & Co., Halifax, on the question of fish, Mr. Brittain expressed himself as surprised that the grocers of Canada had not in the past paid as much attention to this branch of the grocery trade as the merit of the goods warrant. "The grocers of Canada are entitled to this trade," said Mr. Brittain, "and it is only because they have not given it the attention they should have, that they do not control it. Retail grocers, as well as wholesale firms throughout the United States, have made the fish business a very large factor of their trade. They have realized that it is one of the staple articles of their business, and requires practically little care in handling. Grocers, as a rule, make a specialty of handling butter and cheese, and both of these lines, particularly the first mentioned, require just as close looking after, if not more attention than the handling of fish; besides there is a very good profit and ready sale for fish, particularly as the public during the past number of years have taken to requiring more fish, grain, and other light products, than meats. During the warm season a little more attention is necessary in handling the fish, but not enough extra work to deter a merchant from making it a part of his regular trade. Every up-to-date grocer, in order to properly cater to the requirements of his customers, should think of the great possibilities in the fish business for increased trade, as well as decidedly better profits."

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

The "Salada" Tea Co. report a big increase in their business for the first five months of this year. Their increase for the first five months of 1904 over the corresponding period of 1903 in Canada alone amounted to more pounds of "Salada" than the total business done by that company in the second year this tea was on the market.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph, are offering jam in 7 lb. pails at a special cut price.

A special run is being made by L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, on Ubero coffees. Buyers will find it worth while to write for quotations and samples.

Friday, 24th, Hudon, Hebert & Co. will close their establishment, that being St. Jean Baptiste Day. Friday, July 1st also will be observed as Canada's national holiday, and business suspended.

"Judge" Brand Salmon, in porcelain lined tins, is selling freely with the Eby, Blain Co., Toronto, who are the sole selling agents in Ontario.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling apricots at interesting prices.

J. H. Maiden, Montreal, calls attention of buyers to his ad in this issue of Zoeco brand of condensed cocoa and milk, coffee and milk, etc., for which lines Mr. Maiden has been appointed agent for Canada. These goods obtain a good sale in England, and their quality should interest the trade and consumers here.

Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal, call attention of the trade to their large and assorted stock of canned goods, with the gentle hint that now is the time to buy.

New season's May pickings Japan teas are expected next week by the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto. Advance samples show these to be exceptionally fine goods.

Carlo Niemack's Italian Olive Oil may be had from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

E. D. Marceau reports the arrival by steamer "Empress of China," now at Vancouver, of sixty packages of Japan tea, second shipment of his May teas. These include Condor III., IV., and EMD, AAA and AA half-chests and 40-lb. boxes. They are extra choice both in leaf and in liquor. See next week's ad.

Fraser River salmon packers have named a price on 1904 pack of $5.75 per case, and the Pacific Selling Co., New York, have named the same price for their "Clover Leaf" brand. On first consideration this price seems high, as compared with last year, but in view of the probability of a very small pack it is a reasonable one.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, report the arrival of a shipment of California cantaloupes.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, have made arrangements with the packers whereby they are enabled to offer the celebrated Judge brand salmon as a 25c retailer, and they report a very large business at the new quotations.

Kelly, Douglas & Co., Vancouver, are just receiving in store another carload of Cow Brand baking soda in packages. This company are large buyers of Cow Brand. Never less than a carload at a time.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Henri Jonas, Montreal, sailed on Wednesday week for Europe. Mr. Jonas visits the continental markets yearly, paying particular attention to French, Italian and Spanish grocers' specialties, which line Mr. Jonas has made a specialty for over a quarter of a century.

Mr. Amos H. Baker, of the Old Homestead Canning Co., Picton, was a visitor to the Montreal jobbing trade last week. Mr. Baker has made arrangements for the sale of his company's products, and as the quality is of the highest and the labels bright and attractive, the Old Homestead brands will no doubt figure on many a grocers' shelves this year.

Mr. W. P. Downey, Montreal, is in Toronto this week calling upon the trade with Mr. J. H. Collett, of J. M. Collett & Co., Gloucester, Eng.

Mr. Wm. G. Goodhugh, 6 St. Sacrament street, Montreal, is representative for Allerton D. Hitch & Co., New York, who are extensive shippers to South Africa, Brazil, New Zealand, etc. Mr. Goodhugh is prepared to look after all consignments of Canadian produce to South Africa, and with his long established connection and experience in Montreal is in a position to satisfactorily attend to all commissions. Grocer. Provisions.

Mr. J. Lorimer, of Lorimer & Co., London, Eng., manufacturers of sauces, grocers' sundries, etc., paid the Toronto office of The Grocer a visit. Mr. Lorimer is being introduced to the trade by Mr. Greig, of the White Swan Mills, Toronto, who will in future have the sole agency in Toronto for the products of Lorimer & Co.

Mr. James Dawson, of the firm of Dawson & Co., grocers, Sault Ste. Marie, was married on June 23.

Mr. E. F. Eby, of the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, left this week for a few days' fishing on the Trent River.

In last week's issue of The Grocer was chronicled the marriage of Mr. W. C. A. Lambe, of Toronto, to Miss Massey, of Westminster, London, S. W. The item should have read Miss Reid.

Mr. C. P. Hebert, senior partner of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., has removed, with his family, to Riviere Du Loup for the Summer.

Mr. R. Leacock, of the firm of S. P. Mussen & Co., large molasses and sugar merchants of Barbadoes, was in Montreal this week. He called upon the trade generally and was accompanied on his rounds by Mr. Goodhue, who is agent for the firm in Montreal.

Mr. Chas. Gyde, Montreal, leaves for British Columbia this week. Mr. Gyde, who is known as one of the oldest grocery brokers in Canada, represents many English firms, among others Rountree's, Cleaver's, Jos Terry & Sons, and J. Macintosh's toffees.

Mr. Frederick J. Lowe, manager J. H Wethey, Limited, condensed mince meats, St. Catharines, Ont., was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer this week. Mr. Lowe is enthusiastic on the future of condensed mince meats, and with their increased facilities in their new factory, says the public will be well and amply supplied with the original and genuine Wethey's mince meat.

Mr. A. H. Brittain, of A. H. Brittain & Co., is making a trip to Halifax, Gloucester, Boston, and other eastern fish centres this week.

FRUIT REPORT.

THE following report, dated June 8, 1904, has been received from C. Whittall & Co., Smyrna: The sultana production of 1903 has proved the largest ever recorded in the country, far exceeding all provisions and estimates.

We are now able to give the returns, district by district. These figures have been obtained from thoroughly reliable sources. We also place against the same the estimated result for the coming season.

	Production 1903—Kintals.	Estimates 1904—Kintals.
Smyrna District	77,970	60,000
Vourla and Sivrihissar	41,460	60,000
Ceste District	45,300	17,000
Tireh, Daindir and Odemish	10,730	18,000
Scala Nuova	1,100	3,000
Menemen	35,090	30,000
Magnesia and Caraoglanli	228,780	100,000
Cassaba	236,500	80,000
Axar	98,715	40,000
Nymphio	174 860	100,000
Salihli	51,520	35 000
Alascheir	22 960	15,000
Pergamos, Bozdaghan, etc.	32,477	20,000
Sokia, Aidin, etc.	20,800	15,000
The Imperial Farms	22,000	15,000
Carabournou	37,850	15,000
Total, kintals	1,136,112	623,000
Total, tons	62,596	34 265

Stocks of old fruit remaining in the cauntry may be put down at about 7,500 tons inclusive of at least 1,200 to 1,500 tons which, owing to low quality or deterioration are only fit for distilling purposes.

Reports now being received from various parts of the interior are, on the whole, of a somewhat unsatisfactory nature, and the tendency is to reduce estimates. We may say that we have given the maximum estimates for next season, the forecast most generally favored by the majority of dealers and by the principal shippers not exceeding kintals 500,000 to 550,000.

The following comparison of yields and shipments to the United Kingdom for the years 1899 to 1904, may be of interest:

	Year.	Tons.	Total shipmts.	B/s.
Total yield.	1899	42.000	to U.K.	1,421,588
"	1900	18 500	" "	782 926
"	1901	28.000	" "	848,030
"	1902	37,000	" "	1,198,647
"	1903	62,500	" "
			to May 30, 1904	1,765,975

N. B.—The above figures are inclusive of fruit for transhipment to Canada, but exclusive of shipments for America. About 80 B's sultanas equal a ton of 20 cwt.

IN TEN YEARS a good many package teas have made a bid for the GROCER'S FAVOR and that of the public. How many remain?

What one STANDS FORTH an acknowledged GOOD TEA?

"Where the Honey is

there are the bees."

You won't find the successful grocer trying to extract profits from second-class goods. He doesn't waste his time, energy and money for the purpose of building up his competitor's business. In the long run, quality wins where quantity fails—quality is remembered long after price is forgotten.

Windsor Salt is the Salt of highest quality and hence sold by grocers of high reputation. It is pure, white, dry, crystaline—it is the Salt that doesn't cake. "Where the honey is, there are the bees"—you can trust the high-class grocer to find out just where the honey is.

CUTTING PRICES IN SUGAR.

THE evil of price-cutting is one so detrimental to successful business that one wonders why business men employ the principle. It is an evil not confined to any one class of trade, but, injurious as it is to all, the business that can least afford to indulge itself is that of the grocer. In the dry goods, clothing, hardware, fancy goods, and kindred trades, the margins of profit are, comparatively speaking, so much larger that an occasional digression from set profits is productive of no very serious effects, but the keen competition and the perishable nature of a large part of a grocer's stock, combined with the constant introduction of new dietary products, many of them ephemeral in nature, make it a risky thing for the grocer to cut his none too large margins. Judicious shading is at times allowable, and there are grocers who have the faculty of doing so with success and increased business, but the indiscriminate cutting of profits on all lines which has during the past decade seemingly been entered upon by grocers, is bound to bring evil effects upon themselves.

It has been a mystery to us, this price-cutting. Why grocers should cut the price of sugar and vie with each other to see how many more pounds for a dollar they can give than their neighbors passes comprehension. The market fluctuations on this necessary staple are so small, varying rarely more than from 15 to 50c per barrel in a month, or even three months, that a moment's reflection on the grocer's part will show him how absurd it is to divide this profit with his customers. Why not retain it for himself? The consumer is not watching the fluctuations of the market daily, and if he were, the reductions would strike him as so small as to be worthy of little thought. The evil of cutting, it may be said in extenuation of the habit, if it is worhy of an apology, is, no doubt, fostered in the larger centres by the departmental stores, whose glaring ads in the large dailies are baiting the public constantly to the counters where the goods that bear the profits are displayed. The grocer, unfortunately, has not so many profitable counters to fall back upon, and when he cuts he cuts to his loss. The instance of cutting on such a staple as sugar is given for the reason that from now until the end of September or October the consumption of the article will figure as the heaviest item in the grocer's business. The preserving season has started, and as we are blessed with a fairly large crop of fruit in Canada, and more of it is being "put down" every year, the grocery trade should see that a profit is made adequate to the outlay of money, time and labor. There is no grocer but what will admit that the selling of sugar is one accompanied with more labor, worry and expense than almost anything he handles. Many grocers who do not look closely after the weighing out of this article often do not come out on the right side; every grocer knows the value of close weighing, and that unless sugar is weighed out like gold the "down-weight" is bound to result in loss, or at least in no perceptible profit. Even that wonderful and vigilant "guardian of the weights," the computing scale, cannot guarantee the grocer against loss if he does not use his judgment in fixing his living profits.

The only safe rule to follow is to allow for a profit on everything handled, and to be particularly careful on such a heavy item in turn-over as sugar. The jobbing trade of Canada found it was doing its sugar business for many years, if not at an actual loss, then at an insignificant margin, considering the volume of business done. As a result, wise counsels and concerted action produced a practically uniform selling basis, and though the profit is still considered small, it is at least a decidedly great improvement on former trade conditions. It is to be regretted that the retailer cannot be persuaded to take action along similar lines. Although not so easily done as in the case of the wholesale grocer, it only requires the leadership of a few prominent retailers to stop setting the pace in cutting prices.

BUSINESS MEN HONORED.

IN the honors which have been conferred on George A. Drummond and Hugh Montagu Allan, of Montreal, Canadian business men naturally take pride. It is doubtful if better representatives of Canadian commercial interests could have been selected for the King's honors. Both men have contributed of their wealth and their energies towards the extension of Canadian trade and the upbuilding of Canadian industries. In addition, they have been good citizens both of their home city and of Canada, engaging in social, educational and philanthropic work, which will long cause their names to be held in honored remembrance.

The Grocer voices the congratulations of the business interests of Canada in wishing long life and prosperity to the two new Knights.

A TARIFF BENEFIT.

ONE industry that has especially benefited by moderate protection is that of tobacco growing. It is now six years since the moderate protective duty was imposed on leaf tobacco, and as a result the use in factories of Canadian leaf tobacco has grown from 474,000 lbs. to 4,921,000 lbs. In other words, there has been an increase of over 900 per cent. This means that a great deal of money that was formerly spent outside of the Dominion is not being kept at home, and that Canadian farmers are turning their attention to a new kind of crop, which promises to be even more profitable in the future than it has been in the past. Quebec Province is essentially a gainer by this duty. Probably no where in the Dominion outside of Essex County, in Ontario, is there more tobacco grown than in the Province of Quebec. Bonsecours market, Montreal, is notable alike to the tourist, and to the average citizen, for its amazing piles of tobacco on sale. In the very heart of the most prosperous industrial district of the province, Granby, Quebec, the Empire Tobacco Co. have an enormous factory. In Quebec City, the Rock City Tobacco Co., now known far past the confines of the province itself in influence, utilizes immense quantities of French-Canadian tobacco, so-called.

As for the popularity of the weed itself, rich and poor alike testify to its harmlessness and pleasing flavor. In fact, some of the richest men in Montreal and Quebec, after being induced to smoke Quesnel, and other high-class brands of Canadian tobacco, have become so attached to the home-grown tobacco that they scarcely ever use any other. Aside from politics, it is a very gratifying fact to Canadians generally, to know that home industry is being benefited by Government action. It may also be mentioned that other forces have been at work which have affected the price of tobacco, yet the whole conclusion may be summed up in the statement that the home market for the home producer is much to be desired. It encourages home industry, without increasing the price.

Mr. Brodeur, in speaking on this question in the House of Commons last week, expressed fully and forcibly just how the tobacco industry has profited by the change. His exact words are as follows :

"In spite of the increase of 10c on raw leaf, tobacco is selling to the consumers to-day at a lower price than before. I find by the reports of the Department that in 1895-96 the number of tobacco factories of foreign leaf was 27, while only 10 were engaged in the manufacture of domestic leaf. At the end of last year the number of factories engaged on foreign leaf had fallen from 27 to 23, but on the other hand, the number of domestic and mixed tobacco had increased from 10 to 30. And what is the result in the number of pounds manufactured ? In 1895-96, under the Conservative regime, we manufactured 9,609,183 lbs. of foreign leaf tobacco, that is to say, the whole consumption was of foreign leaf tobacco. In fact, we only manufactured and consumed in that year 474,205 lbs. of Canadian tobacco. Now I am glad to inform our friends opposite that this policy has been so fruitful and has produced such good results that to-day, instead of consuming 9,000,000 lbs. of foreign leaf tobacco, we manufactured last year 7,726,316 lbs.; and instead of consuming only 500,000 lbs. of Canadian leaf, I am glad to announce to the House that last year we consumed nearly 5,000,000 lbs of Canadian leaf tobacco, or to be exact, 4,921,181 lbs. And that result, I claim, is entirely due to the progressive policy of this Government."

CROCKERY SPECIAL.

The mid summer season is pre-eminently the time for the retail grocery trade to lay in stocks of china and crockery for the coming Fall and Winter trade. In anticipation of the needs of the grocer and in order to give him the benefit of the latest information on crockery, The Grocer is issuing on July 8 a Crockery Special. This number will be largely devoted to crockery, china, lamps, etc. No pains have been spared to make it interesting and serviceable to the retail grocery trade. The newest ideas in crockery at home and abroad have been gathered up by our representatives throughout the country, and in addition the possibilities of the crockery trade in the grocery store have been thoroughly investigated, the results of which will be comprehensively dealt with in next week's issue of The Grocer.

TROUBLES OF THE EGG DEALER.

WITH the price of eggs at thirteen cents, the egg dealer is risking everything in purchasing. Much as he has hoped for lower prices, at which he has a chance of making a cent or two next Winter, there now appears to be little chance of a drop. And to add to it all, he is forced to stand the "shrinks" of bad eggs. In his own words, "the country merchant controls everything."

In the United States there are regulations agreed to by all dealers in the cities of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston, by which eggs received must come up to a certain standard or the shipper stands the loss. The first grade is called extras, and calls for 80 per cent. reasonably full, strong-bodied eggs, with not more than one dozen loss to a case. All cases must be free from small and dirty eggs. A very small proportion of the receipts grades in this class.

The grade next below is called firsts, and even in this would be included but few of the cases received if a strict inspection were made. This class must be 65 per cent. full eggs, with a loss of less than a dozen and a half to a case.

Canadian dealers, by not working together, accept cases without question, even though some dozens be spoiled. The "shrinks" at the present time are numerous, and dealers stand to drop a great deal of money during the coming Winter. Competition is so keen, however, and so anxious are they to keep their customers, that they are paying prices which England has never yet paid, nor likely to pay.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT.

An American friend who is in the confidence of the Democratic leaders writes The Grocer that the big chiefs of the party have decided on Grover Cleveland as the candidate of the Democracy in the approaching Presidential election. It remains to be seen whether or not the rank and file in convention assembled will endorse the choice of the leaders.

Ex-President Cleveland is said to be in the very best of health—never fitter for the arduous campaign from now to the fourth of November.

Cleveland would undoubtedly raise the contest to a high level and a battle between the Democratic veteran and Roosevelt would be watched by Canadians with intense interest.

GILLETT VS. LUMSDEN.

IN the Court of Appeal, Toronto, on June 29, before Moss, C.J.O.; Osler, Maclennan, Garrow, J.J.A.; Teetzel, J., the following decision was rendered, as reported in the Mail and Empire:

"Gillett v. Lumsden.—Judgment (E. B.B.) on appeal by plaintiff from judgment of a Divisional Court (6 O. L.R., 66, 2 O.W.R., 497), reversing judgment of Street, J. (4 O.L.R., 300; 1 O.W.R., 488), and dismissing the action, which was brought to restrain defendants from infringing plaintiff's trade mark and trade name, "Gillett's Cream Dry Hop Yeast," by selling yeast cakes under the name of "Jersey Cream Yeast." The Divisional Court held that the evidence did not show a case of passing off. Held, that the view of the Divisional Court was right, and per Moss, C.J.O., that there was no infringement. Appeal dismissed with costs. J. Bicknell, K.C., and A. Bicknell, for appellant; G. F. Shepley, K. C., and F. C. Cooke, for defendants."

IMPORTANT PURCHASE.

ONE of the most important business changes of the week is the purchase of the business of the Toronto Coffee and Spice Co., by the Robert Greig Co., Toronto, popularly known to the grocery trade as the proprietors of the White Swan Mills. The Robert Greig Co. have taken over the entire connection, salesmen, etc., of the Toronto Coffee & Spice Co., and will continue to manufacture all their old brands and use their established trade marks. In order to accommodate the increased turnover, an extra plant is being installed which is the most modern and up-to-date obtainable.

The following salesmen, formerly with the Toronto Coffee and Spice Co., have been retained by the Robert Greig Co.: W. F. Robertson, whose territory has been the Maritime Provinces; J. Hodge, well known as an old standby in the spice trade, who will cover the Midland District of Ontario; R. A. Weiss, who will travel in eastern Ontario; A. D. Russell, their city traveler, and G. C. Thompson, managing director of the old firm, who will devote his attention to the jobbing end of the trade.

In addition the Robert Greig Co. have their own staff of salesmen, which includes J. L. Upham, for eastern Ontario and Townships; U. E. Clark, for the Niagara Peninsula; C. H. Jackman, for the Northwest Territories, the whole of which comprises not only a representative but large staff of traveling salesmen The White Swan Mills are favorably known throughout the country, and their large and growing trade in cereals, spices, coffees, cocoanut, etc., will now be one of the largest in this country.

A VISITOR FROM ENGLAND.

THE Grocer had a pleasant visit this week from Mr. G. B. Suggitt, grocer, confectioner and wine merchant, of Leeds, Eng. Mr. Suggitt is also the secretary of the Leeds Grocers' Association.

In the course of an interview on trade conditions in England, Mr. Suggitt remarked on the dullness prevailing in Great Britain at the present time. "This," he said, "is largely South African war, the evil of which due to the South African war, the evil effect of which is still being felt. The principal cause of the depression in business, however, is co-operative competition, which has already assumed alarming proportions in the Old Land. In the district of Leeds alone there are approximately ninety-three grocery establishments, seventy meat shops, fifty drapers' shops, forty boot and shoe stores, besides chemists, fish, fruit and vegetable dealers organized as co-operative trading concerns. That such a formidable array of business establishments, combining the wholesale as well as the retail sides of trade should be viewed with suspicion and animosity, is not at all to be wondered at. Considerable difficulty, however, is being experienced in getting the individual retail grocer to comprehend the situation sufficiently to refrain from buying from the co-operative stores. As a matter of fact, the consumer does not save materially on the price of an article bought from a co-operative store, and in addition to the manifest injury the legitimate wholesaler and retailer suffers owing to co-operative competition, the Exchequer of the British nation loses millions owing to the fact that no income tax is levied on co-operative institutions."

Mr. Suggitt spoke enthusiastically over the Grocers' Federation Conference, which meets in Bradford, Yorkshire, during the coming week, and which will be attended by representatives from every grocers' association in the United Knigdom.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, June 30, 1904.

Groceries.

THE grocery trade has been fair to quiet during the week, the proximity of the holiday season not having a tendency to increase the volume of business. The sugar situation, upon which so much depends, tends to become more settled, and as a result retailers are not so dubious about buying as they were. Just after The Grocer went to press last week there was an advance all around in Canadian refined of 5c per hundred lbs., and word has been received this week of a further advance of 5c in American refined, which will in all probability mean a similar advance on this side of the line. The statistical position in sugar would seem to favor further advances. Retailers' stocks throughout the country are reported to be light, and in view of the fruit season which has now begun, increased buying may be expected, although the lateness of the season and probable shortness of the crop will tend to check brisk business. Canned goods continue firm, but wholesalers are of the opinion that there will be no further advances in prices on 1903 pack. Tomatoes and beans are slightly firmer and corn is very scarce. The price for 1904 salmon pack has been announced on the Pacific Coast, quotations being $1.10 per case higher than last year, namely, $5.75 to $5.85. Tea is quiet and Japans are easier by 1½c than last season, the result being increased inquiries. Coffee is also quiet and tends towards easier prices, but local prices have not as yet been affected. Tapioca has eased 5c per 100 lbs. in primary markets, and peppers are likewise easier. The foreign nut trade is quiet, but ruling prices are firm in view of unfavorable crop reports from the countries of growth.

CANNED GOODS.

The situation in canned goods continues firm, although there is not likely to be any further advance in prices from now until the new pack arrives. Corn is very scarce and firm. Tomatoes exhibit a firmer tendency as well as beans. Trade in canned fruit has been good, especially apples in gallon tins.

New pack lobsters and haddies are arriving freely. New pack salmon will not be on the market for considerable time yet, but quotations for futures have already been announced, namely, $5.75 to $5.85, which is an advance of $1.10 per case on last year's prices. This will mean that Fraser River sockeye to show an adequate margin to the trade will have to retail at 20c per tin, which means that trade for the best kind of fish will tend to go after Rivers Inlet sockeye salmon, which will retail at 15c, and even so at a very small margin. The trade believe that comparatively little Fraser River sockeye will be sold.

The Anglo British Columbia Packing Co., which controls the greatest number of factories on the coast, outside of British Columbia, has not yet named prices, preferring to wait in the hope that the catch will enable them to name lower prices than those established by other canners, but without any implied promise in this direction, because should the catch not warrant they would not be in the market at a lower figure.

Advices from the United States say there is rather more inquiry for salmon although orders are small, buyers preferring to buy from hand-to-mouth in the face of the 1903 pack of Alaska being still withheld by the largest packers. Our quotations are as follows:

SUGAR

There has been a decided change for the better in the entire sugar situation during the week under review, and prices of spot raws have advanced fully 10c per 100 lbs. to basis 3.94c duty paid New York for 96 test centrifugals. In addition there have been large sales for June-July shipment from Cuba totalling about 250,000 bags, practically all at 2 5/8 c. and f. New York for 95 test which is equivalent to 4.02 duty paid. Some were sold at 2 11-16 c. and f. for basis 96, some at 2 9-16 for basis 95, which are equivalent to 4.05 and 3.99 respectively, duty paid. From these figures it would be observed that the highest prices for the campaign so far have been reached, and the very large sales which have transpired are an indication of how buyers view the article. As a natural result of these large sales the week commencing Monday, June 27, has been quiet and at the moment there are sellers but no buyers at current quotations. The present dulness is without significance, being entirely due to the indifference of buyers following the recent heavy purchases and to the near approach of the holidays, the New York markets being closed on Saturday, July 2, and Monday, July 4. As the refineries will be partially closed there will be a falling off in meltings, but after the holidays it is more than probable that meltings will be considerably increased owing to the seasonable demand for refined sugars, following upon favorable weather.

The advance in refined made by Howell as we went to press last week was not followed by others until Tuesday, 28th inst., when Americans advanced the list 5c per 100 lbs., which has had the effect of stimulating withdrawals and existing contracts.

Quotations for Canadian refined were advanced 5c per 100 lbs. Friday, June 23, and we revise list at foot accordingly. There has only been a moderate increase in the local demand as buyers were fairly well stocked in anticipation of a large consuming season. There are fears, however, that the Summer consumption will not be so large as usual owing to the small fruit crop.

Europe has advanced for the week 2d per hundredweight, and we now quote both June and July shipments at 9s 3¾d basis f. o. b. Hamburg, which is equivalent to a parity of 3.97c duty paid New York for 96 test centrifugals.

Receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending June 22 were 46,057 tons, with meltings 37,000 tons, and total stocks 224,774 tons. Combined stocks of U. S. and Cuba were 394,774 tons against 669,406 tons last year, a decrease of 274,632 tons. Combined stock of Europe and America at latest uneven dates was 2,073,774 tons, or 300,582 tons less than the same time last year.

Grinding in Cuba is rapidly drawing to a close, latest advices being that there are now only 6 centrals in operation compared with 12 the preceding week and 4 the corresponding week last year. Rains seem to be interfering with the operations of the few factories still working, and reports received tell of the worst cyclone known in years in the district of Santiago, Cuba, which has destroyed villages, railways and bridges and interfered with cable communication. The effect on the plantations must be serious. We quote the following prices:

Crop report on Peas specially reported for The Canadian Grocer by the BLOOMFIELD PACKING CO., Packers of Quaker Canned Goods.

"In peas the indication up to the last week pointed to one of the best pea crops ever harvested in this section. It is evident now that these expectations are not going to be fully realized, but to what percentage the shrinkage will be on the whole crop it is impossible to estimate at present. This curtailing of the very glowing prospects of a little earlier period is occasioned by fungus having struck a number of the fields, blighting and killing the vines completely. This is a disease that we have more or less trouble with every year, but this year it is more prevalent than usual. The eradicating of this pest appears to be impossible. Scientists have come here specially from the Guelph Agricultural College to try and solve the problem of how to eradicate it, but have so far failed to do so. It starts in a small spot in one part of the field, turning the vines yellow, shrinking and drying up the pods and gradually creeping over the field, until in about a week from its first appearance the whole landscape in that particular field is turned from green to orange in color.

"Fortunately, on account of an increased acreage compared with other years, this fungus will not prevent the farmers in this locality from supplying their usual quantity of raw material in the pea line. What is still better, the quality of the peas will be exceptionally fine. We have had ideal weather this season for growing peas, plenty of moisture, cool nights and moderately cool days, just the kind of weather required for maturing this article in perfect condition. While on the whole the pea crop will probably be an average one, it would not be any detriment to the canning business if it was from 40 to 50% larger, as with the quality so superior as it undoubtedly is, and with goods sold at the usual price, there is bound to be a large increase in consumption. Every retail grocer knows that with a high class of Canned Goods in stock, which can be sold at the usual prices, it is quite possible to increase his trade 50% compared with the usual ordinary goods. The foundation of high-class goods is in the raw material, and we believe we have in the pea line this season, just what is required to put up the finest pack of Quaker Peas this season we have ever packed since starting business."

SPICES.

The only change in the spice market for the week is a slightly easier tendency in peppers. Trade is quiet and last week's prices remain unchanged. Our quotations are as follows :

FOREIGN NUTS.

A seasonable demand and quiet market at unchanged prices is reported for the week. Cable advices say there has been a further decline in Sicily filberts, and an advance of 3c in the price of Jordan shelled almonds in Malaga, but these changes have not affected the local market. Letters from the Pacific Coast 13c eggs than in a 10c price. The only look as gloomy, saying that there will not be as many as have been expected by the most conservative. Country Produce.

EGGS.

Dealers have now given up the idea of any lowering of the price and look forward to a sharp loss on their export trade. The price quoted is still 15c, and with the season so far advanced that level is likely to be maintained. And this in face of the fact that receipts have been large for some weeks. The country merchant is blamed for this in some cases, but he cannot be blamed for disposing of his produce at the best price he can get, and if some dealers offer it all the rest must do so. The cause of it all is the competition put forward by the smaller dealers, who thoughtlessly purchase at any price in order to get supplies. There is very little more money for the merchant in 13c eggr than in a 10c price. The only thing is that he pleases his customers better by being able to offer the higher sum. The average price for the past three months in the four cities of the United States—New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago—has been 18 1-5c, 1 3-5c higher than last year, in spite of a greater receipt of 177,665 cases. Four years ago the average price was 13c. A great deal of money was lost two years ago with eggs at 17 1-3c, and more will go this year. Yankee dealers are, however, better protected than Canadian dealers, since with them there is very large local consumption and very little export trade. Here it is the reverse, and England will not pay the prevailing price. "Shrinks" are very numerous now, and what little chance the dealer has of clearing himself is, in this way, denied him. In the four cities mentioned the money represented in "shrinks" in the three months was a million and a half dollars, a scarcely credible amount. The price is still 15c.

APPLES.

A fair trade is reported in evaporated apples at unchanged prices. Our quotations are as follows :

Evaporated apples, per lb	0 06½

BEANS.

The bean market has shown decided activity during the week under review. The demand is for all varieties and is general. One Toronto firm reports the sale of one-half carload of beans within the week, quite an unusual thing for this season of the year, which is usually very quiet. Prices have eased and recovered, and tend to become firmer. Telegrams from California report that the situation in dried lima beans is a very strong one, and that higher prices are looked for. Stocks are being gradually absorbed, and are now less than 130,000 bags, which are in few and strong hands. We quote the following prices :

Fish.

A good trade is reported for the week under review. The demand for white fish and trout still continues. Mackerel are off the market this week, and there is a great scarcity of herring. Prices remain unchanged. We quote as follows :

Green Fruits.

A brisk trade is reported in green fruits for the week. The first of July trade has been particularly large this year. There has been a good demand for California late Valencia oranges and Mediterranean sweets, although Sorrento fruit is disappearing from the market, and California navels are out. The lemon trade is only fair, with last week's prices practically unchanged. Florida pines are off the market; the season is past its best, and the demand for pineapples is noticeably slackening. Bananas are in big demand at unchanged prices. New Tennessee apples are quoted on the market for the first time this week. Canadian cherries are coming more plentifully; the demand for them is improving, and prices are easier, having dropped to 40c per basket in the course of the week. Strawberries are arriving freely. Niagara stock is plentiful, and Oakville berries beginning to come. On Tuesday of this week supplies were so large that there was a slump in the market, and prices dropped to 5c per basket; quotations as we go to press are from 5 to 7c. By the end of this week or the first of next it is expected that full stocks will be arriving on the market. Mississippi tomatoes are 50c easier than last week. Cantaloupes from both California and Texas are arriving in considerable quantities, and are meeting with improved demand. The first Georgia watermelons were seen this week. Shipments of California fruit, including peaches, apricots and plums, are coming to the Toronto market daily, and will soon be arriving regularly by the carload. We quote the following prices:

Vegetables.

There is a brisk demand for all kinds of vegetables, of which there is a scarcity, the demand being greater than the supply. Potatoes are slow and easier in price. It is expected that as soon as the ordinary consumer gets a taste of new potatoes, which will probably be in a week or ten days, the demand for old stuff will drop off. There is already a considerable falling off in the price of new potatoes. Bunch lettuce by the dozen is 5c lower, while new beets have dropped from 50c and 75c to 40c and and 50c per dozen. Florida spinach is out of the market. Bermuda onions are off the market, and the demand for Egyptians is slow. Green peas, cabbage and beans are decidedly easier. We quote the following prices:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The grain situation cannot be said to have improved during the week under review. Trade is dull generally, notwithstanding the fact that Manitoba wheat is up a little. Manitoba, Northern No. 1, is 1-2 to 1c firmer, and No. 2 northern 1c firmer. Red and white wheat are each 1c easier. Barley is 1 to 2c easier, and oats 1-2c firmer. Our quotations are as follows:

FLOUR.

Flour continues quiet, with no changes in last week's quotations to record. A little flour is being exported from time to time, $4.05 per barrel being offered at the beginning of the week, without much forthcoming. During the past month, whatever buying has been done has been on a basis of $4.10 to $4.15, which exporters say allows but little margin above cost. We quote the following prices:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, June 30, 1904.

Groceries.

ANOTHER holiday for Canada's birthday breaks this week's business. On Friday every place of business in the land should be closed. In fact, in Montreal some of the largest firms are closing not only Fridays, but until Monday, so that the clerks will be able to have three full days of rest. Sugar is again attracting attention, and everywhere the feeling is that sugar will continue strong for some time. The advance of 5c all around took place last week, just the very day of The Grocer's issue, so that it was not recorded. The tone of the market for molasses and sugar is very strong. An advance of a cent was reported from the Barbadoes, and quotations here went up a cent in sympathy. There is, as was prophesied by The Grocer some weeks ago, a strong feeling in the molasses market. Tea and coffee are very interesting. Demand has been and is keen for all high grade teas. Holders are very firm, and the scarcity of all high-grade Japan tea backs them up. From Japan comes the report that the market is quiet, and that settlements are scanty. Second crop teas have appeared on the Yokohama market, and the quality of the tea is fine. Coffee is still occupying the attention of observers, as there is certain to be an advance before long. Canned goods of all descriptions are in an exceptionally strong position. Salmon is attracting some attention by its marked advance over the prices of last year. Imagine new pack being $1 to $1.10 higher than it was last season at this time. This, it is thought, will check consumption of this article, as there cannot be any more 15c red salmon. The lowest possible price anticipated now is 18 to 20c. Canned corn is still scarce and at $1.20 holds a strong position. Tomatoes are firm and in good demand. The picnic season being in full blast, the canned meat trade is brisk. Green fruits are interesting now, although quiet. California stock is on hand, and is selling freely. Outside of this, however, little is doing. Peaches sold from $1.75 to $2.50 a crate. Pineapples have advanced slightly, and strawberries have dropped to 8 and 10c. All kinds of fish are scarce, and this Dominion Day coming on Friday will deter the sale of fish very materially. The scarcity of brook trout continues, and the 18c price still holds. Collections are reported fair, and country business good.

SUGAR.

The statistical position of sugar is very noticeable just now, and the advance of 5c is supposed to be only a forewarning of what will take place shortly. Sugar, it is claimed by the knowing ones, must go up. The shortness of the Cuban crop; the demand for sugar having increased all over Europe, and the fact that considerable Java sugar has been ordered already, all point to a very firm position for all kinds of sugar. Locally, the market is very strong, and trade is good. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A step up for molasses has attracted some attention in the trade generally, and holders are showing a disposition to believe that molasses will be still higher in price. From Barbadoes the report has been verified that the crop is all in, and that very little molasses can be had there. Several large schooners are expected in Montreal early in July, and then some interesting sales may be reported. Molasses was selling freely at 26c, and the demand was very good this week. We quote:

TEA.

There was a notable decline in the home market for Japan tea, when compared with the opening last season at this time. But the recovery has become as interesting as the decline. This applies to high-grade teas, which are dear, and this is occasioned by the keen competition and the fact that purchasers are looking forward to the scarcity of grades above 20c. Spot teas placed in the market now are of high grade from Japan shippers. The medium grades from 16c to 18c are on the way, and will likely be placed in a week or so. The later teas have been quoted as low as 12 3-4c, c.i.f., but of course such are not available until about the middle of July. Indian and Ceylon teas are firm and in good demand. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods of all descriptions are in excellent demand. The stocks of last year's salmon will be much appreciated now, and those who have any quantity will do well to hold them. Canned meats are selling freely, and a fine business is being done. The outlook for corn is very strong, as no weakening has taken place in the situation. No corn can be had under $1.20, and very little is obtainable at that. The new pack salmon prices are as follows:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Business is dull in dried fruits, although the jobbers seem to be busy. Several more or less important lots of sultanas have been moved at full values, and a general hardening tendency has set in. This movement of stiffening is no doubt in sympathy with the primary market. Tarragona almonds are reported firmer. Valencia shelled are strong on spot. There has been a good demand for Naples walnuts, and the spot stock seems limited. We quote:

Green Fruits.

The arrival of the new California fruit has stirred the trade slightly this week, and the sales of stock turned out well on Monday. Apricots sold at $1.25 to $1.85 per crate; peaches, from $1.75 to $2.50, and plums from $2 to $2.80. Pineapples have advanced slightly, and strawberries have dropped a couple of cents on all grades. Cabbages are getting cheaper, and other vegetables are gradually passing out of the luxury class. Oranges and bananas are steady, and with abundant supplies an easiness is anticipated for a whole. Fish.

A general scarcity of fish is noted, but there is, notwithstanding, a dullness in the market. This week upsets the fish market because of Friday, the only fast day of the week, being a holiday. All the big dealers will be closed, and then the demand has not been so good this last ten days. Gaspe salmon is selling freely at 13c. Halibut has advanced to 11 1-2c, and brook trout is still scarce and maintains a steady demand at 18c. Haddock has stepped up a half cent again, and is ruling strong at 4c. The half cent drop of last week on trout, whitefish, dore, etc., has been recovered, and they are all selling at 7 1-2c. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Eggs are likely to be cheaper. The receipts are heavy, there having arrived on Monday as many as 1,477 cases. The demand is still limited, owing to the warm weather, and the tone of the market tends to easiness all around. Straight new gathered stock was selling at 14 to 14 1-2c on Tuesday, and seconds at 13 to 13 1-2c per dozen.

BEANS.

The bean market is very steady, and little business is doing. Sales were made in a jobbing way of choice primes at $1.35 to $1.40 per bushel, and primes at $1.35, while car lots of primes (choice) sold at $1.30, and primes at $1.25 per bushel.

HONEY.

Honey is very quiet, and prices are unchanged. White clover is quoted at 13 1-2 to 14c. Extracted white clover remains at 8 1-2 to 9c in 10 lb. tins, and 7 to 7 1-2c in 300 lb. kegs. Buckwheat remains at 6 and 7c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Little is doing in these lines just now, although splendid goods are on the market. We quote:

Maple syrup, in wood, per lb	0 05½	0 06
Maple syrup, in large tins	0 80	0 85
Pure sugar, per lb	0 07	0 07½
Pure Beauce sugar, per lb	0 08½	0 09

POTATOES.

The market for potatoes is slow just now, and the demand is light. Sales were made at 65 to 70c, ex-track, for good stock.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

The flour position seems to be somewhat improved in sympathy with the stronger tone of the wheat market. Western millers are more hopeful, and the local men anticipate a slight advance before long. We quote:

Manitoba spring wheat patents		4 90

FEED.

The feed trade is moving slowly, and firmness has characterized every department. We quote:

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, June 27, 1904.

TRADE is only moderately active in this city. The falling off in business at Sydney, in consequence of the strike, has curtailed the business of Halifax houses to some extent. The 21st was kept as a holiday in the city, it being the natal day of Halifax, and the week's business suffered somewhat in consequence. The outlook for future trade is good. The Nova Scotia crops are coming along grandly, and never looked more promising at this date. Native strawberries have been on the market for a week, which is remarkably early. They seem quite abundant and retail grocers were selling three boxes for a quarter on Saturday night. Apples promise to be a big crop again this year. All branches of the fisheries are proving much more remunerative than last year, and a lot of money will be put in circulation next autumn.

The Halifax grocers, and perhaps some in the country as well, have been trying an experiment in the drug line that does not promise favorably at present. About a month ago a pleasant appearing young man canvassed the principal grocery stores soliciting orders for castoria. He said the manufacturers thought the drug trade was not using them right, and they had decided to place the production in the hands of the grocers at a less price than they had been selling to the druggists. Good orders were secured and the goods were delivered in a few days, c. o. d. receipts being given on billheads of the Universal Drug Co., New York. It has since transpired that the article was a mere imitation of the well known proprietory article, and of uncertain value. In some cases the grocers paid more for the stuff than they could have bought the genuine article for in like quantities. The proprietors of Pitcher's Castoria are taking steps to prevent the imitation from being offered to the public, and altogether the position of the grocers who parted with their money for large quantities of the alleged castoria are likely to have an uncomfortable time of it.

A young man who formerly traveled for an Ontario cigar firm was arrested on Friday night in a farm house near Sydney, on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. It is alleged that he made several drafts upon his house which he got the firm's customers at Sydney to endorse. These were returned unaccepted. It is said the man secured sums aggregating several hundred dollars.

There is not much change in the market situation. Barreled pork has been advanced, but the change is merely nominal, as the sales at present are very light. Dairy produce is depressed. The market is very much overstocked with dairy butter, and the price is extremely low at 15 to 16c in tubs, and 17 to 18c in prints. Creamery sells at 19 to 20c. Cheese is fluctuating. Just now the price is off a little at 8½ to 8¾c at factory points. Eggs are not quite as firm as last week. Prices hold at 15c for Nova Scotia eggs, and 14c for Prince Edward Island. Flour is quiet. Some dealers believe that spot stocks in this province will be light by the first of August, and that prices will then be firmer than at present.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Officer of Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., June, 1904.

THE celebration to which we referred last week in connection with the Ter-Centenary of the discovery of the St. John River by Champlain, was successfully held. The weather was fine, and the city has seldom contained so many strangers. Of course from the standpoint of the wholesale trade, business was considerably interfered with, but there can be no doubt financially the city received very much benefit. It is impossible to report the feeling of our merchants looking forward to the Summer and Fall trade. The condition of the money market in the United States, of course, affects us considerably, but as yet there is no such depression here as there, and while there is a general feeling of caution very many are hopeful, and anticipate an equally good business to that of last year.

Merchants are trying to find in what relation they stand to the new tariff. Certainly we have never had such a measure of protection in Canada as the Government have now given us. Importers, however, of certain lines view with almost consternation the fact that after paying duty on the price of goods in the United States, which may mean quite an advance over the price at which they have bought them, they have to pay the entire difference between the two prices as an additional duty. They feel it is protection with a vengeance, if not an interference with fair business conditions. There is also a feeling of uncertainty in regard to the outcome of the present investigation into the tariff as indicated by the Government.

In local markets there are no changes of wide importance. Several cars of Canadian cornmeal have been imported, owing to local prices being high, and our mills not able to compete. In spice the situation is largely unchanged, except that ginger is extremely low. This, of course, is a quiet season. Cream of tartar continues to hold at quite a full price.

Oil.

There has been no change in the price of burning oil since the low price was quoted after the change of duty. This, of course, is a season of light shipment. There is a fair business reported in linseed oil. While the local price continues low markets are firmer, and an advance in price is looked for. Of course it is also in these lines a quiet season. Turpentine is rather weak at the lower prices named a few weeks ago. Dealers have expected even lower figures, but holders of stock abroad seem able to keep the market from any serious break. There is, however, an easy feeling. In lubricating oils prices are unchanged. Sharp competition in these lines keeps prices at fair values. There is some interest in fish oils. There is no doubt we will see lower prices. There is some old oil still here, and dealers are not inclined to purchase new oil. The quantity offered so far is not large, but there will be every effort made to force prices down. In Newfoundland non-freezing cod liver oil prices have been about cut in two since last year. This, of course, is affected by the Norway product.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt a cargo is daily expected of some 6,000 bags, and prices ex vessel will rule rather lower than present ex store figures. There is, however, no change in the market. There continues to be just a fair sale. There is a fair demand for factory filled, but quantity imported is not as large as in former years. In Canadian salt there is a good steady demand at even prices.

Canned Goods.

Prices on new salmon have been quoted by coast packers, and while our dealers anticipate higher figures they were hardly prepared for the full prices quoted, which are at least 25 per cent. higher than last Fall. There are quite a few still held, on which our trade are anticipating a nice profit. There has been during the season only a fair average business. In vegetables present stocks will carry dealers until new goods arrive, except it may be in corn. Prices are not yet quoted on new vegetables, but may be before this report is in print. The large proportion of the goods to be brought here will come through the consolidated. In canned strawberries and peaches full prices are anticipated, as advices from Ontario state the pack will be short. Local packers are now quoting gallon apples. In this line sale for the past two years has been light. Packers are trying to get a little better than last season's figures. In meats prices are held firm and business is quite active. In canned oysters full prices are still held, and there will be, it is expected, no change until another season. Domestic canned haddies are being freely received; prices are unchanged. This is a popular line, and with the increased population in the west a much larger demand is looked for. This is also the case with our other domestic lines, as sardines, kippered herring, and clams. In lobsters it is not possible to supply the demand.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are very busy. Bananas are coming to hand rather more freely, and are the line of chief interest. In oranges, owing to the season, prices are firmer. Californias are having good demand. Sorrento stock offered here is but fair quality. A few nice valencias are still offered, but price is quite high. Lemons are still low. In pines there is a rather better demand, but this is not a large market. Watermelons are offered, but this is also a line to which our dealers do not give very much attention. Ontario strawberries are being received, and are selling freely at quite full figures, where quality is good. Domestic rhubarb holds quite firm in price, and there is a full demand for all offered.

Dried Fruits.

In spot goods business is quiet. There is, however, a fair sale for seeded raisins, cleaned currants in cartons, and 90 to 100 prunes. Prices are low. Brokers are trying to interest the trade in new goods, but do not find very much snap to the market. The past season has not been particularly favorable, and not only are there fair stocks held, but present values are low. In peels the new prices show quite an advance in citron. Orange and lemon peel about as last year. There continues to be increased difference between these lines. New prices quoted on prunes are low, and should result in good business. This is a very poor market for apricots and peaches. This market is reported very firm in the west. In dates quite a full stock is held. Prices are low, and new goods are offered about as last year. In figs there seems a rather firmer market than last season, and advices, as so far received, would indicate a strong market. In foreign raisins very favorable reports are to hand. Evaporated apples are light sellers at this season, and the market is not particularly firm. In valencia onions season in getting late. Some nice stock is now held. There has been some effort to sell from Montreal. In peanuts prices are again slightly higher.

Sugar.

Holders of stock feel encouraged owing to a slight advance during the past week, and a very firm market is reported There continues to be a steady sale. Owing to the low prices which have so long ruled there is but light business outside of granulated sugar. The fair profit which is now being made through the Grocers' Guild on this line is the chief bond which holds the guild idea firm, and tends to increase the number of lines sold under agreement.

Molasses.

Conditions in our market are now quiet. There are fair stocks held, particularly in Porto Rico. Prices are held quite firm, and in Barbadoes an advance is anticipated. Importers are finding one disadvantage in reference to the withdrawal of duty on this grade, as they now have to get their importation gaged themselves, in place of having the free service of the Government.

Fish.

Fresh fish continues to occupy the attention of the trade. Salmon are now quite freely received, and may be said to be at the height of the season. Quite firm prices are anticipated, as there is always a 4th of July demand from Boston. Of late years prices have been well maintained throughout the season, not going as low as formerly. It is rather surprising we do not send more fresh salmon to Montreal, and to Ontario cities,—it is our finest fish. In shad and gaspereau the season may be said to be over, although salmon fishermen still offer a few shad. In dried fish, while prices are rather lower, new goods come to hand quite slowly, and prices are still high. There are continued small receipts of smoked herring, but very full prices are still held. In pickeled herring there is little demand. Prices are high, and it is yet too early to say anything in regard to the coming season.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour there is steady business. Manitoba grades are unchanged. Dealers were somewhat surprised at the slight decline in Ontario brands. The market, however, is considered to be quite firm, and low prices are not anticipated. While in oats some shippers are quoting rather lower figures, oatmeal is held at full prices. There is but a fair sale. Cornmeal continues high, and several cars of Canadian cornmeal have been received. This is something entirely new for our market, as our local millers have usually been able to undersell the west. Beans are very dull, even at the low price. In barley and split peas there is little doing. In feed millers are holding prices quite firmly, not having very much to offer. There is, however, in this market but a light demand at this season.

MORE ON THE NEW TARIFF.

REFERRING to a series of interviews on the new tariff published in last week's issue of The Grocer, Mr. Wallace Anderson, of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co., wishes to state that it was not his intention to convey the impression that the continuance of the surtax on raw beet sugars from Germany was responsible for the increase in the sugar trade between Canada and the West Indies and British Guiana. As a matter of fact, the latter is the legitimate result of the abolition of European bounties and the operation of the preferential tariff. The effect of the abolition of bounties has been to increase the price of European beet sugar above the parity of cane sugars, and this combined with the preferential tariff, has made sugar from the British possessions the only desirable goods for Canadian sugar refiners to handle. All indications are favorable to a continuance of these conditions. The surtax being only applicable to sugars from Germany, it has really no effect on importations, and were other conditions favorable to imports of beet sugar, refiners could draw their supplies from Austria, Belgium and countries other than Germany, which would not be subject to any restrictions.

NOTICE OF INCORPORATION, ETC.

The Ontario Government has confirmed the by-law of the Canada Grocers, Limited, of Toronto, authorizing the directors of the company from time to time, on behalf of the company, with the funds of the company available for the purpose, to acquire or purchase such amount of the preference stock of the company as they may see fit, and to cancel the stock so acquired, and to reduce pro rata, according to the amount of stock so cancelled, any reserve set apart in respect of such preference stock so cancelled.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. Reggio, of A. Reggio & Co., commission merchants, New York, was in Toronto this week, and was introduced to the trade by Mr. W. Anderson, of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. A. Reggio & Co. represent Missir & Co., fig packers, Smyrna, as well as several well-known packers of walnuts.

Mr. J. J. Denman, traveler for the Canada Biscuit Co., Toronto, has been promoted to the management of their business in Manitoba and the Northwest.

Mr. W. Stanley Spark, of the Dominion Staff of Agriculture, leaves next week for the Argentine Republic, where he will inquire into the matter of improved trade relations between Canada and that country.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, June 28, 1904.

SPLENDID growing weather has been experienced throughout the Northwest for the past week, and the most brilliant reports are coming in from the various points pertaining to the conditions of the grain crop. The markets are fairly steady, with the exception of flour, which is a little easier, and sugar, which is now quoted at an advance of 5c.

Sugar—The market has now advanced, and Montreal granulated is quoted at $5.05 in barrels and $4.95 in sacks and yellows at $4.45. The market still quotes Wallaceburg in barrels at $4.95, and sacks $4.85.

Canned Strawberries—The market is firm; pineappes are still quoted 2 lb. whole at $3.75 a case of two dozen; 1 3-4 sliced at $3.75 a case of two dozen; 1 1-2 lb. sliced, $7.20 a case of four dozen, and 1 3-4 lb. grated, $7.60 a case of four dozen. The strawberry crop will undoubtedly be small this year, and canned strawberries will be rather high.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—All lines are firm. Evaporated apples and apricots continue to be very scarce. California 1902 stock are just about off the market, and 1903 choice are quoted 13 1-4c to 13 1-2c. New goods will not be in before the first of July. Oregon prunes are about off the market. California prunes, the market quotes: 70 to 80 at 5 1-2c; 60 to 70 at 6c; 80 to 90 at 5c, and 90 to 100 at 4 1-2c.

Rolled Oats—The market is firm; 60 lb. sacks are quoted at $2.25, 40 lb. sacks at $2.30; 20 lb. sacks at $2.35; 8 lb. sacks at $2.65, and 5 lb. sacks at $2.85.

Cornmeal—The market remains firm, quoting cornmeal 90c per half sack, and $1.75 per sack.

Green Fruits—The market is firm. Late Valencia oranges are quoted at $4.75 a case; sweets at $3.50 to $4 a case; pineapples, $5 a case; bananas, $3 to $3.50 a bunch. Hood River strawberries per case, $3.50. Messina lemons, $3.75 a case. California cherries, black or red, $2 a case. Florida watermelons, $4.50 a dozen. Texas tomatoes, $3 a case of four baskets. Onions, 30c a dozen. Radish, 45c a dozen. New cabbage, 4c a lb. Rhubarb, 2c a lb., and lettuce 40c a dozen bunches. Apples are practically off the market.

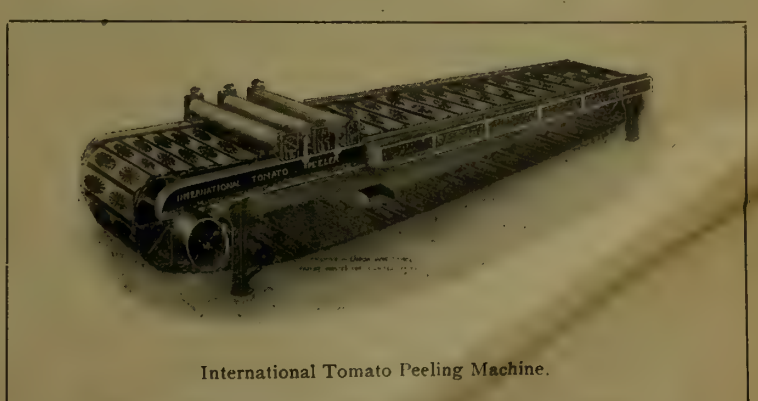
Flour—The market has declined. No. 1 patent is now quoted at $2.45; No. 2 at $2.30, and No. 3 at $1.80.

Eggs—The market has advanced a little and eggs are now jobbing to the trade at 20c.

Canned Meats—The market in cured meats continues firm, with quotations as follows: Hams, per lb., 13 3-4c; shoulders, per lb., 8 3-4c; picnic hams, per lb., 9c; breakfast bellies, 13 1-4c; breakfast backs, 11 1-4c; large spice rolls, 10 3-4c; long, dry clear, 8 3-4c.

TOMATO PEELING MACHINE.

A SHORT time ago an employe of the Standard Canning Co., of Hamilton, of which Lumsden Bros., wholesale grocers, are the principal owners, devised a machine for peeling tomatoes, an operation which has heretofore been performed entirely by hand. The machine was patented and the Standard Tomato Machine Co., of Hamilton, formed to place it on the market.



International Tomato Peeling Machine.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Lumsden The Grocer is enabled to publish the accompanying cut, which gives a very fair idea of the principle of the machine.

The tomatoes are placed on the revolving platform over the disks shown thereon, and are pressed through by the grooved rollers shown in the foreground. The skin is at the same time removed and cut off by a knife.

Two machines, it is claimed, will take the place of 80 women, and will do the work much more rapidly and neatly than is possible under the old system. Six operators, with one machine, are enabled to peel from 600 to 900 bushels per day of 10 hours. The saving in wages can be easily calculated.

The machines can be inspected at the company's works at Hamilton, and are manufactured to order.

FINE COFFEE WINDOW.

HAMILTON BROS., departmental store proprietors, corner of St. Catherine and Windsor streets, Montreal, have in their corner window a magnificent display of Blanke's "Faust" brand coffees. The window is a very striking one; a typical life-size Mephisto occupies the rear centre of the window, while on each side in large papier mache lithographs are depicted Faust and Marguerite, while surrounding these on all sides are tiers and pyramids of cans of Faust Coffee. At the feet of the central Mephisto is spread out a mound of coffee berries. The window certainly is a most attractive one, and no doubt will leave an impression on the minds of the passers-by of Faust Brand Coffee. Hudon, Hebert & Cie., wholesale grocers, Montreal, are agents in Canada for this coffee, which obtains such an immense sale throughout the United States, the citizens of which counry are large consumers and critical judges of what is good in coffee.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B.C., June 24.

A RADICAL change is to be inaugurated in the method of handling business in the Yukon, by the firms engaged in mercantile trade there. The two largest firms, the North American Transportation and Trading Co., and the Northern Commercial Co., have announced that in one month they will quit the credit business entirely. The policy inaugurated is one of the most sweeping changes in business since the Klondike was opened up. The rule is to be that every one of the miners in every camp in the country will have to pay spot cash for "grub" and other necessaries, or go without. There is not the slightest chance of the numerous smaller firms or companies holding out the credit inducement, as they could not carry all the miners who would be seeking for credit when the big companies shut down on it.

It is estimated that fully 70 per cent. of the miners have been carried heretofore by one or other of the companies for eight months in the year, or from the time of the buying winter supplies until the clean-up in the following Summer. The new policy will force producers to keep money enough here to pay for the Winter supplies. It may seriously affect thousands of "laymen" whose only capital is muscle and a willingness to use it on a share-and-share basis on some claim. These men, as a rule, have no capital, and have no means of paying for grub until the clean-up makes available the results of their exertions.

Advices from Liverpool received by the secretary of the Fraser River Canners' Association, Mr. W. D. Burdis, are to the effect that the English market was better stocked with canned salmon at the end of the month than had been the case for a number of years past. In Liverpool on May 31 there were stocked 648,079 cases, as compared with 640,030 cases in May last year. In 1902, the May stock was 495,563; in 1901, 342,382 cases; in 1900, 286,843 cases. This count for Liverpool for May 31 did not include 70,000 cases of Alaskan salmon in the cargo of the ship Earlmount, now en route for that port.

The stock at Liverpool included 300,000 cases of salmon from Fraser River, Northern British Columbia waters, and Puget Sound, while there were 348,000 cases of Alaskan salmon. On May 31 the London stocks comprised 60,000 cases of British Columbia salmon and 260,000 cases of Alaskan, in store and afloat. The average monthly consumption of salmon in the United Kingdom last year was 58,968 cases; In 1902 it was 56,546; in 1901 it was 42,291, and 50,264 cases in 1900.

The active feature of the markets locally this week is in the movement of fruit. And the active variety of fruit is the strawberry by all odds. And the strawberry is entirely of home production. A fortnight ago there were plenty of strawberries being imported from Washington and even some from Oregon. Now the berries are all of local production, and they are good. Besides being of excellent quality, the supply of the favorite berry is to all appearances unlimited. The fact was chronicled in my letter a week ago, that the week opened with a shipment of 700 boxes arriving on one train. Now it can be said that they not only arrive by carloads, but they are exported by carloads.

The quantity of strawberries sent to Winnipeg and other points in the Canadian Northwest is unparalleled. It makes the Manitobans stare, and they devote columns in their daily papers to describe the big shipments of luscious fruit from the Pacific Province. It is but a very few seasons ago that the attempt to send perishable fruits from this province to the markets of Manitoba and the Northwest was in a very small way only, and as an experiment. Now it is apparent to all that the future of the trade is as wide as the possibilities of raising fruit. And that is saying a great deal, seeing that such unlimited quantities have been produced now, when the industry is but beginning to wake up and develop.

Strawberries yesterday retailed at 5c per box for very fair quality of fruit; not the largest size, but still fine, well-formed berries. The large size of the berries grown in British Columbia is the prominent feature. There is no limit, apparently, to the size to which they will grow. It takes but few of some of the varieties to fill a box. The provincial fruit inspectors, Mr. R. M. Palmer and Mr. Thos. Cunningham, have this week been preparing samples to place on exhibition at Winnipeg at the Dominion Exposition, and they did not need to select large samples. They merely went down to a wholesale house and bought a few boxes at random, the whole lot was up to sample, and plenty good enough to make an exhibit from.

The berry season will perhaps last another fortnight, as the weather has kept cool and shady at times, with sufficient warm bright days to bring in the berries gradually. The crop would otherwise have been in with twice the rush it has come. Prices this week are down to $1 a crate in a jobbing way, with $1.25 for extra fine berries.

California fruits are coming in very liberally, and a much extended range is noticed. Peaches, Alexander and Hale's Early are being received regularly. The price is about $1.50 to $1.75 per crate. The first new apples from California, Astrakhans, arrived this morning. They were fairly well matured for such an early shipment. As they job at $2.25, it is hardly likely they will displace the Tasmanian apples still in stock, the latter being fully matured and ripe stock, choice selection, and quoted very little higher in comparison.

Several varieties of plums, Clyman, Green Gage and Tragedy prunes, have been received this week. The Tragedy prune is the first variety to come on the market, and this is the first shipment received this Summer. The price is $2 to $2.25 for prunes and plums. Apricots are coming in in very good condition; they sell at $1.75 per crate. Cherries from California are nearly out. They are sold at $1.65 this week. Local cherries are coming in very rapidly.

Groceries are moving slowly, northern shipments being light until after July 1, when the special through commodity rates come in force. There has been great activity displayed in buying sugar, the story having got around among the trade that the refinery price was likely to go up soon. There is, so far, no indication that a change is to be made, and it may be that the anticipation is caused by the fact that there is always a big demand in the preserving season.

In staple lines of groceries there is no change in prices to note. California evaporated apples are quoted higher than the Ontario variety, and, of course, do not sell, as the latter is infinitely the superior article. The clear creamy whiteness of the Ontario goods, with their full rich flavor and fruity texture when cooked, is away ahead of the dark-brown dried appearance of the California evaporated apple. Other lines of dried fruits are firm, but movement is light, owing to the heavy supplies of fresh fruit..

In produce lines, the supply of local fresh butter keeps up. There have been some receipts of Ontario butter this week, a car having sold out at 21 to 22c, and one or two other cars being heard of as on the way. No straight cars from Manitoba are being sent at present. The average price is as quoted, 21 to 22c. The stock is light. Local creamery is quoted at 25c yet. Eggs are being held at 22 1-2c for imported stock. Local fresh eggs are still worth 26 to 27c per dozen. There is little or no movement of produce north at present.

ASSOCIATION NEWS.

THE grocers of Brantford have arranged to join their Hamilton brethren again this year in their annual excursion to Niagara Falls on July 20.

CANADIAN CANNERS, LIMITED, AND THEIR SELLING TERMS.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER :

In your issue of June 10, your editorial says that the system adopted by the canners in the government of prices by the allotment of a trade discount for the disposing of their pack for 1904 has not met the approval of the wholesale trade, and that clause 5 relating thereto has not been satisfactory in the past, as it binds the trade to give to them their undivided support as against outside competition.

In defence of the canners, it may be said that the system laid down is not a matter of choice or profit to them, but on the contrary, they have had to bow in submission to the will of the trade, as they very wisely claim that it is conducive to giving a uniformity of price and a steadiness to the market value, although the margin of profit allowed by the canners is small in consideration of the risks they run, as the real dispensers of the goods to the retail trade. Able and competent men have to be kept on the road to dispose of them. They have to meet losses in bad debts, and to provide storage, interest and insurance, and, notwithstanding the small margins of profit in it to them, the trade prefers it to the old form of disposing of canned goods, and it is claimed by those who have given it support to be a marked improvement over the old form of handling this staple commodity of food supply.

In the matter of the wholesale trade having to make a statutory declaration, this form is not peremptorily demanded, for the reason that the form of a discount is nothing more than a commission on sales, and so long as the goods are of a high standard and meet the approval of the consumer he cannot do more than give to the canners his undivided support.

It may also be here said that the Canadian Canners have not amalgamated their factories to be conducted under one executive head for the purpose of unduly advancing the price of food products to the consumer. Such a policy would in the end be suicidal to them. Their aim is to pack a better grade of goods at the lowest possible margin of profit consistent with cost of manufacturing same, and to bring them in reach of all classes so as to increase their consumption. The purchase of the additional factories which you speak of was not done to stifle competition, but owing to an agreement in the formation of the amalgamation of the different factories in existence at the time, all would be taken in at a fair valuation for their property.

It is not the intention to take in a single factory started since the amalgamation, and the amalgamated canners are willing to meet all comers in a spirit of fair play and a survival of the fittest. It is expected on the part of the canners to create a healthy competition among their own factories. In future every factory will stand on its merit as to quality and standard of its goods, and such merit, standard and intrinsic value will be recognized under its own label and where packed. This form will retain the individuality of the goods as in the past, and any factory on account of location or any other reason over which the manager has no control, that is not able to produce standard goods, such goods will be sold on their merit and will come in competition with every factory in and outside the amalgamation.

It is not the intention of the Canadian canners to have a single objectionable feature in their mode of doing business, or to force any body of men to buy their goods if it is not their interest to do so. Their aim will be excellence of quality and low prices for good products.

It is to be regretted that in the first year of the canners' amalgamation an advance in price should have taken place, but such advance was not unduly made, and was owing to short crop and a large advance in the raw material, in addition to the higher price of labor, as also of packing cases and other supplies. Supply and demand will always be a noted factor in regulating prices of canned goods, as in other commodities.

You admit that the canners have done a good deal in developing the trade. Yes, it would be well to think of the millions of dollars which would be lost every year in waste in apples alone. It has stimulated commerce to good cause in exports to distant lands, where such products are a luxury to the natives.

The twentieth century calls for increased output and a small margin of profit in all lines of manufactures, and we know of no industry in which progress has been so pronounced, and we are progressive enough to feel that that improvement in hermetically sealed canned goods will go on for a good many years to come. A NON CANNER.

Gleaned from the Travelers

WM. WICKETT, of Port Hope, one of the leading grocers of that town, has sold out his business to his son, M. P. Wickett.

J. Jordan has bought out the butcher and grocery business owned by G. Stacey, of Port Hope, of which he has been manager for some time past. This is one of the oldest business establishments in Port Hope.

Campaign Bros., of Niagara Falls Centre, are commencing to build a block, consisting of four new stores, to meet the demand of their increasing business.

F. Cox, late of Hamilton, has opened a new grocery store on Queen street west, Toronto. He has a full line of all kinds of groceries, and his store presents a fine appearance.

C. F. Hambly, of Dundas street, Toronto, has within the past several weeks doubled the capacity of his store, the old one being too small to meet the demands of his customers.

Business at Port Arthur and Fort William has been flourishing during the past week.

Hill & Shields, grocers, Weston, are moving into their new store this week, which they were obliged to erect to accommodate their increasing trade.

Corrigan Bros., grocers and crockery dealers, of Lucknow, Ont., have sold out to M. Moody, of that town.

The late Frank Cain's business, Lucknow, Ont., has changed hands, having been bought out by W. W. Hill, of Mitchell.

W. Hay, grocer, of Kincardine, Ont., reports business as very good, and expects a big improvement in the near future.

F. T. Hill & Co., general merchants, of Markdale, Ont., report trade there as excellent. Some time ago this firm branched out into a new line, consisting of enamelledware, which they bought at prices below possible competition. Their purchase consisted of 8 cars of assorted goods, which they are now offering at a low figure.

McClarty Bros., grocers, Owen Sound, Ont., have made a big purchase of new teas, Japans and green Ceylons, for the Summer trade, and are in a position to meet all competition in that line.

S. Ballachey, general merchant, Paisley, Ont., has made a large addition to his store, which will allow nearly double the selling space. Business is reported to be good with this enterprising business man.

Gough & Kilgor have started a new business in Thorold, Ont. Their store is filled with a full line of all kinds of groceries, provisions, etc.

W. M. Misener & Sons, general merchants, Niagara Falls South, have recently made a large addition to their premises.

J. D. Mears, of J. D. Mears & Co., grocers, Niagara Falls, has been ill for some time past, but is now able to resume his business duties.

W. A. McLean, of Owen Sound, Ont., the sugar king of the north, made a big purchase in that line a few days ago.

Biscuits And Confectionery

Candy in the Grocery Store.

TO make the candy department a profitable one is a matter of considerable importance to every grocer, says an American exchange. Viewed from the standpoint of the manufacturer of candy, the grocery trade differs from other confectionery trade in that the grocer usually buys a cheaper grade of candy. Druggists will handle better grades without any difficulty; goods which not only pay them a better profit, but give them a much better reputation, and there is seemingly no reason why a grocer should not sell the same grade of candy that can be handled in a drug store.

It is fair to presume that the difference does not lie in the class of trade served by the two dealers—therefore, we must look elsewhere for the cause. Perhaps it is in the relative value placed on the candy department by the dealers. The druggist gives his candy a prominent display, has a well equipped case near the front of the store, while in the average grocery, the candy display is relegated to some convenient and secluded corner, where it can be found only by the child with a penny to spend, and does not come under the observation of the customers, who are thronging the store from morning to night.

There are notable exceptions to this rule in some grocery stores, where the candy is prominently displayed, with special attention given to its sale, and we find that where this is done, the better grades of candy are sold in considerable quantities, with sales largely exceeding that of a druggist, when well situated so far as location is concerned.

Candy buyers might be divided into three classes: First, the child, with a penny or nickel to spend, who desires simply to get the most for their money; second, the customers bent on other purchases with a strong inherent love for sweetness, strongly enough developed to cause them to look up the candy, even if it is not prominently displayed; third, and perhaps the largest and most profitable class, those who would buy candy if they see a tempting display, and someone ready to wait on them. This last class of buyers will be found just as numerous in the grocery as in the drug stores, perhaps more so, but their requirements are more nearly met by the druggists than by the grocers.

From this it follows that if the grocer will display his candy to advantage in a prominent place, and see that clerks are always ready to supply promptly when wanted, and carry a good stock of well assorted candy, his sales will be largely increased, and his candy department will become one of the most profitable in his business.

Candy Department.

A branch of the grocery business that is very susceptible to producing good profits is the candy counter. With one exception, that is fresh fruits and vegetables, nothing in a grocery store is as susceptible to so much benefit through good display as is candy.

Candy in boxes, in trays, and in jars, in a corner of the window, or in an attractive show case, will sell itself with little trouble. Sugar is a sure drawer, and it not only attractive to flies but also to the human species, and they are as easily attracted to the candy counter as flies are to the molasses jug. It is good for all the year around and is featured by many of the best stores.

A Growing Concern.

THE Canada Maple Exchange, Montreal, who have for nearly twenty years been engaged exclusively in the maple syrup and maple sugar business, have added a new line. They have for some time past been manufacturing maple chocolate creams, maple confectionery, maple dust, and other maple sugar products used by the confectionery trade. Small's maple chocolate creams have not only a very high reputation in Canada, but their reputation has extended to Great Britain and Continental Europe.

It is the intention of the Canada Maple Exchange to still more extensively place their maple products before the public.

Mr. Small, who has been for so many years the head of this concern, is developing it in a manner to satisfy the requirements of their rapidly growing business, in fact, in conversation with a representative of The Grocer, he stated that the business had grown to an extent that was most encouraging. There is no product of Canadian manufacture in the confectionery line that is so healthful as pure maple sugar, and it has been the policy of this company to guarantee their products in every case. The reception by the trade has been very encouraging, and the future is looked to for very much increased trade.

U. S. FARM SURPLUS.

A REPORT on the farm surplus of the United States, for 1903, issued by the Department of Agriculture, gives $4,500,000,000 as a conservative estimate of the value of the farm products not fed to live stock. The value of the exported farm products was, in 1903, $878,479,451, and the highest value reached during the last eleven years was $951,628,331, in 1901, due chiefly to cotton. The value of the exported farm products is concentrated mostly in a few principal products. Of it, in 1903 cotton constituted 36 per cent., grain and grain products 25 per cent., meat and meat products and live animals 24 per cent., these products equaling over 85 per cent. of the exports of farm products last year. Adding tobacco, whose exports were valued at over $35,000,000; oil cake and oil cake meal, $19,839,279; fruits and nuts, over $18,000,000, and vegetable oils, over $16,000,000, gives a total of eight classes of products, each with an export value of over $10,000,000, that comprise almost 96 per cent. of the entire farm exports of 1903.

The report also takes up the matter of competition of the United States in foreign markets, showing that they furnished 32 per cent. of the United Kingdom's imports of farm products. The United States has a lead over its competitors as a purveyor of meat and meat products and live animals, is likewise conspicuous in the United Kingdom's imports of cereals and cotton, but is far behind its competitors in dairy products. In German imports the United States leads with 22 per cent. in all farm products, 58 per cent. in cereals, furnishes barely three-quarters of one per cent. of dairy products, contributes the principal portion of imported maize, two-fifths of the oil cake and oil cake meal, but is exceeded in wheat flour supply by Austria-Hungary, and makes a bare showing in barley and only a little over 2 per cent. in fruits.

GREEN FRUITS

B. C. Fruit for Winnipeg.

THE fruit jobbers of Winnipeg have been receiving a great deal of correspondence from British Columbia fruit growers lately, with reference to handling their output. These letters offer to contract for the shipment of anywhere from 10 to 40 tons of various kinds of fruit throughout the season as they come in.

Shipments of British Columbia strawberries have been attracting a great deal of attention. The berries are very fine, and in color they are quite equal to the Hood River fruit, while in flavor they are, if anything, superior. There is considerable variation in size, although all the berries are large.

The packing, however, leaves much to be desired. The boxes used are the shallow square ones, and they are not full enough and the berries are not faced. This not only increases the chance of injury to the fruit, but takes considerably from the appearance of the packages when opened, which are 5 lbs. lighter in weight than the ordinary case. It is a question whether the shallow square box is a desirable package, and it is worthy of note that the Hood River berries, that have gained such a hold on the Winnipeg market, always come in the old time square deep box, slightly smaller at the bottom than the top. The Hood River people have reduced the shipping of berries to a science, and the B. C. people could not do better than take a leaf out of their book. The square boxes are not fitted tightly enough into the case, thus leaving room for the movement and shaking of the fruit, which of course is highly injurious. These are matters of detail that can very easily be overcome if the fruit is to be popular on the Winnipeg market.

A proposition is now before the B. C. fruit growers to put on a number of the Clarke cars. These cars are cooled by the circulation of air and have proved admirable for the carrying of soft fruits. It is understood that should the B. C. fruit growers be in a position to ship a sufficient amount of fruit these cars can be put on inside of a week or ten days. Cars of this kind would do away with all the difficulties of icing, and being dryer than the ordinary refrigerator car would be much better for the B. C. fruit, which is moister and consequently softer than the California or Oregon fruits.

New Fruit Brokerage Business.

TRADE circles will be interested in learning of the inauguration this week of a new fruit brokerage business at 61 Front street east, Toronto, under the management of W. B. Stringer, formerly of McWilliam & Everist, fruit and commission merchants, Toronto.

Mr. Stringer has been associated with McWilliam & Everist for the past twelve years, having served them in the capacity of office manager. Here he acquired valuable experience in the fruit trade, which will be of inestimable service to him now that he is launching out in business on his own account. Mr. Stringer is well and favorably known to the fruit trade throughout Canada and the United States, every member of which join in wishing him success in his new undertaking.

For the present Mr. Stringer will confine his efforts to the fruit brokerage business, paying particular attention to country orders. Later on he may enlarge his business and incorporate a fruit and commission department. The Grocer has much pleasure in wishing Mr. Stringer a successful continuance of an already successful business career, and has no hesitation in predicting big things for him in the field he has chosen. Toronto is rapidly becoming an important fruit distributing centre for western Ontario, and the possibilities in the fruit trade are promising in the extreme for the right sort of men.

European Fruit Crop.

The Fruit Division, Ottawa, has received from Champagne Freres, the largest fruit dealers in Paris, the following report: "From special information that we have taken all over Europe, it appears there will be very heavy in France, Germany, Bohemia, Austria, Switzerland, etc., which will no doubt injure to a great extent the sale of your Canadian fruit."

Garcia, Jacobs & Co., London, Eng., say that the prospects for the English fruit crops are not as good as at first reported. The apple crop is doubtful at present, cold winds having affected the fruit. The best late pears are said to be a failure, with common fruit fairly good. Early pears are falling rapidly and promise only a light crop. The plum crop will not be as good as expected; some districts will have a fair yield, in others it will be an entire failure.

Fruit Crop of Canada.

LATEST reports on the fruit situation say that the Ontario plum crop will be very light all through the province, and in some sections the trees have been so badly injured by frosts that they are being taken out. Apples promise to be a good crop generally, although some of the tender varieties have suffered severely by the frosts. Strawberries are a light crop, and the damage in the northern section of the country is greater than was at first thought. Peaches will also be a light crop. In Essex, Kent and Brant counties there will be practically no yield at all, while in Welland and Lincoln counties the crop will be much reduced.

The strawberry crop in British Columbia is larger this year, and of a better quality than ever before. All through the strawberry districts the crops are splendid. Reports from South Vancouver, East and West Burnaby and Richmond tell of good crops in perfect condition. Port Hammond, Mission and all along the Fraser River also report good strawberry crops with very large shipments.

The cherry crop is a fair one this year. Italian prunes are bearing very lightly this season, and the crop will be an exceedingly small one. The other varieties of plums have fruited well, however, and the promise is excellent. The apple crop is an exceedingly heavy one throughout British Columbia province.

Fruit Prospects.

ONE of Montreal's leading west end grocers, in the person of Ald. N. Lapointe, returned a week ago from a business trip to the Niagara peninsula. He visited some of the largest fruit growing districts around Winona, and surrounding points. Ald. Lapointe stated to The Grocer that from his personal observation, he believed there would be a good crop of pears, grapes, raspberries, and apples. He was also convinced that strawberries and peaches were likely to be failures, at least short crop. He attributed this to the severe winter, and pointed out that heavy frosts had seriously damaged the roots of these important fruit producing trees.

Fruit Notes.

G. W. Hunt, of Ottawa, president of the Ottawa Fruit and Produce Exchange, has opened a branch of his business in Winnipeg, and intends making a specialty of handling Canadian fruit, both Ontario and British Columbia.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Grain Situation.

THE grain crops in Ontario and Quebec are feeling the benefit of the improved weather conditions existing during the past week. In Quebec the great quantity of rain is producing a phenomenal promise of hay. Winnipeg telegrams say that crop reports from every part of the west are favorable in the extreme. The average height of the grain is from 8 to 15 inches. The outlook was never brighter in the west, and if weather conditions continue favorable the grain crop will be one of the most abundant in the history of the country. The southern part of Manitoba shows the best average, though there are points in the main line of the C. P. R. which report higher. There has been an abundance of moisture, and although there has not been as much warm weather as could be desired, experienced farmers are of the opinion that cool weather while the grain is "stooling" out will result in a heavy crop.

The recent continued coolness in the states east of Mississippi was unfavorable, but west of the Mississippi the temperature has been favorable to the growth of crops. As a whole, corn has not made rapid growth in the principal corn states, although a good growth is reported from Oklahoma and Kansas. Winter wheat has suffered no unfavorable conditions, and a general improvement is indicated in nearly all districts. Harvesting is now in progress in the southern part of Kansas and Missouri. Last week no wheat had been cut east of the Mississippi, or north of the Ohio Rivers. Harvesting is about to begin in Illinois. On the north Pacific coast Winter wheat still continues in promising condition, and it is heading in Oregon. The grain crop in California, where harvesting has begun, is light in most sections. In California Spring wheat is making rapid growth, and promises to turn out well. Less favorable reports are received from Missouri, where the oat crop is heading short, while in Michigan and Illinois it is in need of rain and warmth. Elsewhere the general outlook is promising.

The visible supply of grain on the American continent on June 27, 1901, was as follows: Wheat, 14,652,000 bushels; corn, 5,434,000 bushels; oats, 4,779,000 bushels; rye, 834,000 bushels; barley, 1,212,000 bushels; a decrease in wheat of 1,691,000 bushels for the week; an increase in corn of 311,000 bushels, and a decrease in oats of 160,000 bushels. Grain on passage to the United Kingdom, including wheat and flour, were 30,640,000 bushels, and to the continent 15,120,000 bushels, or a total of 45,760,000 bushels; a decrease for the week of 2,800,000 bushels. A year ago this total was 32,240,000 bushels, and two years ago 35,440,000 bushels. The total amount of wheat in sight, consisting of the amount on passage, and the visible supply in Canada and the United States, was 60,412,000 bushels, against 64,903,000 last week, 49,699,000 last year, and 55,200,000 in 1902. The total amount of corn in sight was 18,914,000, against 15,443,000 last week, 21,167,000 last year, and 20,007,000 in 1902.

During the same week Russia shipped 3,376,000 bushels, against previous week 2,848,000 bushels, and 3,448,000 bushels a year ago. Total since August 1, 122,348,000 bushels, against 113,767,000 bushels a year ago. Shipments of wheat from the Argentine were 1,504,000 bushels, against 1,224,000 previous week, and 1,016,000 bushels a year ago. The total exports since 1st January, 56,664,000 bushels, against 43,221,000 bushels in 1902. Indian shipments, 1,488,000 bushels, against 2,136,000 bushels a week ago, and 127,000 bushels in 1902; total, 17,540,000 since April 1. Danubian shipments 544,000 bushels against 936,000 bushels a week ago, and 320,000 bushels in 1903; a total of 76,692,229 bushels against 68,610,000 bushels a year ago. Australian shipment, 296,000 bushels, against 344,000 bushels last week; total since August 1, 22,423,000 bushels, and none the previous year.

The report of the Canadian Government places the total Canadian wheat crop this year at 99,500,000 bushels, against 80,500,000 bushels last year and 98,654,000 bushels two years ago, which it is claimed will give 51,000,000 bushels for export. This is about 20,000,000 bushels more than the largest records from Canada, which were from the big crop year two years ago, and there is no good reason for expecting larger exports this season than that. The exports so far this year are about 25,000,000 bushels.

Argentine—The President of the republic, in the opening of Congress estimated the export surplus of wheat this year at 92,000,000 bushels, and flax at 29,000,000 bushels. The exports of wheat so far have been about 56,000,000 bushels.

The British trade returns for May show some curious results. Imports of wheat have risen from 8,345,061 cwts. in May, 1902, and 6,618,295 in May, 1903, to 8,842,900 in May, 1904. From the United States and Canada there has been a great falling off. In 1902 the United States headed the list with 4,792,688. Canada came next with 1,164,895, and Argentine third with 1,006,630. Next year the United States had fallen to 2,725,069, and Canada to 731,399, while the import from Argentine had been doubled. In May, 1904, the import from the United States was only 495,900, and from Canada 303,200, while Argentine sent 2,650,000; Russia, 2,056,000; India, 1,709,000, and Australia, 1,398,000.

The Rice Market.

Mail advices from Kobe, Japan, under a recent date, say: "Since our last the movement of troops, munitions and provisions continues, to the upsetting of the ordinary railway traffic, but now that people have got used to delays the inconvenience is not so much felt. Towards the end of April the rice-cleaning operations for army purposes were completed, and the mills were able to give some time to orders for export; the high prices asked were paid by continental buyers to the extent of about 1,000 tons. At the close another large army order has been placed, and a slight weakness that was observable in the market has, of course, disappeared; all the mills are occupied for some weeks to come, and it will be necessary to work day and night, as the order is an urgent one. The import of Rangoon rice continues, and we understand that 350,000 tons had been purchased by the end of April for Japan. The article is liable to severe fluctuations; bad news, such as the reports of disasters in the navy, which has lately been received, has the effect of knocking the price to pieces at once. It is announced that a second treasury loan for one hundred Trade Promoter in Canada.

WITH a view to studying agricultural conditions and manufactures in the Province of Ontario, Mr. Geo. A. Bishop, chief of the Agricultural Department of Bermuda, and an official in the employ of the British Government, was in Montreal last week. He stated to The Grocer that he had been granted $5,000 by the British Government, which would be devoted to the fostering of a trade in onions and potatoes between the Dominion of Canada and the Bermudas. This was the second grant which had been given him, owing to the previous success of the expenditure of a similar amount. Mr. Bishop was very sanguine as to the possibilities of Canadian trade, and hoped for a still greater expansion with the Bermudas. After an extended trip through Ontario, Mr. Bishop will visit Washington, where he intends discussing trade matters with the U. S. Government.

United States Will Investigate Seed Trade.

The Rural New-Yorker, of June 25, mentions that "Congress has instructed the Secretary of Agriculture to collect samples of grass and clover seeds such as are sold in the open market, and examine them for adulterations." This line of investigations is identical with that undertaken in the Spring of 1902 by the Seed Division, Ottawa. The publication of the results of hundreds of tests has awakened Canadian farmers to the danger of using inferior seed, and there is now a rapidly increasing demand for the best grades. The United States Department of Agriculture evidently expects to do similar educational work in that country.

Grain Inspection Bill.

THE discussion on the Grain Inspection Bill still continues. On June 23 a number of the less contentious clauses were adopted, among them being a concession of great importance from the transportation standpont, namely, that reinspection at Fort William be made optional instead of compulsory. This will save many days in handling the grain at Lake Superior. Another clause was amended to provide that "the inspector shall at all times keep careful watch on all grain received into terminal elevators, and if he finds any grain being received which has been systematically reduced he shall at once notify the chief inspector, who will make an investigation forthwith and take action accordingly." An additional amendment was made, providing that "where wheat has gone out of condition or become deteriorated in quality the facts shall be endorsed on the face of the original grain certificate, but under no circumstances shall the grain be mixed or re-graded." One of the questions which still remains unsettled is, "whether grain once inspected shall be liable to be reinspected at the seaboard." The controversial question whether the grain survey board or the chief inspector should be the final arbiter as to the grade of any grain is still unsettled. The opinion of the majority of the committees seems to be that the system in the east and west should be uniform, and that the grain survey board should be the final court of appeal.

TWENTY years ago the annual premium income of British life assurance societies was only £14,766,000, representing an annual saving of only 8s 4½d per head of population, or £2 1s 10d per family of five persons. Ten years ago the premium income reached to $22,283,000, an annual saving of 11s 8¼d per head of population, or £2 18s 5d per family; but according to the most recent returns the annual premium income of life companies is now no less than £33,264,000, an annual saving of 15s 10d per head of population, or £3 19s 2d per family. Thus in 20 years the annual sums set aside as a provision for death and old age have increased 125 per cent., and as the growth in population has been only 19 per cent., the annual rate of savings per head of population for this purpose has nearly doubled.

ACCORDING to the New York Journal of Commerce the United States is rapidly becoming afflicted with a multiplicity of small banks of no considerable resources or reliability. Congress in 1900 authorized the establishment in places of not more than 3,000 inhabitants of so-called "national banks," the minimum of capital permitted being $25,000. Since this action at Washington no less than 1976 new national banks have been created, with an aggregate capital of $114,591,000. These small institutions have appeared in the largest number in the west and the south, though many have cropped up in the eastern states also.

FINANCIALLY, Canada is at present in a sound condition. In his budget, the Minister of Finance announced a further reduction in the national debt of probably seven and one-half million of dollars. Canada's debt reached its highest point two years ago, when it amounted to nearly $272,000,000. Last year a reduction of seven million was effected, and this, together with the present reduction, will bring the debt down to about $257,500,000. The possibility of making these reductions has been due to an excess of revenue over expenditure during the past two fiscal years. In 1903 this excess was $14,345,166. This year it is estimated at $10,500,000. A considerable portion of the surplus has in both cases gone towards expenditure on capital account, which accounts for the fact that less than fifty per cent. has been applied to a reduction of the debt.

AS the Summer advances the amount of United States silver circulating in Canada increases, and the tills of our merchants are found on inspection to contain quite a noticeable percentage of foreign coin. The presence of this foreign money is detrimental in more ways than one. It hurts the national pride in things Canadian and it removes a source of revenue from the Government. The coinage of silver is carried on by the Government at a profit, being the difference between the face value of the coin and the cost of the material and manufacture. So long as the coin is not issued too freely, it maintains its standard value and the Government receives its profit. If, instead of the Government keeping the supply of coins up to the demand, that demand is supplied by foreign coins, the Government loses the profits on a corresponding amount of coin. Under these circumstances, some method should be introduced by means of which the foreign coins could be periodically cleaned out. The banks would naturally appear to be the proper channels through which to accomplish the work, but the banks are not directly interested. The Government is the real sufferer, and the Government should make it worth while for the banks to collect and ship out of the country all foreign coins.

ENDOWMENT life insurance is growing very fast, while insurance for the whole term of life is relatively stationary. In the past fourteen years the sums insured by endowment insurance in Great Britain increased from £34,000,000 to £183,000,000, a growth of £149,000,000. During the same period the growth in insurance for the whole term of life was only £67,000,000.

THE N. B. Board of Fire Underwriters have sent copies of the following circular to the local civic authorities of each town in the province:

The New Brunswick Board of Fire Underwriters have had under consideration the urgent necessity which exists for improvement of building laws and in the fire protection of the various towns in this province.

The numerous conflagrations in Canada and elsewhere have emphasized the necessity for the enactment of stringent regulations to prevent the spread of fires.

The rates fixed by this board are based largely on the construction and situation of the buildings, and the means of fire prevention, and in the future still more attention will be paid to these points.

It is recommended that in all congested framed districts the height of buildings be limited, and shingle roofs entirely prohibited.

The New Brunswick Board of Fire Underwriters trust, that in their efforts to diminish the fire loss in this province, they will meet with the hearty support of the civic corporations and property owners generally of the various towns and that the public will recognize the fact that, independent of the fire insurance companies, they are largely interested in reducing the fire hazard and in the adoption of measures tending to prevent the spread of fires.

British Tobacco Tax.

THE budget of Mr. Austen Chamberlain has had an effect upon the tobacco exports of the United States to Great Britain which is creating a good deal of comment. The new duties imposed a further tax of six cents per pound upon unstemmed tobacco and of twenty-five cents per pound upon cigarettes. The difference seems to have been sufficient to favor the working up of tobacco by British manufacturers from a raw state to the detriment of the importation of the finished article.

The Board of Trade return for May showed imports of American cigarettes of only £204 ($1,020), and for the five months ending with May £915 ($4,575), whereas last year the value of cigarettes imported from the United States in May was £4,476 ($22,380), and for five months £15,411 ($77,055). Coincident with this May's imports of stemmed tobacco reached only £44,971 ($224,855), against £58,971 ($294,855) last year; but unstemmed tobacco was imported to the value of £106-825 ($534,125) against £59,863 ($298,315) last year.

The New York Herald considers a tax upon tobacco may be almost as burdensome as upon breadstufis, for the use of "the weed" has become "a necessary of life," according to a decision in the Supreme Court of the State of New York.

As tobacco is one of the very few articles largely used in the United Kingdom which has always been taxed, there was but little opposition in Parliament to Mr. Chamberlain's proposals outside the special industry affected and the price of the article to the consumer has not been appreciably raised.

A prominent official of the American tobacco trust is quoted as saying that the export of tobacco strips from America to Great Britain is practically at an end. Exporters cannot afford to ship the stripped leaf when the unstemmed leaf can be entered at English ports 6c. lower.

Re American Duty.

The United States Tobacco Journal is authority for the statement that the Board of Appraisers in the United States have decided that the duty on tobacco should be paid on the weight at the time of arrival instead of at the time of withdrawal from bonded warehouse.

Cigars in the Grocery Store.

"ONE of the most important, yet most unimportant, departments of a grocery business," says The Interstate Grocer, is the tobacco department. The department is important to the men who patronize it, but the grocer makes it unimportant by neglecting it. As a rule, few leading brands of chewing tobacco and smoking tobacco are kept in stock, and all the other goods are the cheapest that can be purchased. The reputation of the "grocery store cigar" is proverbially bad. If you want to damn a cigar that you are giving to a friend, tell him it came from a grocery store; he knows that that means that it is a miserably poor piece of goods, that cost the grocer somewhere between $14 and $24 a thousand. Where you find a grocery store and a drug store side by side, you will see the druggist selling cigars, tobacco and cigarettes in large quantities and making a handsome profit, while the grocer has a showing of green and blue and yellow labels in his showcase, but no sales. This is poor business policy. There is an excellent profit in 5 cent cigars that cost $30 or $32 and a fine profit in 10 cent cigars that cost $60 to $75, and a reputation for carrying such goods brings men to the store who buy groceries as well as tobaccos and cigars. Consistent pushing of a cigar department in a grocery, supplemented by high-grade goods, will bring more profit and more pupularity to a store than any other one line that a grocer can handle.

Spain's Substitute for Havana.

IT is officially reported that Spain has compelled the tobacco regie in that country to take from the Canary Islands every year for the next four years 220,000 pounds of tobacco in the hope that at some future day she may be independent of Cuba in regard to certain qualities of tobacco that are at present bought there. At present the crop in the Canary Islands amounts to only about 132,000 pounds, but more will be planted in the future. The Spanish Government further has sent an experienced horticulturist to see to the cultivation and what improvements can be made.

The tobacco will only be bought from the growers and none will be accepted from dealers or speculators. All samples will be transmitted to Madrid, subject to the approval of the Board of Governors of the tobacco regie before being bought, and the price paid for the tobacco will be the same as the ruling price paid in Havana for Remedios tobaccos, at the time those crops get to the market. In the island of La Palma, where nearly all of the tobacco of these islands is raised, fully 20 per cent. of the male population have been at one time or other in Cuba and have worked in tobacco plantations; they have always been regarded in Cuba as their best workers, and will, no doubt —having now the protection of the Government—stay at home and go in for tobacco cultivation. It is said the quality of the tobacco grown in La Palma is far better than the Remedios of Cuba. All that is necessary is to give more attention and care to the planting and cultivation, as well as to the curing. In years to come it will undoubtedly compare favorably with the famous Vuelto Abajo crops. For the year 1904 it will reduce the export of Remedios tobacco from Cuba to Spain about 1,600 to 2,000 bales. Every year this will increase with the quantity grown, and at some future date it will be unnecessary to draw the supply of low-grade of Cuban tobacco from Cuba, as it is expected that the Canary Island will furnish all that will be necessary. Spain has always been the buyer of low-grades of Remedios, Partidos, Vueltas and other kinds in the Havana market.

Tobacco Trade of Algeria.

FROM the report of the German Consulate in Algeria, it appears that although the exports of leaf tobacco and ribs in 1900 were much less than in the previous year, having decreased from 5,058,763 kg. to 3,447,850 kg., they were still twice the size of the imports. The latter amounted to 1,593,148 kg., showing an increase of 40,556 kg. on the previous year.

The chief importers were the United States, Germany, Austro-Hungary, the Netherlands, Belgium, Russia, Cuba and Porto Rico, Turkey and Uruguay.

The falling off in the quantity of tobacco exported is due principally to the fact that the French regie bought a much smaller quantity in 1902. Tobacco from Algeria is exported also to the Netherlands, Belgium, Germany, Tunis and Italy.

Cigars, as well as raw tobacco, are not supplied by the Mother Country, but by foreign countries. In 1902 only 16,187 kg. were imported, against 11,821 the previous year. More than half of these came from Belgium, and the quantity next in size from Switzerland. There was a decrease in the quantity imported in both German and Dutch cigars, 25,161 kg. of cigars were exported, being 5,215 kg. less than in 1901. After France, Italy was the chief purchaser.

Very few cigarettes are imported, and, as tobacco is grown in the country itself and a flourishing cigar industry is in existence, there is not likely to be much increase. Only the better sorts are imported for the well-to-do of the foreign population. Cigarettes are imported from Egypt, Germany, Malta and Turkey. The quantity of cigarettes exported from Algeria in 1902 was 395,430 kg., or 116,269 less than the previous year. This falling off is due to the fact that the cigarette factory of Bastos, in Oran, has opened another one at Saigon, and a branch in Morocco. Most of the cigarettes were purchased by France and her colonies; the other purchasers of large quantities were Belgium, Germany and Tunis.

United States Tobacco Trade With Cuba.

IN view of the general interest taken in the imports of leaf and manufactured tobaccos from Cuba since the Cuban reciprocity treaty became effective in comparison with the imports for a corresponding period of 1903, the following comparative figures are reproduced from latest statistics of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Washington:

The importation of filler leaf for 1903 amounted to 7,806,787 lbs., values at $3,195,425, the importation of wrapper leaf amounted to but 45,880 lbs., valued at $20,604; and in 1904 the filler leaf amounted to 7,249,635 lbs., valued at $3,272,928; and the wrapper leaf at 14,413 lbs., valued at $12,521. It seems rather strange that such a small amount of wrapper leaf should be imported in proportion to the filler leaf. It is noticeable that the importation of filler leaf and wrapper leaf both diminished. Wrapper leaf fell from 45,880 lbs. to 14,413 lbs. and from $20,604 to $12,521; a decrease of 31,467 lbs and $7,083 in value. Filler leaf decreased from 7,806,787 lbs. to 7,249,635 lbs. and from $3,195,425 to $3,272,928; a decrease of 557,152 lbs and $222,497. The average value of the wrapper leaf for 1903 was 42.7 cents per lb., while in 1904 it is 86.8 cents per lb. Strange to say the average value of the filler leaf imported during the first four months of 1903 was 44.8 cents or 2.1 cents per lb. more than the average value of the wrapper leaf. In 1904 the average value of the filler leaf was 45.1 cents, there being a difference of only .3 cents per lb. in the average value per lb. of the filler leaf in 1903 and in 1904. In view of the fact that it was well known there would be a 20 per cent. reduction in duty on January 1 it would seem that the importers would have held back consignments of leaf tobacco to take advantage of the reduction in the duty. Yet this does not appear to have been the case, for, as mentioned, the importations of filler leaf decreased to the extent of 557,152 lbs. and in value to the amount of $222,497. This would appear to indicate that not only did not the importers hold back their importations but that the demand for Havana filler in this country during the first four months of this year was much less than during the corresponding period of 1903.

On the other hand the importation of Cuban cigars and cigarettes has risen rapidly in quantity but has diminished in value. In 1903 the importations were 191,959 lbs., while in 1904 they were 251,470 lbs., an increase of 59,511 lbs. The value, however, decreased from $1,107,331 in 1903 to $1,103,274 in 1904, an increase of 59,511 lbs. and a decrease of $4,057 in value. The average value per lb. of cigars in 1903 was $5.76 and in 1904 only $4.38, a decrease in the average value per lb. of $1.38.

MANAGER OF CANADIAN CANNERS VISITS THE WEST.

AN interesting visitor to the Pacific Coast recently was Mr. D. Marshall, general manager of the Canadian Canners, of Hamilton. In the course of an interview with the Vancouver representative of The Grocer Mr. Marshall expressed himself on the trade outlook in the west as follows :

"Prospects are excellent in the west for a good business in canned goods. I have been impressed with the fact that in British Columbia, as well as in the Northwest, the population must to a great extent look to the east for their supplies in these lines.

"One thing I have been particularly impressed with, however, is that the trade in British Columbia demands the very best goods packed. This applies not only to our lines, but to everything. The choicest butter is the only article that finds a ready market, and in your stores the finest lines of groceries and wearing apparel are to be found. While prices are good here, the trade is very particular in requiring the best that can be obtained.

"I met the Wholesale Grocers' Guild in Victoria," continued Mr. Marshall, "and also in Vancouver. I was very much pleased with the reception accorded me, and I believe that our business relations will continue to be harmonious. I must say that I feel very much encouraged with the outlook."

Although now managing the Canadian Canners, which includes thirty-five of the individual canneries in Eastern Canada, Mr. Marshall has long been doing business in the West, having been the principal owner of the Aylmer Canning Co., a brand well known here. This is now amalgamated with the larger concern, and Mr. Marshall has devoted his time for the past year, since the formation of the big company, to the larger interests involved. The company is operating twenty-eight of the thirty-five factories included in the organization.

Turning to the other aspect of his western tour, Mr. Marshall was flattering in the kind words he had for the West. "One may read all that is written of the great Canadian West," said he, "but there can be no real conception of the greatness of the country or of the advancement it is making without a visit. I have learned more from this short trip than I knew altogether before of the country. You can read all you like, but you must come and see for yourself, to know this country.

"I always had the idea that in the east we were at the front, in progress and facilities, and that the further west one went the further removed he was from these advantages. But far from being at the 'back' here, it seems to me that with your shipping facilities you are in direct touch with the whole world. Here one can take passage on the finest steamers afloat and go to China, Japan, India, Australia or any part of the globe. It strikes me as an ideal location for a distributing centre, and I believe there is a great future before the coast cities of British Columbia.

"I am free to say that in the east we have no conception whatever of the importance of the Candadian Pacific Railway and of its place in the development of the West. We do not come in touch with it in the same way. It is wonderful the service and attendance the company gives in its hotels and on its trains. The C. P. R. mountain resorts are simply perfect, and the management of the Hotel Vancouver here leaves nothing to be desired for the comfort and convenience of guests."

The West, and especially British Columbia, wins another warm and influential friend as a result of Mr. Marshall's visit. His only regret was that he could not remain longer. Martin & Robertson, of Vancouver, are representatives of the Canadian Canners, and Mr. Robert Martin, as well as Mr. Wm. Braid, another old time friend, entertained Mr. Marshall while in Vancouver.

CANADA'S FOOD SUPPLY.

THE latest batch of reports from the Canadian Inland Revenue Department (sent us by the courtesy of the high commissioner for Canada) include the annual return on the adulteration of food and special laboratory bulletins, dealing respectively with distilled liquors, milk, cider, and ground spices., says London Grocer.

The department's laboratory appears to be engaged in useful work, which is detailed in bulletins of no small interest and practical value. Besides those named above, the annual report mentioned gives other special bulletins on unfermented grape juice, lime juice and catsup, cereal breakfast foods, canned meats, fertilisers, canned vegetables, and Paris green. Perhaps the most apropos of these just now is the bulletin on "ground spices," which deals with black, white, and red pepper, allspice, mixed spices, cassia and cinnamon, cloves, and ginger. In some of these bulletins interesting resumes are given; in this one the matter is chiefly tabular, but the figures are suggestive. Acting on the instructions of the Deputy Minister of Inland Revenue, the chief analyst procured samples, to the number of 188, of the ground spices sold in the various districts of the Dominion. From the official analysis it appears that only 46.8 per cent. of these ground spice samples were genuine, the remainder being doubtful or adulterated. The adulterants found in black pepper were wheat flour, wheat starch, and pepper tissue; those of white pepper include wheat starch, wheat flour, pepper tissues, rice starch, rice flour, maize starch, whitestone, and potato starch. Excess of tissue was found in the cassia and ground cinnamon. The process of analysing ground ginger is "cold water extractive," which is described in detail. It is too technical to detail here, but we may mention that the assistant analyst remarks that he has not met with an authenticated sample of ginger which gave less than about 19 per cent. of extractive to cold water when so treated; and he incidentally raises the question of whether dark colored samples of ginger ought not to be suspected of having been washed and re-dried.

PROMOTING TRADE.

GREAT interest is being taken in the development of trade between Canada and South Africa. Efforts have been put forth by steamship companies, notably the Elder-Dempster Co., to bring the two colonies closer together. This enterprising steamship company have gone so far as to issue a circular, explaining that by arrangement with the Canadian Government they are in a position to place at the disposal of Canadians, entirely free of charge, a certain number of passages, as well as space for samples of goods, each passenger being allowed to represent a particular branch of commerce, and to have a section of about ten to twenty tons capacity between decks, to place the goods for exhibition at the different Cape ports. They further state that the selection of exhibits should be made mutually by their Montreal representative, the president of the Board of Trade at Montreal, and the secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers Association at Toronto. The steamer chosen for this purpose is the Melville, which will leave Montreal on June 25th, also the steamer Monarch, which will take the July sailing from Montreal. The intention is to take cargo for Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, East London, and Durban. Suggestions are invited for the perfection of the scheme.

The Canadian Grocer
When an Apple Drops
from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.
And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.
In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.
Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.
Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.
The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.
"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

TEA ROSE DRIPS

Some one said of Lord Byron that he "awoke one morning to find himself famous." The speaker overlooked, however, the years of patient striving that preceded fame.

The thousands of dealers throughout Canada who sell Tea Rose Drips are mightily pleased with its good selling quality, and they wonder perhaps why its equal is never obtainable.

This selling quality is like Byron's morning of fame — the result of continuous effort on the part of the makers to produce an article of uniform high quality.

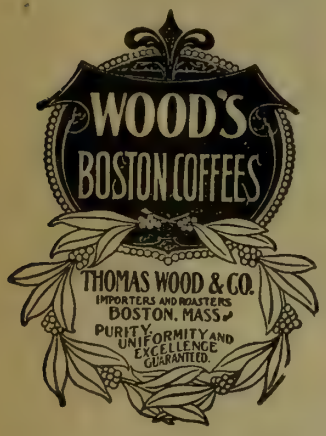
CLEAVING TO THE GOOD.



No man can say all the good things any more than he can eat all the good things.

Neither can one house sell all the good things used in one line of necessities.

A permanently successful business is not built up on the "Get-rich-quick" or the "Buy-low-and-sell-high" principle.

No, our leading principle is to be certain that every grade of WOOD'S COFFEES shall be up to the highest mark of excellence in their line.

With that kind of leadership, Mr. Grocer, results take care of themselves.

REPRESENTATIVE CANADIAN GROCERS

Mr. G. Hasenflug, retail grocer, Waterloo, Ont.

MR. GEORGE HASENFLUG, reatil grocer, Waterloo, Ont., affords a striking example of the success that may be achieved in his native place by the man who has the energy, the ideas, and the ambition to do a little better than others. "There's a divinity that shapes our ends, roughhew them how we will," but depend on it we've got to do the hewing.

The visitor to Waterloo, as he walks down its business thoroughfare, cannot fail to be struck by the appearance of Mr. Hasenflug's store, and especially its attractive window platforms. If he steps inside his admiration will be increased by the handsome proportions and tasteful arrangement of the interior. They are unmistakable evidence that the proprietor is a man of business ideas, as well as of practical sagacity. If, like The Grocer's representative, he enters into conversation with Mr. Hasenflug, his first impressions will be further confirmed.

Early Training.

Mr. Hasenflug's business career began at the age of 14, when he commenced his apprenticeship with Randall & Co., then the leading general merchants and dealers in wines and liquors of Waterloo and district. This firm later became Seagram & Roos, and now flourishes under the well-known name of Jos. E. Seagram. When the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor in grocery stores came into force Mr. Hasenflug took the first important step in his business career. In conjunction with J. F. Beck, a fellow salesman in the same store, (now of Beck & Schell, grocers, Berlin), he took over Mr. Seagram's grocery stock, and the two started in business in the year 1877, as grocers and crockery dealers, "in spite," added Mr. Hasenflug, "of many warnings from well wishers that it would be impossible to carry on such a business in Waterloo without the aid of dry goods." Needless to say, Mr. Hasenflug has confounded his candid friends by building up one of the most successful grocery businesses in that section of the country. In 1879 the firm was dissolved by the retirement of Mr. Beck, and the business has since been carried on by Mr. Hasenflug. Its history is one of steady expansion along the most progressive lines, and Mr. Hasenflug's books bear ample testimony to the extent and quality of his business connection.

Special Lines.

"Yes," said Mr. Hasenflug, in reply to a query, "I have always carried a number of special lines in order to attract the greatest possible variety of customers and get their regular trade. Among these I might mention seeds, which I have always made a strong feature in the Spring of the year, and found a very profitable one. Another thing I might mention as having greatly helped my business is that this being a German community, and, I believe, the biggest coffee consuming county in Ontario, I have always endeavored to stock the best brands of the coffee that Germans favor, principally Rios. Sometimes I have gone the length of importing a car direct from Rio de Janeiro."

Mr. George Hasenflug, of Waterloo.

"I see you carry a big stock of crockery."

Crockery Department.

"Yes, crockery has always been a prominent feature of my store, but I have stocked it as much for the sake of attracting trade as for the profit that is in it. As a business getter it pays well to stock crockery, and good crockery. You see, I have the store well fitted with electric lights, and when these are turned on at night the effect produced by their reflection on the crockery and glassware is almost dazzling. Then, again, you notice at the end of the store I have British plate mirrors, right across, which still further enhance the effect of the display by giving to the store the appearance of being twice its actual length."

Window Dressing.

"I suppose you spend a good deal of time over your window dressing?"

"I have always paid special attention to that, and to the interior arrangement of the store, as I am strongly of the opinion that it pays the grocer to devote some time and thought to these matters for the sake of attracting trade. In my opinion a good display of a particular line of goods in the window is the best ad. to be found. The line, of course, should be continually changed, and only one line should be shown at a time. With regard to the interior, (besides tasteful arrangement), I have always made a hobby of keeping the store so clean that it was quite common to hear a score of times daily, 'How clean they keep it.' I have often been asked by other grocers if I thought it paid to devote so much time to window dressing. There is only one answer—it does."

Advertising.

"Do you do any other advertising?"

"Oh, yes. I find local newspaper advertising very useful, especially if the ad. is accompanied by a cut. As a flyer it is well to send out handbills about twice a year. I have also had good results from circular letters. I run these off on the neostyle, and send them to all the people in the section once or twice in the Spring and Fall before the opening of the big trade."

"Was there any special event in your business career which helped you?"

"The most important event was a venture I made in the export apple trade in 1896. I exported about 14,000 lbs. and hit the market right, thereby pocketing a big profit."

"The secret of my success," said Mr. Hasenflug, in reply to a further query, "I might sum up as prompt attention to business, new ideas, cleanliness, and a fair amount of printer's ink. I might add that I am a firm believer in Trade Newspapers.

"I owe much to having been a constant reader of The Canadian Grocer ever since its inception. It was especially helpful to me in my younger days, when I was fighting my way up, and I cannot too strongly recommend young men, whatever trade they may be in, not to neglect the education and help that may be derived from their trade paper.

While Mr. Hasenflug is first and foremost a man of business, civic affairs have also claimed a share of his attention. He served in the town council and has been a member of the board of trade since its inauguration about 14 years ago. He has also been vice-president of the Twin City Retail Merchants' Association.

A JELLY LAWSUIT.

KKOVAH Jelly has had to stand a lawsuit. The old story of imitation being flattery, is all very well, but when imitation touches one's pocket it means a great deal more than business men care to express. A case of this kind occurred in the Practice Court of Montreal last week, when Sutcliffe & Bingham, of Manchester, Eng., through their attorney, presented a petition, asking an injunction against Juliet Lepage, carrying on a business in Montreal under the name of the Colonial Specialty Co. The petitioners set forth that they manufactured jellies under the name of Kkovah, and they alleged that the defendant used the word Kronah as a trade mark for jellies, placed by her on the market, and put up in the same manner as their own. This, they claim, is an infringement of their right, and they ask the injunction to prevent it being continued. The case was taken en delibre, but it is understood that the Kronah people will have to cease producing their goods after the manner of Kkovah Jelly. The attorney for Sutcliffe & Bingham, Mr. Oughtred, was of the opinion that there could be no reason for doubting that the injunction would be granted.

CAMPBELL & SONS, general merchants, Elora, Ont., have lately remodelled the interior of their stores. Plate glass fronts have been added and the exterior of the buildings been repainted, which gives them a very attractive appearance. This firm have two of the brightest and best equipped stores in western Ontario.

Graef Bros., general merchants, Clifford, Ont., have sold their general store business to J. Weber of that town, and Mr. Weber's many friends are wishing him every success in his new enterprise. C. McArthur, who has been manager for Graef Bros. for several years past, will continue in charge of the store.

R. Harstone, general merchant, of Warksworth, Ont., accompanied by his wife, was in Toronto the past week.

W. Thompson, of Thompson, Marshall & Co., general merchants, Dobbington, Ont., is spending his holidays in Toronto. Mr. Thompson reports trade particularly good with his firm.

E. Pritchard, general merchant, of Newbridge, Ont., is spending his holidays in Toronto.

One Toronto traveler who was in Owen Sound during the past week reports that the merchants have quite recovered from the effort they made in arranging the annual picnic of the Retail Grocers' Association. The business firms of Owen Sound who deserve great praise for their share in the management of this successful affair are: W. A. McClean & Co., McClarty Bros., C. W. Fox, Priest & Spragg, Lloyd Bros., W. A. Greer, mayor of Owen Sound, and others who are in business there.

Halliday & Stinson, general merchants, of Chesley, Ont., have been busy during the past six weeks purchasing wool, which trade is reported to have been of great assistance to their retail trade. They have one of the finest general stores in the north.

C. J. Halliday, general merchant, of Chesley, Ont., reports retail trade as being all that can be desired.

S. H. Glassford, of Cannington, Ont., has started a general business there.

W. Mullin, of Cannington, Ont., has opened a new grocery business.

BANQUET POSTPONED.

The Manufacturers' Association had originally intended to tender a banquet to Geo. E. Drummond, president of that body, and also president of the Board of Trade, on Dominion Day. This has been postponed until July 21, and will be held at the handsome new quarters of the Canada Club, in the Board of Trade Building, Montreal. A unique feature of the occasion will be the presentation of a memorial to Cyrus A. Birge, of Hamilton, formerly president of the association.

U. S. BROOM TRUST.

At a recent meeting of representatives of the principal broom manufacturers of the United States, held in Chicago, action was taken which practically insures the formation of a combination of the principal companies under the name of the National Broom Company, and on a strict basis of actual valuation. It was decided to include about seventeen or eighteen of the largest broom companies of the country and to put the capital stock at or about $4,000,000.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

DULLNESS still rules in the freight market, although large quantities of grain have been booked for July, the rates are ridiculously low. The regular liners are carrying, in addition to grain, immense quantities of lumber. There is another force at work, namely, the New York and Boston grain shippers, who are doing a great deal to divert grain traffic from the St. Lawrence route. Extremely low rates have been quoted from the west to the American sea-board, by these New York and Boston people. The St. Lawrence route, however, is keeping pace with the times, and as yet has not lost much on this account. The rates are as low on the St. Lawrence as they are anywhere else. For instance, corn from Chicago to Montreal has been engaged at 8¾c. Wheat from Fort William is on a gauged average of 4c, some having arrived at as low as 3¾c per bushel. There has been some trouble in making new business from Manitoba, owing to the high price of wheat there. The ocean freights from Montreal are still low, 6d having been taken to Liverpool, and the asking price is 7½d, that is to Liverpool. To London 7½d to 9d are the quoted rates, and to Bristol 9d still holds. As high as 1s has been paid to Manchester.

New charters of ocean steamers are quite uncommon, and the tonnage for the United Kingdom could easily be counted. Some new bookings for river freight have been noted, but these are elbowed off into the Autumn. Schooners will begin to arrive more freely now, and some sugar boats are already in. These have in many cases been chartered for outward cargoes of deal. Nevertheless freights are bad in Montreal, and the big exporters are gloomily shaking their heads at the future.

EARLY CLOSING.

In answer to an inquiry from one of its readers on the subject of early closing The Grocer begs to state that according to the revised statutes of Ontario, the civic authorities in any municipality are empowered to pass and enact a by-law with reference to the early closing of stores or shops, which will be generally binding, provided the same is approved of by three-fourths of the members of the particular trade concerned in the said municipality.

Red Rose Tea Warehouse

INTERIOR VIEWS, No. 2

THE TEA ROOM AND PRIVATE OFFICE

The tea testing room in a tea warehouse is by far the most important department in connection with the business as on this department depends largely the success or failure of the business.

Tea tasters are born, not made, and very few men are capable of becoming experts, as to taste and judge teas correctly the senses of taste and smell must be very acute and the eye keen. In addition an expert taster requires the rarest good judgment in order to select, not the tea he personally likes, but the one which is suitable to the district in which it is to be sold; the one which will please the customers of a merchant perhaps thousands of miles away. The expert taster may prefer, for his personal use, a fine black tea, but he must be able to forget his own likes or dislikes and use equally as good judgment in selecting green teas as he would in blacks. This is where many men who strive to be tea experts, fail. They are unable to sink their own preferences and taste the tea from the standpoint of those who are to drink it.

Mr. Walter R. Miles—head of this department—learned the business in London, England, and has spent his whole life in the study of the one article—TEA. He is probably the best known tea expert in America.

The buying is done in this department and this entails a great deal of tasting. When purchases arrive the teas are again tasted in comparison with the original samples; then in matching teas for merchants, and making up blends, the same teas are tasted over and over again. Every blend as it comes from the blender and before it is packed is also tasted, thus making sure that no mistake has been made in the blending. This makes a great deal of work but it ensures uniformity of quality for which RED ROSE TEA has always been noted.

Next week I will give a description of the blending department.

Slump in English Potato Market.

LATEST reports from London, Eng., say that last Summer's wet weather and this year's fine Spring have combined to produce a big slump in potatoes.

To make up the deficiency of English old potatoes, so many of which were blighted by last year's rains, enormous quantities have been imported from Belgium, Holland, France, Germany, Spain, the Channel Islands, Algeria, and even Russia, with the result that holders of old potatoes are losing heavily.

One dealer in a London market already estimates his loss on 1,000 tons of old potatoes at £1,500, and inquiries at the St. Pancras market showed that that sum might well have been lost on a smaller quantity. Old potatoes fetching £7 a ton about a month ago can now be had for £3 10s.

Another main cause of the slump is the importation of large consignments of new potatoes from Jersey and St. Malo, which the fine weather has made plentiful, and consequently cheap. Moreover, it is now becoming known also that the new potato crops in the United Kingdom will be as proportionately heavy, though much depends upon the weather in July, which is the principal potato month.

Comparatively small quantities from Kent will be arriving within a fortnight, but in a month's time they will be coming in bulk, and then London will be better supplied with the finest new potatoes at popular prices than it has been at any similar period during the past twenty years.

One suggested cause for the "slump" is that some doctors now allege that potatoes are poisonous to certain people, and that consequently many people are refraining from eating them.

Butter Trade of Denmark.

The total export of butter from Denmark last year is stated to have been 1,980,000 cwts., or about 250,000 cwts. more than the preceding year. Of Danish butter in casks the export amounted to 1,566,000 cwts. (in 1902 1,351,000 cwts.) The transit trade of Copenhagen in foreign butter was somewhat larger, 375,000 cwts. in 1903, against 332,000 cwts, in 1902. The export of tinned butter declined somewhat, being only 37,000 cwts., against 45,000 cwts. in the previous year. Taking all butter exported from Denmark, 1,880,000 cwts. were shipped to the United Kingdom, where the greater part was consumed, viz., 1,771,654 cwts., while the remainder was re-shipped to trans-Atlantic ports, etc. The cost of the butter consumed in England was £9,572,000.

Export Butter Exhibit.

IT is expected that a very large exhibit of dairy products will be made at the Dominion Exhibition, Winnipeg, this year. The class for export butter is creating special interest among the dairymen. This class is calculated to test the keeping qualities of the butter, and the conditions require that it shall be made thirty days prior to the exhibition, and shipped to Winnipeg in care of the secretary of the dairy association not later than June 20, when it is immediately placed in cold storage and retained there till the opening of the fair, when it is moved to the dairy building and judged along with the other exhibits.

Record Shipment of Cheese.

A representative of The Grocer was walking along Front street, Toronto, on Thursday, June 30, when his attention was directed to a procession moving towards the Union Station. The familiar drone of the bag pipes proclaimed it to be something beyond the ordinary, so hastily securing a place of advantage near the curb, he awaited the approach of the show. First came a stalwart Scot, dressed in the picturesque tartan of the MacLaren clan, playing some of those songs without words which none but native Scots know how to appreciate. Following in the line were five large dray wagons loaded to their utmost capacity with boxes of MacLaren's Imperial Cheese, and drawn by horses decked in gala attire with the MacLaren colors, the whole making a novel and interesting sight, such as is seldom seen in the streets of Toronto.

The Grocer learns that on this particular day it so happened that over 1,000 boxes of MacLaren's Imperial Cheese were being shipped from Toronto to different parts of the world, including the far east and Europe. One hears much these days of the growing market for Canadian produce abroad, and surely no further evidence of the fact is necessary than this record shipment of cheese on the part of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., one of the leading manufacturing firms of Canada.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The only line of particular interest in the provision market this week is hams. This is the season for hams for summering, camping, outings and excursions, and the result is a slight strengthening in the price. Small hams average about 12 1-2c, although selling lower and higher, and medium hams sometimes bring 12 1-2c. Heavy mess pork is quoted 50 points lower. There is a good steady demand. Front and hind quarters have dropped, the former about 1-2c and the latter 1 cent. Medium and common carcasses also are down 1-2c, as is Spring lamb. Just at this time grass beef begins to come in more plentifully, and this brings prices down. We quote this week:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 07½	$0 08
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12	0 12½

Butter—There is no cessation in the large supplies of butter offered. Prices remain almost exactly the same as last week, with a little shading only in creamery solids. Even though butter rules so very low, England is receiving such enormous shipments from Denmark, Australia and the Continent that she will not offer a high enough price to give Canadian dealers a reasonable profit. We quote the following prices:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 17	0 18
" solids, fresh	0 16	0 17½
Dairy prints	0 13	0 15
" in tubs	0 12	0 14

Cheese—The cheese market is quite steady, with only a limited export demand at prices that will encourage buying. The English price will not rise, in spite of the fact that cheese sold on the board 1-2c higher last week than the preceding week. A great part of what was offered two and three weeks ago was not sold on the board, but went on the curb afterwards to buyers who had to buy, no matter what was asked, to supply the English houses, by whom they were employed. With board prices advanced, dealers have had to quote 1-4c higher on new cheese. Board reports for week ending July 4 are as follows:

Provisions—The market for live hogs is very quiet. There was a fair supply for which the demand from packers was copious, and steady prices ruled from $5.20 to $5.40 per hundred for stock weighed off cars. Some improvement was noticed in the demand for dressed hogs, and fresh killed abattoir dressed stock sold at $7.50 per hundred. The demand for pork was slow. A fair trade was done, however, in bacon and smoked meats generally, both on local and country account. The receipts of provisions reported Tuesday morning were nearly 10,000 packages of lard and 196 packages of tinned meats. We quote:

Butter—The tone of the local butter market is considered weak, and a declining tendency is noticed in prices. This is based on the liberal receipts, and steady increase in stocks on spot; this latter, of course, is caused by absolute lull in the demand for exports. Some cable inquiry was noticed on Tuesday for best grade creamery, at a limit of 17c. It was not acceptable, as the lowest current price for such stock on spot was 17 1-4c. Some under grades were offering at as low as 16c. At the wharf on Monday 500 packages sold at 17c; this shows a decline of from 1-4 to 1-2c per pound since a week ago. The total exports of butter for the week ending July 4 were 15,479 boxes, divided as follows: Local export, 13,154; through, 1,325. For the corresponding week last year there were 13,428 boxes exported, showing a decided increase in business for this year. The total shipments of butter since the first of May, 1904, amount to 67,587 packages. For the corresponding period of 1903, 52,405 packages.

Cheese—The cheese market is still quiet, although there was a considerable firmness shown during Tuesday afternoon. The prices realized by the factory men on the wharves on Monday showed an advance of from 3-8 to 1-2c per pound over last Monday's prices.

3,000 boxes were offered, and the bulk of the sales made were at from 7 5-8 to 7 3-4c. From the Old Country it is learned that prices are still low, and the demand light for Canadian cheese, fancy stock bringing as low as 40s, with here and there an occasional 41s. Mail advices state that trade is dragging heavily in the Old Country. The exports of cheese for the week ending July 4 amounted to 83,751 boxes; of this, 71,121 was local, and 12,630 through. For the corresponding week last year, the exports reached 129,334, which shows an immense falling off in the cheese export business from this port. The total shipments since May 1 reach 421,178 boxes, and when compared with 1903 show a falling off of nearly 200,000 boxes.

Provisions—In barreled pork and beef there is very little business. While prices are quite low, they seem steady. In pure lard large stocks are held here; prices continue remarkably low, and only a light sale is reported. Among the bakers there is continued demand for refined lard. It would seem as if they preferred it to the pure lard. In hams and bacon sales are good for the season, and quite full prices are obtained. Fresh beef is held at high figures coming forward slowly. Veal is also very scarce, and high. Lamb is late this year, and the quality so far offered has been but fair. There is, however, continued improvement. Mutton is dull and low in price. Pork is but a light seller at rather lower figures.

PROMINENT WINNIPEG BUSINESS MAN DEAD.

The Grocer regrets to have to chronicle in this week's issue the death of Mr. A. Harvey, commission merchant and grocery broker of Winnipeg, which occurred on June 8, 1904. Mr. Harvey entered the wholesale grocery house of Alex. Harvey & Co., Hamilton, of which firm his father was the senior member, in the year 1876, and continued with that firm until the death of his father, when he entered into partnership with Mr. John Stuart, forming the firm of Stuart, Harvey & Co. On the dissolution of this firm Mr. Harvey went to Winnipeg about 10 years ago, opening up an office in the basement of the Ottawa Bank building, 361 Main street, as a commission merchant, representing the following manufacturing firms : The Canadian Salt Works, The Acadia Sugar Refining Co., Gillespie & Co., St. Charles Condensed Milk Co. and the John Seely Fish Co.

Mr. Harvey was a most upright and honest business man, making many friends and few enemies. For the past year Mr. Harvey had been in ill health, suffering from a slight inflammation of the lungs, which developed into galloping consumption, resulting in his death at the age of 44 years.

"MACK" MINERAL WATER.

For some time past the public have been learning that, as a first-class Summer drink, mineral water is not to be surpassed. The particular brand known as "Mack," manufactured in St. Catharines, Ont., by The Mack Mineral Springs Co., has been highly recommended by physicians all over the country for table and medicinal purposes.

It is on sale in all the leading hotels in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Buffalo, Cleveland and elsewhere. For family trade a special price is made, and orders are filled direct from the factory, thereby resulting in the delivery of fresh mineral water at all times. Recommendations of Mack's mineral water from prominent people are kept on file at the company's office in St. Catharines for the information of the public.

High Prices for 1904 Salmon.

THE statistical position of all grades of salmon warrants high values for the season of 1904," said Charles Corby, manager of the Pacific Selling Company, in a recent interview with the Seattle Times. "Artificial propagation is the necessity of the hour, and additional hatcheries are now required on the Fraser River," he continued. It is Mr. Corby's opinion that the visible supply of red salmon is inadequate to carry trade until the new pack is available.

Continuing, Mr. Corby said regarding the salmon situation at this time:

"As the situation stands at present, 1903 pack, all grades, with the exception of standard red Alaska salmon, are out of first hands and to a large extent have been distributed by the jobbing trade throughout the domestic markets and abroad; this applies particularly to Puget Sound and Fraser River sockeyes, which are exhausted in the domestic market, and of which there is only a limited supply in the United Kingdom. Puget Sound cohoes and Alaska medium red grades are sold up on the coast, while pinks and chums are in such small quantities that there will not be sufficient to carry the trade until the new pack is available.

"The last two years have demonstrated that consumption of red salmon has kept apace with production, and it has now resolved itself more into the question of a supply of raw material to fill the world's requirements of this grade than of the securing of new markets.

"Latest reports from the United Kingdom indicate that June 1 there were fewer than 120,000 cases of sockeyes all told in London and Liverpool, which is unprecedented in the history of the salmon business and, while it is stated that there is sufficient red Alaska salmon to supply the requirements of that market, inquiries from which are received daily as to the prospects of the packs on Puget Sound and Fraser River these reports would lead to the conclusion that there will be an abnormal demand for sockeyes during the coming season.

"This, however, being the third year after the big run of 1901, in accordance with all established precedents, the pack will be the lightest of the four-year cycle, and preparations by the packers on Puget Sound and Fraser River indicate that they are acting very conservatively in connection with operations for the coming season.

"Another fact which must be reckoned with in the establishment of values for the coming season is the influence of the Russo-Japanese war on the demand for lower grades of salmon, of which there was a surplus in the hands of American and British Columbia packers previous to the breaking out of hostilities. Shipments of these grades to Japan alone in the last ninety days have exceeded 325,000 cases and as the Japanese have been deprived by existing conditions of certain fishing rights heretofore enjoyed in Siberian waters and the fact that thirty per cent. of their regular fishermen belong to the naval reserves, and have joined the flag, it is quite reasonable to suppose that they will be compelled to rely largely upon supplies from the North Pacific coast of America to fulfil their requirements. These requirements will far exceed those of recent years, as it is estimated the demands of the army and navy in times of war, as compared with those of peace, are as three to one. This demand from a market almost entirely new so far as canned salmon is concerned will assuredly have a tendency to further strengthen values of all grades.

"On the cheaper grades such as pinks and chums it is known that there will be a heavy falling off on this season's pack, as compared with former years, when a large number of Southeastern Alaska canneries now idle were in operation. The pack of pink and chum salmon for the year 1901 was 804,549 cases; for 1902, 876,768, and for 1903, 647,494, making a total of 2,328,811 cases for the three years. As the 325,000 cases exported were disposed of under abnormal conditions, deducting this from the total will show an annual consumption of these grades amounting to 667,934 cases.

The prospective pack of pinks and chums for the coming season is not expected to exceed 350,000 cases, out of which it is reasonable to presume that foreign markets will take at least 150,000 cases, which will leave, taking into consideration the unsold portion of the packs of previous seasons, not to exceed 275,000 cases to take care of requirements of the domestic market, or a shortage of almost 400,000 cases on a normal consumptive demand.

Selling of Fish Prohibited.

S. T. Bastedo, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries for Ontario, calls attention to the fact that, under the new regulations, the sale of trout, bass and maskinonge is entirely prohibited. Heretofore sale was permitted if the dealer were able to show an invoice indicating that the fish had been imported from points outside the province, but this privilege, Mr. Bastedo says, was abused, hence the total prohibition.

War on a Fish Trust.

Suit has been brought in the Circuit Court of Franklin County, Ohio, to oust the so-called fish trust of the great lakes, which is commercially known as A. Booth & Co., of Chicago, from its charter in Ohio. The charge is that the company has purchased the business of its competitors, and controls 90 per cent. of the fresh-water fish business carried on from the Mississippi to Buffalo. It has been in operation four years, during which time it has reached out into the States bordering on the great lakes, and into the Dominion of Canada, and taken in the business of about sixty dealers in fresh-water fish.

The petition further states that the corporation seeks to engage in about forty different kinds of business under its charter, from making glue to becoming surety on the bonds for individuals. This, the Attorney-General claims, cannot be permitted by the laws of Ohio. The company is capitalized at $5,500,000.

Columbia Pack Short.

Latest advices from British Columbia are to the effect that the run of salmon on the Columbia River is still very light. Canners there report that the pack to date is fully 50 per cent. short of what it was this time last year. High water so far this season is thought to have been responsible for the absence of fish in the river. Those fish which did enter the stream were all small. The water is now receding, and it is hoped that some big runs may occur, although it is generally conceded that the pack on the Columbia is likely to be a short one this year.

Joint Meeting of Cannerymen.

THE joint conference between the members of the recently formed Puget Sound Salmon Association and those of the Fraser River Canners' Association met on Wednesday, July 6, in the offices of the latter corporation at Vancouver. The conference was principally for the purpose of discussing conditions respecting the salmon canning industry in Puget Sound and British Columbia waters.

An especial effort is being made to arrive at an understanding as to what measures should be adopted in the matter of legislation for the establishment and maintenance of additional hatcheries on the Fraser River, which has for ages been the spawning ground of Puget Sound sockeye salmon.

Notwithstanding the avowed object of the conference, it is reported that the real point at issue is the matter of an agreement between Fraser River and Sound canners, whereby each will keep out of the other's territory during the coming fishing season. Had the Dominion Government prohibited the export of raw sockeyes, no matter how caught, instead of merely placing fish caught in traps under the ban of export, the British Columbia canners would not be forced to try to drive a bargain with the Sound canners.

As the matter stands now, the Fraser River canners may invade the Sound banks to purchase sockeyes, and the American canners may come across to this side of the line to buy salmon caught in purse and drag seines. Each side is afraid of the other causing trouble over prices, and consequently both are willing to enter into an agreement to do business strictly within their own territory. If the agreement can be satisfactorily arranged a great deal of trouble both to Sound and Fraser River canners will likely be averted.

Traps a Success.

On June 27, 1904, was demonstrated the mportant fact that fish traps can be successfully operated on the shores of Vancouver Island, B.C., the first "lift" in the newly-erected traps at Sooke harbor, built by a Victoria company, resulting in the catching of a good quantity of fish of excellent size.

Fish Notes.

The Georgia Fishing & Curing Co. has secured land on Protection Island, at Nanaimo, British Columbia, and is erecting buildings preparatory to going into the herring curing business. The waters about Nanaimo abound with this variety of fish, so that the prospects are excellent for the new company.

A SNAKE CAUGHT ON TANGLE-FOOT.

The accompanying photograph shows a fly-paper serving a purpose which was never contemplated by its makers—acting as a snake-trap! "Whilst camping out on survey work on the Natal coast," writes the sender of the picture, "a sheet of 'Tanglefoot,' placed to catch flies, was blown off the writing-table in my tent on to the floor. Whilst it lay there a young snake (a green mamba), rather unfortunately for itself, happened to crawl on the paper, and in spite of all its struggles was securely caught. It was a rather lively specimen, and its temper was not improved by its sticky environment, so that when it came to be photographed its resentment was most marked."

SUGAR-BEET ACREAGE IN EUROPE

DURING the past Winter considerable anxiety was felt by people interested in the beet-sugar industry in Europe. The agreement of the Brussels convention had gone into effect in September, 1903. All the direct and indirect bounties had been cut off, but the sugar prices would not adjust themselves to this change, as had been expected. The market prices were below the cost of production in some countries, where sugar had to be sold at an absolute loss. Almost every country in Europe had sugar to sell—some of them even from old surplus stocks. Overproduction and fierce competition existed everywhere; hence, the leading sugar manufacturers claimed that nothing short of a positive reduction of acreage all over Europe would bring the beet-sugar business back to a paying basis. In the meetings of the various associations the farmers were told that fewer and cheaper beets in the coming season alone could save the sugar industry from ruin, and that they had better devote more attention to the cultivation of flax, grains, and other products. But all this hue and cry does not seem to have made a very deep impression, as will be seen from the following table, showing how large an acreage in Europe has again been sown to sugar beets. This information has been compiled and published by the International Union for Sugar Statistics, or, in other words, by a combination of all the sugar factories of Europe, which are in the best possible position to furnish figures that are pretty nearly correct. The area planted is given in the table, with comparisons with 1903.

Country.	1903-4. Acres.	1904 5. Acres.
Germany	1,027,580	1,016,561
Austria	757,633	793,204
France	553,998	467,249
Russia	1,395,801	1,203,972
Belgium	142,083	112,196
Holland	99,688	88,602
Sweden	70,997	61,467
Denmark	38,795	34,595
Italy	123,550	84,015
Total	4,210,125	3,861,861

It will be seen that the sowings this Spring have been only about 6 per cent. less than they were last year. The amount of sugar that will be grown from this immense field of 3,861,861 acres of sugar beets is an unknown quantity; but the yield of last season is taken as an average one and if fair weather continues till October, about 5,520,000 tons of beet sugar in the coming season of 1904-5 may be expected, against the 5,915,000 tons of the present season. This lessening of the production, though comparatively small, and the increase of consumption, which has been exceptionally large of late, will materially decrease the surplus old stocks that have burdened the world's sugar market for the past three or four years; it will probably also restore the sugar business to a more normal condition.

PETERBORO' SUGAR INDUSTRY.

A number of shareholders of the Peterboro Sugar Co., whose existence practically came to an end through the failure of the ratepayers to endorse the bonds of the company, are considering a proposition for the revival of the industry made by. J. Fowler of Toronto, representing Toronto and Michigan capitalists. He proposes, on condition of $50,000 being subscribed locally, to form an entirely new company, complete the factory buildings and put the industry in operation by the Fall of 1905. No calls upon the subscribed stock are to be made till the buildings are completed and machinery laid down. At a meeting of shareholders $11,500 of the stock was subscribed, and it is believed the balance of the $50,000 can readily be secured. Mr. Fowler thinks the outlook extremely promising in this district.

The increased consumption of BLUE RIBBON TEA has resulted from only one cause in the last analysis—its intrinsic merit. Advertising has helped, of course, but unless value given accompanies advertising the result sooner or later is extinguishment. Push

The RED LABEL, forty cents, is worth fifty cents by comparison.

UNJUST AND UNBUSINESSLIKE.

IT is the boast of supporters of the Dominion Government that its administration of public affairs has been progressive and businesslike. In many respects this must be recognized, yet in other matters the policy of the Government is one that no far-sighted business would adopt.

We do not refer to such matters as the resignation of Auditor-General McDougall, or the case of the Davis canal contract, matters which are engaging the attention of the political press. Our reference is more particularly to the treatment of some of the more responsible servants of the Crown.

In the eight years since the Liberals attained power the cost of living in Canada has increased fully 50 per cent. The inevitable consequence of this change in conditions has been that business men of all classes have found it necessary, in order to preserve the standard of work in their establishments, to advance the salaries paid, whether to untrained laborer or to general manager, in a material degree. In recent years we have heard of salaries which a few years ago were unthought of. The Government has recognized the altered conditions in the increased sessional allowance to members of Parliament, as well as in a general advance in the salaries of the employes in practically every department under its control.

Yet in spite of the increased cost of living; in spite of the fact that salaries of all classes of people have expanded, the Government continues to keep in office at the salary set at Confederation, the most responsible, the most honored servants of the Crown, the judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, men on whose decisions rest the disposition of millions of dollars, and on whose strength and ability the honor and integrity of our judicial system is in large measure dependent.

Viewed from any standard of comparison, the salaries of our Supreme Court judges is ridiculously small. Compared with the salaries attached to similar courts in other British colonies, weaker in every respect than Canada, or compared with the salaries paid to the men who attain to eminence in the Canadian industrial, commercial or professional world, and particularly when compared with the income of any first-class lawyer in this country, the stipend attached to the Supreme Court of Canada is shamefully small and inadequate.

Such a policy is unbusinesslike, as well as unjust. The sacrifice that any desirable lawyer would have to make to accept an appointment to the Supreme Court is such that many of them would not, or, rather, could not, accept it. Such a condition is inimical to the best interests of the business men of Canada. Deterioration in the personnel of that court would soon manifest itself in decisions which would destroy confidence in our whole judicial system.

The Dominion Government should take up this matter in earnest during the present session, and place the salaries of our Supreme Court judges on a basis that would ensure the appointment of the most desirable men when vacancies shall occur.

A CRITICISM THAT STINGS.

CANADA'S petty treatment of her most honored and capable servants has not only aroused discussion at home, but has been the subject of unfavorable comment abroad. There is so much truth in the following, from the Pittsburg Dispatch, that any Canadian cannot help feeling its sting:

"Compared with the United States, Canada's civil service, notwithstanding the increases under the new amending Act, remains ill-paid. The maximum for deputy heads of departments is only $4,000 a year, and for chief clerks of departments $2,800 a year, far below the remuneration men of equal ability command on railroads, in the banks, insurance and financial concerns, and commercial houses.

"The officials are expected to live in a style which leaves no possible margin to the good. Men of large families lead a struggling existence to keep up social appearances, and die poor. The consequence is the service has ceased to attract the best material.

"Matters on the bench are even worse. The High Court judges in Ontario receive $6,000 a year, and Federal Supreme Court judges, the highest in the land, only $7,000 a year. The insufficiency of these salaries may be gathered by comparison with New South Wales, with a population of only 1,400,000, which pays ten puisne judges $12,500 a year each; Victoria, population 1,200,000, pays $15,000 to the High Court judges, and so in all the Australian colonies.

"The integrity of Canada's judges is traditional, but the salaries paid are below the earnings of first-class lawyers."

THE MINISTER SHOULD ACT.

THOSE who have given serious thought to the work of the Supreme Court of Canada have reason to look to the Minister of Justice, Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick, for action which will rid Canada of the stigma of meanness and shortsightedness in its treatment of the bench.

It is the custom of the Dominion Government to leave such matters to the Minister in charge of the department directly affected. The present Minister of Justice is the type of man from whom one would expect broad-minded treatment of such an important subject. He has, moreover, evidenced that he has at heart the best interests of his department. There is, therefore, good reason to hope that he will place himself at the head of the movement to ensure the integrity and strength of the Supreme Court by more adequate remuneration for the judges. If he does, he can depend on the unanimous support of those who are the leaders in commerce, industry and the professions in Canada, and on the general approval of all classes in the Dominion, in a step which will give him recognition as a progressive Minister of the Crown.

THE TREATMENT OF AGENTS.

A COMMON source of complaint among Canadian business men is the unsatisfactory methods often employed by firms in Great Britain doing business with this country. There is just a possibility, however, that while the faults of the business firms in Great Britain are being considered our own faults may be overlooked.

There was a time when the exports of this country were practically confined to agricultural products and raw materials. That day is past. We have now become exporters of a great many finished articles, and our trade in this particular is rapidly increasing.

As our ability to export increases so does the necessity for our employing proper methods become more obvious. The reports of the Canadian commercial agents in other countries repeatedly point out the necessity of correcting certain short-comings. And these are supplemented by reports which come through private sources.

Promptness in correspondence is most essential. The shipping of goods which are up to sample is imperative, and agents who are appointed as representatives should be properly treated. Copies of correspondence, which the firm in Canada may receive from houses in the territory looked after by the agent, should be supplied the latter when it does not come through him. He should be thoroughly informed on all matters of this kind. Some contribution should also be made to his expenses if he is to be expected to be zealous for the interest of the firm, notwithstanding the fact that he may be working on commission.

OUR MAILING SYSTEM.

If it should happen that there is a delay in receiving your copy of THE GROCER or you do not receive it, you can without hesitation place the blame on the Post Office authorities.

Particular pains are taken in our Mailing Department to insure the safe delivery of every copy of the paper. We have a distributing Post Office of our own in our establishment, where we sort all the papers into their different routes and districts. These are immediately despatched to the Station and placed on the train, instead of being sent to the General Post Office for distribution like other papers.

All our subscribers in Ontario and Quebec should receive their copy of the paper on the day of publication, and if it is not received on that day we would like to hear of it, so we can trace the matter up and find out where the fault lies.

We are anxious to maintain a perfect and fast delivery system, and we have now one of the best equipped mailing departments of any publishing house in America, but you will help us still further by letting us know of the slightest delay in the delivery of your copy of the paper.

Firms in the United States who have agents abroad do this, and it pays them. Then when new goods are put on the market electros of these should be sent to the agent to be used in circular or newspaper advertising. A cut of the firm's head office should also be found on letterheads and other business literature used by the agent. In fact everything reasonable should be done to assist the agent and to give publicity to the goods manufactured by the firm.

When an agent has been appointed it does not matter whether he is purely on commission or not, the principals should take an interest in him and the territory which he controls. If interest is not taken in the agent it is only natural that his concern in the welfare of the particular lines which he handles for them should become apathetic.

As we have already said, something should be contributed to his expenses, and his principal should insist that he make periodical reports as to not only the business he has done, but touching upon the prospects for the future and what methods could be employed to increase trade. By insisting on this and by keeping him in turn thoroughly posted as to new goods, etc., the possibility of success is very much increased.

There is no doubt about it that if every manufacturer who caters to the export trade would exhibit more enthusiasm and concern for the success of his foreign business the aggregate results would soon be revealed in the trade returns of the country. "It is the littles that make the muckles," as the old Scotch proverb says.

CROCKERY SPECIAL.

The Crockery Special of The Grocer, which was to have been issued this week, has been postponed until July 15. The grocery trade throughout the country is manifesting a lively interest in this midsummer special, which is undoubtedly one of the features of The Grocer for the present year.

THE FIELDING BANQUET.

A PUBLIC banquet is to be tendered Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance in the Dominion Government. Many business men would like to honor Mr. Fielding in this way, but are practically compelled to hold aloof by the fact that those in charge of the affair have, as is too frequently the case in Canada, seen fit to make the occasion a party demonstration.

Mr. Fielding, in his position of Finance Minister, has come in contact with all industrial and commercial classes in Canada and, by his clean methods, his practical sagacity and fair treatment, has won genuine respect and regard. For this reason it is regrettable that a banquet to him should be made a petty party demonstration instead of a function at which all classes might express their desire to do him honor.

A similar opinion was expressed by many Liberal business men in Montreal when the recent banquet to Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, was turned into a Conservative party demonstration.

A RISING GROCERY BROKER OF MONTREAL.

THE GROCER has pleasure in presenting in this issue the portrait of Mr. A. Durocher, one of Montreal's grocery broker and commisson merchants. Mr. Durocher entered the grocery brokerage business in Ottawa in 1897, representing a number of domestic and foreign houses. In 1902 he removed to Montreal, opening offices at 13 St. John street, where until a few weeks ago, when he removed to larger and more convenient offices at 18 St. Alexis street, in the Chesterfield buildings, he has conducted a steadily increasing business. Mr. Durocher is a young man who has by steady application and a close study of the interests of his customers, secured a good connection among the jobbing trade, not only of Montreal, but also of Ottawa and Quebec. At the commencement of his business career he devoted his time principally to the canned goods and imported dried fruit business, but during the past five years he has established a very successful connection for not only his domeste, but also his foreign principals. Among the many firms represented by Mr. Durocher are the following: Canadian Canners; F. R. Lalor, Dunnville, dried and evaporated fruits; Baird & Peters, St. John, molasses; the W. S. Loggie Co., Chatham, N. B., canned lobsters, blueberries, etc.; Jas. Wilson & Sons, Fergus, cereals; S. Glenn & Son, Chatham, Ont., beans; J. U. Gervais & Co., Joliette; Canadian leaf tobacco; the E. C. Flaccus Co., Wheeling, West Virginia, sauces, catsups, etc.; Castle Bros., San Francisco, California dried fruits; Thornton & Co., Malaga, Spain, Spanish dried fruits and nuts; Fernando Garcia, Gandia, Spain, raisins; Albert Coe, Denia, Spain, valencias; N. A. Macripodare & Co., Smyrna, sultana raisins and figs; Societe d'Importation and Exportation, Aix-en-Provence, almonds, etc.; Del Banco, London, England, spices; Tancrede & Co., Paris, France, glues and gelatine; De Costa & Co., Barbadoes, molasses; Clayoquot Sound Canning Co., British Columbia, etc.

From this list it is seen that Mr. Durocher covers the grocery trade requirements very thoroughly. He issues weekly circulars, which are sent to the jobbing trade of Canada, and in this way the latter is kept in thorough touch with the different markets.

Mr. A. Durocher, grocery broker and commission merchant, Montreal.

TORONTO GROCERY CLERKS' OUTING.

ON July 1 the annual picnic of the Toronto Grocer Clerks' Association, Toronto, to Victoria Park, Niagara Falls, was held. Originally it was intended to go to Jackson's Point, but at the last moment a change in the arrangements was made which met with the unanimous approval of the members of the association.

The excursion left Toronto on the early morning boat, arriving at Victoria Park in ample time for a full day's outing. The following interesting programme in the way of races, guessing contests, etc., was thoroughly enjoyed by the numerous competitors and their friends.

Events and prizes were as follows:

1—Broad jump—1, package of Salada tea, valued at $4; 2, a $3.50 package of Vim; 3, tin of coffee valued at $2.50.

2—Throwing ball—1, package of Malta Vita, valued at $4.50; 2, a ham worth $3; 3, fountain pen.

3—75-yard race, gentlemen—1, P. G. goods valued at $5; 2, dozen brooms, worth $3; 3, box of cigars.

4—75-yard race, ladies—1, cut glass bottle, worth $4; 2, box of candy; 3, box of macaroons.

5—Guessing contest, gentlemen—1, case of pickles; 2, case of pickles; 3, box of candy.

6—Guessing contest, ladies—1, six dozen of jelly; 2, two tins of biscuits; 3, box of candy.

7—Sale—1, case of ginger ale; 2, pail of lard; 3, can of coffee.

The winners of these events, in proper order, were as follows:

Event 1—1, Anderson; 2, Hudson; 3, Turpin.

Event 2—1, Turpin; 2, Hudson; 3, Anderson.

Event 3—1, Turpin; 2, Anderson; 3, Matthews.

Event 4—1, Miss Anderson; 2, Miss McKee; 3, Ferguson.

Event 5—1, Hudson; 2, Turpin; 3, Anderson.

Event 6—1, Miss Ferguson; 2, Miss McKee; 3, Miss Anderson.

On account of the inclement weather the last race had to be postponed. Arrangements for running off this event will be made at the next meeting of the association, which takes place Tuesday, July 12, at room 2, in the Temple building.

"A Little Plain Talk To Clear-Headed Business Men."

The one great dominating influence—
The one appeal to the dealer and the public—
The one test that the world recognizes as the standard of value, is the "Cup Draw."

This being so, would it not be good wisdom for every grocer to satisfy himself of the intrinsic value of "SALADA" Ceylon Tea alongside of any other brand on sale ?—the "Tea Pot" will demonstrate this in five minutes. We ask you in all sincerity and candour, is it not worth your while to have absolute proof of its superiority in your own and your customer's interest ? We think it is.

To build and hold a trade nowadays, you must serve the people well, not passably so, but well, not only in Teas but in every line of goods you handle.

Write for samples and terms, "SALADA," Toronto and Montreal.

Have you tried to oblige your customers during the summer months by suggesting to them

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 7, 1904.

Groceries.

CANNED goods are the feature of the grocery market this week. The Canners' Association have issued special instructions regarding the prospects of the new pack, and although no prices are quoted, strong hints are made as to the advances that are likely to become law. Out of 38 salmon canneries in British Columbia, for instance, only 17 are ready for operation, and salmon is likely to be in a strong position. Great interest is being taken in molasses from the Barbadoes, inasmuch as higher prices are expected, and it is said a mistake has been made of between ten and twelve thousand puncheons in the estimate of the crop there. Planters, when they heard first of the heavy crop of molasses, turned out a great deal more sugar than they would have done otherwise, and the jobbers were deceived into thinking there would be an excessive quantity of molasses available. Camphor has dropped from $1 to 85c per lb. Singapore white pepper is reported to have been offered at lower prices for distant deliveries. Both Jamaica and Cochin ginger are comparatively slow, but the hot weather is sure to create a demand. Nutmegs continue steady. Flake tapioca is in small demand, with no quotable change in price, but medium pearl of fairly good quality is selling freely at lower prices. Canary seed has advanced from 4c and 4½c to 5c and 5½c. It may be remembered that this was prophesied in The Grocer several weeks ago. Reports from Turkey are pessimistic regarding the growing crop of canary seed, but it is too soon to estimate as to its quantity and it is well to remember that even if it should be short there the Plate seed will readily fill the deficiency. Sugar continues to hold its strong statistical position, and the reports all point to a continued high market. Dried fruit is in steady demand, although crop reports from the countries of production continue to confirm the already gloomy views taken by experts, and the tendency is to reduce early estimates, instead of increasing them. Evaporated fruits continue to be in splendid demand, in spite of the abundant supplies of fresh fruits. The evaporated apples are holding strong at 7c, and the man who held the corner has certainly done well.

SUGAR.

Sugar is still strong. Continental consumption for the past month increased steadily. There has also been a marked reduction in the American stocks, and compared with last year there is a diminution in the American and Cuban stocks of at least nearly 270,000 tons. There is every indication that sugar will be even dearer, although experts state that many of the advances have been speculative. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The report has got abroad that there is a corner in molasses. This, however, cannot be verified, and if there is such a thing it is not in the hands of Montreal houses. No doubt a mistake has been made in the estimate of the crop, and dealers are in a quandary as to whereabouts 20,000 puncheons of the crop reported may have gone. Some think it is held in New York, others that it is in the hands of eastern dealers, and will turn up in schooners during this month. However, from the Islands it is stated on the very best authority that molasses is scarce and will be higher. Some offers of 25c were refused this week. We quote :

COFFEE.

Coffee has been given a firm tone by reduced arrivals, and it is thought that a higher range of prices is near. it is reported that the total crop of Brazil coffee will not reach ten and a half million bags, and it is also stated that the new crop, which is very late, is on the average a very poor yield, the berry being quite small. There has been a reported advance in Colombia and other Central American sorts, but it has not affected the market here. From the Old Country it is learned that East India coffee that has been offered is of such poor quality that it was difficult to find ready sale for it. We quote :

TEA.

The tea market has been irregular, without very great activity during the past week. Prices are easy, but there is a good demand for all high grade teas. For Ceylon teas the market seems well supplied. The lower and medium grades are, of course, leading in demand. As is usual at this time of year, fine teas are in small supply. China teas in some grades, such as Oolongs, and scented Orange Pekoes, remain firm and unchanged. Congou teas are comparatively quiet. Japan teas are holding strong, and are in good demand. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

A strong position is held by all canned goods. The Canners' Association have issued a list of obligations to all the big wholesale houses. One of these states that the canners reserve the right to increase prices, subject to pack, from 2½c upwards over the lowest opening prices from July 1. This covers all canned goods, fruit, meats, and fish. Salmon is in the front of the market just now. Sales are being made in large quantities of old stock, and although new pack prices are not out, there is every probability of a continued advance. However, the first new pack of any canned goods will no doubt be peas, and following will be strawberries. Canned tomatoes are likely to be very much dearer before the new crop is available. Supplies are very limited, and as the new crop does not come into the market until October, the strength of the position may easily be seen. Canned corn is still strong. It was stated by an expert that he did not believe there were a hundred cases on the market. Latest reports from France advise that the sardine fishing is progressing well, with slight interruptions from bad weather. The quantity of fish caught up to date has not been large. The prices paid have been high, especially as the fish caught are considered small in size, running mostly from 11 to 18 in the quarter tin. Hand to mouth is the order in buying salmon, inasmuch as the Alaska pack of 1903 is being withheld by the largest packers. We quote :

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Despite the hot weather eggs were firmer, and round lots of new arrivals sold at 15c per dozen. A certain amount of held over stock, however, brought only from 14c to 14½c, owing, it is said, to there having been found a certain amount of waste. There were nearly a thousand cases arrived on Tuesday.

BEANS.

Beans are still quiet; sales of choice primes were made at $1.35 to $1.40, and primes at $1.35 a bushel, while car lots of choice primes sold at $1.30 and $1.25 per bushel.

HONEY.

The consumption of honey is very small at this time of the year, and the market remains unchanged. White clover is quoted at 13½ to 14c. Extracted white clover remains at 8½ to 9c in 10 lb. tins, and 7 to 7½c in 300 lb. kegs. Buckwheat remains at 6 and 7c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple products are in little demand. We quote :

Maple syrup, in large tins	0 80	0 85
Pure sugar, per lb	0 07	0 07½

POTATOES.

New potatoes are now interesting the market, and old stock is being rushed off as soon as possible. New ones are selling at $3.50 to $1.40 from store. Old potatoes are selling as low as 40c a bag, that is for an 80 lb. bag. Showing the remarkable decline in potatoes, it may be mentioned that same sized bag sold six weeks ago for $1. The standard price for potatoes was 60c.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Renewed activity has been noticed in flour. A revival in the export trade for Manitoba grades of flour has been pleasing to the local millers, even though the business has been far short of their expectation. The export business is away off this year. The western millers are inclined to ship flour on through B.L, which has a good effect upon the export figures, but very little material benefit for the Montreal shippers. We quote :

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, July 7, 1904.

Groceries.

THIS has been a short week in the grocery trade on account of the 1st of July holiday. Travelers went on the road on Monday and returned on Thursday. The volume of trade for the week, however, has been fair. Sugar is moving fairly freely at the present time, retailers not being so dubious about buying as they were a few weeks ago. The statistical position is strong, and the least advance in the United States would mean an upward tendency in this market. Now that the fruit canning season is under way an active sugar market is predicted. Canned goods continue very firm, and corn is about exhausted. Salmon is reported to be moving very freely, and we are able to quote new prices on salmon this week. The tea market is quiet, with Japans easier and increased inquiries therefor. The local trade in coffees is reported to have been fair during the week, with low grade Rios scarce on this market. Tapioca is a shade easier. Trade in rice, spices and foreign nuts continues seasonable. Prunes are moving freely and the market is now pretty well cleaned up of dried apricots.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods trade continues brisk, with prices ruling firm. Tomatoes are scarce and firmer, and stocks of corn are about exhausted, large quantities of the latter having been sent to the Northwest. Canned fruits are moving readily, while the demand for salmon has been very active. "Horseshoe" brand is said to be already out of first hands. We quote new prices for B. C. salmon this week. Canned meats are active this week, especially potted meats and lunch tongue. This is the season par excellence for veal loaf, etc. We quote the following prices :

SUGAR

The course of the market has been interrupted by "Independence Day" holidays in the United States, in anticipation of which there was an easing off all round in the demand. Since then there have been no particular incidents to record. In raw sugar only a trifling business has been done at current quotations, with buyers indifferent after their recent heavy purchases. There has been virtually nothing doing in Cubans, business being confined to English, Island and Porto Rico Muscovados. At the same time, we observe a record of sales of 3,000 tons Demerara centrifugals for prompt shipment to Canada at 2 5-16 for basis 96, c and f, New York.

Stocks at Atlantic ports decreased nearly 20,000 tons for the week ending June 29, with receipts of 21,222 tons, and meltings of 40,000 tons, the latter being increased by 3,000 tons for the week. Total stocks in four ports, June 29, were 205,996 tons, compared with 318,227 tons for the same time last year. The campaign in Cuba is rapidly drawing to a close, with only five central factories grinding, against six the previous week. Heavy rains continue, and receipts at principal shipping ports were only 6,000 tons, compared with 11,000 tons for the same time a year ago. Stocks at principal shipping ports have been reduced to 151,000 tons, or about 190,000 tons less than last year. Combined stocks of U. S. and Cuba show a decrease of 301,971 tons from last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,523,996 tons, against 2,852,631 tons for the same time last year, a decrease of 328,635 tons. There have been no shipments of raw or refined sugars from Hamburg to the United States, but we hear of freight engagements for 15,000 tons raw beet sugar, said to be for New Orleans.

There has been no improvement in Europe, where 88 per cent. beet has gone to 9s 4 1-4d, an advance of 1 1-2d for the week. This is equivalent to a parity of 4.01c for 96 test centrifugals, which continue to be quoted nominally at 3.94c.

All indications are that the statistical position in the United States will become even worse as the season advances, as purchases in Europe so far have been very moderate, and with all estimates of cane sugars available for the next two months, including stocks now in importers' hands, of about 27,000 tons, and the entire balance of the Cuban crop placed to the credit of July-August receipts, it would seem to leave stock in Atlantic ports on August 31 of less than 100,000 tons. On a basis of Summer meltings, this would be less than three weeks' supply. It would thus appear to be absolutely necessary for American refiners to purchase heavily in Europe, to provide for this contingency. It would also be observed that the tendency in European markets is steadily upwards, and it is surprising that the improvement has not been greater.

Refined is unchanged in all positions, both in United States and Canada, and the markets have been rather waiting, pending further advances in raws. The demand has been checked by the holidays, but there should be considerable improvement in this respect from now on, as the coming of small fruits has commenced. We quote the following prices:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups and molasses are quiet and without special feature. It is reported that there is only one firm willing to take the risk of shipping New Orleans molasses to this market in view of the test. Prices generally are firm, although New Orleans may be a shade easier. The trade generally is interested in the latest revision of the tariff which restricts duty free molasses to direct importations from British ports. Our quotations are as follows:

TEAS.

Teas have been quiet during the week under review. The impression prevails in some quarters that the Japan market has reached rock bottom. The increased inquiries for Japans marks a new era in the Canadian tea market. For some seasons on account of the high price of Japans the market has been diverted to Ceylon and Indian greens, and it remains to be seen whether the Canadian consumer will go back to Japans. There has been much speculation on this point among the tea trade, and now that conditions will allow of such a change the trade are very curious to see which way things will turn. COFFEES.

The coffee market continues quiet, with sales on the street small during the week under review. For the time of year, however, trade is satisfactory. Low grade Rios are reported to be scarce.

According to latest New York reports the new 1904-05 crop season opened July 1 with the largest stocks on hand in every direction ever known at the beginning of a new crop. If climatic conditions continue favorable in Brazil during the flowering periods, it means great possibilities for the growing crops. The enormous stocks held everywhere, bought at high prices, form a great barrier to higher values, and this will be felt all the more keenly when the new crop receipts come down in earnest. RICE AND TAPIOCA.

In certain quarters a scarcity of tapioca is reported, as well as a slight stiffening in the price. In others it is held that the market is easier, if anything, and that the first report is nothing more nor less than an attempt to bull the market. Rice is unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

Foreign Dried Fruits

Trade in dried fruits continues steady, but quiet, as this is between seasons. Prunes have been moving freely, and the market has been cleaned up pretty well in dried apricots.

Latest reports from Patras, Greece, say that the new Currant Bill has passed its first and second readings, and probably its third by this time. It is claimed in certain quarters that its provisions are, on the whole, beneficial, and bound to affect the future course of prices favorably; for example, those provisions prohibiting further plantations of currant vines, the abolition of the export duty, the increase of the retention from 20 to 35 per cent. (the extra 15 being for the account of the Government to make up for the abolition of the export duty, and the usual authoritiy of the bank to buy up surplus at a fixed price). As heretofore, the British Government protested against the substantial increase of the retention, but the Greek Government has adjusted the difficulty by reducing the import duty on such articles as codfish and tinned goods.

The total yield may not reach over 165,000 tons, and there are two months yet before the crop will be housed. In nearly all districts the disease peronespores exists, and has already done some damage, which will be further increased in the event of rain. One authority says that with a crop of 170,000 tons, the retention of 35 per cent. and the purchase of the Currant Bank, present prices are too low, and a reaction is likely as soon as the Currant Bill is passed. Country Produce.

EGGS.

Instead of a lowering of prices, there has been a little stiffening up this week, the range being from 15c to 15 1-2c. Receipts have been somewhat smaller, on account of the "clucking" season for the hens. To neutralize this, consumption has fallen off, as it always does, during July and August. The market is quiet and uninteresting, neither dealers nor export demand showing any liveliness. Prices are expected to remain at this level.

APPLES.

The situation in exaporated apples is peculiar, prices being firm, although the demand is only nominal. The reason is that stocks of evaporated apples are in a few hands, and for some unforeseen reason they are holding the price up. We quote the following prices:

Evaporated apples, per lb	0 06½

BEANS.

Provision men say there is nothing doing in beans, although wholesale grocers have been selling white beans in considerable quantities for this time of the year to mining and lumbering firms, one firm having sold 50 bags during the week. Prices have been a little off, but in view of the improved demand a stiffening up in prices is not unexpected. Our quotations are as follows:

Green Fruits.

The First of July trade in green fruits is reported to have been particularly good in bananas, pines and oranges, particularly the former, and a brisk demand continues in all these lines. Bananas are arriving on the market freely. Old stocks of lemons are being rapidly cleaned up and new stocks of Verdillis are ariving on the mar-. Havana pines are nearly out of the market, and supplies from Florida will now begin to supply the fancy trade. Tennessee apples are easier, but stocks are poor and the demand is slow as yet. California cherries are slow and Canadian cherries are considered lower in price with an improved demand. Strawberries are a little higher in price than last week; quality of stock is only fair and supplies arriving daily are no more than is sufficient for the local market. This year's crop is short, being only half that of an average year, and it is believed the season is nearly over. With suitable weather it may last, however, for another week or ten days. Tomatoes are now arriving from Tennessee instead of Mississippi. Georgia watermelons are arriving, the Florida crop being practically over. The demand for California deciduous fruit is improving, and before long certain firms will be receiving a car a day. Recent arrivals are reported to have been wasty. This market will continue from now until September. Reports from California say the fruit crop there is good, although nothing unusual Elberta peaches and Delaware raspberries are on the market for the first time this week. We quote the following prices:

Vegetables.

The week under review has been a good one in the vegetable market. The demand for all kinds of vegetables continues, while supplies are coming in more freely. Canadian new potatoes have made their appearance on the market, and are quoted at $1.50 per bushel. Old potatoes are an uncertain quantity, the market fluctuating to the extent that it is difficult to give quotations. Provisioners say the quotations below cover the market, while in the vegetable market proper old potatoes are quoted as high as $1 to $1.10 per bag. There has been a slump in green cucumbers, the price dropping from $2.50 and $3 to $1 and $1.50 per bushel. New beets have dropped again this week, and now sell for 35c, a reduction of from 5 to 15c per doz., while there is a falling off in the price of new carrots of from 10 to 25c. This would tend to show that the supplies of these vegetables are by no means small. Some new Canadian beans and peas are noticed on the market for the first time this week. Michigan celery is on the market and selling at 50c per doz. Local stuff will be on the market in two weeks' time. Our quotations are as follows:

While there is still a good demand for Hungarian, millet and corn, the trade for the season is practically over. Buckwheat has made its appearance on the market during the past week, and in quoted at 75c and 80c. Last week's quotations remain unchanged, which are:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The grain market is somewhat brighter than last week, Manitoba wheat having advanced in price. The reason for this is undoubtedly the wetness of the season and an increased export demand. Manitoba No. 1 hard is up 2½c, northern No. 1 and 2 are each 2c firmer, and No. 3 northern 3c firmer. Oats are ½c easier. Our quotations are as follows:

FLOUR.

The situation in flour is very firm, although prices have not been affected as yet. The leading factor in bringing this about is undoubtedly the continued wet season. Just as we go to press word comes that Manitoba Fall wheat has been damaged by excessive rains, and that Fall wheat in New Ontario is beginning to rust. Very little flour is being exported as a result of low prices ruling in European markets. A cable from Glasgow dated July 6 offers 24s 3d, but Toronto exporters say they cannot sell below 25c. We quote the following prices:

SPECIAL.

Just as we go to press we hear of an advance in Canadian refined of 5c., following an advance of 10c. in the United States this morning by Arbuckle.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, July 5, 1904.

FOR the past week business has been good, and jobbers report that all around trade is very bright and the future prospects splendid. The market is steady with little or no change in prices of any note.

Sugar—The market remains firm. Montreal granulated is quoted at $5.05 in barrels and $4.95 in sacks; yellows at $4.45; Wallaceburg holds the price good at $4.95 in barrels and $4.85 in sacks.

Green Fruits—The market is a little easier. Late valencia oranges are $4.75 a case; pineapples, $4.50 a case, and bananas $3 to $3.50 a bunch. Hood River strawberries are $4 a case; tomatoes, $2 a case; cherries, black and red, $1.50 per 10 lb. case; prunes, apricots and peaches, $2.50 a case; watermelons, $4.50 a doz.; cucumbers, $1 a doz.; rhubarb, 2c a lb.; new cabbage, 4c a lb.; lettuce, 40c a doz.; onions, 30c a doz., and asparagus is now off the market.

Canned Vegetables—The market is firm and corn is still quoted at $4.75 a case.

Rolled Oats—Prices are firm. The market quotes 80 lb. sacks at $2.25; 40 lb. sacks at $2.30; 20 lb. sacks at $2.35; 8 lb. sacks at $2.65, and 6 lb. sacks at $2.85.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—The market remains firm. All lines of evaporated fruits are scarce. 1902 California apricots are off the market, and 1903 choice are offering at 13¼ to 13½c. California prunes are now quoted 90 to 100 at 4½c; 70 to 80 at 5½c; 60 to 70 at 6c, and 80 to 90 at 5c.

Cornmeal—The market is steady with prices firm and cornmeal quoted at $1.75 per sack, and 90c per ½ sack.

Flour—The market is firm and quotes No. 1 patent at $2.45; No. 2 patent at $2.30, and No. 3 patent at $1.80.

Tapioca—The market still quotes tapioca at ½c advance, and prices hold good at 8¾c per lb.

Eggs—The market is now quoting eggs at 20c, jobbing to the trade.

Cured Meats—The market now quotes prices a little easier. Our quotations are as follows : Hams, per lb., 13c; shoulders, per lb., 8½c; picnic hams, per lb., 8½c; dry salt backs, per lb., 9¾c; long dry clear, per lb., 8½c; long spice rolls, per lb., 11c; breakfast bellies, per lb., 13¼c; breakfast backs, per lb., 11c; short rolls, per lb., 10½c.

CONVENTION OF RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION.

RETAIL Merchants' Association of Canada held its fifth convention on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, in the association rooms, 21 Richmond street west, Toronto.

The opening session on Tuesday, which was attended by a large number of delegates from outlying cities and towns, was addressed by S. Corrigan, president of the Toronto branch, and G. J. St. Leger, president of the association. Addresses in reply to the welcome were made by A. L. Geen, Belleville; B. W. Zeiman, Preston; W. Farrar, Hamilton, and S. A. Brubacker, Berlin. The speakers all expressed satisfaction with the abolition of trading stamps, and a decided objection to any schemes of a doubtful character.

Wednesday's session was occupied principally with a discussion of trading stamps and prize schemes in general.

Resolutions were introduced to increase the taxation rate applied to department stores from 50c to $1, and to reduce the amount now paid by coal and wood dealers to the same as that paid by retail merchants.

To procure legislation covering the Police Court law, which discriminates against individual merchants and in favor of corporations, where action may be taken against them.

To abolish Federal fees for examining weights and measures of retail merchants.

To memorialize the Dominion Government not to put the metric system into operation until proper machinery is provided.

To ask for a change in the present system of charging for cartage at both ends of railway trips.

To consider increased rates of fire insurance companies.

To endorse the price contract plan to prevent price cutting.

To discover means to abolish coupon exchange tickets and other similar schemes for attracting trade.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A. L. Geen, Belleville; first vice-president, T. F. Kingsmille, London; second vice-president, H. C. Ellis, Ottawa; treasurer, W. B. Rogers, Toronto, re-elected; secretary, E. M. Trowern, Toronto, re-elected. The convention was brought to a successful close by a banquet at the Arlington Hotel.

The T. Eaton Co., Toronto, are contemplating the erection of a building in Winnipeg.

"PEACOCK" MINCEMEAT.

A new brand of mincemeat, known as "Peacock Brand," is on the market. This mincemeat is put up in condensed form, in an attractive package, and is manufactured by the Bates, Peacock Co., of Hamilton. Mr. J. W. Bates is the active principal. He is known by both the wholesale and retail grocery trade from Cornwall to Windsor, and has made a record for himself as a specialty salesman. In December last he entered business on his own account. In addition to mincemeat, the firm are making a cream cheese, also known as "Peacock Brand." They recognize that the successful introduction of these two lines is a matter of time and diligent work, coupled with a satisfactory quality in their goods, but they are very sanguine as to the result. Mr. Bates himself, for the present, at least, will call on the trade, and his forceful, convincing manner and methods cannot do otherwise than win favor for "Peacock" Mincemeat and Cheese.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. S. J. Mathewson, of J. A. Mathewson & Co., wholesale grocers, Montreal, who has been spending the past month with his family at Little Metis, has returned.

Mr. Jos. St. Pierre, grocer, corner Mt. Royal avenue and Montana avenue, Montreal, received the sad intelligence that his only son was killed in the Wabash railway accident. Mr. St. Pierre, jr., was on his way to visit the World's Fair at St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. St. Pierre have the sincere sympathy of their many friends in the sad loss that so suddenly overtook them.

MacCrea Bros., Richmond, P.Q., have bought the block on the corner next to their store. They are re-building and re-fitting the entire building, and when completed will have one of the finest stores in the Eastern Townships.

Mr. J. B. Berthiaume's new store on the corner of Park avenue and Prince Arthur streets, Montreal, is well under way, and will be a magnificent grocery, complete in every respect.

Mr. F. J. Verril, Melbourne, P. Q., is making great improvements in his store, all tending to better facilities.

Mr. Geo. Box, Westmount, expresses himself as highly pleased with The Canadian Grocer. Mr. Box has a fine family trade in Montreal's famous suburb, and keeps thoroughly in touch with the wants of his patrons.

Mr. W. H. O'Hara, grocer, corner Prince Arthur and City Hall avenues, Montreal, has recently joined the benedicts, and is taking a trip to New York and the Eastern States.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Buyers of dark grocery sugar should communicate with H. P. Eckardt & Co.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling apricots at low prices.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, June 29, 1904.

THE grocery and provision trade has been sadly interfered with because of the depression in the lumber industry, and the consequent reduction in circulating money. The logging camps are a great supply for stores, but this part of the business is about the worst off of all, and the independent loggers are now petitioning the local Legislature for an annulment of the order prohibiting export, if only for a few months. If this is granted, logs may be disposed of in the United States, and there will be plenty of money to back up scores which have remained on books since some of the loggers went into bankruptcy, a year or so ago.

Summer business is now well on. Local strawberries are down to a low figure; local cherries are on the market, and the first shipments of peaches and pears have arrived from California. Extremely warm weather during the past week has made fruit move rapidly, particularly bananas. A couple of carloads obtained on Monday went fast, and to-morrow, with thousands in the city for the Dominion Day celebration, bananas are going to be scarce. More are expected to-day, but not enough to make them easy. Big Burnaby strawberries are going at from $1.50 to $1.75 a crate, and those from Hammond and Haney at $1 and $1.50. Local cherries from 50c to 75c for a 10-lb. box. The first peaches from the Newcastle district in California are $1.75; plums, $1.75 to $2.25, and apricots, $1.50 to $1.65.

The opening of navigation on the Yukon River was the Waterloo of high prices in perishables in Dawson. The decline in figures is sharp and severe on such an occasion. Eggs immediately before were stiff at the retail price of $1 per dozen, and first dropped to two dozen for $1.25, and are now $13 a case and 50c retail. They think lemons are reasonable at $1.50 a dozen, the figure having been firm at $2 right along.

A strange case of overstocking in the Dawson market of late has been in regard to cigarettes. The stock has been such a drag in the market that one dealer maintained he could buy there and pay the high freight rates back to Vancouver and Seattle, and undersell wholesalers here at a profit. It is asserted he is shipping 180,000 cigarettes at once.

Owing to shortages in the Dawson drug market recently, H. L. Ladd, a dealer there, found it profitable to bring in two tons of miscellaneous drugs and medicines by express.

A sweeping change in the policy of the large Dawson merchants was made when they decided to quit the credit system. They hold that they have been compelled to bear the burden of expense of carrying the investment for big stocks from eight to ten months, and have either to let the investment of their money lie idle until Spring clean up before realizing returns, or else to borrow other money from the banks, with which to purchase Winter stocks. Many accounts are also lost by miners going out.

Dawson is getting to be an important distributing point for Yukon River points below, and particularly on the Tanana. Dealers have made big shipments of furniture, stationery, dry goods, hardware and produce. One produce man shipped $1,800 worth in one day, and another 40 tons of potatoes.

Freight shipments into the Cariboo district are perhaps greater than most people imagine. There are many mines being operated in that portion of the province, which need large supplies. For the week ending June 25, 117,400 lbs. were taken north from Ashcroft by wagon team.

Local eggs are higher this week, having risen from 25 to 30c.

The Moore Preserve Company, of New Westminster, is starting operations with a large staff. The building is over 200 feet long, 65 feet in width, and equipped with an up-to-date plant. It will prove a boon to local fruit growers.

Farmers in and around Nanaimo are co-operating to form a market in which to dispose of their produce, and are being assisted by Dawson merchants. House to house visitations of Chinese growers of produce interfere with trade, and a market will in a measure put a stop to it.

Frederic Klevenhusen, jr., of Bremen, Germany, is in Vancouver, and has just come down from up the coast, where he made contracts for the supply of large quantities of pickled salmon from the Skeena and Naas River canneries. His firm is one of the largest in the world dealing in this line.

Special commodity rates to Dawson over the White Pass and Yukon route come into effect July 1, and for the accommodation of shippers the C.P.R. steamer Princess May is being held over. The reduction in rates will be considerable.

Canneries on the northern coast have not yet begun operations, but should soon start. Sockeyes have commenced to come in in small numbers.

The first fish trap in Canadian waters has proved quite a success, and the owners, C. F. Todd & Co., of Victoria, are well satisfied. The point is, they get first chance at the fish before they go to American waters, where they are taken indiscriminately and in great numbers.

Professor Shutt, of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, is now making a tour of the province, in company with J. R. Anderson, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. He is studying physical conditions of the soil, and giving lectures to farmers. They have already come in contact with the tent caterpillar, which is doing some damage this year, and the weevil, which destroys strawberry plants. The work of this latter destructive insect this season has been considerable.

One thousand tons of raw sugar from Peru is expected here for the refinery this week. Most of the raw material comes from Java.

Growing of tobacco has been begun at Kelowna. The product is said to be equal to the best imported Havana, and the industry will likely be one of considerable importance in the near future. Winnipeg people are interested in the project.

The provincial inspector of the Board of Horticulture fumigated 12,350 trees this week. This nursery stock comprised fruit trees and ornamentals, and was re-shipped to the Okanagan district. There were also a large number of peach stones, from which seedlings will be produced.

The effects of the discriminatory rates of the C. P. R. are being felt at Sandon. A few days ago one of the merchants there received a consignment of sugar bought under the old rate, and shipped under the new. The increase on sugar is 23c per hundred from Revelstoke to Sandon, and as a result the shipment was refused.

Interior lumber manufacturers are also beginning to feel the effects of the dumping of American poor grade lumber into the Northwest Territories. They enjoy a cheaper rate than coast mill men, but conditions are hard to contend with. It will have a serious effect on trade.

The B. C. Plate Glass & Importing Co., with a capital of $25.000, has been incorporated to take over the business of the B. C. Plate Glass & Importing Company, of Vancouver.

R. M. Palmer, freight rates commissioner of the Provincial Government, has returned from Chilliwack, and reports an exceptionally heavy crop of hay. Apples are a little better than last year, and plums and prunes are light, the latter being the case all along the coast. The Hurst Brothers, of San Francisco, have leased the Dunnville holdings and are growing hops. They also have yards at Agassiz.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., July 2, 1904.

BUSINESS has again been interrupted during the past week owing to the holiday, which, with the previous week's celebration, has considerably interfered with a business naturally rather quiet at this season. There is also considerable complaint on the part of some of the merchants, in the way in which out-standing paper is being met. The tourist trade, from which we expected good results at this season, is somewhat delayed owing to the cold weather, but we are expecting this will be made up to us in July and August. Those who come are chiefly Americans. We wish more of our western Canadian friends would visit us, not only that we might become better acquainted, but that they might see the facilities which we have here for Winter export and import business. In our effort to make St. John the Winter port of Canada we feel we have not had the support of the importers in Ontario we had a right to expect. In the export business more depends on the railways, but in the import business the merchants themselves have perhaps more to say, and we are convinced if they would come and see us, and learn of the situation as it is, they would see to it that all their goods came via Canadian ports. We feel the Government would be but doing justice to itself, as well as to us, if the preference allowed on English imports was only allowed when goods were imported through a Canadian port.

In markets there is little of interest, owing to the light trade. Perhaps that which causes most comment is the high price quoted on new salmon. The sale during the past year has not been as large as in some previous seasons, and buyers feel that increased prices will be still further restricted. In spice, the low price of ginger is still maintained, and the market seems easy. In fact in all lines the tendency seems to rather lower prices. Cloves, however, maintain their high position. This is, of course, a quiet season in these lines. In rice the market is firm, but there has been little change. Our dealers are holding quite large stocks. There is little demand here except for Rangoon rice, although with the increased number of Chinamen the demand for Patna has grown somewhat. In cream of tartar, of which large quantities are imported into our market, prices have been well maintained. Our larger importers are finding it somewhat difficult to keep supplied, exporters not filling full orders.

Oil.

Dealers advise this to be a quiet season. There has been no change in price of burning oil since the reduction owing to the change of duty. This lower price has somewhat stimulated booking of business for Fall, and a rather larger quantity than usual up to the present has been sold. In paint oils, while there has been no change in the local market, linseed tends higher. Ruliog prices have, of course, been exceptionally low. In turpentine it is just the opposite; values have ruled high, and there is an easier feeling. In lubricating oils there is practically no change. Some small lots of fish oil have arrived, but there are few buyers. There is a little old oil held here, and, being bought at higher prices than now rule, holders are anxious to work it off. While it is not thought the price will keep down as low as a few years ago, it is expected it will be well below last year's figures.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt, the cargo mentioned last week is not yet to hand, but is daily expected. The demand is not as good as usual at this season, but there is no tendency to lower figures. Dealers have fair stocks, and at present we have no word of any shipments afloat other than the one referred to. In fine salt the principal sale is for Canadian, and at present butter and cheese salt sold in barrels has active demand.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are busy. In bananas there are now ample supplies, and prices are rather lower, although first-class stock shows little change. Owing to goods ripening more quickly, however, dealers find it to their advantage at times to shade their prices. In lemons low prices continue; there is only a fair sale. In oranges there is a steady movement, sorrentos being chiefly sold. Some nice California fruit is now being received. Valencias are practically out of the market. In pines prices are a little higher. There is just a fair sale reported. Some few melons have been received, but the weather is rather cold for active business. This is never a large market; prices so far are quite high. Tomatoes continue to command full figures. It is, of course, too early for active business. Cucumbers are cheaper. There are fair supplies of rhubarb received, and prices are still maintained. This is particularly good value, however, at present figures. In berries we are now getting native stock. So far the quality is but fair, and prices quite high. It is expected, however, there will be quite a falling off in price within a few days.

Dried Fruits.

In this line such interest as there is, is in futures. Dealers, however, are rather backward, for few orders are given in this market for any line at open prices, and are less from year to year. There are, however, a few orders going forward for first shipment of valencias. This style of raisin, however, is being less used every year. In peels, orders are being given for Fall. Prices in orange and lemon rule about as last year. Citron is higher. The latter is used very much more largely than the others. California prunes are quoted at very low prices, but dealers are only taking hold slowly, feeling there is no hurry. In apricots and peaches our trade buy very lightly. In spot raisins and prunes the market is well supplied and prices are low. The fact that holders have lost money on stocks is one reason why they are slow in placing orders for futures. New dates are quoted at about as low as last year. Prices rule very low. Figs show little change from last year's figures. In onions there continues to be a fair demand. Some very nice stock has lately been received, a shipment coming here from Montreal showing perhaps the best quality of any Egyptians coming here this year. In evaporated apples there is but light business, and prices are quite firm.

Canned Goods.

Dealers are still anxiously waiting prices on new goods, and are expecting them daily. The chief interest during the past week has centered around new salmon. The opening prices are not only higher than last year, but are guaranteed against decline for the balance of 1904. Several lots of old salmon are offered at rather under the price asked for new. It is expected the high price will cause an increased sale for the cheaper grades. For some years practically no sockeye fish have been sold in St. John, the large demand being for springs. Several of our dealers are holding fair stocks, and so anticipate good profit. In spot vegetables, full prices are being obtained. There is a good steady sale. In fruits, particularly strawberries and peaches, prices are firmer, and rather higher prices are looked for, as the pack this season is expected to be small. In blueberries small stocks are still held, and dealers are getting full prices. Canned meats are selling freely. Values are unchanged. Gallon apples are having but fair demand. Dealers are carrying quite full stocks, and so new goods are not selling freely, although prices quoted are low. In domestic fish, new clams are now in stock. The pack this year was light, so prices are held very firm. There is increased demand from year to year for this line. New haddies are now freely offered. There is a fair average pack. In scallops, the pack is not large. There is but a fair demand for this line. New sardines will come practically on a bare market. Stocks of kippers are practically exhausted, and prices are very firm. It is still early for new goods.

Sugar.

Dealers continue to hold large stocks. While prices are still low, the market is very firm. This is the season of large demand. There is a fair stock of foreign sugar here, and to arrive. There is no doubt it is this which keeps the price at the present low figure. Demand is nearly altogether for granulated.

Molasses.

There continues good steady demand. Quite a large stock of new Porto Rico is now here. Prices are held firm. A direct cargo of Barbadoes was received this week. The price of this line is quite low, but the market is reported very firm. The quality of stock received is running very satisfactory. A large number of St. John dealers have formed what might be called an importing company, through which it is expected not only to secure their stock of molasses at the lowest possible figure by buying in large blocks, but also by arranging selling price to insure fair profit.

Fish.

The chief interest still centres in fresh salmon. Receipts from the north shore are light. The harbor catch has been a fair average and quite profitable, as good prices have been maintained. Quite a quantity have been received from Nova Scotia. The market is governed by Boston prices, shipments to that point being large from here. There is always a very heavy demand for the 4th of July, and so our exporters are making every effort to get stocks forward for that time. A few very nice shad are offered. Pickled shad, which at one time were quite an important factor here, are now almost out of the market, owing to the very light catch. In dry fish new goods are now received in light quantities, and prices are rather easier, but still rule quite high. In smoked herring stock is very light, and full prices are asked. A few new pickled herring have been received, but stock is light, and prices high; there is but a fair demand. In boneless fish trade at this season is not large.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

This is a rather quiet line at this season. Prices are quite firmly held in flour. Buyers are rather inclined to carry light stocks. In feed just a fair amount is offering, but there is little sale. Oats are quite low, and not many are required. Oatmeal is still held at the high figures. Manufacturers of cereal foods are making increased efforts looking toward increased sales. In order to keep abreast with the cereal food business, the retail grocer must carry many lines. It is not, however, yet as bad here as on the other side of the line. Cornmeal has a fair sale. As reported last week, some western Canadian meal is offered, and full prices are asked. In beans there is very light sale; prices are easy. Barley and split peas are a light stock.

ANNUAL REVIEW OF TEA TRADE.

THE Grocer is indebted to W., J. and H. Thompson, brokers, London, Eng., for the following review of the world's tea trade for the year 1903 :

The year now concluded cannot be said to have presented any novel features either in the quality of teas produced or any sensational changes in the general statistical position. During the period under review neither in India or Ceylon has any material alteration been made in methods of manufacture, nor have any sudden variations in the value of their produce taken place. It is rather to the future and to influences from without that we must look to furnish us with events from which we may deduce inferences as to the general trend of markets.

The Indian crop in the main has been only a medium one, as neither in the hill country nor in the lower lying districts have those climatic influences existed which tend to raise the average—in Darjeeling particularly the character of invoices was distinctly below the usual standard—and the outturn for the year may be said to have furnished a crop suited perhaps to the requirements of the year, but one which raised the profits of those gardens making common tea without a corresponding benefit to those capable of producing the finer kinds, though the satisfactory prices realized for the small quantity of really good liquoring tea that was manufactured are sufficient to prove that the demand for the best qualities shows no signs of diminution. The crop, large as it was, fortunately came in a year when the demand for common tea has been paramount and has helped India not only to maintain its position in the supply of the United Kingdom but to increase its proportionate use as compared with its neighbor Ceylon, and also to a great extent to compete with Ceylon in Russian favor. The large increase in Russian shipments from Calcutta—some 6 millions—has come as a surprise, for although China was ousted largely by Ceylon tea, the similarity in character between the two growths made the change more readily intelligible than that Ceylon in turn should yield its place to so great an extent to a country producing teas widely different from that which Russia had been in the habit of using. It may be that in a season when one dead level of quality has been maintained, Russian buyers have turned to the country whose teas have produced the most strength and have therefore shown the better value, but that strength and cheapness should be substituted for flavor is a change in a nation's taste worthy of note. The heavy shipments to the United Kingdom — some 15 millions more than last year—were a cause of grave apprehension in the earlier part of the season, and the principal importers, after much consultation, agreed to restrict the offerings at sale more nearly to the weekly requirements of the trade, taking a proportion of the onus of holding stocks themselves rather than force teas upon unwilling buyers. The increase, however, has been readily absorbed coming on a market bare of supplies of the description, which for reasons mentioned elsewhere, was most desiderated—namely common tea. Stocks in the country have ruled very light—and the hand to mouth policy of wholesale and retail buyers produced such a shortage of supplies that the moment has now been seized to replenish them and visible stocks actually show a decrease on last year.

The same remarks apply in an equal degree to Ceylon. Those climatic periods which lessen supplies have alternated with increased shipments, but the flavor and quality which in some seasons is the result of smaller yields, have been absent to a marked degree. That this has been mainly caused by weather conditions is partly established—but it is also possible that the high quotation ruling for common tea, the knowledge of an abundant yield from India, and the poor prices realized for the better grades may have been factors in determining, to a certain extent, the quality produced. This is hardly to be wondered at for with the knowledge that yield pays it is difficult to curtail it, especially when profits seem likely to be diverted thereby into another branch of the industry. Abroad Ceylon continues its progress, as will be seen from the figures below, nearly all countries taking more of her produce—but as regards the United Kingdom the last few years have shown a retrograde movement, deliveries for home consumption last year showing a reduction of 7 millions on 1902 and 12 millions on the figures for 1901.

This must not be lost sight of—as long as existing market and duty conditions continue, the shorter the supply the higher the price for common tea, and this however desirable in itself, unfortunately brings in its train a depressed quotation for all grades above common and the profits so made are made at the expense of the rest. It is a wide and difficult problem to solve but we hold that those gardens which can make good teas should still do so and that a reversion to coarser plucking in all properties alike would bring about disastrous results. It is hard that the exigencies of national expenditure and the common cry of cheapness should press so heavily upon many planters—but when conditions at home seem in this respect so adverse, it is reassuring to know that men on the spot upon whom so much depends are endowed with intelligence of a high order and that nothing will be lost by proprietors through lack of energy, industry or skill on the part of those to whom their interests are entrusted abroad.

The market for green tea has experienced in London a widely fluctuating demand—but on the whole a steadier one in Colombo. Shipments of direct origin to America and Canada show an increase of 5½ millions, and ½ million to Europe and Asia. These figures are promising for the future, and with the existing war protracted, a great opportunity may present itself to create more rapidly that expansion which hitherto it has been difficult to achieve, and for the furtherance of which so much money has been expended—the result of beneficent, and on the part of producers of black tea, unselfish, domestic legislation. Progress has been made in cup quality but more markedly in style and appearance—especially in gunpowders, the latest examples of which show far more approximation to the style of China than any previously seen—and it may be said that as close an imitation of the latter country's teas has been arrived at as it is consistent with the different jat and consequent size of leaf existing both in India and Ceylon compared with China. In "facing" the tendency has been to exaggerate the silver hue—and to glaze the leaf—a process which has so slight a foundation in China growths as to be practically non-existent—but on the whole slight criticism only can be passed and the general excellence of the product must be acknowledged. As to the advisability of increasing the quantity from Ceylon or extending the process to gardens of higher elevation, it is difficult to speak—there is still the American Continent to win, and further progress may be made in other countries using greens—but on the other hand the total output of tea from Ceylon has probably reached its maximum, and further supplies of greens can only be made at the expense of the output of black tea which at the moment appears more lucrative—owing to the high price of common and the extra cost of green tea manufacture—and most important of all, the supply of black tea from Ceylon is insufficient to satisfy requirements at home and so enable British grown teas to maintain their position as the successors of China in popular appreciation and consumption. The time has arrived when producers have to elect which course they will adopt—remain co-existent with India as suppliers of the English nation, or whether they are willing to allow China gradually to regain its place—that place from which it has taken 30 years of labor and "push" to dislodge them—and devote their energies more particularly to the development of foreign markets.

An event not immediately connected with the tea industry, but germane to the subject, and which may influence for some time at least not only the commercial routes, but, perhaps, adjust in favor of British products the requirements of the world, is the existing war. What will its effect be upon the trade of the countries in which we are primarily interested? That it has already crippled a port and a route conceived and completed with the express purpose of creating an eastern trade are now matters of history, but what changes may this effect in demand in the future? Russian supplies for some time, as far as our teas are concerned, will probably be drawn from western sources—the Siberian Railway will not have to be reckoned with as long as hostilities continue—and it seems probable that a stimulus will be given to European trade through European channels removed from the dangers actual and sentimental which at present surround direct business with the east. Again, what as to the future of Japan tea? Financial facilities will be curtailed, labor will be more difficult to obtain and it is possible that supplies of Japan tea may be so reduced that an opportunity, not likely to occur again, may be presented to entrench to such an extent upon the 45 millions now shipped to the American Continent as has as yet seemed beyond the limits of possibility.

Another occurrence of far-reaching importance is the recent action of the Government in again raising the duty to 8d per lb., and this may fairly be said to have dwarfed all other questions connected with the trade.

The consumption of British grown tea by foreign and colonial markets is shown in the above table.

The distribution of the Indian crop during the season of 1903-'04 up to May 31 was as follows: To the United Kingdom, 161,250,000 lbs.; to Australia, 7,250,000 lbs.; to America, 10,500,000 lbs.; to Russia, 10,500,000 lbs.; elsewhere, 9,000,000 lbs.; to shipments from other Indian ports, 8,800,000 lbs.; total, 207,300,000 lbs.

The Ceylon crop for the year 1903 was distributed as follows: To the United Kingdom, 97,200,000 lbs.; to Australia, 19,800,000 lbs.; to America, 13,400,000 lbs.; to Russia, 14,000,000 lbs.; elsewhere, 6,600,000 lbs.; total, 151,000,900 lbs.

Shipments from China during the season 1903-'04 were: To the United Kingdom, 20,300,000 lbs.; to America, 56,300,000 lbs.; to Russia, 9,700,000 lbs.; to Australia, 1,600,000 lbs.; elsewhere, 600,000 lbs.; total, 116,000,000 lbs. This is exclusive of tea sent overland to Russia.

Shipments from Japan for 1903 were as follows: Green—to the United States, 22,490,000 lbs.; to British North America, 3,629,000 lbs.; to Hong Kong and Straits Settlements, 192,000 lbs.; elsewhere, 140,000 lbs.; total, 26,151,000 lbs. Uncolored—to the United States, 13,501,000 lbs.; to British North America, 1,162,000 lbs.; to Hong Kong and Straits Settlement, 24,000 lbs.; elsewhere, 208,000 lbs.; total, 14,895,000 lbs. Black—to the United States, 1,002,000 lbs.; to British North America, 6,000 lbs.; to Hong Kong and Straits Settlement, 20,000 lbs.; elsewhere, 29,000 lbs.; total, 1,057,000 lbs. Only 8,000 lbs. of Japan brick tea were sent to Russian Asia last year against 1,699,000 lbs. in 1902. The export of Japan dust amounted to 5,252,000 lbs., against 13,588,000 lbs. the previous year.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE

THE following inquiries relating to Canadian trade have been received by the High Commissioner for Canada, in London, Eng.:

96. A wholesale agent in Edinburgh has asked to be referred to Canadian houses who require the services of an agent (not buying) to introduce or extend their butter trade.

98. A London general, export, import merchant and agent is looking out for Canadian shippers of flour, butter, etc., as he is in a position to dispose of considerable quantities.

99. A gentleman with business connections in South Wales and the west of England is shortly leaving for a trip to Canada, and desires to meet millers and others who might contemplate appointing a representative in England.

100. The owners of extensive cold air stores, who also act as agents for the sale of dairy produce, are anxious to get into touch with large shippers of butter, cheese, bacon, meats, and fruits in Canada.

101. A Parisian house is looking out for agencies for Canadian firms desiring to open up an export business with France.

102. An English firm manufacturing special lines of groceries, such as condensed milk, chocolate, cocoa and coffee, combined with milk and sugar, etc., are seeking to find openings in Canada for these goods.

103. An agent in Porte, Portugal, is desirous of establishing relations with Canadian shippers with a view to taking up their representation.

The following inquiries relating to Canadian trade have been received from Birmingham, Eng.:

53. A Birmingham firm is in a position to place casein on the British market.

55. A Birmingham firm wishes to be put in touch with a firm in Canada who can ship about 1,000 boxes of butter per week.

56. A Birmingham firm would like to be put in touch with a Canadian shipper of cheese.

60. A firm in the Midlands who has already contracted for 4,000 boxes of Canadian butter is prepared to make another contract for the same quantity with a first-class shipper in Canada.

62. A firm in a position to handle apples would like to get in touch with firms who can ship large quantities.

The names of the firms making these inquiries, with their addresses, may be obtained from the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. Persons desiring such addresses will be careful to quote the office under which the inquiry appears and the number.

MOLASSES INTERESTING.

A SLIGHT stir has taken place in the molasses market. The speculators call it a bullish market. As quoted in The Grocer of last week, 26c was the price current, but it was not then anticipated that such large quantities would change hands at that price. Various rumors were in the air which hinted at a corner in the market. From the information available from the islands, there is every reason to believe that something akin to a corner has taken place. On the inside of the Montreal trade it is known that immense quantities have been bought up by large firms, and portions of these cargoes have been sold by contract at prices covering the duty, which was erased after the budget announcements. In addition to this, holders of molasses are determined not to lose money on this product, which has been permitted to sag, owing to the neglect of operators to properly rig the market. There is a comfort in the fact that some of the largest holders are firms who are above criticism in the commercial world, and their customers may be sure of generous treatment. In case the suggestion of a corner should be cast upon any one firm, it might be well to mention that as far as can be learned, no Montreal house is responsible for the alleged corner. The crop of Barbadoes molasses was originally reported to have been 45,000 puncheons. Of this, 25,000 puncheons have been sold. The other 20,000 are somewhere in the market, and are evidently out of sight for speculative purposes.

RETAIL GROCERS' OUTING.

The Retail Grocer Clerks' Association of Montreal held their annual excursion Sunday, July 3, to Waterloo. The day was fine, the attendance was first-class, and the programme carried out was all that could be desired. The band of the 65th Regiment accompanied the excursion. Cool weather was suitable for the carrying out of athletic sports, and the prizes given were among the finest ever shown in the history of the association. Most of Montreal's leading grocers were represented, either by gifts of some kind or by the presence of some member of the firm.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

The Lighting of Show Windows.

ONE of the difficulties that a window trimmer has to contend with is the light and distribution of same in a show window. A window trimmer may spend hours of thought and labor in artistically designing the arrangement of goods in a show window and have the effect spoiled by improper lighting.

There are various schemes in use for lighting windows, most of which are defective in one point or another. In every city there can be found show windows that are lighted by having incandescent lamps arranged at the top, bottom and sides of the window. This plan makes a most brilliant light, and if the merchant was in the business of selling electric lights or incandescent lamps, the scheme would be a good one. If the light is used for the purpose of illuminating the merchandise in the window, the scheme is a bad one, for the reason that a person on the street can see nothing but the incandescent lamp bulbs. The glare is so great that the attention is attracted to the lamps and not to the display of goods. Even if the looker tried to examine the goods he could not do so to advantage on account of the glare, and the goods being in more or less of a shadow.

Another plan commonly in use it to put an electrolier in the show window having two or more lights. This plan not only obstructs the view, but the light cannot be properly reflected on the display of goods. There are various other plans, and all of them are expensive when it is taken into consideration the amount of cost to the amount of light used.

Interior of the retail grocery department in store of Geo. A. Ormon, Dartmouth, N.S.

A show window is for the purpose of displaying goods that the merchant desires to call to the attention of the passer-by. Nothing in the way of a lighting device should be used that attracts the attention from the display, and therefore the problem presents itself of putting in the light arrangement so it is not conspicuous, but at the same time is economical in the point of electric current used and the proper reflection of the light.

The method adopted in large cities by successful merchants is to place at the top of the window near the glass front a window reflector which can be arranged at different abgles so as to project the light where it is desired on the articles displayed in the window. There are concerns who make a specialty of this class of work and their catalogues can be had and estimates received for the asking.

Considering the matter from an economical standpoint, there is nothing made that will reflect as much light as a mirror. A row of incandescent lamps placed at the top of a window covered with opal glass shades will reflect only about 60 per cent. of the light, while the same row of incandescent lamps, having a mirror reflecting surface, will reflect 92 per cent. of the light. It can easily be seen on this basis that the number of lights can be cut down, a greater light secured and a saving in the electric light bill made. This is a subject worthy of consideration, as it not only affects the pocket of the merchant, but also gives to him an advantage over his competitors in producing a perfectly lighted show window.

For the lighting of the store proper the same argument holds good. Mirror reflectors are made of proper shapes to reflect the greatest amount of light at the least possible cost of expense. Electroliers suspending from the ceiling so the lights hang eight feet from the floor do not produce the results that can be obtained from a mirror reflector hung one or two feet from the ceiling. The incandescent lamps of the electrolier throw the rays of light in all directions, giving a general light on the ceiling as well as on the floor, while a mirror reflector will throw the light down on the counter and on the goods, or just where it is required. The same saving in expense will hold good on a fixture of this kind as on the show window reflector.

This Week's Illustration.

QUITE a well arranged interior is shown in the cut of the store of Geo. A. Ormon, Dartmouth, N. S. The shelves are kept neatly filled with goods and some of the counter is left free. This free space might have been increased with improvement. The plain wood ceiling is almost as effective as metallic sheeting.

The principal idea of merit is the position of the biscuit boxes under the front of the counter. In this way these goods are well advertised, conveniently situated and occupying little space.

HAMILTON BOARD OF TRADE MEETS.

THE fifty-ninth annual meeting of the Hamilton Board of Trade was held on July 4. The attendance was considerably below the average, which led W. Hendrie to suggest that the date of the annual gathering be changed from midsummer to the beginning of February. President H. N. Kittson pointed out that the Legislature would have to be appealed to in order to make a change in the date, but he promised that the council of the board would give the question due consideration. C. A. Birge, who had been elected president by acclamation at the nomination meeting a week ago, declined to accept the position, owing to his business engagements, and Mr. Kittson was prevailed on to retain the office. J. W. Lamoreaux was elected vice-president by acclamation ,and Mr. Charles Stiff was re-elected secretary-treasurer. All the officers were elected without a ballot at the nomination meeting. The following were appoined a Board of Conciliation to act in case a strike is pending in connection with any enterprise in the city: H. N. Kittson (president); G. Sweet, J. Milne, G. Hope, S. Jones, J. W. Ross and W. A. Robinson. The annual report was highly encouraging, especially with regard to local conditions. There was a balance of $105.41 on hand from the receipts, $909.44. W. A. Robinson was reappointed representative on the Art School Board. The question of whether Port Hope or Trenton should be the southern outlet of the Trent Canal was referred to the Transportation Committee. A communication from Vancouver Board of Trade suggesting action among the various boards in Canada to prevent "future serious disturbance in premium rates" being made suddenly, was referred to the insurance committee of the board, which is looking into the matter of fire insurance.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

In vinegar L. Chaput, Fils, & Cie., Montreal, are offering full strength, all grades, to the trade at prices below so-called "strength" goods.

A. Irving, who does the west end of the City of Toronto for the Salada Tea Co., took 61 orders from grocers on Monday, July 4.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, are offering valencia raisins, Pallareis f. o. s., at the snap-shot price of 5c, and delectable clusters at $1.50.

White & Co., Toronto, are receiving daily cars of California peaches, plums, apricots, cherries, etc. They also had their first car Elberta peaches in 4 and 6 basket crates this week.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, are reporting good sales of canned salmon. Although prices for new pack are high, they advise that they have still in stock a good supply of best brands at old figures.

S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, received last week a small shipment of choicest new season Kintuck, this being the first to arrive in this market during the present season. These teas are of exceptionally fine quality.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. R. P. Imrie, one of the best known Montreal exporters, sailed for England this week.

Mr. George Forbes, of Forbes Bros., wholesale grocers, Montreal, is away on a few weeks' vacation.

Mr. F. M. Bond, of Truesdale & Bond, Port Dover, was a visitor at the office of The Canadian Grocer, Toronto, this week.

Mr. Arthur P. Tippet is enjoying a well earned holiday at Little Metis, Quebec, where he will remain for two or three weeks.

Mr. Edmund Littler, St. John, N. B., Canadian representative of the Walter M. Lowney Co., Boston, was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer this week.

Mr. Arch. Snowdon, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, is in the Maritime Provinces in the interests of Rowat's pickles, "Bee" starch, and his firm's other specialties.

Mr. Joseph Hudon, senior partner of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, who, with his family, has been touring Europe during the past nine months, has returned to Montreal.

Mr. Henry Wright, Toronto, whose name is well known to the grocery trade of Canada in connection with MacLaren's Imperial Cheese, has gone to Jackson's Point for a month's holiday.

J. W. Willcox, general merchant, Alameda, N. W. T., is retiring from business and moving to California. Mr. Willcox writes concerning The Grocer that "it is a most valuable publication for grocers or general merchants."

Mr. C. W. Gregory, who has so well introduced "Bee" brand goods to the trade of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, has left for Winnipeg and the Northwest Territories, representing Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal.

A number of Montreal produce firms have expressed interest in the announcement that McArthur & Ewing, 74 Colborne street, Toronto, have recently started in the produce trade. Both members of the firm are well known to Montreal traders.

Mr. W. E. Forbes, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, is at present calling upon the trade in Toronto, Hamilton, London, and the west. "Bee" brand goods and Rowat's pickles are a few of the lines to which Mr. Forbes will pay attention on his tour.

Mr. Chas. Sutherland, the Detroit representative of the Salada Tea Co., was in Montteal this week, accompanied by Mrs. Sutherland, on a pleasure trip, leaving on the steamer Restigouche for St. Johns, Newfoundland. They will return home via Halifax, New York and Boston.

BEET SUGAR COMBINE.

One of the most important steps in the development of the sugar beet industry in Michigan is the formation of a central board of control to more economically operate plants practically owned by the same interests.

The plants now working under agreement are: The Alma Sugar Co., capital $650,000; Saginaw Co., $750,000; Valley Co., $650,000; Bay City Co., $1,000,000; Tawas Co., $750,000; Sebewaing Co., $650,000; Sanitac Co., $800,000; Peninsular Co., $1,000,000; total capitalization, $6,250,000.

TRADE WITH JAMAICA.

The Trade and Commerce Department has received a report from the Canadian commercial agent in Jamaica. It says that the imports of Canadian produce into Trinidad in the year up to March 31 were 119,186 lbs., as compared with 132,962 lbs. for the year previous. For the same period the imports of American produce amounted to 675,769 lbs. The Canadian goods sold in Jamaica amounted to $600,000, as against $4,000,000 from the United States. The Canadian agent is satisfied that with a permanent exhibition of Canadian produce in Kingston the market for Canadian goods will be doubled.

GREEN FRUITS

Canadian Plums for Great Britain.

WRITING to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, B. Ball, Canadian agent in Birmingham, Eng., says there will be a good market in Great Britain this year for apples and plums. The frost has destroyed much of the crop, but the only varieties of fruit that can be supplied from Canadian sources are those mentioned. To ship plums to Great Britain would be a new venture on the part of Canadian fruit growers. Mr. Ball nevertheless believes the business could be carried out with success. California plums are imported by Great Britain in considerable quantities, and there is nothing to prevent the Canadian plums from commanding a high price, more especially in the large varieties.

The agent has many inquiries for apples from agents who wish to handle from 200 to 500 barrels a week. He will give the names of these British firms to Canadian growers who wish to be put in communcation with them. The present price of apples in Great Britain is nine shillings sixpence to twelve shillings sixpence for forty pounds. This is a great difference from the autumn prices. The foreign office of Great Britain has issued a report on cold storage of apples, in which it states that there seems to be no difficulty in keeping them from the Fall till late the next Spring.

Why the California Orange Trust Failed.

THE California Orange Trust, otherwise known as the Southern California Fruit Exchange, has collapsed, and will retire from business on September 1 next. This adds another name to the list of California fruit monopolies that have failed.

The orange combine was organized in March of 1903, and aimed to control the orange situation by marketing the fruit through our agency. For some months the concern has had hard sledding, largely by reason of the hostile criticisms upon its course and the antagonism of outside orange growers. The directors held a meeting a few days ago and decided to disband the organization, to take effect September 1 next. Its official announcement was as follows:

At a meeting of the board of directors of the California Fruit Agency, held May 20, 1904, the following was unanimously adopted:

"As this organization has not received the general approval and earnest support of the growers neeessary to complete and permanent success, we deem it advisable to discontinue business September 1 next, closing the accounts as soon thereafter as possible."

In making the above announcement a word of explanation is in order: The California Fruit Agency was projected in full confidence that it would provide marketing facilities of a better character available to all citrus fruit growers and at less cost to the growers than ever before known. Increased crops and competition made some form of relief imperative, but these very conditions, added to an eastern Winter of hitherto unknown severity, made the complete success of any marketing system impossible.

Tireless efforts of the agency to crop from total ruin, but did not save overcome these troubles saved the agency from criticism.

In deference to the express views of its growers, the California Fruit Agency will discontinue business September 1 next, and thereafter the Southern California Fruit Exchange will resume business, and the California Citrus Union, as a corporation, will become an active marketing factor.

Sentiment among the directors of the agency is unanimous in favor of maintaining the most friendly relations between these two great marketing factors .

Demonstration in Fruit Packing.

It has been announced that the secretary of the Fruit Growers' Association of British Columbia will give practical demonstrations of commercial packing of fruit during the progress of the coming Fall exhibition at Victoria.

Seizure of Fruit.

Two seizures of alleged infected California fruit have taken place at Vancouver within the past fortnight. The first was a shipment of red astrachan apples from San Francisco, which were found to be infected with codling moth. The second defective shipment consisted of apples and peaches.

Fruit Inspector in Toronto.

P. J. Carey, Dominion fruit inspector, who was in Toronto last week, in charge of the enforcement of the Fruit Marks Act, has reported several cases of violations in the packing of Canadian strawberries. In crates, holding from twenty to sixty boxes the top tier of boxes contain fruit of fine quality, but that in boxes further down is quite inferior, and in one case absolute trash was found. There have also been many complaints this season against the pack of American strawberries that have been placed on this market. The inspector says Canadian law cannot reach the growers or shippers direct, but the dealers here who have in their possession or offer for sale fruit so packed are liable to a fine and can be prosecuted.

Trip to World's Fair.

White & Co., fruit and commission merchants, Toronto, are offering a free trip to the World's Fair at St. Louis to the person guessing the nearest to the number of bunches of bananas handled by them during a certain week in June. Great interest is being taken in the competition, and White & Co. report that already a large number of guesses have been received.

Manitoba Wants Fruit.

Latest reports from the Canadian west say that the coming demand for first-class fruit, especially apples, in Winnipeg, will be the greatest in the history of the trade. The warning is repeated that inferior fruit is not wanted at any price; only the best will give remunerative returns.

Pineapple in Glass.

Grocers have long been familiar with preserved pineapple packed in tin, but glass is a new package for this fruit. So far as we know, the sole users of glass jars for preserved pineapple are the McGregor-Harris Co., Toronto. It is but another evidence of this firm's progressive methods. Apart from the novelty of the package, there is the excellence of the contents to recommend this condiment to both grocer and consumer. The true flavor of the fruit is faithfully retained. As to purity, the name "McGregor" on the label is a sufficient guarantee. This new line will doubtless have a prompt call from the grocery trade.

SEND IN YOUR GUESS.

Grain Situation.

WITH the crop season in Ontario steadily advancing it is satisfactory to learn of no injurious factors entering into the situation. The late, wet Spring has been partially remedied by eminently desirable crop weather since, and from many sections of the province hopes run high for a good yield. The first note of discord has been heard the last few days, and some complaints are heard of the ill-effects of the cool nights, and a want of moisture at some points. Spring crops have now reached a stage where growth cannot be retarded without injury in the ultimate result. Warm days with moderate scattered rains are more desired to insure a uniform and healthy development, and the next few weeks are of prime importance in estimating the outcome. Improvement in Winter wheat since the early Spring has been made at some points, but the first estimates of this crop are not materially changed. The welfare of the Spring crops will be carefully watched during the ensuing month as one of critical moment.

The Canadian Pacific Railway crop report issued June 28 is only a repetition of previous reports, showing that crops throughout the territory in Manitoba and the Northwest covered by the road are progressing favorably, and, from present indications, a bumper crop will be the reward of the tiller of the soil. At every point weather conditions have been all that could be desired. Along the main line, the Northwestern branch, and the Napinka and Estevan lines, the growth has been marvelous, while in the Northwest Territories the crop is looking exceedingly well, though it is still behind Manitoba in its growth. Warm weather is what is needed, and, with higher temperatures, the outlook could not be improved upon. Farmers, it is said, have gone to the expense of creating granaries, wherein they will be able to store immense quantities of grain, thus placing them in the enviable position of being able to hold their grain until prices suit their convenience. The C. P. R. are also pleased to state that in addition to improving the situation of the farmer, this has eased railway and elevator accommodation.

The tenor of crop reports from the United States up to June 30 differs little from that of the preceding week. East of the Mississippi, an improving tendency is reflected, and the crop is turning out better than was expected early in the season. In limited portions of Western Illinois some damage is reported from rust. In the Western States the excessive rains have been unfavorable for harvesting, and the best development of grain, but the actual damage is believed to be local and generally light. Although the harvest averages fully a week later than normally, it is gradually extending north, and is now about ready in the central part of the Winter wheat section. Mail advices from the Pacific coast indicate that the outlook is not quite as favorable as a month ago.

The general wheat yield in the United States is likely to be much better than was expected two months ago, and it is claimed that the prospects are for nearly as much Winter wheat as last year, when the yield was 400,000,000 bushels. In the American Northwest, if conditions continue favorable until harvest, the promise for the Spring wheat yield is close to 300,000,000 bushels. This, if harvested, would make up for any loss in the Winter wheat section, and give a total crop of 700,000,000 bushels, although 650,000,000 bushels would probably be nearer what the final Government figures will show at the end of the season.

Broomhall's weekly foreign crop summary is as follows: In the United Kingdom the weather has been favorable, although most of the crop is thin. In France, the wheat prospects are brilliant, and a large yield is expected. Further rains in Germany have relieved the drought. In Southwest Russia some complaints regarding Winter wheat have been received. The wheat situation in Roumania continues unchanged. In North Africa, while the harvest has been hindered by rain, a large yield is expected.

The following figures represent the quantity of wheat afloat to Europe from the North American Continent on July 4, 1904, and July 6, 1903—43,760,000 bushels and 30,480,000 bushels, respectively, a decrease of 2,000,000 bushels for last week.

The world's exports of wheat for last week are as follows: United States and Canada, 1,128,000 bushels; Argentine, 1,128,000 bushels; Australia, 120,000 bushels; Danubian, 200,000 bushels; India, 2,216,000 bushels; Russia, 3,112,000 bushels, or a total of 7,904,000, as against 9,261,000 bushels for the corresponding week last year.

VISIBLE SUPPLY.

	July 5. 1904.	July 6. 1903.	July 7. 1902.
Wheat	14 055,000	15,970,000	19,122,000
Corn	6,277,000	7,218,000	5,912,000
Oats	4,346,000	4,354,000	1,481,000
Rye	816,000	679,000	315,000
Barley	1,223,000	446,000	193,000

Wheat decreased 597,000 bushels during the past week; corn increased 843,000, and oats decreased 431,000. Last year wheat decreased 1,489,000.

The total amount of wheat in sight July 5, consisting of the amount on passage, and the visible supply in Canada and the United States, is 57,815,000 bushels, against 60,412,000 last week, 46,450,000 bushels last year, and 51,762,000 in 1902. The total amount of corn in sight is 19,637,000, against 18,914,000 last week, 24,418,000 last year, and 19,992,000 in 1902.

After studying the crop reports of the Canadian Northwest, and reflecting upon the vast grain-producing areas thereof, the New York Tribune informs its readers in the following eloquent words:

"Canada's wheat crop this year promises to exceed that of 1903 by about 30,000,000 bushels. This is a big increase, and, with no abatement likely in succeeding years, it is easy to be seen what a formidable wheat-producing and exporting competitor the great Canadian Northwest has become and is becoming. It could now, if need were, feed the Mother Country all by itself, leaving the United States out of the question, though it is not likely to be drawn on to that exclusive extent. But the territory stands for one of the greatest grain-producing regions in the whole story of the world, old or new, its edges hardly scratched yet, and it will have its share in determining the course of empire and development as the years and centuries go on, till its background of production is old as Egypt's, and its horn of abundance filled and emptied with an equally continuing regularity."

American Grain Rates Reduced.

A REDUCTION in eastbound grain rates has been agreed upon by the Atlantic coast trunk line railroads, to take effect July 1. The reduction has been made to equalize the rates prevailing on the Canadian lines. The export interests of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, it is claimed in some quarters, will be, thereby, put in a position to compete with the Canadian grain dealers.

Under the new tariff, all grain from Buffalo is placed upon a three-cent basis. This is a reduction of one cent per bushel on wheat and flax, 3-4c per bushel on corn, and 1-2c per bushel on barley. No reduction is made on oats, because the export movement is limited.

A three-cent rate on wheat means that grain can be brought from Chicago and placed alongside ship for four and a-quarter cents, and counting floating elevator charges of 7-8c per bushel net, can be placed on board ship for 5 1-8c.

"The reduction made by the Atlantic coast trunk lines will not affect the Canadian grain trade particularly," says A. McFee, a prominent Montreal grain merchant, "as the rate they quote of 5 1-8c per bushel on board ship is not as cheap as it can be done through the port of Montreal. By the Canadian water route corn can be placed on board ship at the port of Montreal for four cents per bushel, including the floating charges of about one cent per bushel. As for the Canadian railways, they handle very little corn now, most of the shipment being by water. Even so, they can beat the American rate at that. In fact, the Canadian grain men have nothing to fear from the reduced rate."

In connection with the reduced rate it is interesting to note that the Canadian rates for grain have always been kept at about the same figure or a little lower than the American rates. The bottom has not been reached yet, as the Canadian route is the natural grain route, and the cheapest as well, so the American shippers will be obliged to go much lower if they hope to capture any of the trade.

The World's Wheat Crop.

SOME interesting figures, showing the wheat crop of the world during the past three years have recently been published by the United States Department of Agriculture. We extract the following figures for the different countries:

	Bushels—000's omitted.
	1901.	1902.	1903.
North America	850,693	781,120	727 787
South America	87,417	73,412	132,223
Europe	1,492,297	1,773,249	1,796,311
Asia	398,857	380,473	471,390
Africa	43,400	48,000	45,400
Australasia	56,610	43,927	20,445
Total	2,929,274	3,100,181	3,193 536

Despite a decrease, as compared with 1902, in the yields of North America, Africa and Australasia, therefore, the world's wheat crop last year was 93,375,000 bushels greater than in 1902, which is a gain of 20 per cent., compared with the average annual crop for the last twelve years. The following figures show the yields of the principal wheat-producing countries:

	Bushels—000's omitted.
	1901.	1902.	1903.
United States	748,460	670,063	637,822
Canada	90,212	98,654	77,965
Argentina	74,753	53,808	113,923
France	310,938	327,841	365,601
Italy	164,587	136,210	154,450
Hungary	123,936	170,884	151,482
Russia (European)	401,772	560,826	551,942
Russia (Asiatic)	61,149	81,693	104,665
British India	268,110	227,380	294,725
United Kingdom	55,581	60,065	50,320

The yield in the United States and Canada was not so good as in 1902. The aggregate loss for the two countries is 52,930,000 bushels, but this loss is more than counterbalanced by the magnificent yield in Argentina, which amounts to a gain of nearly 112 per cent., while India enjoyed a splendid harvest.

Fortunately for the world's inhabitants, wheat growing is so widely distributed over the globe that a universal failure of the crop is almost impossible.

There seems a probability of Argentina proving a more important source of supply in the future. At present the small population—7.40 per square mile—prevents anything more than a small area being cultivated. Canada has only 1.75 inhabitants per square mile, so that potentially she is immeasurably ahead of Argentina as a future source of wheat supply.—Commercial Intelligence.

Philippine Tobacco Trade.

THE latest summary of commerce of the Philippine Islands gives the following statistics regarding exports of tobacco from 1899 to 1903: The exports of tobacco from the Philippines during these years were as follows: 1899, $1,931,253; 1900, $2,261,232; 1901, $2,631,941; 1902, $1,962,624 and in 1903, $1,946,875.

Of the tobacco output of the islands, the summary says:

"The tobacco exported in five years shows the output of the crude and manufactured article to have been worth nearly eleven million dollars. The sale of leaf has varied but little in amount, most of the average annual value of nearly $900,000 worth going to Spain, a channel previously established by decree of that government whereby the contracting company was compelled to take a certain amount of tobacco from the Philippines each year. Cigars are sold at a very low price, and shipped for the most part to Hong Kong. The price lists of the various manufacturers show a range of from ten dollars to seventy-five dollars silver, per thousand, the ordinary cigar of fair quality bringing about four dollars per hundred, or less than two cents apiece. While the tobacco trade is carried on with from thirty-five to forty different countries, but little of the Philippine leaf and few cigars come to the United States."

During the month of December, 1903, the imports of leaf tobacco into the Philippines amounted to 2,110 pounds valued at $370; for the twelve months ended December, 1903, the imports amounted to 18,227 pounds, valued at $3,808, as compared with an importation during the year 1902 of 9,138 pounds, valued at $2,012. The imports of cigars during December, 1902, valued $89, as compared with a valuation of only $34 worth of imports in December, 1902. For the year 1903 the imports of cigars valued $965, as compared with a valuation of $3,193 of the imports for the year 1902.

In December, 1903, the imports of cigarettes valued $589, while in December, 1902, their valuation only amounting to $189.

The importations of plug tobacco into the islands in December, 1903, amounted to 75 pounds, valued at $28, while in December, 1902, the imports amounted to more than double, being 158 pounds, valued at $35.

The imports of all other kinds of tobacco in December, 1903, valued $1,343.

The total exports of unmanufactured tobacco during the month of December, 1903, was 2,129,696 pounds, with a valuation of $160,418. In December, 1902, the exports were 2,547,392, valued at $129,583. During the year 1903 the exports aggregated 19,249,094 pounds, valued at $954,259.

The exports of cigars to foreign countries during December, 1903, were valued at $87,569, a decrease in the value of the exports in December, 1902, when they were valued at $105,896. For the year 1903 the exports of cigars valued $961,355, while in 1902 the exports valued $988,518.

The exports of cigarettes from the Philippines during December, 1903, were valued at $1,411, as compared with a valuation of $600 for the exports in December, 1902. The valuation of the exports of cigarettes exported during the year 1903 was $22,194, as compared with a valuation of only $9,376 for the exports of cigarettes in the year 1902.

During December, 1903, the exports of all other grades of tobacco was 15,620 pounds, valued at $1,981. The exports for December, 1902, were 6,296 pounds, valued at $933. During the year 1903, the exports amounted to 77,613 pounds, valued at $9,067, as compared with the heavy exportation of 92,088 pounds, with a valuation of $9,564 in the year 1902.

The quantities of the exports of leaf tobacco from the Philippines, together with the values for the year 1893, 1894 and for the calendar years 1899-1903 inclusive are given by the summary as follows: 1893, 23,223,514 pounds, $1,463,853; 1894, 15,474,486 pounds, $702,922; 1899, 14,050,310 pounds, $776,841; 1900, 22,028,546 pounds, $1,033,900; 1901, 17,391,595 pounds, $748,-

Some Grocers have tried a Cigar Department— with disappointing results

BUT—

THEY WENT ABOUT IT THE WRONG WAY

They bought from this maker and from that—from salesmen who carried cigars as a sideline. They got unsalable, unknown, unreturnable goods—and they became disgusted and "sore."

But the grocer who has his account with us CAN'T go wrong. "PEBBLE" (5-Center) and "PHARAOH" (10-Center), are cigars every smoker knows and is glad to get. Then, too, we buy back at the end of three months every unsold cigar—pay invoice price IN CASH.

Tariff Increased in Peru.

For the purpose of deriving a fund for the construction of railroads, the Government of Peru has increased the tariff on tobacco entering that country from the United States, Ecuador, Mexico, Central and South America in variant ratios.

Anti-Cigarette Bill.

THE bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of cigarettes, which the House of Commons at Ottawa has read a second time and passed in committee, is a measure of extraordinary character, says the Montreal Gazette. One clause makes all cigarettes, cigarette papers and wrappers or papers intended as such liable to seizure and forfeiture by the customs officials. Another clause, to be rightly understood, must be produced in full. It reads:

"No person, by himself, or by his clerk, servant, employe or agent, shall, for himself or any one else, directly or indirectly, or upon any pretence, or by any device, manufacture, sell, expose, keep, or offer for sale, or give away any cigarette, cigarette papers, or cigarette wrappers or any substitute for such wrappers, or shall keep or own, or be in any way concerned, engaged or employed in owning or keeping, any cigarettes or cigarette papers or wrappers, or shall authorize or permit any of these things to be done."

This makes it an offence to manufacture, sell, expose or offer for sale or have (1) any cigarette; (2) any cigarette papers or wrappers; or (3) any substitute therefor. There would not be much difficulty in deciding what a cigarette is, though the bill does not define the meaning of the word. There would be trouble, though, in saying what should be regarded as cigarette paper or wrappers, "or any substitute therefor." There might be a dozen different papers used for rolling cigarettes, as for other things, the possession of any of which by a merchant or manufacturer would, under the bill, render him "liable to imprisonment, without the option of a fine, for a term not exceeding one year, and not less than six months." This may be imposed by any justice of the peace, sitting alone, and acting summarily. The Minister of Justice was surely right when he said that the like of such legislation was unknown.

Facts About Cigars.

"NINE men out of ten, when you hand them a cigar, will roll it tenderly between the fingers and smell it knowingly before attempting to smoke it," says an exchange. After puffing on it a minute or two, if you ask his opinion, he will tell you all about the cigar, its make, grade and price, and inform you in a confidential way that he knows all about tobacco, and cigars in particular. In ninety-nine cases out of one hundred his information will be wrong, as only the tobacco expert can quickly judge the intrinsic merits of a cigar, and frequently he will be at fault.

"For commercial purposes all cigars are divided into three grades of tobacco, known as dark, medium and light, but there are forty or fifty shades, which are grouped into five sub-headings.

"The grade of tobacco used in a cigar has nothing whatever to do with its size, and there is practically no limit to the number of sizes. Any cigar manufacturer may bring out a cigar of special size and give it whatever name he pleases. The best known and most frequently used sizes, however, in the cigar trade are the 'conchas,' which are divided into 'bouquet' and 'especial,' 'regalia bouquets' and 'puritanos,' the 'breva' is finished off short at both ends and has an even thickness throughout, except a slight narrowness at the end that is held in the mouth.

"Undoubtedly one of the most popular tobaccos smoked in cigars in North America is the native-grown Cuban tobacco, and the cigar is further improved if it is made in Cuba, particularly in the Province of Havana. For this reason many so-called Havana cigars are in reality cigars made in this country and shipped to the island, whence they are re-shipped here, and the revenue stamp duly pasted on the boxes to deceive the uninitiated.

"Many smokers who prefer a light wrapper enjoy the flavor of the Manila wrapper with the Havana filler. To satisfy this taste the Havana tobacco frequently is wrapped in Connecticut wrapper.

"Inferior grades of cigars frequently are made of doctored tobacco, acid being used to stain the wrappers a light straw color in spots. The best leaf of the tobacco plant is that which grows nearest to the ground, and when the rain splashes mud on the leaf little straw colored spots appear when the tobacco is cured. When these spots are genuine the wrapper will be a good tobacco of its grade, but whether it is acid stain or not only the expert will be able to determine."

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

Tobacco Notes

Two Hamilton tobacconists were fined last week for using chance machines for depositing cigars. In passing judgment, Judge Snider announced that the next dealer convicted of using these machines would be sent to jail.

The American tobacco trust, known as the Universal Tobacco Co., has decided to dissolve. This company is incorporated with a capital of $10,000,000. The company's brands of tobacco will be sold at auction.

J. Cote, wholesale tobacco dealer and importer, and L. Dery, clerk, both of the city of Quebec, are about to engage in business in St. Roch's as dealers in tobaccos, cigarettes, pipes, etc., under the name of "El Sergeant Cigar Store."

The Connecticut Experimental Station, established by the Department of Agriculture of the U. S. Government, reports that after thorough experiments with tobacco grown under shade, the authorities are of the opinion that there is a future for the production of Sumatra leaf in America, when experience in handling the leaf has been gained.

The annual meeting of the Tobacco Association of the United States was announced for July 5 and 6.

Wall Paper

NEW WALL PAPERS.

WITH the beginning of the month of July, travelers for wall paper factories commence their new season. For months the factories have been busy working out and printing new designs, and preparing their books of samples. From the range inspected by The Grocer they can go on the road with the full consciousness that they have this year the best that was ever shown, and that the retailer has very little opening to offer criticisms.

In the new samples there is an attention to purity of color, symmetry of design, suitability of color to design, and to novelties that excels last year's offerings to a very noticeable extent. The innovations, or perhaps rather developments of new ideas, are shown in the crown and panel patterns. These will both be of interest to retailers, since they are of particular merit as to artistic effects, and will be certain to catch the eye of customers. Both have been popular in the United States.

A great use has been made of over patterns of fine thread, and the result is very pleasing. It softens what would be too violent, and relieves the abruptness of a great number of designs. Small embossed patterns are another feature. Particular strength is shown by some in parlor papers, and the quality of design of the 2½c and other cheap papers is raised. Stripes are much shown, and these are carefully worked into various colors contrasting and blending. The number of embossed papers is greater and the expensive pressed papers in imitation leather are shown for the first time by factories.

The general character of design is a combination floral and conventional, the floral very often running in the centre. As a rule more floral are shown. There is a tendency in parlor papers to French effects, and with the suitable delicate shadings introduced these will be sure to take well. Moires are still carried in good quantities, but are not so frequent as last year, save that they are prominent as combinations with other designs. Special attention is being paid to the matching of frieze and side wall.

The newest color is brown. This comes in all shades, and is freely used with good effect. French greys and fawns are also well employed. There is a care in blending colors that is especially apparent in the frieze. Contrasting colors are frequently risked, and self tones are effective features. Gold and silver are plentifully employed.

Stauntons, Limited.

In addition to the regular lines of cheaper papers which this year have exceptionally good patterns, several special lines are shown. The burlap effects are new, and with their peculiar mottled appearance will be attractive. Oriental designs are prominent, and are well worked out in the colors. A fine over-thread pattern in black or gold is one of the features. Tapestries are strong. There are beautiful things shown in crown and panel effects, as well as in upper third papers of floral design, with or without the popular trellis.

Remarkable strength is shown in parlor designs, and catchy French designs are effectively worked in. A good range of embossed bronzes, and an attractive over design of floral embossed, is skilfully employed in many papers. Moires are shown in all the delicate colorings.

Brown and yellow are two colors of new effect, and drab is sure to go well. A peculiar pink is one of the exclusive shades, and odd greens and blues are features. The most delicate and careful shading characterizes the friezes. Stripes of color form attractive designs, as well as unexpected combinations of green and red, two contrasting reds, silk and gilt stripes, etc. There are some beautiful climbing rose and floral lattice work designs. A special effect is in the continuation of the stripe effect of the side wall in the frieze.

Dear Sir:

We've just gone to press with a second edition of the new "Cow-brand Recipe Book" and shall be pleased to send you as many more copies as you can use to advantage.

At the rate business is growing we judge we must be doing our part well. Our output this year is way beyond anything in the past, which is another way of spelling "satisfaction".

The best is none too good for the trade we're after. The more we do the more we want to do. Kindly advise us if anything is wanted.

Respectfully,

BRADSTREET'S

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World.
Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker o mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claim as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence Invited.

Just like fishing

Building up trade is just like fishing.

If you use the right kind of bait and cast your line where the kind of fish you want are most plentiful, you'll quite likely get a number of bites.

Then if you go about it right you are pretty sure to land most of them.

Apply the illustration to business.

If you want to catch the grocery trade, cast your line where all the good grocers in Canada congregate every week —looking for bait to build up their businesses with—in THE CANADIAN GROCER. But

Suppose results don't come at fust
What be yew goin' tur dew?
Take out yewr ad, and kick yewrself,
An' go ter feelin' blew?
Uv course yew hain't; yew're goin' tew fish,
An' bait an' bait again;
Bimeby some nibbles 'n bites 'll come,
Then yew'll pull 'em in.

Our Department of Advertising Service is now providing good bait for a number of our advertisers—and stands ready to help a few more in this connection.

THE GOVERNMENT'S TARIFF POLICY

By Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance.

THE wars of the future are more likely to be wars of commerce, notwithstanding the great contest that is going on to-day in the Orient. It is the tariff war that we have most to fear in the future. If other nations will not treat us fairly, then we are obliged in self-defence to adapt our policy to the circumstances.

That does not mean that we should go to extremes. There are some people, well-meaning people, who think that in dealing with our American neighbors we should simply let them fix our tariff. I for one do not admit that we are prepared to take that attitude yet, Mr. Chairman. Then, again, there is the happy medium. High tariffs do not make prosperity. High tariffs have not prevented depression coming on the United States to-day. If we adopt the high tariff there is no more certainty of preventing a depression in Canada than there is by their tariff across the border. I do not think in these things we need to follow the example of our brothers across the border. I think we should map out a policy that will be truly Canadian, that will follow them in anything that is worth while, but a policy that will not follow them when they make mistakes. A moderate tariff is better for all interests than a very high tariff.

Three Reasons for a Moderate Tariff.

First, the general interest of the consumer. The consumer is a factor, and we may as well bear him in mind occasionally. The general interests of the consumer will be satisfied with a moderate tariff, whereas if you make it too high he may kick. And it is not in the interests of manufacturers that you should have a constant war between consumer and manufacturer. The second reason is the development of our northwestern country. There is a vast agricultural region. For the present, and for the immediate future, they are not likely to have any considerable manufacturing interests. They must be wholly an agricultural people. The value of their products is largely fixed by the prices in the markets many thousands of miles away. It is a very debatable question what you can do for the farmer of the Northwest. If he had a high tariff for everything that he has to buy, there is the danger that instead of having that Northwest filled up with a prosperous and contented people agitations might arise that would antagonize the west as against the east and bring about discord where we might as well have harmony. Therefore, I say it is the part of wisdom, while giving a reasonable amount of protection to our manufacturers, to modify that protection so that you do not antagonize the mass of the consumers, and especially that you do not antagonize these new settlers in the west. The third reason is this: You would have a lack of stability that is so necessary in a country.

Mindful of the Manufacturers.

So let me say to the manufacturers of Canada: We believe that the Government give evidence that we are not unmindful of their position. Their position as employers of a large army of men has engaged our attention and evoked our sympathy. We want them to believe that we are as anxious to give them as large advantages as any one can. But we believe, in their own interests, it would not be wise to advocate an excessive tariff. There may be things which ought to be adjusted and changed. When the Tariff Commission comes around and inquires into these things we are willing to listen and make changes and adapt ourselves to the new conditions, just as we did in 1897.

> "New occasions teach new duties,
> Time makes ancient good uncouth.
> He must upward still and onward
> Who would keep abreast of truth."

The Boldest of Fiscal Reforms.

When it was necessary to travel a beaten path we were content to travel it. When it seemed necessary that we should strike out for ourselves and leave the beaten paths, we did not hesitate to do it. Canada has led the way in some of the boldest fiscal reforms in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. As an instance of that we have the preferential tariff. For many years the desirability of preferential trade between the mother country and her colonies had been talked about in conference, and in the House and in the press. And, while there was a general feeling that the thing was very desirable, it never got any further. Conferences met and exchanged resolutions with the mother country, and in a year or two held other meetings with the same result. Because why? The demand for preferential trade by the colonies was based upon a condition which at that time was not possible of compliance. It was demanded that as the first step the mother country should place a preferential duty on food products. It would have been a very good thing for Canada, but at that day you might as well have asked the British public for the moon as ask for that. Our view of the matter was that we had better grant a preferential tariff to Great Britain and await results. We decided to grant a preferential tariff. I venture to say that no movement has had as wide an effect throughout the Empire as that tariff. Materially Canada gained something from the preferential tariff, but Canada gained immensely, too, in sentiment. Materially and sentimentally I believe that tariff was a good thing for Canada and for the Empire. As Kipling said:

> "Carry the news to my sisters,
> The queens in the east and the south.
> I have proved faith in the heritage
> By more than the word of mouth
> They that are wise may follow
> When the world's war trumpet blows,
> But I—I am first in the battle,
> Says Our Lady of the Snows."

The Preferential Tariff.

After the lapse of years in playing the game the other way it was necessary to make a change; it was necessary that somebody should lead, and the Canadian Government led the way. And it has not been without results. We gave the preferential tariff to Great Britain. We gave it "free gratis, for nothing," as they say in the British West Indies. And there we completed a part in the great Imperial game. The West Indies were in trouble, and this laid the foundation of better relations between Canada and the British colonies to the south, and in the years to come we will reap a reward for having cast our bread upon the waters. New Zealand has followed Canada, and given us a preferential tariff. This week we have the information that what was projected some time ago has now been consummated. The great colonies of South Africa have since the first day of July admitted the products of Canada to their markets on terms of preferential trade. See what has happened in the mother country. I said that when we in 1897 took up that question, it would have been absurd to demand of Great Britain that she should then put a tax upon her food products for our benefits. But the effect of the example of Canada and the discussion that has taken place in the various colonies, the general feeling regarding preferential trade throughout the Empire, has proved so great that that very distinguished public man, Mr. Chamberlain, has taken it up. I say, and I have said it in Parliament, that since that question has become one of party strife in the mother country it is not for us to interfere. We in Canada are free to say what we think is good for Canada. We are free to say what we think may be of some good to the Empire, but if our English brothers do not want to adopt it, it would not be seemly for us to go over there begging them to put a tax on their food products. If it does not develop to-day it will develop in the early future. Every step that has been taken in Australia, New Zealand and the mother country has had its origin in the fact that in 1897 Canada led the way. And then there came a time when we thought we should strike out again. One of the greatest nations of the earth took the liberty of thinking that it could deal with Canada just as it pleased—the great nation of Germany. We had given a preferential tariff to the mother country. We were willing to trade with our German brother on favored-nation terms. We were willing to give him everything that we were willing to give to any other person outside of the British Empire, but he demanded admission into the family circle and that we should give him the same tariff treatment as we gave to our mother country, and when we refused to do that he penalized our trade.

In regard to the dumping process, we have provided a remedy which we believe will be practicable. I have no doubt my friend, Mr. Paterson, will have a good deal of trouble in administering it, but that is what we have him at Ottawa for, and I have no doubt he will be able to deal with it and make it the effective instrument which we desire. And if the instrument proves that it is not strong enough, that there is anything defective in it, we will make it good.

MORE ON THE NEW TARIFF.

OWING to the fact that the following clause in Mr. Fielding's new tariff regulations has been open to ambiguity of interpretation, namely, "tableware of porcelain, china, or other clay," all of which it was intended should enjoy the benefit of the additional English preference of 5 per cent., making the duty 15, whereas formerly it was 20 per cent., the Dominion Government authorities have inserted the word "white," so that the clause now reads: "Tableware of china, porcelain, or other white clay."

E. W. Klotz, Manufacturers' Agent, Toronto,

when questioned by The Grocer as to his opinion of the above change, said: "It is at least more specific than the original wording. For instance, it shuts out majolica ware and Rockingham and cane ware, as I believe it was the intention of the Government to do in the first place. The reason for this is that such ware is being manufactured extensively in Canada in potteries situated at Hamilton, Belleville and Brantford. If the clause is interpreted strictly, vases, jardinieres, etc., will be subject to the regular duty, and yet they come generally under the heading, "tableware." The difficulty is this: A small fern pot will be classed as tableware; the jardiniere will not; but where is the line to be drawn? As a matter of fact, the appraisers at the Toronto Customs House have ruled against jardinieres within the week."

J. S. McMahon, of McMahon, Broadfield & Co., Toronto, was of the opinion that instead of bettering matters, the Government had only increased the difficulty by the new wording. When asked whether there were many staple articles in china, clay, etc., of English make not manufactured in Canada, which would not come under the head of "tableware of china, portelain or other white clay," Mr. McMahon remarked that the list was a long one. Moreover, such articles were imported by Canada in considerable quantities, and should benefit by the preference.

New Ideas in China, Crockery and Glassware

THE present season is a time of great activity in china, crockery and glassware circles. Travelers are now about to start on their Fall trips, the most important, so far as results go, during the year, and all departments of the trade are busily engaged in looking after their requirements. A few years ago this time was the great starting point for the fancy goods trade of the year, and all fancy goods lines were taken out for Fall trade on this trip. Keener competition, however, and the race to secure first place, introduced in this line a samples of which are now taken out during the first months of the year. This branch has attained large growth within the past couple of seasons. Many merchants at first objected to the arbitrary assortment rendered necessary in buying the "package," but the feature which led to its almost general adoption was the fact that by means of it the retailer secures complete control of the decoration contained in the package. The leading houses carry a number of different assortments, each of which is sold only once in a town, thus confining the sale of the particular design to one merchant. This course would hardly have been practicable when regular fancy goods were sold from open stock in any quantity desired, but as the package lines are only sold in assortments, the buyer is sure of having a line for himself. These packages are made up of all grades and styles of decorations and as they are not too large, and the assortments are made up of the best-selling lines and quantities that the experience of able buyers can suggest, they are more and more taking the fancy of up-to-date buyers.

Many of the trade remember their early experience with the "Catch" package, made up for new buyers by too eager salesmen, in which the first few and best known articles were marked at very low figures, the difference being added to the other articles in the package, with the result that the first were sold out quickly, leaving the others on the merchant's hands. To this short-sighted policy, which early met its deserved fate, most of the objection to china packages is due, but it is a fact that the leading houses, through their travelers, find that the assortments sold last year have all been closed out in a remarkably even manner. The new lines shown in the assortments of fancy china range from the lowest priced article, to be retailed for 10 or 15c each, to the finest pieces for jewelers' trade. They are adapted for all kinds of trade, from the bargain counter through the range of grocery and general store trade, to the most exclusive lines, and should be seen by every merchant handling any quantity of the line.

Latest Designs.

The moderate priced lines include the popular figure designs in both heads and groups, which are shown with the rich cobalt blue, as well as maroon, and green borders, the central designs being new and bright colored sketches after Watteau effects. Another popular line shown by a leading house, and known as "Mother-of-Pearl" assortment, has the entire surface of the ware decorated with a shining irridescent effect, after the style suggested by the name, against which the floral painted decoration makes a beautiful effect. There are also cheaper lines in maroon and Russian green shadings, the shading being applied at three points instead of all around the edge; some floral decorations have heavy splashed gold edges, and there is a wonderfully popular line which has an irregular edging of lustre pink surrounding a cream-tinted body, against which the decoration shows up splendidly. In the better lines, dark green bodies with painted decoration of large crimson American Beauty roses are very popular. Some of the other assortments contain pieces in which the gold tracing shows up beautifully. All these lines, as well as the new shipments of open stock goods, will be carried by the travelers on this trip, the last-named making up no insignificant line, to which may be added the samples of lamps, cut glass, new glassware, and the various other lines shown by the crockery houses.

Newest design in shading.

DOES IT PAY TO HANDLE CROCKERY ?

THE GROCER reproduces in this week's issue a number of interviews with Canadian grocers who have handled crockery with success.

Mr. N. E. Coppin, grocer, of Mitchell, Ont., says: "I have been handling crockery and glassware since I got into my new store here about a year and a half ago. It is a line I could not afford to dispense with.

"In the first place there is a good profit in crockery. Of course sets of crockery are not sold every day in a place of this size, but it is a line that always interests female customers, and therefore a good crockery display is a first-class drawing card. In my experience the best line of crockery to handle is the stock pattern. The reason is that customers will often spend a dollar at a time in buying sets of crockery, and if they buy the stock pattern they can always depend on being able to complete the set when they are able to afford the money.

"In the second place crockery helps to make the store attractive. It gives it a bright, pleasing appearance. It is not necessary to put a lot of money into it as a few hundred dollars invested in crockery will make an imposing display.

"I have also found glassware a fairly good line to handle, especially in connection with the hotel trade."

J. W. Irwin, grocer, Clinton, Ont., says: "I have been handling crockery as a side line for 34 years. In a small town like this I find it necessary to carry some side line, and the choice is limited. Some grocers handle boots and shoes, but I do not think that line offers half the advantages that crockery does.

"To handle crockery successfully one must have a good assortment and display it to the best advantage. The stock pattern is a very useful line to carry, but the most profitable department of the business is the dinner, tea and toilet sets. It is also necessary to keep a good assortment of fancy china all the year round for weddings, etc.

"I find that the most profitable way is to be in a position to buy direct from the manufacturer. That gives me a larger margin of profit. Of course I have to buy in bigger quantities, but it enables me to make a good display. If a man buys with good taste and judgment he need never have any bad stock. The same can be said about lamps and fancy chinaware. It pays to carry a good assortment of lamps.

"Christmas is the best time in the crockery trade, and I make a big feature then of the newest designs and latest patterns. I advertise it well and have people coming from all directions to see my display. If crockery is properly displayed it greatly enhances the appearance of a store, and is a first-class drawing card."

R. Edmonds, grocer, Simcoe:

"I have been handling crockery for ten years now, and have found it a good line. The question as to whether crockery is profitable to handle depends on (1) the way you buy it; (2) the space you have for exhibiting it, and (3) the amount of time you have to devote to it.

"In the first place, I always buy the best goods I can, and keep a full stock of well assorted china, fancy as well as staples.

"It is necessary to have plenty of space for display, in fact you cannot have too much space. I find it a good plan to have the crockery classified on different tables according to price. This enables one to show a good assortment at each price. Hundreds of dollars worth of goods are bought by people just from seeing the price. This plan is also a great convenience to the storekeeper, as it saves much time in looking for a certain priced article that may be asked for.

"Considerable time and attention are required to make an effective display of crockery, and keep it in good shape. My experience, however, is that all the time and attention bestowed on it is well repaid. If you once get a reputation for handling crockery you will have people coming from far and near to see it. I sell dinner sets to people who come as far as 20 miles north, east and west of Simcoe.

"Although stock patterns are a necessity, the best money comes from handling higher grade crockery. It requires considerable taste and judgment to select patterns likely to please the public taste, but if a man possesses these he need never fear having an accumulation of dead stock. I find the color that takes best is green, in its different shades. This might not be the most suitable for every section, but here it certainly is the favorite.

"A good display of crockery adds much to the appearance of a store, and not only sells itself but helps to sell groceries. My motto is to pay cash and take discounts, mark as close as possible on cost price, and deal honestly and truthfully with the people, thereby getting their confidence and goodwill. I have found it a good principle to be courteous to all people, whether they are buyers or simply visitors. If the latter, they go away with a good impression and are sure to come back when they want something."

T. Guay, grocer, Queen street west, Toronto, says:

"For five years I handled china, crockery, etc., with great success in my grocery store. There is no question but this department of trade can be carried on with profit by grocers in the villages and towns throughout Canada, provided only they are sufficiently far away from a departmental store. It was this that spoiled my city trade, not that such concerns sell more cheaply, but they carry so many other lines, and advertise bargains all along the line, which is the bait to catch the consumer every time."

Mr. Guay says he has had no special method of following up the crockery trade. His only plan has been to stock a reasonably full supply of the newest goods on the market, of a selection likely to suit his customers, with nothing ranging above an average price. In the next place care has to be taken in the matter of display. Above all things the stock must be kept clean and this is sometimes a difficult proposition in a grocery store. Mixing must be avoided at all risks, toilet sets having one place to themselves, and china cups and saucers another.

Stock patterns pay well, and it is wise always to stock such staples as the gilt band and clover leaf patterns, but always along with some of the more attractive novelties. Crockery in the old brown style has also been a good seller, for instance, brown tea pots, bowls, etc. The line that has paid him best of all, however, is toilet sets, of which he has made a specialty.

With regard to the question whether the success of a crockery department lies in the profit to be made out of it directly, or indirectly as a means of attracting trade in groceries, Mr. Guay says he has made a lot of money out of his crockery direct from the very first. During the Christmas season, for instance, his returns from sales of china and crockery have regularly meant more in the aggregate than those from all his other departments put together. No grocer need be afraid of handling crockery.

LAMPS IN THE GROCERY STORE

IT is a generally recognized axiom in business circles that the grocer who wins the largest measure of success, whose business continues to develop year after year, is the one who has paid much attention to the finer points of his business; who has not been content to sell what is easiest to sell, but has striven to win trade in the more difficult channels by selling goods not offered by his rivals.

No. 1.—An inexpensive Decorative Lamp.

To the grocer is offered many opportunities for expansion. Take lamps, for instance; it goes almost without saying that most grocers handle lamps, although their stock as a rule consists of the ordinary cheap glass lamp is everyday use. They have found, moreover, that a stock of lamps will bring in most satisfactory returns.

"There is no reason why grocers in every town should fail to make a good profit on lamps," said a prominent Toronto wholesaler recently. The reason for this is partly because lamps call for no subsidiary lines, which render it difficult to set boundaries to the stock that must be carried. A store can carry lamps and nothing else of the same class of goods, so that it is not necessary for the grocer to lay in a full hardware stock of other things which appear closely connected. The trouble with those who do not get the desired results from their lamp trade, is that they do not carry a well-selected line. Too many confine themselves to the common glass lamps, together with a supply of chimneys, burners, wicks, etc., which goods are carried in every store and are sold at comparatively close prices."

A full assortment of table lamps for a grocery store may be classed as follows: (a) glass lamps, in all their varied sizes and kinds, ranging from the cheap hand lamps, sold without burner or chimney, at 10c., to the more elaborate lines completed with shade and ring or fancy chimney, and retailed at $1 each; (b) decorated opal vase lamps, including all lines without removable oil pot, ranging in retail price from the lines without brass base at 75c, to handsome lamps completed with 10 in. globes at $3 each; (c) decorated opal reception lamps, with lift out or removable brass oil pots, retailing from $2 to $10 each and higher. and sundry lines. such as night lamps.

The glass lamp first referred to may be procured in dozens of different designs of crystal glass and in various different colors, including decorated styles.

In buying opal decorated lamps, the buyer should make sure that all such lamps have "fired decorations"; i.e., before any of the metal fixings are attached, the opal blank, as the plain milk white glass body is termed, is decorated with mineral colors and subjected to an intense heat, which fuses the outer surface of the glass and the painting thereon into one body, making it impossible to remove the decoration except by filing off or destroying the actual surface of the glass, a test to which, of course, no lamp is subjected in actual use. This, you can see, adds to the expense of the manufacture, and to meet the demand for the cheapest kind of a vase lamp various lines of cold decorated lamps have been placed on the market. In these the decoration is simply painted on the glass with ordinary oil colors; and while at first the tints and colors may be even brighter than some fired lines, it is only a matter of time before the whole decoration is washed or worn off, resulting in dissatisfaction to the customer. The buyer will not have diffculty in ensuring "fired decorations" if he is careful regarding the matter.

In the newer lamps the founts will be found very shallow, and at the same time they may be wide. Lamps with removable founts are more expensive, but due attention is paid to their depth, as oil will run in sufficient quantity only so high, and beyond that there is imperfect light.

An ingenious way of utilizing the deep fount without such a removable contrivance is to fill it half full of water and then with oil to the top. This method has been found to give general satisfaction.

Decorative lamps, whether cold or fire decorated, or of the solid color variety, are in great demand. There has lately been put on the market a lamp, which, for beauty of color and chaste appearance, cannot be excelled. It has adopted the solid color decorative scheme of Kopp, the German expert in lamp colors, and comes usually in cardinal and beautiful shades of red, green or blue. The pattern is distinct from the remainder of the lamp only by its being done in relief, the same color prevailing throughout. The outside is of that soft silk finish that in the pattern gives off a great number of depths of the prevailing color. The variety shown is on a par with the progress made in almost every line. Better and larger selections are shown in shape, color and pattern, and more taste is displayed in blending and matching.

In buying lamps there are some points which every retailer should observe: For some seasons dark, deep shades have prevailed in lamps, as, in the majority of cases, the fancy lamp is not used to read or work by, but for decorative purposes combined with light. Everyone knows how little really valuable light a red lamp casts, and yet it is the most sold. In buyng retailers are apt to pay too much attention to the light colors, on account of the amount of light they dispense.

It may interest the retailer to know that the better lines yield larger profits than the cheaper ones. On the better lines the margin of profit should run from 40 to 60 per cent., and as the danger from breakage is to-day exceedingly small, there is every reason why the retailer who handles the cheaper lines should carry in stock the more attractive styles.

There is no valid reason why the grocer shouldn't handle a high-class quality of lamps. The line takes up considerable room, and in some seasons of the year the sale is not large, but against such objections may be put the fact that the line adds much to the attractiveness of the store. It is true that the sale of lamps is greater from August till Christmas than in the early months of the year, yet the trade is always worth having, especially as the total volume in a year may reach large proportions.

HOW TO HANDLE CROCKERY.

AMONG grocers there is considerable variation of opinion as to the value of crockery departments, says the Commercial Bulletin.

Some are convinced that crockery and glassware are a nuisance, and admit that they stock it because they fear loss of trade in other departments through not having a complete general line. Other merchants are satisfied with crockery and glassware, but are not sufficiently interested to thoroughly exploit its possibilities. Others are enthusiastic about this department of their business.

The secret of the successful handling of crockery is method. The dealer who has room to display crockery and glassware on tables and keep it in good shape with plenty of price tickets to guide the customer, gets good returns.

The dealer, however, who has almost all of his stock on shelves where the dust

No. 3.—An older shaped fount.

gathers, the cobwebs cling, and which the clerk and the dustcloth visit not, thinks it is a blooming humbug.

The general appearance of the crockery and glassware departments in many stores make one's sides ache for more room. You yearn to take a damp cloth and wash the face of the dishes enough to get down to the mark which sells, whether it is ironstone or Haviland china.

When you come right down to good merchandising, a grocery or general store is not complete without a good line of crockery and glassware. What appeals to a female customer any more than good dishes at bargain prices? What line offers the merchant a better opportunity to talk about bargains than crockery and glassware? If given any reasonable chance, crockery and glassware will make as good a return on the investment as any line carried, and much better than most of them.

Ordering a crate of white ware and a little more of some other kind is not sane buying. The merchant needs the staple white ware just as he needs granulated sugar, but he should have it in the background and be pushing other lines or sets on which he makes more money and which are more pleasing to his trade.

The first step in the management of a crockery and glassware department is careful buying. Do not tie up too much money. Get an assortment and a line that will sell at prices which will suit your trade. Pay considerable attention to odd pieces in glassware which will sell at low prices. You can do no better than invest in a bright ten and fifteen cent line. These will be good pullers for the department. You need room. Tables are the only best method of display. At the same time, window shows are decidedly valuable as advertisers. When business gets slack pick out some of your best bargains and advertise them by circular. Make up a ten-cent table occasionally. Again try a 19-cent sale, or any other figure which may strike you.

The main thing is to keep the dustcloth at work, the tables always well arranged, and always sell the article for what you think it will bring, and at the same time make a satisfied customer. You will find that a crockery and glassware department, properly managed, will turn a fine dividend.

MISDIRECTED.

A big Boston china store recently received a consignment of goods from Germany. A representative of the house had ordered in that country a variety of goods, and among them a lot of the cups which are beautifully labeled "To My Brother," "To a Friend," and so on through the list of human relationships. He had ordered with the rest a lot of mustache cups. They were well and duly made, but great was his astonishment when the consignment arrived to find the greater number of the cups so contrived to protect the beverage against the masculine hirsute adornment labeled thus: "To My Sister," "To My Mother," "To My Wife." — Boston Transcript.

MAKING CUT GLASS.

MOST people have the idea that the process employed in the making of cut glass must be of a very delicate nature to produce such beautiful and delicate objects. In reality, however, a factory for cutting glass is as rough in appearance as a machine shop, and the tools used as coarse as those in any other factory. There are in Canada only two establishments that are engaged in this work, and a representative of The Grocer recently had the pleasure of inspecting the larger of the two—Gowans, Kent & Co., of Toronto.

Gow.

Cut Glass Berry Bowl.

The cutters are ranged in a row down each side of the factory, the "roughing" being done on one side and the "smoothing" and "polishing" on the other. Each workman sits on a high stool and in front of him is stationed his cutting wheel above which is a large cone-shaped affair containing sand and water. The sand used resembles in appearance and consistency common salt, and mixed with the water drops slowly on the revolving wheel, thus providing a cutting surface for the glass. The wheels vary in material from iron for the "roughers" to stone for the "smoothers," and wood and felt for the "polishers," and vary in size from six inches to a foot and a quarter in diameter.

The plain glass is first marked off with red lead into even sections, and without any other guide to pattern the "roughers" work out the required design by pressing the plain glass against the sharp edge of the iron wheel. Only the deep cuts and rougher lines are done by these workmen, after which the glass is passed to the "smoothers" who, with stone wheels, smooth off the rough cuts and then pass it on to men who do the fine work or narrow shallow lines in the required pattern. Under the hands of these men the piece first begins to take on a presentable appearance.

The final stage comprises four separate processes. From the "smoothers" the glass is washed with acid to take off all remaining roughness, and the wood polisher then holds it on a wooden wheel. The buff wheel or wheel covered with felt, with a fine pumice powder, gives it more polish, and the finishing touches are given with putty. After washing the article is ready for shipping.

To the casual spectator the work does not appear to be the production of skilled labor, but the fact is that great precision is required. The pattern is cut without any previous markings save the sectional divisions, and great care has to be exercised to cut neither too deep or the glass would break, nor too shallow or an uneven appearance is presented. Lines must be of a certain length only and regularity must be observed throughout the whole pattern or the glass will lack the fire and symmetry of a well-cut article.

A POLICY OF PROGRESS.

AMONG recent developments in connection with the wholesale crockery trade a noticeable feature is the progressive policy inaugurated by the new management of the John L. Cassidy Co., Limited, of Montreal. The volume of business being handled by this firm at the present time, together with the exhaustive preparations they are making to meet the Fall trade indicates that the scope for selection on the part of Canadian buyers is to be widened to a practically unlimited extent. In the important item of lamp goods alone, the variety of lines now on view at their handsome showrooms on St. Paul street, and in the hands of their representatives on the road is an eye-opener in itself. It would be unwise upon the part of the handlers of these lines to overlook the John L. Cassidy Co., but that company, judging from appearances, are not at all likely to give them the opportunity of doing so.

HINTS TO BUYERS OF CHINA AND GLASSWARE.

ONE of the most attractive novelties for the coming season in china is English breakfast ware, of antique design, in plain white. It may appear somewhat of an exaggeration to speak of china having an appetizing look, but this line of plain white ware looks to be the ideal thing for a dainty breakfast service, and is certain to take the fancy of up-to-date housewives. The "Diana" shape, in English dinnerware, promises to be a good seller. It is claimed for this shape by experts that it is one of the best proportioned yet seen in china. An attractive feature of much of the new English china is its fine embossing. The "Countess" shape and pattern in English tea and breakfast ware will also be a good seller. Printed and plain dinner ware, with gold tracery, bands, edges, and illumination, and gold stippled handles, are seen in great variety, as well as pink and blue enamel ware with gold edges. White sets with shaded color border in pink, blue, buff or green, and gold stippled handles, are also seen. The lines of toilet ware in greatest demand are printed sets with enamelled flowers and shaded colored grounds, also white sets in double shaded grounds, rainbow effect, all with gold stippled edges. Another good line is English vitrified hotel ware, which it is claimed will not craze and will stand the roughest usage. In this ware, a specialty is made of colored crests, with lines and bands in harmonious colors, all under the glazing. Royal Vienna is a novelty in rich dinner ware, which will appeal to the connoisseur of china.

In glassware, the assortments of decorated opal fancy ware are very attractive, while the usual lines of Bohemian glass, especially that with inlaid metal decoration, are seen in great variety. Moorish pottery is one of the most attractive of the lines for the coming season's trade, and oriental figures are coming more and more into popularity.

CHINA IN THE GROCERY STORE.

C. A. Nairn, grocer, etc., Goderich, considers his china department an important adjunct to his business. He keeps a full stock, and has found that this department increases his general sales. In the Summer many sales are made to Summer visitors for souvenirs. Stock lines are carried, but the fancy lines are displayed to the best advantage.

While doubting the value of a china department in a large city, Mr. Nairn believes that in a place the size of Goderich, a china department in a grocery store, if given careful attention, is well worth while, both for itself and on account of its influence in attracting general custom.

Mr. Nairn has the west side of his store given up to china, crockery and glassware, neatly displayed, and kept scrupulously clean. The west window is well adapted for attracting the eager eyes of womankind, and as a second line of attack, this is flanked by a silent salesman, filled with a very fine collection of cut glassware.

HANDSOME ENGLISH WARE.

THE handsome pedestal and pot here illustrated is the product of one of the leading English earthenware manufactories, the Royal Staffordshire Pottery, whose products are exploited in this country by Barnard & Holland Co., Montreal. The quality of the ware is claimed to be much superior to anything imported from Teplitz, being of the finest English semi-porcelain. It is decorated in beautifully blended colors, and is supplied in various combinations of tints, also being richly illuminated in gold.

In addition to the alleged superiority of the ware over German and Austrian goods, there is an advantage in price in consequence of the lesser duties; and the facility with which goods can be obtained from England, as compared with other countries, is very much in favor of the former.

The article illustrated is intended to retail at about $25, but the same factory makes much cheaper lines. Very attractive pedestals and pots are to be had that can be sold retail for as low as about $4 or $5.

PATENT SAFETY LAMP.

One of the most useful novelties being offered to the trade at the present time is Hinks' Patent Safety Phoenix Lamp. Its chief feature is an ingenious contrivance, by which it may be self-extinguished in the event of the lamp being upset. On account of its simplicity of construction, it is absolutelv impossible for the lamp to get out of order, since there are no springs, pins, solder, traps, etc., but simply a weight, which comes into operation only when the lamp is tilted over forty-five degrees, and lifts the ordinary extinguisher, thus putting out the flame.

FLUCTUATION OF PRICES IN FRANCE.

THE French Government has recently published certain statistics, so that it is possible to give a comparative statement of prices of several products for six years.

It is exceedingly interesting to note the great variation in the prices of staple commodities. A careful study of the changes that have taken place since 1898 shows anyone desiring to export merchandise to France that conditions are constantly shifting.

For example, the price of pork in 1898 averaged 29c per 2.2 pounds; on April 21, 1904, it had declined 24 per cent., selling at 22c.

Oats is the most changeable of all grains; there is a difference of almost one-fourth in the price between 1898 and 1904.

The harvest governs the price of all commodities of purely French origin. The same quality of wine fell from $25.47 to $16.75 per barrel of 238 quarts between 1899 and 1902; but it rose again to $19.88 in April, 1904. The small and plentiful harvests caused this fluctuation.

These figures give food for thought for all exporters from the United States to European countries. The state of these markets must be carefully examined very often, so that the exporters may supply at a time when their merchandise will sell the most advantageously or be introduced just when the propitious moment arrives to command a good and ready sale.

Canadian Cheese Trade.

IN his report regarding the Canadian export cheese trade of 1903, A. W. Grindley, agent of the Department of Agriculture in Great Britain, makes the following suggestions: "The cheese season of 1902 was a most successful one; there was a large increase in the quantity, and the steady improvement in the quality was so great that in spite of very heavy supplies the prices realized on the whole were satisfactory. The mild, sweet, palatable flavor, as distinguished from the heated and biting character so noticeable in former years, has created a large consumptive demand, which will have a tendency to do away with the disproportion in value between Canadian and English Cheddar. The practice of shipping too new or 'green' cannot be too emphatically condemned, as it not only spoils the sale, but hurts the reputation of Canadian cheese. The salesman, as well as the exporter, is to blame for sending these immature cheeses, and the patrons of factories should insist that their cheese should be held in the curing room until it is in such a condition as will give satisfaction to the British consumer.

Cool Curing of Cheese.

"The comparative difference in the cheese held in the Government cool curing rooms has become very noticeable, not only in quality, but in general appearance. The improvement is due to cool curing and 'waxing' the cheese, which also has the advantage of preventing a considerable percentage of shrinkage. During the season of 1902, when 'waxed' cheese first appeared on the British market, some of the grocers' associations objected, and even went so far as to demand an allowance on weights, but it soon proved that there was less shrinkage, which, added to the improved quality and appearance of the cheese, quickly created a brisk demand for cheese coming from the Government curing stations, at an advance in price compared to cheese coming from the ordinary factories.

Boxing Cheese.

"The percentage of broken boxes was not so high during 1903, although it still runs very high, ranging from five to twenty-five per cent. The falling off in breakage is due to: (1) The damp season, which makes the boxes less brittle. (2) More care on the part of the shipping companies in loading, stowing, and discharging cargoes, this work being closely watched by the inspectors of the Canadian Government. (3) The use of boxes of better quality. The latter point has been very noticeable in cheese coming from the Government curing stations, the boxes being made of heavier material; the broken boxes did not run above two per cent., which proves that it is false economy to buy cheap boxes. Care should be taken not to use green, unseasoned boxes, as the cheese, particularly the top and bottom, may be damaged in quality from this cause alone.

Skin Brand on Cheese.

"Leading British importers of Canadian cheese are in favor of branding cheese indelibly with the month in which they are made. Some years ago 'September' cheeses became the favorites, but owing to the improvement in the quality of cheese made during July and August, brought about by the system of 'cool curing' introduced by the Department of Agriculture, the makes of other months have proved to be nearly as good in quality as September's. It is claimed that unscrupulous dealers in Canada, as well as in Great Britain, quote 'Septembers' at such low prices as to lead to the supposition that they are the make of other months, and as a result any inferiority in quality is not discovered until after delivery is taken. If the month of make were branded on the cheese they would be sold on their merits, and speculators who bought cheap lines of July, August, October, or November makes would be debarred from quoting them by cable or otherwise as 'Septembers.'"

Canadian Cheese Improving.

WHOLESALE dealers in Montreal report that the average quality of cheese being marketed at that point this year is considerably above the quality of last year or the year before.

Some of the defects, however, noticed in cheese there, as the result of a recent official examination, were: First, leak in body and too much acidity; second, objectionable flavors, a weedy flavor, or what is called an "off" flavor, due to carelessness on the part of some person, either patron or maker; third, defective finish, but much superior to the general appearance of cheese marketed in previous years. No excuse can be made for the unworkmanlike manner in which some of the cheese is put up. They are not uniform; carelessness is displayed in putting the cloths on the ends of the cheese; the boxes are not properly trimmed after the cheese are put in them; and in some cases the boxes are not high enough, allowing the weight of the top cheese to rest on the bottom cheese, rather than upon the boxes. In some cases boxes are too large in circumference, allowing the cheese to work from side to side, wearing rough patches on the ends and sides. There is also evidence of negligence in the care of the shelves; the ends of the cheese in a few instances being quite dirty, while the sides were clean. One wholesale dealer stated that out of forty boxes received he had his men rope thirty-eight of them before they were fit for shipment on the steamer. Another shipper said that out of a lot of 150 only a few arrived at his warehouse in sound condition. A poor quality of box and carelessness on the part of makers in boxing cheese, will, if continued, injure the trade.

Provisions in Trinidad.

Latest reports from Trinidad say there is a better feeling in both pork and lard, but stocks are considerable, and quotations remain unchanged. Pork loins, ribs, shoulders, etc., are all inquired for. All grades of family beef are in over supply, and prices continue to decline.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The market in smoked meats is very brisk, as the season is now in full swing. Prices are maintained at last week's level, with the exception of long clear bacon, which is a quarter-cent lower. The fresh meat market is very dull, the wet weather telling strongly against it. The beginning of the week was like a Sunday, according to one dealer. People are buying no more than they are compelled to. Mutton and yearling lambs have come down from a cent to a cent and a-half on acount of the good grass, the droves finding good pasturage all over. We quote this week:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 07½	$0 07¾
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12	0 12½
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09	0 09½

Butter—Nothing has happened during the week to alter conditions in the butter market. Supplies are as large as ever, and dealers are simply flooded with prints and tubs. Prices ruling in England are too low for our exporters, and almost nothing is being handled for the export market. Exports of creamery butter have been higher this Spring than usual. Dealers are holding on to their stock, in the hope of better quotations abroad. Prices this week are:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 17	0 18
" solids, fresh	0 16	0 17½
Dairy prints	0 13	0 15
" in tubs	0 12	0 14

Cheese—There is a little brightness in the horizon for cheese exporters, on account of last week's board prices. These ranged all the way from 7 to 7 3-4, but 7 1-2 was about the average. Still prices are too high to make buying for export profitable. England is getting large supplies of butter and cheese elsewhere, and in addition consumption has fallen off seriously. A recently returned produce merchant says business is very dull in England, and there is not much prospect of immediate improvement. It is during good times that cheese is bought so freely by the Englishman. Board prices were forced to drop, and unless the export demand increases there will be a further slump. There is very little old cheese offering, and what there is is within narrow range. The price on this remains unchanged, but in accordance with board quotations new cheese has fallen off a quarter of a cent. It would not be surprising to see seven cents, the high limit, offered the factories in a couple of weeks, and if so, they will have to accept it, since exporters will stay out of the market, rather than lose in their transactions.

Board reports for the week ending July 11 are:

Provisions—Activity rules in the provision market, and arrivals are heavy for the time of year. No new feature has turned up in the hog situation. The supply of live hogs on Monday, for instance, was very small. The demand was fairly good, and prices for fine stock were steady at $5.25 to $5.40 per cwt., weighed off the cars. Fresh killed abattoir stock is active, and prices remain unchanged at $7.50 per 100 lbs. The hot weather causes a good demand for bacon and hams, but the trade in pork is light. The movement in lard is fair, and for the midsummer, business generally is good. We quote:

Butter—The market is dull and inactive for the time of year. The prices ruling at country points seem to be higher than are being paid at the wharf in the city. Spot quotations simply refuse to suit the prices paid at country points. For instance, finest creamery was calling for 17 1-2c, and at the same time, right on the docks in the city, the prevailing prices were 17 to 17 1-2c. As many as 900 boxes were sold at that figure.

The exports of butter to date are interesting, showing total shipments from May 1 to date of 18,512 boxes. Of this, there were 13,489 through freight and the balance local.

Cheese—Cheese picked up a little in the early part of the week, but the advices from the Old Country are still gloomy, and large stocks are accumulated there. Still there was a disposition of independence shown by holders in the city that was surprising when certain shippers wanted some stock to fill orders for special shipment on the steamers sailing this week. How long this feeling may continue is hard to define. The arrivals, as posted on 'Change last week, were nearly twenty per cent. less than during the same week of last year. To date since the opening of navigation the arrivals are 17 per cent. less than they were during the same period of 1903. The exports of last week show a falling off of over 30 per cent. compared with the same week of last year, and the decline for the season so far is a little less than twenty-five per cent. The wharf sales are the strongest testimony to the situation.

As many as 9,000 boxes were sold at 7 1-4c. on spot. Easterns were held around 7 1-8, and Ontarios at 7 7-8c.

The figures for export during the week ending July 12 show that the cheese exports were 104,252 boxes; of these, 16,576 were through, and 87,676 were local shipment. For the corresponding period last year the exports were 136,894, and for 1902 they were 86,527 boxes.

The total shipments to date since the opening of navigation were 525,430, and in 1903, 750,519, and in 1902, 564,803. Thus the falling off becomes more glaring as each week slips by. The total shows a drop of nearly 200,000 boxes.

Provisions—In barreled goods the sale is light. Pork is at least no higher. Beef is quite firm, but finds few buyers. Pure lard continues easy at the very low prices. There is rather an improved demand for refined lard. Rolls and hams remain unchanged; business is a retail one. Fresh beef is held at full price for western stock. Domestic is low. Lamb is more freely offered; average prices rule. There is a good sale. Veals hold firm, with mutton and pork low.

Fresh and Cured Fish

How to Handle Fish.

YEARS ago the fish trade, outside of the immediate City of Montreal, was confined almost exclusively to salted fish, such as salted herrings, green codfish, and hard dried codfish. With improved methods of transportation, however, the handling of fish has developed into an important department of trade. Fish can now be shipped to any point within a radius of 200 miles of the larger cities, reaching customers in a comparatively short time, and in perfect condition.

It is a well known fact that large quantities of fresh fish are consumed weekly in cities of any size, and it is only a question of the rural merchants knowing how to handle it properly in order to increase the consumption of fish in towns and villages throughout the country. People living in small towns have raised the objection that they cannot get regular supplies of fresh fish, but for some years past dealers have made this a study, with a view of catering to the wants of their out-of-town customers. Care in handling is the principal thing, and it is certain that merchants or grocers who will make a specialty of supplying their customers with fresh fish will build up a trade for other lines as well, since there is nothing that impresses the consumer so much as the willingness of a merchant to supply him with what he wants.

It is not necessary for a merchant to stock up a lot of fish and run the chance of it spoiling. At the present time he may order his fish fresh weekly, according to the needs of his customers. Many large wholesale dealers in the cities, such as Montreal, send out weekly price lists early each week, keeping firm prices on various kinds in season for shipment on the same Thursday, so that a merchant may have ample time to estimate his requirements, to send an order by mail after receiving the price list, and forward the order to the shipper. His order of fresh fish can be shipped by express on Thursday, and reach the dealers in first-class condition for the demand, which is usually most active on Thursdays and Fridays. In this way it is possible for people living out of town to secure all the delicacies of the season in the fish line, and at practically the same prices as if they were living in the large centres.

During the Summer months, when a large number of city residents visit the country, they usually want to get their fresh salmon, or other kinds of fish they have been accustomed to in the city, and the merchant or storekeeper who caters to this desire may reap a good profit. In fact, it has been proven time and again that grocers and general store keepers who have catered to the wants of their customers, have had a wonderful increase in their business. There are one or two merchants in the larger towns, within fifty or sixty miles of Montreal, who have built up an extensive trade with little trouble, just by ordering their fish ahead, and getting it in by express on Thursday or Friday, for the consumer.

It is an established fact that fish exposed in stores in the old style is offensive to the customer, but this can be obviated by having a nice box, zinc, or galvanized iron lined, covered with glass, placed in front, on the side of the store, away from anything susceptible to the fishy smell, with running water and ice. There is very little chance of any smell permeating the store. Merchants who order their fish according to their customers' wants, find that such usually arrives with sufficient ice to keep it over night, and it can be delivered promptly the next morning.

Fresh fish naturally should not be exposed to the air, and it should also be well iced. During the months of June, July and August fresh fish must be ordered only as required, and then shipped by express. The large fish dealers in the cities have all the facilities for storing, and their arrangements for shipping are so perfect as to guarantee almost fresh delivery to customers.

In the large cities, such as Montreal, the fish business is done, to a great extent, as a specialty, and no grocer combines the sale of fish with the general groceries. This is also due to the fact that a special license is required, which many grocers do not care to pay.

Salmon Facts.

In their latest report on salmon conditions prevailing in British Columbia and the Pacific Coast, the J. K. Armsby Co., of Chicago, say :

No fish are reported on the Fraser River so far, and only 50 per cent. of the canneries will operate this season. The fishermen on the Skeena River, B. C., are still striking, and the run is light. No salmon are reported yet on other northern B. C. waters.

The Spring run on Puget Sound is the smallest in years. No sockeye has been reported yet, either in the ocean, outside straits or in the straits. A large percentage of the canners are closed, as a very small pack is expected. On the Columbia River early and protracted high water has interfered with the fishing season. Packing closes August 5, but there is yet a chance for a fair run. Packing up to date is only 50 per cent. of last season. On the Sacramento River packing is practically closed, the run having been about 40 per cent. of last year's.

At Bristol Bay, Behring Sea, is reported the heaviest and latest ice blockade on record. It looks as though the pack would be cut in two, and unless ice conditions change some companies will pack almost nothing owing to lack of towing facilities, as the present condition of ice necessitates large towing steamers in order to enable sailing vessels to get up to their docks. Chignik canneries are all opened for business, although there are no fish yet. At Kodiak Island the salmon run is very slight, and at Cook's Inlet "no fish yet" is reported. At Prince William Sound there has been heavy weather, with the season half over and the pack from one-third to one-half short. In south eastern Alaska many canneries are closed, and a small pack is expected.

Limit Put on Anglers.

BY the new fishery regulations adopted by the Dominion Government, anglers are only permitted to catch eight instead of twelve bass per day. The limit for maskinonge is four, pickerel twelve, and lake trout four, speckled or brook trout thirty, or ten pounds.

The size limit for pickerel is fifteen inches, for maskinonge thirty inches, measuring from the point of the nose to the centre of the tail. The sale and export of speckled trout, black bass and maskinonge is prohibited for a period of five years, provided, however, that any person from a foreign country fishing in the waters of the province who obtains an angler's license may, upon leaving the province, take with him the lawful catch of two days' fishing.

In Point of Tastiness

Salt water fish are as much better than fresh water fish as the air of the sea coast is better and more invigorating than the air of inland parts. And the tasty cod of the Atlantic is all the tastier when cured by a salting process and put on the market as

EXTRACTS

During the summer months people prefer and eat more light foods, delicately and temptingly flavored, than at any other time of the year.

And if you cater to and develop this tendency you should work up a large business in extracts.

Of course you must handle extracts of the very highest quality to do this.

And this is just where we can interest you.

Our Oriental and Forest City Extracts impart to custards, ice cream and pastry that full, rich flavor which is not found in common extracts.

Our Vanilla Extract is made from the very best beans in the world—all our other flavors are on the same high standard of quality.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. D. W. Duff, of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, is enjoying a well-earned holiday.

Mr. W. H. Dunn, Montreal, is taking a few weeks' vacation with his family at Cliff Haven, N.Y.

Mr. J. L. Watt, of Watt & Scott, brokers and commission merchants, Toronto, is visiting London and western points this week.

Mr. W. G. A. Lambe, of W. G. A. Lambe & Co., grocery brokers and agents, Toronto, is home from a two months' trip to England.

Major Zeph. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, with his wife and family, leaves this week for a five weeks' sojourn at Old Orchard Beach.

Mr. R. Dufresne, representing B. O. Beland, Montreal, wine and spirit merchant and grocers' specialties, leaves for Western Ontario, going as far as Georgian Bay district.

Mr. Chas. Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, accompanied by Mrs. Chaput, has departed for Old Orchard Beach, where a month's vacation will be spent.

Mr. P. J. Thomas, of Salada Tea Co., Toronto, passed through Montreal on his way home from England and the Continent. Mr. Thomas was a passenger on the ss. Dominion, in port July 11.

Mr. C. Wilkinson, for many years employed in the sample room of J. A. Mathewson & Co., wholesale grocers, Montreal, has joined the traveling staff of his house, and is looking after the city grocers. His experience and ambition should bring good results, and The Grocer wishes him good luck.

Mr. J. Lorimer, of Lorimer & Co., Ltd., London, manufacturers of grocers' and druggists' specialties, who has been visiting the Canadian trade in person during the past month, was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer. Mr. Lorimer has made arrangements with prominent Canadian firms for the sale of his company's products, and an active canvass will be prosecuted.

Mr. George Robertson, M.P.P., St. John, N.B., was in Toronto the early part of the week. Mr. Robertson, who was formerly in the wholesale grocery business in St. John, takes an active interest in all that appertains to the commercial welfare of St. John, and is the champion of the movement for the construction of a dry dock in that city.

J. J. McCabe, who has been associated with McWilliam & Everist, wholesale fruit and commission merchants, Toronto, for the past three years, has decided to launch out in business on his own account, and will on Monday, July 18 enter into partnership with W. B. Stringer, fruit broker and sales agent, Toronto. Mr. McCabe will be in charge of the office at 61 Front street east, and will also attend to the firm's advertising interests.

Mr. G. B. Suggitt, a well-known retail grocer of Leeds, Eng., has been making a tour of Eastern Canada and the Eastern and Middle States of the American Union. Mr. Suggitt is the honorary secretary of the Leeds Grocers' Association, and of the Grocers' Exhibition. He takes particular interest in window dressing, and has closely watched the grocery stores in Canada. In his opinion, the grocers of this country have something to learn from their brethren in Great Britain.

there are the bees."

You won't find the successful grocer trying to extract profits from second-class goods. He doesn't waste his time, energy and money for the purpose of building up his competitor's business. In the long run, quality wins where quantity fails—quality is remembered long after price is forgotten.

Windsor Salt is the Salt of highest quality and hence sold by grocers of high reputation. It is pure, white, dry, crystaline—it is the Salt that doesn't cake. "Where the honey is, there are the bees"—you can trust the high-class grocer to find out just where the honey is.

THE DUMPING CLAUSE.

A NUMBER of inquiries have been received from readers, asking us to explain the nature of the legislation known as the "dumping clause" in the recent tariff introduced by the Minister of Finance. There seems to be considerable difference of opinion throughout the country as to what it really means, caused mainly by the different views expressed in the daily newspapers. To begin with, the customs law of Canada now, and for many years past in force, provides, in effect, that the value for customs duty purposes of any imported article subject to an ad valorem duty shall be the fair market value of such article as sold for home consumption in the principal markets of the country of export, at the time of export, in the ordinary course of trade, and on the usual terms of credit. Heretofore, therefore, although any manufacturer or merchant might sell goods to Canada at lower prices than he sold similar goods for home consumption in his own country, the Canadian importer was obliged to pay duty, not on the special price for export, but on the basis of the home consumption value in the country of export, as above referred to.

Briefly stated, Mr. Fielding has now provided that, in any case where imported dutiable goods of a class or kind manufactured in Canada, whether subject to a specific or ad valorem duties, are sold to Canada at a price below the fair market value of such goods, as sold for home consumption in the open market of the country of export in the usual and ordinary way, and on the ordinary credit terms, there shall be levied thereon in Canada, in addition to the ordinary duty established by the Canadian tariff, a special duty equal to the difference between the selling price and the said fair market value for home consumption in the country of export, provided, however, that such special duty shall not exceed one-half the ordinary duty provided by the tariff.

An exception, however, has been made in the case of the following articles:

Rolled round wire rods, not over three-eighths of an inch in diameter.
Pig iron, iron kentledge and cast scrap iron.
Iron and steel ingots, blooms, slabs, billets, puddled bars, loops and other forms, as described in Tariff Item 226.
Rolled iron or steel angles, tees, beams, channels, joists, girders, zees, stars, other rolled shapes; trough, building or structural rolled sections or shapes and flat eye bar blanks, as described in Tariff Item 228.
Rolled iron or steel plates, not less than thirty inches wide, and not less than one-quarter of an inch in thickness.

As respects these articles, the special duty shall be the difference between the selling price and the fair market value for home consumption in the country of export, but not to exceed 15 per cent. ad valorem based upon the home consumption price. The reason for this exception is that the articles specifically mentioned are protected by way of bounty or bonus, in addition to duties. The rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem is estimated to represent one-half the protection afforded by such bounties and duties under the tariff. By this means the articles mentioned are placed on the same plane as all dutiable articles covered by the general provision.

It might be well here to illustrate the operation of the new law. Take, for instance, the case of an article, say a piece of machinery, which is sold in the United States for home consumption there, in the ordinary course of trade, at $100, and it is exported to Canada at a special price of, say, $85. The article, let it be supposed, is dutiable at 30 per cent. ad valorem, under the Canadian customs tariff. The calculation, in these circumstances, would be as follows:

In the first place, duty would be charged at 30 per cent. ad valorem on the United States home consumption price, namely, $100, making $30 to be paid as the ordinary duty. The customs officer would then compute the special duty, on account of there being a difference between the selling price and the home consumption value. Such special duty would be the maximum, namely, one-half the ordinary duty, or $15.

But supposing the article were sold to Canada at a price of $95, the calculation in such case would be as follows:

Duty on $100, at 30 per cent.....	$30 00
Special additional duty would be the difference between the selling price and the fair market value in the country of export, namely	5 00
Total duty	$35 00

It will be observed from this explanation that the special duty works automatically. The home buyer and the foreign seller can determine whether any special duty will require to be paid or not, and if so, to what extent. If the selling price of the exporter to Canada is the same as the home consumption price in his own country, there is no special duty to pay, but if the selling price is lower than the said home consumption value, the special duty has to be paid, to the extent of the reduction. Provided, that it shall not exceed one-half of the ordinary duty, or 15 per cent. ad valorem in the specific cases we have referred to.

In effect, the amount of the reduction in price to importers in Canada is constituted a duty, and placed in the Government treasury, so that it is of no advantage to an importer to buy goods at slaughter prices.

On June 28, the "dumping" clause was amended by adding the following clause:

"The Minister of Customs may make such regulations as are deemed necessary for carrying out the provisions of the foregoing sections, and for the enforcement thereof.

"Such regulations may also provide for the temporary exemption from special duty of any article or class of articles, when it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister of Customs that such articles are not made in Canada in substantial quantities, and offered for sale to all purchasers on equal terms."

The intention of the Government in introducing this clause was evidently to provide against lack of supply of Canadian manufactured articles, on account of strikes, or on account of articles being manufactured in Canada on an exceedingly small scale.

A SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN.

THE campaign we have waged for some years against the administration of the Department of Trade and Commerce has at last been successful.

Sir Richard Cartwright, the Minister, has never had a friendly feeling for the manufacturers. That he was not made Minister of Finance when the Laurier Government came into power was due to the Premier's desire to cultivate the business interests, which he feared Sir Richard would estrange, as he had in the Mackenzie Government. Both Sir Richard and his deputy showed no sympathy for the development of Canadian industry or an export trade. They opposed the appointment of commercial agents abroad, and discouraged them when they showed interest in their work, and a desire to do things. Two of these men were told by other members of the Cabinet to do their work as they thought best, and to pay no attention to Sir Richard or his deputy.

As our readers know, we have repeatedly drawn the attention of the Government and of the country to the weakness in this department, and urged that either Sir Richard should be given some other position and an energetic Minister put in his place, or that he should retain his present position and leave the details of the work to some bright young man. At first he would not listen to either proposition.

The pressure, however, has been too strong. We are glad to report that some time ago Sir Richard was forced to carry out our suggestion, and placed the work in the hands of one of his staff, Mr. E. T. C. O'Hara. Mr. O'Hara has put intelligent energy into his work, with the result we anticipated —that the department is developing into a most useful adjunct to the Canadian commercial community. The announcement is now given out that Mr. O'Hara is confirmed in his appointment, and will practically have entire charge of the work of the Department of Trade and Commerce, though he will be known as superintendent of commercial agencies.

While the business community has opposed Sir Richard Cartwright bitterly in his management of this department, while they feel he has stood in the way of commercial progress, yet he is personally held in the highest respect because of the clean and honest record he has borne all through his parliamentary career. It is a well-known fact that he was a wealthy man when he first entered public life, while to-day he is not.

BRIBING OF EMPLOYES A CRIME.

THE State Legislature of Massachusetts has passed an enactment that is designed to correct an abuse that is prevalent in many parts of Canada, as well as in that state. The object of the law is to put a stop to the bribing of employes in the selling of supplies. About a year ago the Canadian Grocer drew attention to the prevalence of this form of commercial corruption, particularly as between the larger hardware supply houses and those who bought the supplies for the lake vessels. A Toronto dealer, it will be remembered, went so far as to say that in the majority of cases the dealer found it absolutely necessary to bribe those in authority to secure the orders for Lake Ontario vessels. Commissions were the rule. Sometimes these commissions were deducted from the average price; in other cases the price was advanced, making the vessel owner bear the expense of the commission charge by his employe, the officer who bought the supplies.

It is manifest, from statements made by large dealers, that this practice is as prevalent as ever. It is wrong in principle and bad in effect, and a law which should effectually prevent it would receive the hearty endorsation of the hardware trade.

The new Massachusetts law provides that whoever gives, offers or promises to an agent, employe or servant any gift or gratuity whatever with intent to influence his action in relation to his principal's, employer's or master's business, or any agent, employe or servant who receives or accepts a gift or gratuity or promise, under an agreement or with an understanding that he shall act in any particular manner in relation to his employer's business, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $500, or imprisonment for not more than one year.

THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.

ON July 25 the Dominion Exhibition opens at Winnipeg. The annual exhibition at that city is always representative of western life and industry, but this year, supplemented by the Dominion grant, and by the official recognition of the Manufacturers' Association, it is likely to be an exhibition of national importance. Many of the manufacturers of the east are making arrangements to exhibit to the consumers of the West their "Made in Canada" products. Thus, it is hoped, the bond of commercial interdependence will be strengthened.

The Grocer, in recognition of the national character of the exhibition, will issue a special Western Exhibition Number, which will be sent to every firm in the grocery, provision and general store trade west of Port Arthur, including new firms, and any others who are not regular subscribers. In addition to a general write-up of the exhibition, The Grocer will give particular attention to illustrated write-ups of the exhibits in the grocery line, for the benefit of its readers, and in order that those in the West who are prevented from attending may have an idea of what manufacturers in the east have to offer them.

Association News

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS MEET.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in St. George's Hall on Monday evening, July 11, 1904. Final arrangements were completed for the excursion of the association to Buffalo on Wednesday, July 27. The committee reported favorably on their preliminary trip to Buffalo, and their suggestion to invite patrons of the excursion to lunch at Stattler's Restaurant, Ellicott Square, Buffalo, was adopted. This will be the headquarters of the association for the day, and the point from which the tally-hos will start, directly after luncheon, on a tour of the city. The executive are sparing no pains to make the excursion the most successful going out of Toronto this season, and all grocers, friends of grocers and holiday seekers may be assured of a first-class time.

A notice of motion given at the last meeting of the association to donate $50 to the Retail Merchants' Association, was discussed fully, and it was finally decided on a motion, by Messrs. Clark and Bell, that the donation be $25 instead of $50.

The matter of amalgamation with the Retail Merchants' Association was again brought up, and D. W. Clarke gave notice of motion for the next meeting, to the effect that the Retail Grocers' Association amalgamate with the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association. Considerable discussion followed, during which the opinion was expressed that such a change might be in the best interests of the association, especially in view of the fact that a larger body, in which the various trades were represented, might be more influential in securing legislation for the benefit of the retail trade generally, than a single association working by itself. The majority of the members present, however, were not in favor of amalgamation.

The morning fruit market question was also considered, the consensus of opinion being that the retail grocery trade would be benefited directly by such.

A letter from the secretary of the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association was read, calling the attention of the retail grocery trade to a proposition of the Dominion Canning Co., who profess to have secured an option on two or three independent canning companies. This concern is desirous of placing futures with the retail trade, and holds out the inducement of a reduction on prices ruling at the present time. On a motion of Messrs. Bell and Davis, a committee was appointed to confer with the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association.

It was moved and seconded that a letter of condolence be sent to F. Lutterel.

The Grocer has much pleasure in referring to the excellent showing made by the grocers of Toronto in the horse show on Dominion Day. Without question, theirs was one of the best exhibitions of any of the different trades represented.

MONTREAL GROCERS' PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was held this year at Delorimier Park. A programme of over twenty interesting athletic events was carried out on Wednesday, July 13, and a thoroughly good time passed. The prizes awarded included many generous contributions from leading Montreal grocers. Merrymakers came from all parts of the province to join in the outing. A fuller account will be given in next week's issue of Grocer.

EXECUTIVE MEETING OF WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

A MEETING of the executive of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild was held on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, in the council room of the Board of Trade, Montreal. Among the western members were: J. F. Eby, of the Eby, Blain Co., Toronto; G. Bristol, of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton; H. C. Beckett, of W. H. Gillard & Co., Hamilton; T. B. Escott, London, and J. Millar, of Whitehead & Turner, Quebec.

Mayor Laporte, of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, presided. Matters of great importance were under discussion, among others the question of a readjustment of the selling terms and the canning situation. Both of these two subjects have been of absorbing interest for some time past, and no doubt at this meeting some united action was agreed upon, which will be in the interest of both the jobbing men and retail trade. The conditions of trade during the past decade, and the changes that have been introduced in the methods of distributing goods from the manufacturer until they reach the consumer, have been such that a radical change is found to be necessary, and the concerted action of a body of business men, such as constitutes the Wholesale Grocers' Guild, should evolve a basis satisfactory to all.

During the Wednesday session an adjournment was made to attend the twenty-fourth annual picnic of the Retail Grocers' Association of Montreal, at Delorimier Park, where, under the leadership of Mayor Laporte and L. E. Geoffrion, president of the Montreal section of the D. W. G. Guild, the visiting members were introduced to their fellow "detailistes" of Montreal. All enjoyed the little outing very much.

MEETING OF TORONTO GROCERY CLERKS.

THE monthly meeting of the Grocery Clerks' Association of Toronto was held on Tuesday evening, July 12, in Room 2 of the Temple building. The question of finishing the programme of Summer sports, some of which were of necessity laid over from the annual picnic on account of inclement weather, was discussed, and it was decided to have the remaining events played off at the next regular meeting of the association. The most interesting of these is an auction sale, part of which will be oral and part written. A committee was appointed to notify the members of the association to this effect, and decide the subjects of the auction sale.

The association received with favor a proposition from The Grocer, inviting the members to contribute to its reading columns on any subject of interest to the retail grocery trade. Such contributions will be received and the best of them published in The Grocer of July 28, the successful contributor to be sent The Grocer for one year.

GOSSIP ABOUT THE CANNERS.

During the past week the report has been current in Toronto canned goods circles that a new combination is in process of formation; and that the said combination has secured an option on two or three of the independent canning factories through the country. A letter has been received from the promoters of this concern by the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association, as well as the Retail Grocers' Association of Toronto, asking for their co-operation and soliciting their patronage and promising reduced prices in canned fruits, etc.

The Grocer interviewed several members of the wholesale trade on the subject, but found that they were not concerning themselves seriously about the new project.

"SALADA" as usual on top.

Won by 419,141 pounds. Nearly half a million.

On January 29th, 1904, there appeared a letter in "The Canadian Grocer," signed by Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt, of which the following is an extract :

> "If the 'SALADA' Tea Co. really think that there is a greater demand in Canada for "their packets than there is for Blue Ribbon Tea, we would be glad to have the sales "of 'SALADA' and Blue Ribbon for 1903 investigated by a chartered accountant. If "his decision is in favor of 'SALADA' we will pay all expenses and donate five hundred "dollars to any charity the 'SALADA' Tea Co. may name. Should the investigation "prove that there is a greater sale in Canada (we don't do business in the United States "so must exclude that territory) of Blue Ribbon than there is of 'SALADA,' the "'SALADA' Tea Co. shall pay the expenses of the investigation and donate five "hundred dollars to the Winnipeg General Hospital."

Messrs. Clarkson & Cross have completed their investigation and have decided that there was 419,141 lbs. more "SALADA" Tea sold IN CANADA than there was of Blue Ribbon in 1903.

419,141 pounds more "SALADA" sold in Canada in one year than Blue Ribbon; this is more than twenty-five (25) car-loads, or, one hundred and twenty-five (125) heavy dray-loads, or, about five thousand (5,000) ordinary chests, or, nine thousand (9,000) half-chests more "SALADA" Tea sold in Canada in one year than there is of its largest competitor.

From the actual figures there must have been fully EIGHTY-FOUR MILLION (84,000,000) cups MORE "SALADA" Tea used in Canada during 1903 than there was of its next largest competitor. This means over Seventeen Cups for every man, woman and child in the Dominion, and this without counting the enormous trade done by "SALADA" throughout the United States, West Indies and elsewhere.

QUALITY tells in the long run, and that quality you can get only in "SALADA."

"SALADA"—Toronto, Montreal, New York, Baltimore, Chicago, San Francisco, etc.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Groceries.

Toronto, July 14, 1904.

THE volume of trade in groceries during the week under review has been fair, and the general impression seems to be that July so far has been an exceptionally good month. One of the Toronto grocery brokers, however, says he has never seen the wholesale trade so dubious about buying. Canned goods continue interesting, the market being active and prices firm, especially in corn and tomatoes. The salmon trade continues brisk, and spot stocks are being rapidly picked up. An improved demand in canned fruits from the Northwest is noted. The grocery trade is taking considerable interest in a reported new combination of canners, which claims to have an option on two or three independent canning factories, and to be about to revolutionize the trade. Sugar continues very firm. Syrups and molasses are quiet. Coffee is firm, and the scarcity of low grade Rios continues. Teas are quiet as well as spices, rice and tapioca, and foreign dried fruits.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods market continues firm and active. Corn has jumped to $1.30 and $1.35, and in some quarters it is thought there is not sufficient on hand to last until October 1. One wholesaler says corn has not been so high as far back as he can remember as it is as the present time. Tomatoes are firm and spot stocks of salmon are being rapidly picked up. In canned salmon the market is even livelier than it was a week ago. The demand for canned fruit has fallen off considerably except in the Northwest, where there has been an active market. Canned meats continue very active in all lines. The principal topic of conversation among the trade is a new combination of canners, said to be in process of formation, and to be already soliciting the patronage of the retail trade direct, on the ground of promising cheaper canned goods. A representative of The Grocer heard a remark made on the street within the present week to the effect that things were going to be interesting in canned goods during the next few months, and that retailers were not going to have to pay as high prices as have ruled during the past year. SUGAR

The market has gradually assumed a stronger turn and there have been considerable transactions in raws at full prices for spot and nearby sugars. At a fractional advance for July shipment from Cuba sales have been made at 2 5/8c c. and f. N. Y. for basis 95, which is equal to 4.02 duty paid for basis 96, and there are further sellers on this basis; for the moment, however, buyers have withdrawn from the market, as recent purchases were heavy. As we went to press last week a parcel of 30,000 bags Cubans changed hands at basis 2 5/8c for 95 test. The present tendency is for Cuban holders to demand a further advance for the balance of their crop, and they will probably obtain the same ultimately. There are still five central factories grinding in the island, but as the supply is very limited the wisdom of continuing operations is doubtful.

Recent predictions that American refiners would have to purchase freely in Europe have been borne out in part within the past week or two. It is reported that they took advantage of the holiday to buy 20,000 tons of beet sugar in Europe, which added to previous purchases would give some 40,000 to 50,000 tons for shipment to Atlantic ports and New Orleans. Spot quotations for centrifugals remain nominal at 3.9 for 96 test in the absence of sales.

There is some sugar in store which is held for 4c, but for the moment buyers are indifferent. For shiument the price remains unchanged as above indicated.

There have been heavy purchases of Java sugars at 10s 3d c. and f. N. Y., and at 10s 4½d c. i. f. for basis 96, which equals 3.97 duty paid for July-August shipment. Fully 17,000 tons changed hands at these figures. Javas are now held at 10s 6d, c. and f.

There has been further improvement in Europe during the week where beets have advanced from 9s 5¼d to 9s 9d basis f. o. b. Hamburg, and as we go to press the tone is a shade easier with 88 per cent. quoted nominally at 9s 7½d, which is equivalent to duty paid parity of 4.04 for 96 test centrifugals.

Receipts at U. S. four ports for the week ending July 6 were 32,290 tons, with meltings 28,000 tons; 12,000 tons less than for the previous week, the reduction being owing to the holiday. Stocks are reported at 210,286 tons. Combined stocks of Cuba and America were 349,286 tons, against 653,061 tons for the same time last year, a decrease of 303,775 tons. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,519,286 tons, as against 2,861,105 tons last year, the decrease being 341,819 tons.

Statistics just to hand from Europe show a very considerable increase in the consumption of the principal countries since the bounties were removed. Excluding Russia, the figures show the total consumption from September to May, inclusive, to have been 2,983,556 tons, against 2,441,052 tons for the corresponding period the previous year, the increase being 542,504 tons, or 22 per cent. since September 1, 1903. This is a very strong factor in reviewing the sugar situation, which should not be lost sight of.

There is a good demand for refined both in the United States and Canada, and there are no changes in quotations to record.

Locally the consumption has been surprisingly good, despite the small outturn and poor quality of the strawberry crop. Our quotations are as follows :

Par s lumps in 50-lb. boxes	5 18

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Very little New Orleans molasses is coming to this market at present on account of the firm price. The volume of trade is comparatively small at any season, and it has been suggested that the consumption of New Orleans molasses might be increased materially if only a higher grade could be brought into favor with the trade. With regard to a reported corner of the market in Montreal, the Toronto end of the trade profess to have been unaffected. The quantity of West Indian stuff used here is small. A recent visitor from Barbadoes, however, confirms the report of a firm market there, the price of Barbadoes having risen 1c.

The latest revision of the new tariff by which further stipulation has been made that molasses must be a direct importation from countries entitled to

FOREIGN NUTS.

A fair trade in foreign nuts is reported for the week under review at unchanged prices. The bulk of trade for this season is undoubtedly in peanuts. Advices from Bordeaux say the outlook for the coming crop of Bordeaux and Chabert walnuts is considered better than last year's, although the prospects for Grenobles are uncertain. In some localities damage has been done by unfavorable weather early in the season, but reports from most sections seem favorable to a full average crop. Our quotations are as follows :

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Eggs are in almost the same position as last week, with perhaps a tendency for the market to harden. The range quoted for this week is 15 to 16c, although not a large quantity of the extras which bring 16c is coming to hand. Receipts are only moderate. The price offered abroad is still below what can be accepted by dealers, and they have now reached the point where they do not expect export orders. A Toronto produce merchant who has just returned from a trip to England says that very few in that country think dealers here will pull out at the prices which they are forced to pay. The latter are quite prepared to witness a heavy loss on this year's business in the egg branch of the produce markets.

HONEY

The honey market is dull and featureless. We quote the following prices :

BEANS.

A fair volume of trade is doing in beans for this season of the year, especially in the wholesale grocery trade. Provisioners, however, say beans are quiet. Last week's quotations continue unchanged. Our quotations are as follows :

Beans, mixed, per bush		1 40

APPLES.

There is nothing new to report in evaporated apples. A small volume of trade is being transacted at quotation prices. We quote the following :

Evaporated apples, per lb	0 06½

Green Fruits.

Trade in green fruits is reported as brisk for the week, with the volume of local fruit increasing in volume daily. The orange trade has been particularly good, the demand being for the best quality of stock. This is accounted for by the comparative scarcity and high price of local fresh fruits. The demand for lemons has been slow because of the continued cool weather. Havana pines are now off the market, which is being supplied with fancy stock from Florida at considerable advance in price. California cherries are off the market, and home grown stock is coming freely. Strawberries are comparatively dear in price, being quoted as high as 9 and 10c, as against 6 and 8½c last week. Supplies have been coming slowly, but they are beginning to come rather more freely again, and if the weather continues favorable it is thought the strawberry season will last another week or ten days. Tennessee tomatoes are out of season, and stocks are now arriving from Jersey. Cantaloupes are coming principally from Georgia and Baltimore sections. California apricots are off the market for the present season. California pears are quoted for the first time this week, and peaches are considerably easier in price. During the week there was a drop in peaches to 75c a basket, but prices have since recovered. Local raspberries are arriving on the market, which means that no more will be imported from Delaware for the time being. The price for raspberries has fluctuated during the week, and on Tuesday the range was from 10 to 14c. The demand, however, is steadily improving. Our quotations are as follows :

Vegetables.

There has been a good demand the past week for all kinds of vegetables, and supplies are coming in very freely. Especially is this so with green stuff, of which there is a good supply on the market. Canadian new potatoes have slightly decreased in price, they selling now from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel. New carrots have slumped the past week from 40 and 50c to 20 and 25c; there is a decrease in beets of 10c per doz. Green cucumbers are in brisk demand, one dealer having received no less than three carloads during the week. Local celery has appeared on this market. Our quotations are as follows :

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The grain market continues good, Manitoba wheat having again advanced in price during the week under review, owing to the wetness of the season, the increased export demand, and in sympathy with the advance in the American markets. Manitoba northern Nos. 1 and 2 have each advanced 1c, while No. 3 has gone up from 1 to 1½c. Red and white wheat have each advanced 1c. Oats are ½c firmer. Our quotations are as follows :

FLOUR.

Firmer prices generally rule the market this week. During the week under review Manitoba wheat patents advanced in price from $4.60 and $4.80 to $4.70 and $4.85; strong bakers' from $4.40 and $4.60 to $4.45 and $4.60; straight roller from $4.35 and $4.50 to $4.40 and $4.55. This is due to the advance in wheat caused by the excessive rains, which have done great damage to wheat crops, especially in Manitoba. We quote the following :

Hides, Skins and Wool.

Trade in this market is very good. Unwashed wools have risen from 1c to 2c per lb., and fleece wool, new clip, has also risen 1c to 2c per lb. This is due to the fact that wools in the English market have risen 10 per cent., consequently the rise in the Canadian market. We quote the following prices :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 14, 1904.

Groceries.

AGAIN canned goods occupy the market prominently. Tomatoes and corn are holding the strong position they reached some time ago. Sugar also has attracted considerable attention. Just as the paper went to press last week an advance was announced of five cents all round, and the probabilities are that further advances may take place any day. It is well to look into sugar. There are other elements to be considered, such as the incoming fruit crops, all of which are presaged to be good. This always accelerates the sales and often stiffens the prices of all kinds of sugar. The American refiners seem to be well supplied with early purchases of cane sugar and wholesale dealers and customers seem to be in the position of waiting for a revival of demand, after some weeks of quietness. Pepper is again lower in price, and the reason given from abroad is forced sales. Tellicherry and Malabar peppers are easier. Meantime the peppers from which the finer grades of white are manufactured maintain their values. The Singapore market is weak for tapioca of all kinds. Sago is reported quiet and unchanged. Cochin ginger and Jamaica remained firm, and the same may be said of nutmegs and mace. Canary seed is dearer, and maintains its strong position, more pessimistic news having arrived from Turkey. However, in addition to the Plate seed to depend upon, it has been learned that fine crops are reported from Morocco, so that the Turkish folks cannot have the canary seed all their own way. Molasses continues firm and in good demand. The jobbers are worried over the situation, as no new stock can be obtained from the Barbadoes. Evaporated apples have jumped a half a cent, and are holding strong at 7c. Tea and coffee remain in the same position, with strong markets, and no quotable change. Green fruits are coming in abundantly, and new raspberries are attracting the market. Strawberries are about done, and cherries and plums are dominating at present. For midsummer, when the word dullness is so flippantly applied, trade is generally reported good; and collections from the country are first rate. The grocers' annual picnic will break the week's business in this province.

SUGAR.

Sugar is strong. The advance of 5c all round last week gave the trade something more to think about. The refined market is said to have been disappointing to jobbers. The visible supply of sugar is much larger than last year. Nevertheless, the demand for sugar has been less than was expected. Still further advances are expected. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The reported corner in molasses has not yet been unearthed by the trade. No big houses here have any doubt about the position of molasses. Strength marks it at every point. News from the islands points out that not a whit of exaggeration has gone abroad. No crop is available there now. Two large sugar boats from Barbadoes are expected in port in a few days. They are the Yanariva and Indianapolis, both from Barbadoes. The Indianapolis has 3,200 tons of sugar, and the Yanariva, due Thursday, has 4,000 tons of sugar, while each has 1,000 puncheons of molasses. We quote:

COFFEE.

Some fluctuations took place during the week in coffee. Some of the cheap grades of Rios advanced. This was occasioned by small arrivals, and the reported scarcity due to light frosts and rains in Brazil. Demand is said to be affected by the speculation, which was rife at the beginning of the year. The Brazil crop is four million bags below the expected crop, while on the other hand the receipts of coffees other than Rios have been heavy and quite equal to the demand, so that this will tend to keep prices down for a while. TEA.

The demoralized state of the tea trade in the United States and Canada, which has lasted for some weeks, shows little signs of immediate improvement, but it is gratifying to know that more inquiry is now being felt in the country, and it is believed a healthier tone will shortly be witnessed locally; in fact, several parcels have already changed hands this week, including a block of 600 H. C. Ceylon greens, sold on this market from London at practically the same figure which was paid on the same standards a month or so ago. This, with further information received from the country, that stocks are exceptionally low for this time of the year, is evidence of improvement, and with the higher prices for new teas ruling in the primary markets, particularly Ceylon and Indian blacks, Moyunes, Pingsueys, China blacks and Formosas, with supplies considerably short of previous seasons to date, it is generally expected a good six or seven months' activity is ahead of us.

Japans, however, are surprisingly low at the present time, but the leaf is very inferior, as compared with last year's teas. Third crops invariably show considerable improvement in this respect, and we therefore look for higher prices and an active market very shortly.

Reports from the Assam district are most encouraging for the coming season's crop. The early arrivals may not be more than average, but the opinion of experts is that better teas will come in later. Russian merchants have been large buyers in the London and Colombo markets, and have been willing to pay higher rates than the combined world of consumers could pay for low grade and medium teas. For this reason prices have held steady to firm. Reports from Hankow relative to Congous show that the market opened with a few choice parcels. Total settlements amounted to 29,000 half chests, and were mainly for Russian account. Quality is up to the average, but not up to last year's superior crop. From Japan it is learned that the entire first crop was sold out, and the arrivals now coming in to Yokohama and Kobe are of second pickings, and the liquor is considerably darker than the first crop. The market has ruled steady; in fact, for a country at war, the Japanese have handled their crop with great care, and have secured always full market prices. At home no particular teas seem to be forced. Stocks throughout the country are not heavy, and no heavy buying is being done. According to warehouse delivery, the average consumption is being maintained.

CANNED GOODS.

California prices for the coming season have been announced, and they are not alarming. Little change has been made over the last season's prices. Peaches will be higher, and it is pleasing to note that while apricots are said to be less in crop than they were last year, the valuation from California has not advanced. The demand for tomatoes is strong, and the supply limited. No vegetable has held a stronger position for some time than is occupied now by tomatoes. Even corn, which is away up, cannot be said to be stronger than tomatoes. Canned meats have had some ready sale during the picnic season, but on the whole are easier in tone. From the sardine fisheries of France comes the news that the fish are running small and prices are high on account of the excellent demand from packers and the fresh fish buyers. Pineapples are scarce, and prices may be high. There is a good demand for fresh packed lobsters. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

In the currant market a decline has been reported in Vostizzas, caused by some forced sales. Growing crops are said to be fine, and all indications are in favor of abundant crops of excellent quality. This, however, may tend to depress the spot market. Sultanas are firm with good demand, and every prospect for higher prices. News of the growing crop continues unfavorable. Stocks of valencias remain small, and they are moving slowly. Large crops of California fruits are reported, and altogether things are looking well.

Watt, Scott & Goodacre report: New crop of currants is progressing favorably under good weather conditions; the crop, however, is not housed yet, and symptoms of peronosporus have made themselves evident in many districts, which a damp period would develop disastrously. The market is firm in Patras.

There has been a good demand for Sultana raisins on spot, buyers taking advantage of local prices below cost of import from Smyrna.

Advances abroad are well maintained, both for Tarragonas and Valencia shelled almonds.

Bordeaux market continues very quiet for prompt shipment of shelled walnuts, and quotations are unchanged for September shipment. E. M. Dadelszen & Co. advise: "Reports as to the new crop promise a big one in almost every district, and as this applies also to the centre of France this year, where the oil makers are, these latter will probably not be buying at all in our districts, so that prices for exportation ought to be reasonable."

Quotations for September shipment, for new crop Smyrna figs, have been out some two weeks, without buyers taking hold, preferring to wait until the crop, which promises to be a fairly good one, in contrast to Sultana raisins, is further advanced.

Green Fruits.

Abundance of green fruits have come in, and bananas still rule high, being in the greatest demand. Over one railway in one day as many as twenty-three cars of bananas arrived. This was the N. Y. Central on C. P. R. tracks. In fact, the C. P. R. get the credit of the haulage. Pineapples are very scarce. New Canadian raspberries have taken hold of the market, and are selling well at 14 to 16c. The supplies seem abundant and of excellent quality. Gooseberries are now being handled plentifully, and cherries and plums are favorites with buyers, even though the prices are high. We quote:

Fish.

Activity still holds in the market, despite that so many wealthy consumers are out of town. Brook trout still holds at 18c, and it is hard to get at that. Mackerel is high again, having advanced a couple of cents per lb. Scarcity is the reason given. Gaspe salmon has again resumed a normal position, but the demand is good, and the price has advanced. Trout and whitefish still hold at 8c, and the demand is fair all around. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Eggs continue to hold a reasonably strong position. The receipts were more on Monday last than they were on Saturday, and so on each day the arrivals have been steady and plentiful. Straight gathered stock was in good demand, and as the offerings fell off a little the market held strong, and prices stepped up a-quarter and a-half a cent per dozen. Sales were made at 15 to 15 1-2c. No change was noted in candled stock, which sold at 17c, and seconds at 12 1-2 to 13c.

BEANS.

The bean market is slow. In a jobbing way, choice primes were sold at $1.35 to $1.40 a bushel, while car lots of choice primes were quoted at $1.30, and primes at $1.25 per bushel.

HONEY.

The consumption of honey is very small at this time of the year, and the market remains unchanged. White clover is quoted at 13 1-2 to 14c. Extracted white clover remains at 8 1-2 to 9c in 10 lb. tins, and 7 to 7 1-2c in 300 lb. kegs. Buckwheat remains at 6 and 7c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

The demand for maple products is steady, and for the time of year, is considered fair. We quote:

POTATOES.

Potatoes are selling at 35 to 55c a bag in car lots, while new stock is getting cheaper every day. New ones are bringing $3 to $3.40.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Trade in flour showed an improved feeling. Greater activity was noted both for domestic and export account. The fact that wheat has shown so much strength may induce buyers to come forward. We quote:

USEFUL BOOKLET.

IN connection with Maddock's ware, "£ Sterling Rate Books" have been issued for the benefit of the trade. One issue is for Royal Vitreous Dinnerware, giving the sterling list price of each article made and the corresponding rate per £ from $2.50 to $12,—a very convenient and useful booklet for marking both cost and selling price of goods.

The other issue is expressly for Maddock's celebrated Vitrified Welded Edge Hotelware, showing sterling list price of each article and rate per £ from $6 to $12, to which has been added, in tabulated form, the capacities and measurements of each article. Thus the actual size as well as the trade size of any article can be readily ascertained.

These books are being distributed in Canada by E. W. Klotz, 24 Wellington street west, Toronto, Maddock's Canadian representative. Any one interested, not already in possession of a copy, can have same for the asking.

Mr Klotz has established an excellent trade in Canada for Maddock's goods, which are guaranteed not to craze. This feature alone is of the greatest importance to both dealer and householder.

Maddock's Vitrified Hotelware is admirably adapted for rough usage to which crockery is subject in hotels, restaurants, on board ship, railways, etc. The distinguishing feature of this ware is that it is as hard and dense as the glaze itself, but not as brittle as china. It also has a reinforced edge on all flat pieces, known as the welded edge, which, while doubling the strength, adds but little weight to the article.

Maddock's ware has enjoyed high favor among many of the largest users of this class of goods. An ocean steamship breakage test made in 1901 provides an interesting item. The average breakage per trip, in a trial of 7 trips, was 1188 pieces of Maddock's ware, while the average breakage per trip, in a trial of 9 trips, was 1773 pieces of a competitive make. This statement is given in full in another booklet issued by E. W. Klotz, of Toronto, entitled, "Get Wise." It is also worth having, and should be in possession of every crockery dealer catering to hotel and similar demands. It is sent free to those who request it.

Charles Allerton & Sons.

This old established firm of Staffordshire potters are makers of such a great variety of ware that no crockery dealer can help but find something of interest.

Their china is of excellent quality, which the housewife soon discovers when she finds that the cups of Allerton's china do not stain with hot tea or coffee, as many other English makes do. This feature also carries with it excellent wearing properties in general, while the vast range of patterns covers prices to suit all classes of buyers. Their earthenware specialties cover a large field, such as jardinieres, lustre jugs, teapots, tov cans, etc., printed teas and plates at specially low prices, painted bowls, etc.

E W. Klotz, of Toronto, Allerton's Canadian representative, shows a full line of samples.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

R. Campbell's Sons' Hamilton pottery is running at full capacity, never having been idle a day in eight years. Grocers and crockery men are invited to call and see the pottery in process of manufacture.

Special figures are quoted by the Eby, Blain Co., Toronto, on the well-known "Nonpareil" Brand of Santa Clara California prunes. They have just received a carload, containing all sizes, in 25 and 50 lb. boxes.

White & Co., Toronto, sole Toronto representatives of the "California Fruit Distributors," are receiving a good many cars of California fruit these days.

R. Campbell's Sons, Hamilton, are expecting shortly a shipment of very fine Japanese chinas, porcelains and bronzes. The bronzes are an entirely new line.

In store with L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, 100 cases St. Louis Vichy Water, "Red Clover" Brand. This brand has secured good demand from the trade.

B. O. Beland, 1684 Notre Dame street. Montreal, extends an invitation to the visiting Ontario merchants to inspect his wine vaults and warehouses.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., have received into store a shipment of "Phonograph" Brand of grated pineapple, direct from the Bahamas. These are guaranteed finest quality, and low price.

In store this week with B. O. Beland, Montreal, 100 puncheons of choicest French wines.

Gorman, Eckert & Co., of London, report that they have just received a carload of choice Santos coffee by steamer Strabo, via New York. This shipment has come from the famous plantations of Brazil, and Gorman, Eckert & Co. state that this shipment has a fine flat bean, that it roasts splendidly, and is of a very rare cup quality. This is a good opportunity for the trade to get quotations and samples of an extra fine quality of coffee.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering canned tomatoes in gallon tins at an interesting figure.

Buyers of canned salmon will do well to communicate with H. P. Eckardt & Co.

Heinz' mustard dressing is a good seller, especially at this season.

DECLINE OF PORK AND LARD.

For some days the demand for pork in Montreal has been small, and packers felt the position so keenly that on Tuesday evening it was decided to reduce the price of pork 50c per barrel. There was some wavering in the market for pure and kettle lard, although no quotable change took place. However, in compound lard there was a decline of a quarter of a cent per pound. Some cuts of bacon have suffered a drop of half a cent a pound also.

FOREIGN TRADE OF CHINA.

According to Chinese customs returns the empire's trade in 1903, imports and exports, amounted to $346,298,624. The trade of 1894 amounted to $185,732,480. Each year since 1894, except 1900-1901, shows a steady gain. In those years there was a considerable falling off. The increase in 1902 and 1903 only partly made up for the difference. There is every reason to hope and look for better times just as soon as the country settles down to a healthy normal development of its vast resources.

The imports of 1903—about $208,640,000—were 4 per cent. larger than those of 1902. The importations of petroleum, 84,998,335 gallons, shows a falling off of 5 1-2 per cent. against 1902; but the value, $10,240,000, was an increase of 36 per cent. over that paid for the 1902 importations. The decrease in the quantities imported are borne by Borneo and America. Russian and Sumatrian oils show an increase of 35 per cent. and 18 per cent., respectively.

A PRETTY SOUVENIR.

Thoughtfulness of others is a rare gift. This was illustrated the other day when Mr. Wm. Dobie, general manager and treasurer of the E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, who is enjoying his holidays at Atlantic City, N. J., showed that he was not too busy to remember The Grocer. He sent up a handsome souvenir booklet, illustrating scenes at Atlantic City, that would tempt anyone to go down there. Mr. Dobie is stopping at the Marlborough House, where many prominent Canadians make their headquarters. The Grocer appreciates this attention, and extends to Mr. Dobie further wishes for a pleasant holiday.

A VISITOR FROM OTTAWA.

Mr. H. C. Ellis, retail grocer, Ottawa, favored the Toronto offices of The Grocer with a call last week. Mr. Ellis was in Toronto attending the annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association, and had the honor of being elected second vice-president of the association for the ensuing year.

He reports a splendid volume of trade in the grocery line in Ottawa so far this year, especially during June, which proved a record month. Trade conditions are healthy, and the future all along the Ottawa Valley is very promising. The scarcity of labor, which was such a drawback to trade in general a year ago, is no longer a disturbing factor. Mr. Ellis is an enthusiastic admirer of The Grocer, to which he has been a regular subscriber and contributor for some years.

Mr. H. C. Ellis, Ottawa, 2nd vice-President Retail Merchants' Association.

PERSONAL MENTION.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., wholesale grocers, Guelph, have secured the services of E. S. Little, of Galt, who will represent them locally and in the County of Waterloo. Mr. Little has had previous experience in the retail grocery business, and as he is an energetic salesman he will doubtless prove an acquisition to his new employers. His engagement is the direct result of an advertisement in The Grocer, to which the R. & J. H. Simpson Co. replied.

Mr. Leacock, of Musson & Co., Barbadoes, was in Toronto last week, interviewing the trade.

NEW DEPARTMENTAL STORE.

T. Eaton & Co., Toronto, have decided to erect a large departmental store in Winnipeg, and have purchased the entire block of land fronting on Portage avenue, and extending from Donald street to Hargrave street, paying in cash for this beautiful site $1,250,000. Some fine private residences are situated in this block, including the Strevel residence and terrace, which was bought for $90,000 cash. It is as yet unknown as to when work will commence, but it will be within the near future, and all buildings on this property will be torn down.

SALE OF WIARTON SUGAR FACTORY.

The entire property and plant of the Wiarton Beet Sugar Mfg. Co. was advertised to be sold at auction at 68 King street east, Toronto, to-day, July 15, at 2.30 p. m. The factory was completed in 1903, and was equipped with new modern beet sugar machinery.

BARBADOES MARKET REPORT.

Leacock & Co., Barbadoes, in their latest market report, say that imports of American foodstuffs have been limited, that flour of all grades is in moderate supply, but consumption almost confined to family and superfine grades, sales of extras being particularly small. Receipts of cornmeal are ample, but the tone of the market is firmer. The local bread factory, which is fully equipped, is supplying the market with an article of superior quality.

Canada and B. E. peas are salable, splits are in supply and Ballam rice has declined, with stock not excessive, yet ample for present consumption.

Ribs would sell, beef cuttings are in full supply, lard compound is in over supply, and the market in fishstuffs continues healthy.

The weather continues dry; rain is generally wanted throughout the island, and the reaping of the cane is drawing to a close.

Owing to the decreased estimates of the molasses crop the market was advanced a few days since to 13c per gallon, and the remainder of this sweet closed out.

CHANGE IN SELLING TERMS.

The Montreal section of the Dominion Grocers' Guild decided on Monday last to adopt radical measures for the rejuvenation of trade. After hearing a number of reports from experts and the advice of some of the leading grocers, it was unanimously decided to sell all groceries, with exception of tea, on a basis of 30 days net, or 1 per cent. 10 days. This arrangement, it is anticipated, will profit the trade generally. It takes effect July 15, and will no doubt have a salutary influence upon the general grocery business.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' TAX.

FOLLOWING is a statement relative to the commercial travelers' tax charged in various countries, published by the Commercial Labor and Statistical Department of the Board of Trade, London, England:

Argentine Republic.

Commercial travelers, whether selling goods in Argentina, or merely showing samples and soliciting orders, must secure licenses. The cost of these in the town of Buenos Ayres and the national territories, as distinct from the other provinces of the confederation, is $50 currency (about £4 7s 6d) per annum. In the principal provinces the following license fees are levied on commercial travelers:

Jujuy, $200 (about $85, Canadian currency) per annum.

Salta, $1,680 (about $715, Canadian currency) per annum. Licenses are also issued for the half year in Salta.

Tucuman, $400 to $800 (from $170 to $340, Canadian currency) per annum, according to class of firm.

Cordoba, $600 (about $255, Canadian currency) per annum.

Santa Fe, $600 (about $255, Canadian currency) per annum.

Entre Rios, $600 (about $255, Canadian currency) per annum.

Corrientes, $505 (about $215, Canadian currency) per annum.

San Juan, $960 (about $408, Canadian currency) per annum. Monthly licenses are also issued in San Juan.

Mendoza, $600 (about $255, Canadian currency) per annum.

Santiago del Estero, $500 (about $213, Canadian currency) per annum.

Riga, $100 (about $42, Canadian currency) per annum.

Buenos Ayres, $400 (about $170, Canadian currency) per annum.

Samples without commercial value are passed by the Argentine customs without payment of import duty; samples of value are charged with import duty, which is refunded if they are re-exported within six months.

Belgium.

Reciprocal treatment is accorded to commercial travelers in Belgium, and consequently no restrictions are imposed on them, nor is any license duty charged.

Samples imported by foreign commercial travelers are admitted "en franchise temporaire," provided that certain conditions are complied with for the protection of the revenue. Samples too small to be used for other purposes are duty free.

Colombia.

No licenses are required by commercial travelers.

Samples in small pieces are admitted free of duty, provided that their total weight does not exceed 25 kilos. The import duty paid on other samples is returned if the samples are re-exported within a period of twelve months.

Germany.

Commercial travelers must, in order to carry on operations in Germany, obtain a license from the German authorities. Commercial travelers soliciting orders may only carry samples or patterns, and not the actual goods they offer.

Samples of goods which cannot be used for other purposes may be imported duty free into Germany. If doubt exists as to their utility for other purposes, the importer is allowed to render them unfit for use under official control. Samples of tobacco, foodstuffs and the like are excluded from free importation as samples.

Greece.

Commercial travelers are not required to go through any formalities in order to be able legally to exercise their calling in Greece, nor are they required to take out any license, provided they come and go merely as bearers of samples and receivers of orders. Agents of foreign firms resident in Greece are, however, required to take out trade licenses.

Samples without commercial value are exempt from import duty. But when they have a value, as capable of being utilized in commerce in whole or in part, their delivery from the custom house shall be permitted under conditions of transit, after the identity of each sample has been assured by an additional mark affixed by the customs authority, and satisfactory security has been given for the payment of the import duty in the event of their not having been exported from the kingdom within twelve months in the same condition, whether from the same port, or from another port where importation is allowed.

Italy.

In practice no certificates of identity or licenses are required from commercial travelers, the Italian Government enforcing the production of certificates only in the case of countries which have adopted restrictive measures against Italian commercial travelers.

Samples of no commercial value intended to represent articles of which they form part, are exempt from duty. This exemption embraces also samples of paper and tapestry of sufficient size to show the whole pattern, as well as samples of porcelain. tissues, and other goods, comprising various patterns on one article, provided that the importer consents to render the same unfit for use.

Japan.

The business tax law of Japan imposed a tax on persons carrying on inter alia the businesses of agencies, middlemen and brokers. With regard to this tax it is found that merchants pay 5 yen* per 10,000 yen on wholesale transactions, and 15 yen per 10,000 yen on retail business done. They also pay 1 yen annually for each of their employes and 4 per cent. on their office rent.

*1 yen—49.8 cents.

In the case, however, of commercial travelers who do not sell their goods to customers direct, no special tax (beyond the ordinary income tax) appears to be payable.

Under the Japanese customs tariff law of March 26, 1897, articles temporarily imported as samples by commercial travelers are not subject to import duty, provided they are re-exported within six months of the date of importation; a sum of money equal to the amount of duty leviable, or security therefore, must, however, be deposited with the customs at the time of importation.

United States.

Under federal laws no special regulations exist affecting commercial travelers, and the Supreme Court of the United States has declared in numerous cases that no state can impose a license tax for the privilege of selling goods which at the time of sale are not within its borders; so that no license can be required in any state from commercial travelers who merely carry samples and take orders.

Articles of no mercantile value imported as samples not for sale, are not subject to duty or to formal entry in the United States. Edgings, textile fabrics, samples of piece-goods, cards of buttons, single gloves or stockings intended for use in selling the class of goods they represent, are free of duty. Samples imported in quantities and intended to be sold by jobbers are dutiable. All samples must be examined by the appraiser, and only those reported by him as samples of no mercantile value are admitted duty free.

PROMINENT RUSSIAN IN CANADA.

Among the visitors to the Toronto office of The Grocer this week was Mr. Fridkym, of Chicago. Mr. Fridkym is in Canada investigating the sugar refining industry in this country, and endeavoring to interest Canadian refiners in raw beet sugar from Russia. Mr. Fridkym represents his brother, P. B. Fridkym, who controls one of the largest sugar beet growing industries in the Russian Provinces of Norva and Kharkoff. The Fridkyms are in close touch with Ernolof, the Minister of Agriculture in Russia, and are desirous of introducing Russian raw beet sugar in the Canadian market.

They have been exploiting the United States markets for the last six years, but more or less unsuccessfully, on account of the high protective tariff ruling there. The average raw material in the State of Michigan shows only from 1 to 1 1-2 per cent. of sugar, while it is claimed for the Russian product that it yields as high as 16 or 17 per cent. Sugar beet growing has assumed big proportions in Russia, and growers are now attempting to place the raw material in foreign markets.

Mr. Fridkym will visit the sugar refiners of Eastern Canada before returning to his native country.

The BLUE RIBBON Firms sell more tea in Canada than Salada

SALADA'S CHALLENGE.

$500.00—FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

We believe that OUR INCREASE ALONE in sales of "SALADA" Ceylon Tea in the past year over our sales in 1902 was greater than the entire tea business of any other wholesale firm in Canada, in either packet or bulk tea.

If any Firm has a contrary opinion, we are prepared to donate Five Hundred Dollars—$500.00—to any Charitable Institution if we are wrong, the contesting Firm to do the same, if we prove absolutely that our INCREASE ALONE in the past year over the preceding one was greater than their entire business, packet or bulk, in 1903. We will allow the contestants to include in their sales Ceylon, India, China and Japan Teas; on our part THE INCREASE IN 1903 OF "SALADA" ALONE. Results to be published.

"SALADA," Toronto and Montreal.

Salada's sales as certified by Messrs. Clarkson & Cross—1,416,162 pounds

Certificate as to sales of BLUE RIBBON Firms.

We have examined the books of Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt, Winnipeg, and hereby certify that their sales of teas together with those of the BLUE RIBBON TEA COMPANY, Toronto, for the year 1903 (as found by Messrs. Clarkson & Cross), exceed 1,416,162 pounds.

(Sgd), NEWTON & DAVIDSON, Accountants.

Readers of "The Grocer" will remember the Challenge issued by Salada and the arrangements subsequently made between Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt and Messrs. P. C. Larkin & Co. for a comparison of BLUE RIBBON and Salada sales.

Whilst the issue left to the decision of Messrs. Clarkson & Cross was decided against us owing to Messrs. Clarkson & Cross feeling bound by the terms of the submission to exclude large quantities of our teas (packet and bulk) from the comparison (we think Messrs. Clarkson & Cross were strictly correct in the view they took of the matter), still, as the above certificate shews, the VICTORY is ours on the substantial question involved, namely, the quantity of tea sold.

Signed, G. F. & J. GALT.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, July 7, 1904.

THE shipment of fruit to the Dominion Exhibition at Winnipeg, which will be on exhibition here next Monday, will show to the people of Canada and other visitors to the great fair just what can be done in this province. This portion of the fruit will be from the lower mainland, in fact from Vancouver City and immediate vicinity, and will include all the varieties which are in condition at this time of the year. Some gooseberries, obtained yesterday from the gardens of Mr. Robert Kelly, of the wholesale grocery firm of Kelly & Douglas, are some of the best ever seen in this province.

The strict observance of the law by the Board of Horticulture, and its efficient officers, has benefited British Columbia immensely, for not a fruit pest can be found. Nearly every consignment of fruit from California is infected, and condemnations take place after the arrival of every steamer. Nursery stock, too, is well examined, and the stringency has resulted in the prevention of the entry of the pests which have worked such havoc in other places.

Markets in Vancouver are in fair condition this week. Strawberries, which have been on for a long time are now a glut in the market. The warm weather of the past week or two, and the entry of other fruits, have been the cause. As a consequence they are selling low. Cherries are plentiful, both local and imported, and are selling at from 40c to 50c per ten lb. box. Canteloupes are high, going at $4.50 a crate. Plums are fairly high, at $1.75 a crate; peaches, $1.50 to $1.75, and apricots, $1.50. The first watermelons are in, and will be in full force shortly. Oranges are scarce, and as a consequence have advanced 25c and 50c. Bananas are a favorite fruit in Vancouver, and if carloads are not just coming in, the supply is about exhausted. Just at present, it is the latter, but two carloads are expected. Californian apples have made their appearance, $2.25 a box, 40 lbs.

In groceries conditions are remaining about the same. Dried peaches have risen ⅝c. Eggs are pretty well cleaned up for the market in the Yukon, and are worth wholesale about 23c. Potatoes show a decline, owing to the arrival of new stock.

Prices in flour and feed remain unchanged, though with the decrease in northern freight rates much heavier shipments are looked for during the coming month.

On the whole business is good, and the tone of the dealers generally hopeful.

One thousand tons of raw sugar from Peru came in on the Kosmos liner Luxor for the refinery here. The raw material is imported in large quantities from Java, the largest portion coming from there, but some is brought from Peru, and also from Fiji. With the increase of trade on the west coast of the America, there may be more sugar come from Peru than has heretofore been the case.

An important meeting of canners was held here yesterday, being the first international convention of those engaged in the industry. All the matters appertaining to salmon canning were taken up, and the results were very satisfactory. Since the order has been issued allowing Canadians to put down salmon traps in Canadian waters, the Americans have shown themselves more amenable to argument. The fish passing in, come past the end of Vancouver Island first, where the Canadian traps are located, and already, though the run has not yet commenced, the catch has been good. Americans, too, would never observe a close time of 24 hours in one week to allow salmon to get to the spawning grounds. Yesterday, however, all these matters were taken up, and arranged amicably. The Dominion Government is thinking of allowing the same as the Americans do, and that is exactly what is bringing them to time. If it were adopted in other instances it would mean greater harmony, and a better conservation of Canadian interests.

Merchants in the Slocan District are very warm over the rank discrimination tariff recently put in force by the C. P. R., and are organizing to fight it. The towns, from which representatives were present at a meeting, were Sandon, Ainsworth, Slocan, Silverton, New Denver, Three Forks, Whitewater, and Kaslo, and they are organizing to battle against the railway company. The grievance is that while these towns are about 80 miles nearer the Pacific Coast than others, the latter are allowed to get their goods at 42c per hundred lbs. cheaper. A committee was appointed consisting of Mayor McNeish, Slocan; T. H. Wilson, Silverton; T. H. Hoben, New Denver; J. T. Kelly, Three Forks; Fred Ritchie, Sandon, and H. Giegerich, Kaslo, who will collect evidence and bring the matter before the Railway Commission.

Business in Dawson markets is brisk, but profits are not what they used to be. Merchants are now adopting the motto of small margins quick returns. Spring stocks are now getting in, but the low water in the river prevents full cargoes being taken by the steamers down from White Horse. Low prices in hay and oats are causing a good demand. Hay is down to 4½c per lb., and oats to 4¾c to 5c lb. It is expected that when the new stock comes in on the Summer freight schedule of the White Pass & Yukon, the price of hay will decline $5 a ton. The first eastern Canadian cases to arrive in refrigerator cars and steamers got there a week ago, 400 cases being in the first consignment. New ham and bacon are also on the market. Cheese is a drug on the Dawson market, and it is said there is enough to do for a couple of months. Twenty cents is the figure. Butter is dropping in price, and dealers state they are losing money. They claim that the butter selling in bricks at 30c costs 28c f. o. b. at Vancouver, which is not much out of the way for good butter, and they will have nothing else in Dawson. Grapenuts are out of the market, being one of the lines which have run out. Others are also short, but with the Spring trade all will now be replenished.

Live stock and merchandise of all kinds comprise the cargoes of the boats going north just now. Two hundred head of cattle and 500 head of sheep went up on Saturday last, and such shipments will continue till the close of navigation. A considerable amount of flour was on the Empress of China when she left for the Orient last Monday. The Empress took 225 tons alone from Washington State, this being one of the ports through which mills there send their product to the far east.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, July 9, 1904.

PRESENT conditions are in every way satisfactory, and the volume of trade has come quite up to expectations. Prices are generally well maintained, and there are indications that the available stocks are being largely drawn on.

The markets are steady, with the exception of sugar, which has taken an upward turn, and is now quoted at an advance of 5c.

Sugar—The market has now advanced, and Montreal granulated is quoted at $5.10 in barrels and $5 in sacks; yellows at $4.50. Wallaceburg still holds firmly at $4.95 in barrels and $4.85 in sacks.

Canned Vegetables—The market is firm and canned corn is now getting scarce, but is still quoted at $2.75 a case.

Rolled Oats—Prices are firm. The market quotes 80 lb. sacks at $2.25; 40 lb. at $2.30; 20 lb. at $2.35; 8 lb. at $2.65, and 6 lb. at $2.85.

Flour—The market is firm and the flour situation holds No. 1 patent at $2.45; No. 2 patent at $2.30; and No. 3 at $1.80.

Eggs—The market is now fairly steady and the demand is good. Eggs are now jobbing to the trade at 20c.

Cornmeal—The market is steady and prices firm. Cornmeal is quoted at $1.75 per sack, and 90c per ½ sack.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits — The market remains firm, but all kinds of evaporated fruits are scarce, especially California apricots, and 1903 choice are still offering at 13½c to 13½c a lb. 1904 apricots will be on the market in the course of two or three weeks, and will be quoted at 13c a lb.

Green Fruits—The market has advanced a little on some lines. Oranges are quoted at $4.75 a case, and sweets at $3.50 to $4 a case; lemons, $3.75 a case; peaches, $1.75 a case; bananas, $3 to $3.50 a bunch; plums, $2 to $2.25 a case; pears, in half boxes, $2; cherries, black or red, $1.50 a case; raspberries in pint boxes, $3 a case, and quarts $4; watermelons, $5 a doz.; tomatoes, $2 a case. Pineapples and watermelons are practically off the market. Apricots are quoted at $2 a case; rhubarb, 2c a lb.; cucumbers, 90c a doz.; cabbage, 4c a lb.; radishes, 15c a doz., and lettuce, 40c a doz.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., July, 1904.

THERE is a good steady business reported. A firmer feeling in several lines has resulted in brightening the outlook. One pleasant feature may be noted, though not strictly in grocery lines. There has been much more shipping in the harbor this Summer than for many seasons past. The depression in the lumber market means very much to us, and is perhaps the one unpleasant feature. There is a marked improvement in the tourist business, which is welcome. Certainly our cool weather cannot fail to be appreciated.

Trade here is being quite given over to the guild idea. We now have sugar, flour, tobacco, molasses and canned goods on the list, with such lines as some soaps, pickles, salt, etc., sold under signed agreement. It is certainly in many ways a good idea, particularly where there are so many jobbers as in St. John. It, of course, works to the disadvantage of some, and for this and other reasons some, not always the same, people stay out of all the agreements. There are several lines which, if they handle, they must agree to keep to the prices named.

Oil.

In burning oil the low prices are still quoted, and quite large future business is being booked. In paint oil, linseeds are firmer, but the local price remains unchanged. Turpentine, which has ruled high, is rather easier. Lubricating oils have a good, steady sale, with prices unchanged. Fish oil is somewhat dull, with prices rather lower.

Salt.

The cargo of Liverpool coarse salt just landed found a good market. There is not a large stock held. It will be a few weeks before any further arrivals. Prices are firmly held. In Canadian salt a good, steady sale is noted, particularly for cheese and butter salt in barrels.

Canned Goods.

As reported, the large trade of the province goes to the association. There are, however, at least three large buyers outside, and so at least one outside factory has found a good market here. The association has worked to their advantage. Practically the city trade have signed an agreement to sell at association prices. No line has been more cut than this, so a great advantage is expected. The association has not yet named prices and, while many feel this unfair, it is very much better than the former way, when goods were sold ahead at no profit, and the trade sometimes were not in a position to fill their contracts. In salmon prices are firm. It is said more than the list price has been paid for one brand of Spring fish. There has been a considerable effort made to buy below list price, and some few lots have been picked up. In spot goods, except salmon, which have been advanced, there are few changes. Vegetables are firmly held, particularly corn. Fruits are very firm, except gallon apples. Meats remain unchanged. Domestic fish are all firmly held.

Dried Fruits.

Spot business in not active. There is quite a steady sale for prunes, seeded raisins and currants in cartons. In new California prunes quite full orders are being placed. Prices were never as low. Sales of apricots and peaches are light, and prices are high. Dates are offered low. Figs are rather firmer this season. It is thought the market will be well supplied. Little is heard of new currants. Prices seem quite steady. In peels, orders are beling placed. Citron is higher than last year. Evaporated apples are firmly held and the sale is light. Onions are low. Some Egyptains held are very good stock. Denia onions are not sold here. Peanuts are firm at full prices. Cocoanuts are scarce.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are on the jump. Bananas are the active line. Supply last week was rather light, but receipts now are good and prices are rather easier. Oranges and lemons are higher. Prices for melons keep at full figures. This is a business little liked by the dealers. White tomatoes are more plentiful and quite full prices are quoted. Cucumbers are lower. Some green apples and pears are seen. In California peaches, apricots and plums, prices remain quite firm. Pears are shortly expected. The market is now supplied with local strawberries. The wholesale fruit men do little with them. Rhubarb is scarce.

Sugar.

Price shows a further small advance. There is a good sale in foreign sugars and some good values are shown.

Molasses.

There is a fair stock held, particularly of Porto Rico. In Barbadoes, price was advanced two cents this week. There is a steady sale.

Fish.

Our harbor and bay fishermen have had a good season in salmon. The catch has been quite good and prices have been well maintained. North shore catch has not been large. Except a few halibut and haddock there is little in other fresh fish offered, while few dry fish, pickled and smoked herring are being received. Receipts are light and prices high.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour there is a fair trade and prices are firm. Feed is lower, with just a fair sale. Oats and oatmeal remain unchanged; prices at least are no higher. Beans are dull and rather lower in price. Cornmeal shows a steady sale, and quite high prices rule. Barley and split peas are scarce.

INTERESTING TEA DECISION.

Clarkson & Cross, accountants, Toronto, to whom was intrusted the final decision in the dispute between the Salada Tea Co. and the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., as to the relative amounts of Salada and Blue Ribbon Teas sold in Canada by these firms, respectively, report, after an examination of the books of both these firms, that during 1903 419,141 lbs. more Salada Tea was sold in Canada than Blue Ribbon Tea.

The Salada Tea Co., therefore, wins the $500 stake. In the above examination sales of Salada throughout the United States, the West Indies, etc., were excluded, only Canadian business being taken into account. Neither, on the other hand, were the bulk teas of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co.

The dispute, it will be remembered, was in regard to the amount of package teas sold by the respective firms.

The Eby, Blain Co., Toronto, have just passed into stock two cars Rio coffees, flinty green type. Their quotations are interesting.

SELLING CROCKERY

By John Kirkwood

A WELL managed crockery department is a source of profit; it adds to the annual turnover a considerable sum, and constitutes an advertising element of unique value. Crockery and chinaware do not constitute a line of daily consumption, and a family's purchases in the course of a year are not likely to be very heavy. At the same time there are few families that do not require to replenish their supply appreciably from one month to another. In addition to such purchases, there is no small amount of buying done for gift purposes. It is the little odds and ends, individual cups and saucers, fancy plates, cream and sugars, vases, bric-a-brac of all sorts, which sell all the year round, that are profitable, that brighten up the store and the windows, that appeal to the visitor and regular customer irresistibly. But this fancy china department often requires the support of a substantial staple department to realize its best possibilities.

The crockery department requires good display to make a good impression. Too frequently this is denied it, with the inevitable result that sales are neither large nor frequent. If it is possible, a separate room or corner should be set apart for this line,—a room or corner where the light is good, and where the customers can move about freely and without fear that they shall knock something over. A cramped-up space is bad. The light should be of the very best. Darkness is fatal to free selling. Nothing cheers up like sunlight. The question of shelving, display tables, etc., will settle itself. Everything, however, should be within easy reach, not only for convenience in showing buyers, but for dusting. The dusting must not be neglected. Daintily-gloved and dressed women dislike to be called upon to handle dusty goods. The dressing of tables and shelves with paper or cotton, or other material, is a subject of importance. It is good to have the assistance of a woman's judgment and suggestions at this point. Indeed, a woman's help in buying as well as in displaying is worth having.

Granted that the stock is well chosen and well displayed, there is yet something to be done towards making sales, namely, the securing of customers. Of course, one's regular customers for groceries will naturally be customers for crockeryware, but to depend upon these alone is not sufficient. It is necessary to attract others, and fortunately a woman who is a loyal grocery customer feels herself free to go where she wills when it comes to buying china or glassware. In this fact lies an opportunity for the live crockery dealer to make an acquaintance with new buyers, some of whom may be led in the course of time to become regular grocery customers.

These outside buyers can be secured by various ways. The influence of one's regular customers extends in widening circles, and will include many people whose grocery buying is done elsewhere. There are few things equal to crockery and chinaware for securing gratuitous and influential advertising.

It will not do, however, to depend upon the uncertain and unknown praises of one's good friends. The dealer must go out after the trade of his community boldly and systematically. Advertising in the daily or weekly newspapers is necessary, and for crockery advertising fairly liberal space should be employed. A good size is a space two columns wide by three or four inches deep. This space should be brightened up by illustrations, which can be secured without difficulty from the wholesale crockery dealer with whom one has his account. The writing of the advertisement requires the best attention. Enthusiasm should be the key-note,—not gush and bombast,—but that overflowing conviction that a salesman has when he is face to face with a customer. The advertiser must anticipate the wants of the people; he must suggest incessantly; he must make the people believe that they must have the things he has to sell. This done, the determination to buy follows naturally. Advertising that fails to accomplish this is lacking in the best and necessary qualities of good advertising. Such advertising can be done by every dealer, perhaps not easily, but done it can be,—and if not by the dealer himself, then by some other one, perhaps one of his salesmen—and it may prove best to engage a competent advertisement writer. Poor advertising will not get the largest amount of business possible. Good advertising will work marvels.

There are seasons when crockery and chinaware sell better than they do at other times—Easter, June (for weddings), and Christmas. Every month, however, can be made a good month. Some months yield good profits; these are the periods when the demand is good by reason of gift-giving, and of special furnishing, such as harvest and threshing time in country districts. Other months call for forced sales, which may be utilized for clearance purposes, or as occasions when some fortunate purchase can be made a strong advertising feature. The great thing to be aimed at is movement. Even if at times the turnover is not as profitable as one could wish, it is wise to maintain a good sales record. The benefits of such a course will reveal themselves when the brisk season comes on. Then, too, one is all the time building up a name for himself,—a name which will stand him in good stead in time to come.

One could with advantage have prepared a small booklet, illustrating some staple lines on which the price does not vary to any appreciable extent, illustrating also some other lines of finer character. The cuts for such a booklet can be had from one's jobber. This booklet could be freely mailed at an opportune time—before the Christmas, or Easter or wedding seasons. It would cost $15 or $20 to get out 500 or 1,000 of such booklets in good style, but it would be money well spent.

The renting of dishes to churches, societies, or clubs, is a good practice, but the best results from such a proceeding are obtained when the dishes so rented carry on them, indelibly burned in, the name of the dealer. It will pay the dealer to buy a superior class of stoneware, with an attractive design, together with his name, for rental purposes.

Churches, clubs and societies can be solicited to purchase an exclusive pattern for their especial use, care being taken to have selected a pattern that can be re-ordered when breakage compels an additional supply. In this connection it may be said that it is best to urge a superior class of ware when canvassing for such orders. Price will soon be forgotten, but quality will be remembered. If the ware is poor and the breakage is heavy, the dealer is blamed.

RED ROSE TEA WAREHOUSE

No. 3 INTERIOR VIEWS.

STOCK AND BLENDING FLOOR.

This cut shows a small portion of the fifth floor, where a large part of the teas which are used in blending are stored. On receipt of a shipment of teas, they are elevated to this floor, which has a storage capacity of 10,000 chests or 1,000,000 lbs.

When a blend is to be got ready, the order is sent from the tea room to the foreman of this floor. The teas that are required are then taken from the various piles and trucked to the hoppers, which lead to the blenders below. The marks on every package are checked twice to see that they correspond with the order from the tea room, so to avoid the possibility of any mistakes. The chests are opened up and one at a time are emptied into the hopper connecting with the blender which is to be used.

These hoppers are fitted with automatic slides in the bottom, so the tea, after being emptied, can be closely inspected before the slide is pulled to allow it to pass into the blender.

Description of the blending machines on the fourth floor will be given next week.

T. H. ESTABROOKS, TEA IMPORTER AND BLENDER,

Branches : { TORONTO. WINNIPEG. St. John, N. B.

If the ware stands rough usage well the seller of it reaps the reward of praise and confidence. Moreover, good goods pay the best profits.

Many private families can be induced to order a dinner set to be specially selected by them, and to be made up after their own ideas rather than in the ordinary compositions. One retail dealer in Toronto shows with pride a big shelf full of beautiful dinner plates, samples of sets he has supplied to Toronto families. He has allied himself to a good and reliable maker, and thus controls for Toronto the patterns he selects. He showed the writer of this article a number of these plates, saying, "That set I sold to the Hon. Mr. White. This set to Mrs. William Courtney. A set of this was ordered by the Government House. I sold this to the King Edward Hotel."—and so on. Every purchaser was guaranteed that no duplicate pattern would be sold to any other. Such a collection of plates, each one a beautiful thing, constitutes an immensely strong argument in the salesman's hands when a new buyer calls. This way of buying enables the customer to order any number and variety of pieces desired, and to have broken articles replaced, thus maintaining at all times a complete set. It allows, too, the customer to enlarge his dinner service as his fortunes or necessities develop. It gives a distinctive service which can be maintained from generation to generation.

To the alert dealer countless occasions arise for the sale of crockery, china and glassware. On this class of goods a generous profit can be made, a profit sorely needed by the average grocer. Crockery provides window, counter and table displays of the most attractive character. The crockery department, to be successful, demands time, but it pays handsome wages for the time devoted to it. It gives employment to the staff when they might otherwise find time hanging heavily on their hands, and it gives them opportunities without number for exercising their selling talent, and of making for their employer many an extra dollar.

The crockery department, if kept right and continually freshened by new goods, is a fine adjunct to the grocery department in many places. There are not many communities outside the larger towns and cities that warrant an exclusive china store, and by common consent the grocery store is regarded as the natural depot for crockery, glassware and china.

THE TARIFF AMENDMENTS.

ON June 28, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, introduced before the Canadian Parliament several amendments to the tariff recently brought down. His announcement of the amendment was in part as below :

"If the House will permit me, without a formal motion, I would avail myself of the opportunity of placing on the table of the House some changes which we desire to make in the tariff resolutions. I might, of course, simply have placed the amended resolution on the notice papers, but I thought the House would prefer that I should call attention to several points in regard to which the changes are to be made. In both respects the changes are in form rather than in substance, and do not affect the rates of duty, but there are one or two items of some importance, and I will ask the indulgence of the House for a brief space while I call attention to the facts, so that hon. gentlemen who may be interested particularly in any of these may understand them at once without having to wade through the resolutions.

The Dumping Clause.

"In what is commonly called the dumping clause it is proposed to insert words which will empower the Minister of Customs in his regulations to make a temporary exemption as respects the operation of that clause in cases where the goods referred to are not manufactured in Canada in large quantities and in open competition. It would be possible that an article might be made in Canada to a very small extent, or it would perhaps be in the hands of some one producer and not open to the trade. It is felt that if such a condition should arise it might not be a proper case for the application of the dumping clause. The amendment will therefore provide that the Minister of Customs may, in his regulations, temporarily exempt from the operation of the special duty—that is the technical phrase I use—or the dumping clause—articles of a class which the Minister is satisfied are not made in Canada in a substantially large quantity, and open to sale on even terms to all applicants. Though an article may be made in Canada ordinarily, exceptional circumstances may arise, such as a strike, which would stop the manufacture in Canada, and in that case the Minister of Customs ought to have some discretion to meet a condition which might arise. That is the object of the amendment.

In the resolution laid on the table reference is made to the computation of the duties as respects spirits in flasks and bottles. This is rather a matter of customs regulations than anything else, but that clause to which I refer is being enlarged in the amended resolution. It does not affect the rates of duty. In the duties on coal oil a change is made in the phraseology, but no change in the rates of duty.

Clearer Definitions.

"There is another item which reads : 'Tableware of porcelain, china or other clay.' For the purpose of more clearly defining it we insert the word 'white,' so that it will read 'tableware of china, porcelain or other white clay.' This will prevent confusing the item with some others, which was not intended.

"There was a provision in the tariff of a year ago for the admission free of duty of machinery for the manufacture of sugar from beet root. That provision has expired, and we propose to renew it for the term of another year up to April next.

"In the item of molasses which is placed on the free list when imported from countries entitled to the British preference, we wish to insert words which would stipulate that it must be a direct importation. The object of the Government is to guard against molasses being landed abroad and mixed with other ingredients which people in the trade assure us is a practice which we ought very carefully to guard against.

The Date of Enforcement.

"There is one other matter which is of importance, and that is the date on which these various changes in the way of increased duties shall take effect. As a rule, under the practice in Canada, whenever the budget speech is delivered such changes of tariff as may be made take effect at once, and as the resolution now stands without any qualification that would be the result. However, there are precedents for taking a different course. Some years ago, for good reasons, no doubt, the operation of the new resolution was delayed for a period, and in the case of the German surtax we adopted the same policy. Following these precedents we now propose to provide that in the case of all goods actually ordered before the date of the budget—and confining it entirely to goods so actually ordered—if they be entered in Canada on or before the last day of August next they shall be admitted under the old rate of duty, and the new rate of duty shall only apply to cases in which the goods have not been ordered. The reason for this is that it has been represented that in some lines, notably woolen goods, large quantities were sold in advance at fixed prices on the basis of the existing duties. The goods in some cases were on their way, and the orders could not be cancelled. After very careful consideration we have come to the conclusion that no injury will be done the woolen industry, for which the benefit was intended, because the goods are ordered, and have to come in anyhow. The only question is whether we should exact a higher duty, and after full consideration we believe that in the case of all duties which have been increased by this resolution—this will apply to special duties as well as to the various items which are set forth—and where the goods have been actually ordered on or before the 7th day of June they shall come in at the old rate, provided they are entered in Canada on or before the last day of August."

STAPLE AS GOLD

Grocers are wise to sell more Royal Baking Powder, because in the end it yields a greater profit than the low-priced powders, many of which contain alum, which is injurious to health.

Royal Baking Powder is always worth one hundred cents on the dollar, and no grocer need hesitate to carry a large amount of it in stock.

Royal Baking Powder retains its full strength in all climates all the time.

Varying atmospheres do not lessen its leavening qualities. You have no spoiled stock.

It is absolutely pure and healthful and always sure in results.

It never fails to satisfy the consumer.

It is sold the world over and is as staple as gold.

VAULTS AND SAFES IN THE TORONTO FIRE

IN view of the fact that the conflagration which visited Toronto on the night of April 19th was one of the most disastrous in Canadian history, it is a matter for self-congratulation on the part of Canadian safe and vault manufacturers that the percentage of vaults and safes actually destroyed was so small. Out of sixty or seventy safes which passed through the fire, not more than six or seven failed to stand the test, while out of a correspondingly large number of vaults only two or three were destroyed. The safes burned out are believed to have been more or less dilapidated, and the two or three vaults destroyed were so manifestly defective it is not difficult to understand why they were unsuccessful in withstanding the fire.

The purpose of this article is to offer a few suggestions on the actual as well as the ideal construction of vaults or safes, the two classes of fire-proof or professedly fire-proof repositories. The former are fixed in position and surrounded by special walls of non-conducting and indestructible material; the latter are mostly of small or moderate size, movable and unprotected by accessory or enclosing walls.

VAULTS.

One of the first noticeable defects in modern vault construction is that of including iron rods or iron nails imbedded in vault walls, with the intention of adding strength. A second one is that of inclosing fire-proofing materials between iron plates with connecting partitions of beams or channel iron. It is evident that since iron, brick and cement expand at different rates on being heated, iron much the more rapidly, such additions to brick or cement work must always be a source of weakness and danger.

An example teaching the need of unremitting watchfulness and skilled oversight in vault construction is afforded by the loss of a bank vault in one of the buildings examined after the recent conflagration in Baltimore. A thoughtless mason failed to remove a piece of scantling placed by a carpenter when constructing a balcony floor. As the building burned, the fire followed through the piece of wood into the vault and ultimately the entire contents were destroyed.

The constructive errors may be summed up as follows: (1) insecure foundations; (2) faulty and cheaply constructed doors and poor bolt-work; (3) improper attachment of doors to masonry; (4) connection of vault walls with building walls which carry the former along with them when they fall. In (1) and (4) the inevitable result is the tumbling of the vaults: in (2) and (3) the doors warp out of place and make room for the heat and fire to enter.

In the Toronto fire the vaults which were destroyed had either defective upper roofs or walls. In one instance the vault roof was very light and simply crashed through when the building walls began to fall upon it. In another there was a big block of stone which served as a lintel. When the heat got beyond a certain degree, the stone began to crack, eventually falling and leaving an opening over the door for the fire.

One of the leading architects of Toronto suggests that the upper vault roof should be arched, of concrete or brick, and sufficiently strong to support any weight that might fall upon it. Under no circumstances should a stone roof be used. It is risky to have any stone about a vault at all, as it easily cracks when subjected to great heat.

All steel construction work, such as girders, should be covered with concrete or terra cotta, by means of which uneven expansion is avoided in the event of fire. The inner and outer vault wall should be of brick with three inches air space between; bricks should be carefully laid with Portland cement as mortar, and joints full, with no interstices left between the ends of joints or individual bricks. Vestibules should be steel-lined, with arched heads, doors and outer doors. There should be metal bed-plates for the girders, instead of building them into the vault or building walls. The concrete filling for floors and over arches should be at least one foot thick in the thinnest places. One feature of the vaults which came through the Baltimore fire successfully was that the walls were built up solidly of hard brick laid in cement and entirely free from built-in iron work. The average thickness of the walls was about sixteen inches, and they were without exception on brick foundations built up from cellar bottoms.

SAFES.

By far the larger number of safes destroyed in the Baltimore fire were in no sense fire-proof. Heat quickly penetrated their casings, the wooden linings caught fire and contents were soon reduced to a handful of ashes and charred fragments. The question arises directly: Is it possible to make at moderate cost safes of suitable size, weight and portability which will be proof against terrific heat? Many safes in use are not fire-proof at all, and the fact would soon become evident were they subjected to a severe heat test. One reason for this is because the demand of the public has steadily been for cheapening prices. It may be stated, however, that such safes are not nearly so widely distributed in Canada as in the United States.

It has been demonstrated that safes may be constructed of moderate size and cost, and yet be able to stand against the hottest fires, except only where the entire exterior shell is melted. Such specially constructed safes, upon being examined after severe fire tests, may be found to have their external plates much warped and partially consumed, corners burned off, and even their seams gaping; upon being opened, however, the contents will be found to be perfectly preserved.

These safes had a wall-filling of composition containing a high percentage of water in combination, held in stable position interstitially. As the heat penetrates this layer, it converts the water evenly and gradually into steam. The change from liquid to gaseous form is attended by the conversion of heat into mechanical separation of water particles, and a very large amount of heat thus rendered latent. As long as the conversion of steam is going on, the temperature does not rise. The water content of the filling thus retards the progress of heat through the walls of the safe, and so protects the box in the centre. It is therefore seen that protection is secured not to any great extent by the interposition of a non-conductor—water—but by the absorption of heat in the conversion of liquid water into vapor.

There is no other method of safe-construction known upon which entire reliance can be placed, says G. L. Damon, an American safe expert, to whom many of the above suggestions are due, in a recent issue of the Manufacturers' Record. The cost of such really fire-proof safes is about thirty per cent. above that of the average safe sold to-day; but no one will deny that the additional cost is more than made up for by the certainty of its being absolutely fire-proof.

MEXICAN CANADIAN TRADE.

WHEN a trade commissioner from Mexico was at Ottawa recently, endeavoring to establish a steamship service between this country and Mexico, the Toronto Board of Trade began an independent investigation regarding the opportunities for increasing trade between Canada and Mexico. The secretary of the local board wrote to J. H. McLeod, one of the most prominent merchants in the City of Mexico, informing him that the commissioner had not visited Toronto, and asking for information regarding trade matters. Mr. McLeod is a native of Woodstock, and the trademark of his business, "The International Grocery Company," is still the maple leaf.

In an interesting letter sent to the Toronto Board of Trade, Mr. McLeod says:

"I am told that President Diaz would be very willing to send another special commissioner to visit Toronto and other centres of trade in Canada if he were asked to do so.

"In regard to giving you a list of the principal articles imported into this country from Canada, I will do the best that I can to have this list sent to you, together with all the information in regard to the class of goods, size and style of packages, etc. I am calling together the representative Canadians living in the City of Mexico and the interior, in order that I may be well informed as to what class of goods would be more suitable to the country. In our lines of goods I could give you a partial list, but think it better to wait and have a complete and positive knowledge of all goods that could be imported from Canada to Mexico. We have imported at different times fish from New Brunswick and canned vegetables from Ontario, and we feel that Canadian goods would be very acceptable to the Mexican people. The meeting will be held on Dominion Day, July 1. I propose to form what we would call a Canadian commercial club, to supply your people in Canada with data and information to further the trade between the two countries." The British Consul at the City of Mexico writes to the Victoria Colonist as follows:

"Exporters to Mexico have to pay particular attention to the Mexican customs regulations, consular invoices, etc.

"Intending traders would do well as soon as the proposed steamship line is an accomplished fact, to send a traveling representative to look over the ground. The new line will meet with considerable oppositon from the German and American lines, who successfully ousted the Anglo-Chilian companies, also from Mexican port officials, who are "owned" by these lines.

"While Mexico and Canada produce many similar commodities, yet I believe a grand trade will result if you are energetic and combine your energy with care and tact."

RECORD TRIP.

Mr. D. T. Williamson, general traveling representative of the Brantford Starch Works, recently made a record trip from Halifax to Brantford. He left Halifax by Ocean Limited, I. C. R., at 8.45 a. m., on Thursday, July 7, and arrived in Brantford at 7.14 p. m. the next day. This time for the distance is a record, and it was accomplished on account of his making connections promptly in Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton.

GREEN FRUITS

Fruit Outlook.

THE following reports concerning the growing fruit crops of Canada have been received during the past week: Orchards in Wellington County, Ontario, are looking healthy and give promise of a good yield of fruit, while vegetables are in correspondingly promising condition. Small fruits throughout Ontario have improved since May, and a fair yield is expected, although in peaches and apples the yield will be below the average in quantity. In the Niagara fruit belt a bumper crop of cherries is reported.

In eastern Quebec farmers are of the opinion that there will be a large crop of turnips, carrots, potatoes, etc. Apples will likely exceed the crop of other years in Quebec, especially in the vicinity of the Rougemont and St. Hilaire Mountains. Reports from Prince Edward Island say that tree fruit so far is encouraging.

In Victoria District, British Columbia, small fruits are reported fair, and larger fruits promise a good yield. In New Westminster, recent frosts have done some damage to fruit. Cherries are a large crop, while apples are fair, and plums, prunes and pears are practically a failure.

Experimental Shipment of Fruit.

Professor Reynolds, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, was in Ottawa last week, conferring with G. W. Hunt, president of the Ottawa Produce Exchange, in regard to experimental shipments of fruit in cold storage. It is intended to ship a carload of plums, grapes and peaches to Winnipeg by freight to test the shipping qualities of these fruits, and to find out if such a shipment when properly carried out can be profitably made. The experiment would have commenced with strawberries, but on account of the scarcity of that fruit this year it was found impossible to secure a carload in any one locality.

Shortage in Spanish Olives.

Olives will be higher this year than for many seasons, and some large varieties are already scarcer than hen's teeth, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. The scarcity is a result of the poor crop in Spain, the source of all or most of the bottled varieties, so much sought after at picnics and elsewhere.

Olives come from Spain in "punches" or "pipes," as they are called in the trade, and this season there will be a shortage of fully 15,000 pipes. Each of these contains from 160 to 180 gallons of olives. The smallest size, called "manzanilla," come about 150 to the pound, and these will be more plentiful. The largest sized olives come about 30 to the pound.

Many olives are grown in California, but the richness of the soil causes too great a quantity of oil for the best eating olives, so they do not demand the high price of the Spanish product. Spaniards have a special method of preserving the fruit, which is an art in itself, and has never been equalled in other countries.

The black olives of Italy and Greece are grown entirely for the oil and other products, and not put up as the Spanish variety.

Fruit Raising in B. C.

THE following special information is interesting in so far as it shows something of the possibilities of Southern British Columbia in the direction of fruit growing.

The Okanagan Valley is by far the best known fruit section of British Columbia. To show the wonderful productiveness of the Okanagan, one fruit grower last season produced sixteen tons of prunes on two and one-half acres of land for which he received $25 a ton, $400 at the packing house. Had he packed them himself his returns would have been considerably larger. One packing house in Kelowna shipped an average of five carloads a week for over two months last season.

While at present occupying a very secondary place to the Okanagan from the fruit grower's standpoint, due largely to the lack of transportation facilities (a drawback that promises to be soon remedied), the Similkameen valley is destined in the future to rival, if not outstrip, her famous sister valley, the Okanagan.

Is Protection Necessary?

IN answer to those who have recently been advocating higher protection for Canadian fruit and garden produce it may be stated that foreign grown fruit and produce which might under ordinary circumstances compete with such as is grown in Canada, as a matter of fact does not do so to the injury of the latter, since it comes on the Canadian market before the Canadian article is ready, and ceases to be imported directly the domestic article is ready for the market. Why is higher protection necessary in this case?

It has been held that in the vegetable market that the large importations of California celery, which have lately become a feature of the Canadian market, have hurt the trade of domestic market gardeners. Possibly there may be just grounds for complaint here. At the same time, the opinion of the produce men seems to be unanimous that Canadian celery is far from being equal to California stock, and that if Canadian market gardeners wish to hold the Canadian trade they will have to produce a better article than they have in the past.

Apples From Tasmania.

A shipment of Tasmanian apples has arrived on the Winnipeg market. These show very fine quality, and are packed in hardwood cases weighing 50 lbs., each containing 40 lbs. of apples net. Each apple is wrapped in paper. The fruit is in good condition and fairly attractive in appearance, being yellow and deep red, overlaid with russet. The texture and flavor are rather like that of Winter pears. The price is almost prohibitive, as the apples cost so much that they have to be retailed at 2 lbs. for 25c.

Novel Tomato Crate.

A new tomato crate has been invented by H. Lewis, of Lantana, U.S. It is of pasteboard that lies flat when not in use, but which is put together for service very much like the patent cells used in shipping eggs, each tomato being separated from the others. The walls of the crate are perforated for ventilating, and the whole device is very simple and easily erected. The crate is so constructed as to go inside of the basket now in use, the main object being to save wrapping of the fruits, as is now necessary in shipping, which will expedite the packing.

THE OFFICE END

DEVOTED TO THE OFFICE STAFFS OF BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

TREATMENT OF CASH DISCOUNTS.

By C. A. Rose in The Bookkeeper.

IT is understood that cash discount is handled separately from bank discount, but the latter being a form of cash discount the writer claims that is should be posted in a general "discounts" account.

The subject must be handled from the business man's point of view, and not from a book-keeper's theoretical standpoint. The well posted salesman has in mind, when making a price, whether his customer takes advantage of cash discounts or takes full time. It is a fact when the salesman makes a very close price he stipulates "no cash discount." It therefore follows that cash discount on sales should appear in trading account. The buyer also considers whether his firm "discounts" or not when determining the price he will pay on purchases.

The matter of interest of loans from bank to enable the business man to take advantage of discounts, and the discounting of notes which he has been obliged to take for goods sold (bills receivable) are entirely different matters and pertain to capital, or the lack of it. Such being the case, it would seem that bank discounts are a "general expense" and must be transferred from "discounts" account to profit and loss direct.

Therefore, to get a clear idea of this subject it is necessary to divide cash discounts into three parts.

Discounts on bills receivable (bank discounts).

Discounts on purchases.

Discounts on sales.

The first is a general expense, and not chargeable to purchases, for the reason that discounts are not taken at the bank except when capital is short. The second should be carried to trading account with the amount of purchases. The third is also a matter for trading account. By putting the latter two in trading account the writer is claiming that the business man considers the discounts when making purchase or sales prices. It is contended also that the amounts of discounts should appear in trading account on the same side of the account as the amount on which it is a discount.

The writer holds that the simplest way to handle cash discounts is to carry all cash discounts in one tabular account under sub-heads. The account may be called cash discounts.

The ledger should be double ruled, Dr. and Cr. under each head.

The balance of interest and discount should be transferred to profit and loss direct with the other general expense items at the end of the period.

The balance of discount purchases should be transferred to purchases account and from that transferred to trading account at the end of the period. When making the transfer to trading account it should be itemized, as Trading account Dr.

To Purchases account		$.....
Less discount		$.....
		$.....

The balance of "discount sales" should be treated in the same manner as discount on purchases.

Sales account Dr.
To Trading account		$.....
Less discount		$ .....

It is advisable to transfer accounts to trading account and profit and loss account only once a year because all comparisons and calculations are made by the year, and it makes it much simpler for the accountant to make his monthly statement of earnings and expenses. By keeping the above accounts as suggested for the whole year before transferring to profit and loss and trading account, the asset and liability statement can be made more easily. All the open expense and earning accounts showing as undivided expenses and undivided earnings. The columns of each discount account will have to be footed at the end of each month for the trial balance, and these footings can be of use when making up the monthly statement. Deducting the footing used at the end of the previous month from that of the present month, the result will be discount for the present month and the item to be used in making up the monthly statement.

When itemizing in the monthly earnings statement the deductions and totals on the line below when a "short column" is used should be put:

By making up this statement in a trial balance ruled for twelve months with fly leaves and putting deductions and addition on the line below, it is possible to make comparisons with any previous month's business. For convenience the yearly deductions and totals may be transferred to a special statement book ruled after the same manner with numbered lines, and, by putting each account on the line in the yearly book that it occupies in the monthly book ready reference and comparison may be made of the monthly and yearly expenses.

BAD BREAKS IN BUSINESS.

From The Saturday Evening Post.

AN illustration of the results of allowing an employe to monopolize information comes to my recollection in connection with a large wholesale drug house. In this business, as in several others, prices on a large variety of goods are subject of daily fluctuation. Therefore "pricers" are employed to each day figure the prices to be charged for certain commodities, in accordance with the law of supply and demand and other significant considerations. This is not the simple task which it might seem, for a certain ingredient of a compounded drug may suddenly become scarce while another will depreciate in value.

One day the chief pricer of a large house left on a vacation. When he returned at the end of two weeks he carefully examined the prices made by his assistant. The figures, which he showed with considerable pride to the head of the house, demonstrated that through his absence for twelve days the house had lost $1,500 because the prices had not been figured from all the data that should have been taken into consideration by the pricers. It did not occur to him that by the same token he convicted himself of a failure so to systemize his work and record vital data that another might take up his work without serious loss to the establishment. Judged on his own figures for the one week, this loss would in a year have amounted to about $35,000.

Another serious "break" in business is the failure systematically to keep vigilance upon the comparative amounts of trade done by a customer during different periods. When a customer who is in the habit, for example, of ordering five bags of coffee orders only one, there is but one conclusion to be drawn from the viewpoint of the house; he is dividing his coffee trade with another firm. Certainly the only safe thing for the house to do is to draw this inference. Under a thorough system this deviation from the habit of the customer would be instantly noticed, and he would be written a letter politely inquiring if anything unsatisfactory in the previous treatment he had received from the establishment was responsible for the falling-off in the amount of his order.

When the management of a large commercial house is not alive to the fact that the office end of the business should be a positive trade-producing factor, he is in one of the business errors that will cut deeply into his profits if he is not in the enjoyment of a monopoly. It is a poor office that is not a close second to the salesmen's department as an actual trade-getting factor.

Often some decidedly fantastic complications are brought about in the order department, owing to a lack of proper method. In a very large wholesale house a telegram from a distant customer was received which read: "Duplicate our order No. 865." A few days later a letter from the same customer again instructed the duplication of the order bearing that number. While this second order was being filled the buyer from the firm in question arrived in the city, went to the wholesale house, and among other purchases duplicated the items in "order 865."

Several days later the distant customer was heard from with emphasis, frantically asking why the house had shipped three times the amount of each kind of merchandise that had been ordered. Of course, the explanation of the matter was very simple. The letter was intended as a confirmation of the telegram, not as a new order. Then the house of the customer had failed to notify its buyer in the market that a sudden demand for goods which were on his "buying list" had made it necessary for them to be ordered by wire. The buyer had made several stops on his way to the city and was in ignorance of the fact that these goods had already been bought. Had this whole transaction been properly made the buyer in the market would have been advised by wire that the order had been telegraphed to the house; the letter to the house would have read: "Confirming our telegram of November 10," etc.; then the buyer would have found a similar letter of confirmation from his own house awaiting him at the wholesale house.

WE NEVER ACCEPT DRAFTS ?

Editor Dry Goods Review.

THERE are two sides to every question, and the draft is no exception. I have read articles or letters in your valuable paper on this subject at different times, but always on one side. I now say a word for the other side. Granting that some men use this draft question as stated, others only do it in self defence and on the soundest of business principles. Where there is no branch of any bank, and a merchant has to remit his money away by mail, he is keeping his accounts with each house he deals with. They don't all draw on him. He may not be able to meet all his bills at thirty days. Why should he sign a draft acceptance which, if he failed through miscarriage of the mail to meet, would be protested, thus proving expensive and injurious to his credit? The retailer cannot always call in his money just as he wants it. He has to use patience and tact, and sometimes is disappointed then. For years I positively refused to accept drafts, as there was no bank here, and the money had to be remitted anyway, but just as soon as a bank was opened here, so that I could be sure of myself, I opened an account with them, and would rather accept drafts than not. We all have our difficulties to overcome in business, and our wholesale friends must bear their share, just as we retailers bear ours, possessing our souls in patience. A.B.C.

CERTIFIED BALANCE SHEETS.

By H. G. Stowell.

I KNOW of some cases in which business men have their books examined every six months, and send a copy of their condensed balance sheet to the mercantile agencies. This balance sheet is certified to by the auditor.

Credit is worth a good deal. It is worth possessing. It may easily be created by that means; and to have one's books audited regularly should be thought of as an expense similar to insurance, rent, light and heat; in other words, a wise and necessary outlay. A detailed audit of the books is not necessary for credit purposes.

Not one of you will doubt the desirability of having before you an examined balance sheet, but the question you will raise is one of practical importance—how shall we secure such information?

Traders will refuse to have it done, on the ground of expense alone, if for no other reason. They will refuse to allow you to have their books examined from fear that you will learn too much about their business.

No secret of a business is given away by the experts. The report would be made to the man who employs the company. Accompanying the report would be a balance sheet condensed, and in the reading of which no information not necessary to the purpose would be shown. The trader or manufacturer could use it for credit purposes if he chose.

SHUTTING OFF STEAM.

"Shall we stop our advertising for a while now?"

This is a question that some business men are apt to ask themselves, particularly in the Summer, or during what they regard as their dull season.

Suppose your engineer asked you:

"Shall I stop putting coals on my fires, Sir?"

What would you reply?

"Why, no—unless you want the engine to stop!"

The advertiser who thinks of discontinuing may argue —"We have been advertising so long and so steadily that our name and specialties are well known, and we intend to advertise again when business is better in our line than it appears to be now; in the meantime our business won't stop."

No; neither will the engines stop the minute the men suspend shovelling in coal. The point is, however, that when the engine is to be started again, ten times as much will have been lost in power as has been saved in fuel or feed.

Using up reserve force never pays.

It is a loss, however it may be looked at. The buying public is prone to forget. It is, moreover, much more difficult and much more expensive to regain a lost customer than to prevent his straying away.—Money Maker Magazine.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Grain Situation.

CROP reports from Ontario during the week have been favorable in the extreme. In Wellington County, one of the banner wheat producing counties of western Ontario, the crops have not looked better in many years. Spring wheat is growing sparingly, but this year's crop is very promising. It is advancing rapidly, although not yet in head. There is a fine head on all the Fall wheat, while the general appearance could not be better. There are now apparent no evil effects of the long and severe Winter which caused so much alarm in the early Spring. Oats and barley are looking fine; oats have been a little backward, but will come into head in about three weeks if present conditions continue. Barley is all out in head and looks promising. The small area of peas sown has not been showing up well owing to the wet weather. Conditions in eastern Ontario are very similar, and the crop there will probably be above the average all round, several districts being above their average for many years. The yield of Winter wheat will be comparatively small, and in some districts it is estimated that the crop will not be more than 60 per cent. of the average.

In Quebec generally the prospects are good for a fair grain yield. In Quebec District the grain prospects haven't been so good for years. In St. Hyacinthe District, as well as Rouvelle and Bagot, which are the leading agricultural counties of Quebec, the outlook is encouraging for a good harvest, although in some sections the yield will fall short of previous years.

The weather in New Brunswick has been favorable, and crops are reported to be coming along well, particularly hay and grain. In Nova Scotia, crops have been injured to some extent by late frosts; in Prince Edward Island, although retarded somewhat by lack of rain, crops promise well.

Latest C. P. R. crop reports say that conditions in Manitoba and the Northwest are satisfactory, except in a few places where the rainfall has been a little too heavy. All over the central section of the C. P. R. the grain is growing magnificently, and a maximum height of thirty-inches is reported. In the Territories, where rain has not been so heavy, little if any harm has been done. The most conservative estimates state that except on the low ground Manitoba will harvest one of the finest crops the province has ever grown.

The crop situation is beginning to assume a position of great importance in the Canadian trade outlook, says the Montreal Herald.

So much depends on the success of the agricultural season that the progress from now on is fraught with much interest to the entire business community. The yield of wheat in the west is, of course, the predominant factor. The prosperity of the eastern manufacturers and merchants is deeply concerned with the welfare of the western farmer. There is material for continued satisfaction in the above reports which are coming in regarding the condition of the growing wheat. With the exception of the fact that the increase in acreage is smaller than was expected, no unfavorable features have developed, and the crop has passed through the early stages remarkably well. It is still too early to make predictions as to the total yield, but those who calculated a production of 75,000,000 bushels have not yet seen fit to change their estimates.

The English visible supply decreased 1,233,000 bushels during the week, compared with an increase of 212,000 bushels last week, and an increase of 208,000 bushels the corresponding week last year. The Argentine wheat visible is 3,243,000 bushels, against 2,904,000 bushels the previous week, and 3,753,000 bushels last year. The weekly Argentine cable says sowing operations of wheat have been pushed forward vigorously and the acreage is larger than last year.

Where Will Manitoba Wheat be Ground ?

Canadian papers are discussing the probable location of the future milling industry that will grind the great crops of wheat that the Canadian Northwest will produce from now on. The Canadian Grocer quotes the opinion of a Canadian flour exporter, who bases his views on the history of milling in the United States; this gentleman thinks the crops will be ground near the point of production; if not, that the wheat itself will be exported and ground in foreign mills. In no case would it be milled in large quantities at intermediate points and the product reshipped. For proof of his idea that the wheat will be milled near the field, he cites the building of two very large mills the present year in the West.

Neither view, it will be seen, contemplates the milling of any considerable part of the Manitoba crop in the United States, and we would suggest that the simple repeal of the duty on wheat might deflect a very large share of the crop to the south; and this repeal will certainly come, sooner or later. But this aside, the history of the milling industry hardly bears out the contention of the exporter in full. There are Canadian points which bear the same relation to their Northwest as Buffalo does to ours; and so long as that is the case, there is no reason why a large share of the hard wheat crop may not be ground in Ontario.—American Miller.

Elevator for Port Colborne.

It is reported that the Minister of Railways and Canals at Ottawa has instructed Mr. Jamieson, a Montreal elevator engineer, to prepare plans for the erection of an up-to-date steel elevator at Port Colborne, to be owned and operated by the Canadian Government as part of the canal system. It is understood that the capacity of the elevator will be 2,000,000 bushels, and that it will be under contract in the near future and ready for business in the Fall of 1905.

As the elevator will hold ten cargoes of the largest grain-carrying vessels on the upper lakes, its construction will at once attract to the St. Lawrence route many vessels now carrying grain to Buffalo. The only question remaining is whether there will be sufficient barges and other canal vessels to carry the grain to Montreal for transhipment to ocean-going ships, and prevent congestion at the Port Colborne elevator. This point, however, is already receiving attention, and it is said that some prominent shipbuilders intend constructing canal barges just as soon as the construction of the elevator in question is assured.

Market News From Trinidad.

In their report of June 16, Gordon, Grant & Co., Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, say that although demand for breadstuffs is still confined to dealers' immediate requirements, the position has become decidedly firmer, and values generally are now gradually recovering. Bakers' flour is still selling slowly, but both extras and supers are moving more freely, and prices of both have appreciably advanced. Fresh cornmeal is salable, but the demand for imported bread and crackers has again almost disappeared.

Too Much Flour in Japan.

The Kobe, Japan, correspondents of a large American flour exporting firm, report that a depressed state of trade in regard to flour obtains in Japan at the present time. The Japanese market is overstocked with flour, through heavy purchases made by speculators and merchants during the close of 1903, in anticipation of the war.

Grain Inspection Act.

THE special committee appointed to finally revise the new Grain Inspection Bill completed its labors on July 7, and reported a measure which does suqstantial justice to the various interests concerned in the grain trade, and which by fixing permanent grain standards will, it is hoped, stimulate confidence on the part of Old Country buyers. The following are the amendments: An addition has been made to clause 25 as follows: "The chief inspector and the inspectors for the division shall, not later than the first week of October in each year, furnish official standards of grain as established by them under this Act when requested to do so by any person, said sample to be accompanied by a specific statement that it is a sample of the official grade. For all samples so furnished the inspector shall make such charge as is approved by the Minister of Trade and Commerce." Clause 28 has been amended by providing that the chief inspector and not the grain standard board shall distribute portions of standard samples. The suggested definition submitted by the Toronto Board of Trade of public elevators and grain warehouses which receive grain from cars or vessels for the purpose of storage and reshipment, was lost on division, and the expression "terminal elevator" changed to "public terminal elevator" throughout the bill.

Clause 36 has been struck out; this gave the chief inspector powee to name the survey board for a particular case when a quorum of the regular board could not be obtained. Clause 56, one of the most contentious in the bill, was finally adopted as amended. It provides that all grain shipped from any public elevator within the eastern division shall be shipped out as graded into such elevator by the inspecting officer, provided it may be reinspected at the request of any person interested in such grain, who may think it has gone out of condition or deteriorated in quality since originally inspected, and that the facts shall be endorsed on the face of the certificate, but it shall not under any circumstances be mixed or regraded

The clauses respecting the inspection of foreign grain has been adopted with some amendments. The samples of United States grain may be established yearly, but the provision that they shall be subject to the approval of the chief inspector of the division was struck out. At the same time it is provided that he should be a member of the survey board for foreign grain. Clause 31 of the general provisions has been struck out. It provided that the Governor in Council might reject the standard samples chosen by the grain standards board if they are unfairly or improperly chosen.

The standards for oats in the Eastern Division of the Dominion have been raised as follows: No. 1, 34 lbs.; No. 2, 32 lbs.; No. 3, 30 lbs.; and No. 4, 28 lbs. Survey boards in the east will hereafter be appointed by the Governor-in-Council upon the recommendation of the Montreal and Toronto Boards of Trade.

The Grain Weighing Act of last session is also incorporated in the new bill. It gipes power to the Governor-in-Council to order compulsory weighing at lake terminals, such as Collingwood, Midland, Meaford, etc., of grain intended for distribution in eastern Canada, or all grain shipped east. The principle has been adopted of no reinspection of Manitoba grain in the east unless the grain has deteriorated in transit.

Flourishing Milling Business.

Surely no one can deny that the flour mills of Canada are making money when they see such annual reports as that of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. The directors of this well managed company have declared a dividend on the common stock of 8 per cent. for the past year. In 1902 the company paid 20 per cent on a capital of $500,000, but since that time the capitalization has been considerably increased, and has been divided into common and preferred stock and bonds, of which $1,500,000 is preferred stock. The stock is all closely held, and never figures in stock market transactions even though the company's securities are listed here. Robert Meighen, the managing director, together with a very efficient staff of grain and flour experts, deserve credit for such a splendid record.

Grain Exhibit at Winnipeg.

Arrangements have been made with the Winnipeg authorities in charge of the coming Dominion Exhibition, whereby the entire exhibit of grains and grasses will be held under the auspices and supervision of the Manitoba and Territorial Grain Growers' Associations.

W. G. Rogers, of Carberry, Man., has been appointed by the grain growers as their repreesntative on the Exhibition Board of Directors, and has been duly accepted by said board.

Tobacco Acreage in the United States.

THE Department of Agriculture of the United States Government has issued the following preliminary statement concerning the tobacco acreage planted, or to be planted during the present year, based on replies from over 1,500 special tobacco correspondents in various parts of the United States.

The situation has been rendered more than ordinarily obscure by the fact that in practically all the important tobacco counties the season has been from ten days to two weeks late, and weather conditions have been unfavorable for the growth of plants in the beds, and for transplanting them to the fields. The present outlook, however, may be greatly modified by future developments.

Taking a general view of the whole country, it appears that the tobacco acreage in the Burley District, which embraces certain counties of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, and West Virginia, will be considerably larger than that planted last year. The good prices received for last year's crop, the reduced stocks and the present very high prices of this type of tobacco are assigned as the chief causes for the increase.

A slight increase is reported also for the Eastern Ohio counties producing export tobacco and for the limited area in Virginia producing sun-cured tobacco.

On the other hand, marked reduction of acreage is reported from the following sections: The cigar tobacco sections of New England, New York, Wisconsin, and the sun-grown tobacco area of Gadsden County, Fla., and Decatur County, Ga.; the dark-tobacco counties of Western Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia; and the bright-tobacco counties of Eastern North Carolina and South Carolina.

A slight decrease in acreage is reported for Pennsylvania and for the bright belt of Virginia.

The low prices received for last year's crop by the producers of these types, the high price of cotton, scarcity of labor and a late and unfavorable season are the principal reasons suggested for the decrease.

The acreage in the following sections is reported to be about the same as that planted last year. The Miami Valley district of Ohio, producing cigar tobacco; the shade-grown tobacco area of Florida and Georgia; the "Old Belt" counties in North Carolina; Maryland, and the limited area in West Virginia, producing tobacco of the Eastern Ohio export type.

Tobacco in the Transvaal.

According to a contemporary, the Transvaal is likely to prove a great field for growing tobacco. Hitherto the Boer farmers have grown tobacco in a very careless way. They have paid no attention to scientific cultivation, and have been content to realize small profits. Steps are now being taken to grow tobacco on scientific methods; to this end several gentlemen interested have visited America, and are introducing the best systems of cultivation into the Transvaal. The Transvaal tobacco is heavily charged with nicotine, but no attempt has been made to produce any quantity of characteristic blends. It is felt that at present the tobacco world is too much dependent on the United States for its raw material. There is a prospect that Uganda also will develop into a good field for tobacco culture.

A Curious Cigarette Maker.

A curious cigarette maker was patented the other day in England, especially designed for the convenience of smokers who are also writers. It consists of a pencil upon which slides a ferrule. Attached to this ring is a metallic tube formng an extension of about the same length as a cigarette. One side of this tube is cut away through its entire length, and in this slot one edge of the paper is first placed, lining the interior and leaving a considerable portion of the paper free. The tobacco is then inserted in the tube from end to end, after which the remainder of the paper is wrapped around the tube and sealed. The pencil then comes into use to aid in the removal of the cigarette from the former.

if you deem it wise. We admit that in some cases the clerks will be tempted to smoke all the profits—but this temptation can be removed if the cigar sales are kept distinct.

However

even if you do lose a cigar or two occasionally, you can make in extra profits a hundred times more than you lose. Sell Cigars, but sell good ones. Those we make are good. They are "money-back" Cigars. "PEBBLE" in a 5-center and "PHARAOH" in a 10-center are absolutely safe.

Anti-Trust Fight.

THE tobacco war in the United States is being waged with great intensity, says the United States Tobacco Journal, and jobbers. sub-jobbers, as well as many of the retailers, seem to be making this fight a supreme effort against the encroachment of the trust. At a recent meeting of the retail cigar and tobacco dealers of Philadelphia, a resolution was adopted by which 300 retailers pledged themselves to support jobbers who would handle only independent goods. The following sentiments were expressed at this meeting:

"The action of the arbitrary and dictatorial Tobacco Trust marks an important point in the history of a gradual elimination of the jobber and sub-jobber as factors in the tobacco world. If the trust should succeed in this move it will be only the beginning of the end. From the plug and smoking tobacco it is only a step to cigars, cigarettes and every form of weed now sold. The monopolistic tendency must be checked, and it rests with the retailer to do so. He is the closest to the consumer and his influence is a powerful factor in determining the winner in the struggle. It is our duty to support such people as will take up the fight against this monopoly, and the only way we can do so is by casting aside the trust product and asserting our independence by handlng only those brands manufactured by independent concerns."

Independent concerns all over the country have not been slow to take advantage of the fight now being waged against the trust in Philadelphia, and jobbers and retailers are being flooded with circulars, soliciting trade. Several new concerns have already been organized in Philadelphia for the specific purpose of handling independent goods exclusively.

Grecian Tobacco Goes in Egypt.

In his annual report on the trade of the Grecian Province of Thessaly during 1903 Consul Merlin says: "I would draw special attention to the exports of leaf tobacco, nearly all of which at present goes to Egypt, to be there made up into high-priced cigarettes for consumption in the United Kingdom. There is no apparent reason why this tobacco should not be shipped direct for conversion into cigarettes, thus saving enormous intermediate expenses and profits. This matter deserves the attention of tobacco merchants, especially manufacturers of cigarettes of good quality. It is curious to note that in the past year 1,600 pounds of Thessalian cigarettes were sent to the United Kingdom, although there was no demand for the leaf tobacco, which could easily be blended to suit local tastes and requirements.

Where the First Stogie Originated.

"The first stogie was made by hand in the wilds of Pennsylvania," says John Duff, of Allegheny City, Pa. "The story which they tell once in a while in West Virginia, and which must be true, is that the long cheroots derived their names from the town of Connerstoga, Pa. An emigrant train of wagons was finding its way across the state, and a supply of tobacco was found at Connerstoga. The emigrants got a lot of it, but failed to get any pipes, and so could not smoke unless they made pipes themselves. Anyhow, one of them rolled a leaf of the tobacco in his hand, and wrapped it with another leaf. That was the first stogie. Others followed his example, and they all called the article that they made a 'stoga,' in honor of the town at which the tobacco was secured. That is said to be the true story of how the name 'Stogie' originated."

Tobacco Ashes.

Calculating that the consumption of tobacco is about 40,000 tons a year in the United Kingdom, it is estimated that above 8,000 tons of ash are annually committed to the winds or dissipated in some way or other.

Remembering that a ton of tobacco leaf would yield 4 cwt. of ash, which represents valuable mineral constituents withdrawn from the soil which have to be replaced by abundant manuring the Lancet points out that there would seem to be a fortune in store for the individual who could devise a successful means for the collection of tobacco ash to be restored to the soil from which it was taken.

Ash ought to be a valuable asset in the economy of things.

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

Bans on Tobacco.

Strange as it may appear now, both sultans of Turkey and shahs of Persia have tried their best to put down smoking. In Turkey, formerly, smoking was a crime, punishable by the offenders having their pipes thrust through their noses, and in Russia in 1634 the noses of smokers were cut off.

In Transylvania offenders were fined from 3 to 200 florins. In Berne, Switzerland, 1661, where crimes were divided into sections according to the Ten Commandments, smoking was classed with the deadly sins. The tribunal to put down smoking, called chambre-au-tabac, continued to the middle of the eighteenth century. The climax was reached by Amarath IV., King of Persia, who made it a capital offence.

In England Elizabeth issued a proclamation against smoking in 1584, and James' "counterblast against tobacco," with its pompous language, is well known. All through his reign it was a common stipulation that "no puffer of tobacco" should be appointed schoolmaster.

Essex Tobacco Crop.

The outlook for the tobacco crop in Essex is bad, owing to the wet season and cold weather. One extensive tobacco buyer says that the crop will not be as large as that of last year if present weather continues.

Tobacco Notes.

Lalley & Despond, cigar makers, Galt, Ont., have moved their factory from Scott's block to the factory previously occupied by W. H. Skelly.

R. Smith and J. Peixoto, cigar manufacturers and proprietors of the Cuban cigar factory, Winnipeg, have dissolved partnership. R. Smith continues in business.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

FREIGHTS have shown a decided improvement this week, and considerable interest has been aroused all around. Rates on grain have advanced about 3d. per quarter, partly because of the demand for wheat from English importers. The other reason is the larger offerings for July and August shipments. On the whole, the July sailings have picked up well, while for August and September the prospects are fine. As there is so much room for improvement, the grain men have not been deeply moved by the change for the better.

Another interesting feature of freights is that the Manufacturers' Association have made a new tariff, or at least have been instrumental in getting a new one for butter, eggs, cheese and certain classes of manufactured goods. The overture of the association before the Railway Commission has had good effect, and the special tariff brought into force last year has been abolished and a lower tariff in force previous to that time will come into effect. The cut in eggs, for instance, will be from fifty-three cents a hundred to forty-four cents from points in western Ontario, and a corresponding reduction from points east of Toronto. In cheese and dairy produce, the reduction will amount to about thirty per cent. The Manufacturers' Association are pleased with this change, and it will also mean a reduction on heavy goods, such as stoves, the rate on this class of goods from Montreal being cut from twenty-five to twenty cents a hundred, and from Winnipeg the cut is from eighty-four cents to seventy-three cents a hundred.

Nearly all the large manufacturers and exporters of Montreal are pleased, and they state that the attitude of the railway companies toward them has been very pleasant ever since the meeting of the Railway Commission.

The "VAMPIRE"
Spiral Flycatcher

Clean, Simple, Novel, and Effective.

Clears the House of Flies.

THE "Vampire" Spiral Flycatcher consists of a small closely-wound Spiral, covered with a sticky material, and hermetically sealed in a short tube. By simply pulling out one end, the Spiral is elongated and forms the most effective Flycatcher known. When the Spiral is full, lay on a sheet of newspaper, crumple up and burn.

Oh! What a pity!

Is the usual exclamation when a delicate or much-cherished piece of china or glass comes to grief. When this happens you want which permanently mends china or glass and joins wood, leather, etc., etc. In collapsible tubes.

"Tenasitine"

Cured and Packed
Where Caught!

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

One reason why the "Thistle Brand of Canned Haddies, Kippered Herrings, etc., retain the rich, delicate flavor of the freshly-caught fish is because they are cured and packed right at the water side where they are caught.

There is no dirt, no slime in the "Thistle" Brand to spoil the natural flavor. There are no "odds and ends" thrown in in a hurry. The "Thistle" Brand contains nothing but carefully-selected fish—only the best will do for the "Thistle" Brand!

The cost per tin, or can, to clean, cure and pack the "Thistle" Brand is without doubt greater than the cost involved in marketing any other Brand in the country, yet the high quality has been steadily maintained from year to year even in the face of strong competition. The "Thistle" Brand competes on quality and not on price. It is the Standard Brand of Canned Fish!

A QUESTION and its ANSWER

What is it that has made Ceylon Teas such a remarkable success in so short a time?

The answer of answers is

THE FLAVOR OF CEYLON TEAS

Ceylon Teas have a flavor found in no other teas---a flavor that pleases every tea-drinker to whom the finer qualities of tea appeal.

It will be a good day for the grocery trade when the rejected teas have disappeared entirely, and when the one good and sufficient tea alone remains. Confusion and loss arise when there are many teas.

Why! Go burn it. There is 10 times more satisfaction in burning money than in losing it in driblets, through carelessness of clerks, or disputed accounts. IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? India and Ceylon at the St. Louis Fair

THE GROCER has much pleasure in reproducing in this week's issue photographs of the buildings of the India and Ceylon Governments respectively at the World's Fair, St. Louis. Both these buildings have been the admiration of all who have seen them, and as they are among the most striking features of the great fair, readers of The Grocer will undoubtedly be interested in reading a brief description by one who is just home from St. Louis.

India Government Building.

The India Government building is designed after the celebrated mosque of Itmadul-Dowlap at Agra. The exterior consists of a series of seven arches on the three sides; the centre arch in each facade being loftier and forming the entrances to the building. The arches are fitted with Venetian doors, which admit of the building being thrown open on all sides, and being converted into a colonnade.

The building material is staff finished in dazzling white, and resembles Italian marble so closely that it is impossible to discriminate except at very close range. The walls are elaborately decorated with carved arabesque work, in imitation of that on the original temple, which is said to be unequalled by anything of the kind in the far east.

The interior is in the form of a central square court, surrounded by a series of arches smaller than those on the exterior of the building. In the centre of this court is a Hindoo temple, made of teak wood, exquisitely carved from the base to the extreme top, which is thirty-seven feet above the floor. This temple was made expressly for the exhibition in St. Louis, and took two years to complete. The panels depict scenes from Hindoo mythology, all boldly carved in relief. The rest of the structure is covered with intricate designs of scrolls, conventional flower patterns, palm trees, etc., so that not a single square inch remains undecorated.

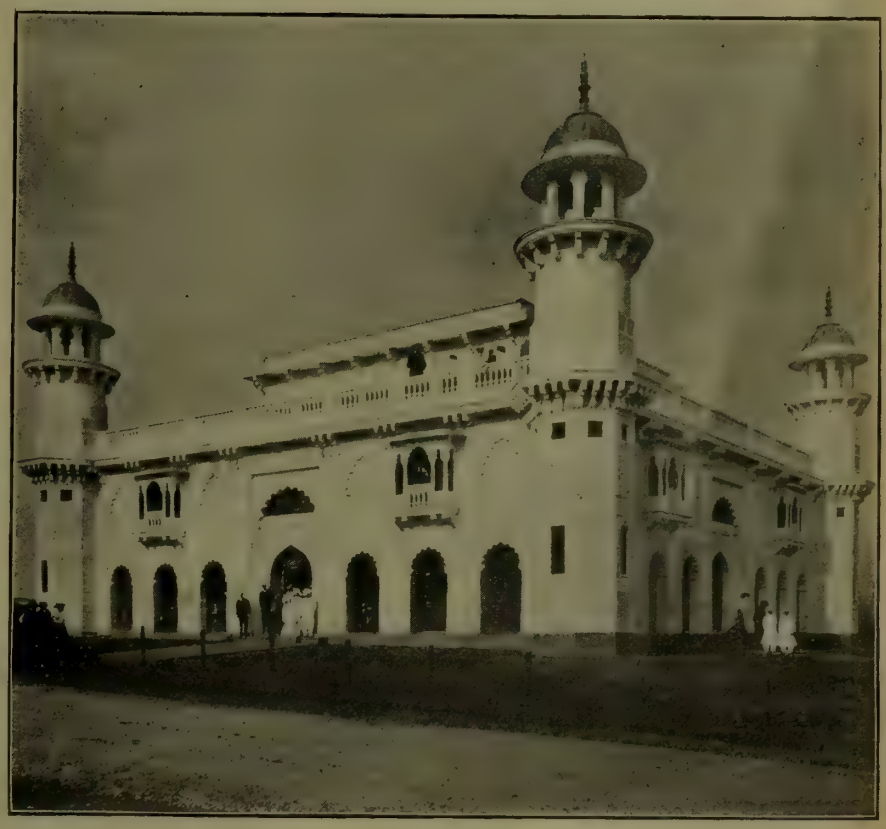
Overhanging the court is a balcony, from which springs another series of arches carrying the roof. This balcony, with its corridor, is lighted from the sides by oriel windows, and the whole building is full of light from the clere storey over the court, which is practically all glass.

The building, designed by Mr. R. Blechynden, commissioner of the Indian Government, and erected under the auspices of the Government, contains most attractive exhibits of Indian products, mainly India tea, a very important industry of that country, which now produces over 200,000,000 lbs. annually. There is in addition a wealth of Indian art manufactures, including carved furniture, draperies, hand-prints, brass, copper, silver, enamel and repousse work.

Mr. Blechynden needs no introduction to Canada, since he is a frequent visitor here, and it is unnecessary to do more than mention the hospitable manner in which he received tourist visitors. The service is prompt and eminently satisfactory, and every one visiting the India Government headquarters is afforded the additional privilege of being expeditiously served with a delicious cup of green, black or mixed tea, by native attendants dressed in oriental garb.

Ceylon Government Building.

The Ceylon Government building, which is situated next to the India building, presents an entirely different appearance from the latter, being of pure Kandiori architecture. It is modelled after the famous Buddhist Temple of the Tooth, Kandy, Ceylon, and in richness of design compares favorably with the beautiful building just described. Anything that savors of the oriental is always sure to challenge the admiration of dwellers in the Occident, and the Ceylon building is no exception to the rule.



India Government Building at the St. Louis Exhibition. R. Blechynden, Commissioner.

The Hon. Mr. Stanley Bois, who represents the Ceylon Government and planters at St. Louis, is a most courteous and agreeable gentleman. He is also actively interested in public affairs in the east, being a member of the Ceylon House of Representatives.

Tea is served in this building by native Cingalese in their national costume, and thousands flock thither to enjoy a cup of green or black tea after the fashion of the east. Expressions of delight regarding the delicate and delicious flavor of Ceylon tea are heard on every side; even those who know its merits are glad to have their memory refreshed, while to the uninitiated it has proved a revelation.

It is interesting to know that the very successful effort of the tea planters of Ceylon to introduce Ceylon tea in America was initiated at the Columbian Exposition in 1903; the second step has been taken at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition now in progress. A third exposition, however, to establish Ceylon tea in the favor of the United States is unnecessary, and the Canadian market has already shown its attitude towards this product of the "Sunny isle of the Southern Seas" in no uncertain way. The Planters' Association of Ceylon have shown, moreover, that they need no suggestions as to the ways and means of exploiting their tea by availing themselves of judicious advertising through the columns of the daily press and trade journals throughout the country.

IMPURE FOOD PRODUCTS.

A severe sentence was imposed upon a Montreal milkman for serving milk to his customers from filthy cans, namely, a fine of $40 or two months' imprisonment. In view of the alarming mortality returns for Montreal at the present time it would appear that a maximum fine is not enough for an offender of this class.

As an instance of the comparatively stringent manner in which laws for preventing the adulteration of foods, etc., are enforced in England, the owner of the Victoria Spice Mills was tried in Liverpool a fortnight or so ago on the charge of adulterating pepper. The charge was proven. In extenuation, however, the counsel for the guilty firm said that the adulterated pepper was made for export abroad, and it was only by accident that the pepper had been distributed in the home market. The judge for this condemned them all the more, and said that a mere fine would not meet the case. The plea was made that the offender's business was ruined, his character taken away, and his health broken, and surely his worship might be satisfied with imposing a fine. The judge ordered the prisoner to be imprisoned in the common gaol for three months. The laws in the Old country are better observed than in any new country simply because they are enforced. The British Food Adulteration Act is probably one of the finest provisions for the public health in existence.

The Health Committee of Montreal is busily engaged now upon a scheme to ferret out offenders against the Pure Food laws, on which they propose to expend a lot of money. It was the chairman of this committee, Dr. Dagenais, who first paid attention to The Grocer's complaint about bread stickers and suggestion for a more careful and cleanly manner of handling bread. Grocers will do well to be warned regarding clean refrigerators, ice, sterilized bottles and cans, for by the new arrangements inspectors are to be employed, and at any moment may pounce upon milkmen, grocers or confectioners.

ITALIAN SUGAR TRUST FORMED.

According to advices received from abroad the protracted negotiations for the formation of an Italian sugar trust have been consummated. The trust has been limited for a period of five years, and takes in eighteen companies with thirty-three factories. Its nominal capital is to be 80,000,000 lire, or $16,000,000.

SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY IN RUSSIA.

MR. FRIDKYM, a prominent Russian who is visiting Canada, in an interview with The Grocer on the beet sugar industry in Russia said:

"The beet sugar industry in Russia has assumed such large proportions that an attempt is now being made by a number of the largest Russian interests to find a foreign market for their surplus product. It is in the form of beet sugar molasses which it is thought can be profitably utilized by beet sugar refiners, as well as by breweries and distilleries abroad. Russian refiners are in hopes that a market may be found for their beet sugar molasses in Canada, in spite of the initial difficulties of duty and transportation.

"The difficulty of duty need not be considered a serious one, as the raw material can be produced much more cheaply in Russia than in this country. Russian industries have never experienced a scarcity of laborers. In the event of temporary shortage all that is necessary is to notify the Government Bureau and the requisite number of laborers is immediately dispatched, either free by special train or on the regular trains for a nominal fee. In this way the Russian Government aids home industries, at the same time professing not to assist them by bounties, etc., at least in the beet sugar industry. The Government is also serviceable in the matter of transportation.

"The problem of transporting the beet sugar product to foreign markets has not as yet been fully worked out. It is not improbable, however, that within the next few months a suitable steamship service for the transportation of beet sugar molasses may be secured. The plan at present is to build a fleet of tank boats to sail from ports on the Baltic Sea, within convenient distance of the districts of production.

"The process of refining beet sugar in Russia has been placed on a scientific basis, as a direct result of the attention paid to technical training during the last few years. One of the finest technical schools in Europe today is located in St. Petersburg. Both Russian and German chemists are employed in the refineries, and the proportion of technical experts is increasinging every year. One of the latest inventions by a Russian is a process by which the raw sugar beet is converted into refined sugar in process, without first being made into syrup."

Mr. Fridkym has just finished a thorough examination of the sugar beet industry in the State of Michigan, and reports that it is not in a flourishing condition. Of the total number of factories in the state, three are running full time, five at half-time, and two have closed down on account of lack of raw material.

AN EXCELLENT SHOWING.

Notwithstanding the fact that E. W. Gillett Company, Toronto, were put out of business completely for a short time, owing to their entire plant, including stock and machinery, being destroyed by fire on the night of April 19, 1904, dividend checks were mailed promptly as usual to all stockholders on July 14. This dividend was for the period extending from April 1 to June 30.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE

THE following inquiries relating to Canadian trade have been received by the High Commissioner for Canada, at London, Eng.:

96. A wholesale agent in Edinburgh has asked to be referred to Canadian houses who require the services of an agent (not buying) to introduce or extend their butter trade.

98. A London general, export, import merchant and agent is looking out for Canadian shippers of flour, butter, etc., as he is in a position to dispose of considerable quantities.

99. A gentleman with business connections in South Wales and the West of England is shortly leaving for a trip to Canada, and desires to meet millers and others who might contemplate appointing a representative in England.

108. A correspondent in Paris has asked to be referred to one or two good Canadian firms who might be disposed to appoint a buying or selling agent for France.

The following inquiries relating to Canadian trade have been received from Birmingham, Eng.:

55. A Birmingham firm wishes to be put in touch with a firm in Canada who can ship about 1,000 boxes of butter per week.

56. A Birmingham firm would like to be put in touch with a Canadian shipper of cheese.

60. A firm in the Midlands who has already contracted for 4,000 boxes of Canadian butter is prepared to make another contract for the same quantity with a first-class shipper in Canada.

61. A firm in the Potteries wishes to appoint a representative in Canada for the sale of the fire clay bricks and quarries.

62. A firm in a position to handle apples would like to get in touch with firms who can ship large quantities.

The following inquiries relating to Canadian trade have been received from the Curator Canadian Section, Imperial Institute, London, Eng.:

59. A buying and commission agent in Glasgow has a considerable opening for canned codfish steaks, and invites correspondence from Canadian packers wishing to take up the matter.

62. A produce house in Manchester is open to purchase large quantities of canned lobsters, and would like to hear from Canadian shippers of first-class goods.

The names of the firms making these inquiries, with their addresses, may be obtained from the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. Persons desiring such addresses will be careful to quote the office under which the inquiry appears and the number.

RED ROSE TEA WAREHOUSE

No. 4 INTERIOR VIEWS.

THE BLENDING DEPARTMENT, 4TH FLOOR.

Two blending machines are shown in the above cut; one has a capacity of 2000 lbs., the other 800 lbs. They are operated by electric power through a motor attached. After the teas are received into the machines, they revolve a number of times, sufficient to thoroughly blend the tea, which is then discharged from the blending machines into metal bins. The teas which are to be packed into lead packages are then conveyed to hoppers connected with automatic electric weighing machines in the packing room on the floor below. These hoppers have a capacity of 2000 lbs. each, to correspond with the large blending machine.

On this floor, in close proximity to the blending machines, all bulk teas are packed into the various size packages required by the trade, viz: chests, half chests, caddies, tins.

These teas are generally packed under the well known brands of "Estabrooks' Indo-Ceylon Blends" and "Estabrooks' Japan Blends" but there are also many private brands put up for large firms in all parts of Canada.

A description of the weighing and packing machines on the third floor will be given next week.

The Outlook for Cheese.

IT is not often that the question of dear or cheap cheese excites so fierce a controversy as it has done this year, says the London Grocer, and all because the extremely high prices (up to 69s to 71s for Canadian) which ruled in the early part of 1903 afterwards proved to be most disastrous to the trade at large. Through these exorbitant rates gaining currency too long, the opening prices for the new season in April last year ruled ridiculously high, when 65s to 66s on c. i. f. terms were paid for prompt shipments of new fodder makes; and this bad beginning was the main cause of all the trouble that followed. While the utmost confidence in the then future was derived from the fact that stocks in the United Kingdom, especially London, were abnormally light almost to utter extinction, and unequal to the demands upon them, it was forgotten, or purposely ignored, that the make in Canada last season was of a prodigious character, and this was not allowed to reveal itself until the season was far advanced. By that time the mischief to the trade here was already inflicted, and quotations kept repeatedly dropping until July, when full-cream Canadian cheese was obtainable on the spot at 49s to 51s per cwt. for white and colored. After that there was a reaction to 55s to 57s; but it did not last any length of time, as the consumption of foreign cheese seemed to be retrograding rather than progressing; and stocks, without doubt, were accumulating instead of decreasing as fast as they should before the commencement of another season.

So assured was the trade of the preponderant nature of the supply of cheese in London that statements of stocks of Canadian in London, Liverpool and Bristol, representing their entire amount at 250,000 boxes—the heaviest for many years past—were passed without contradiction, and buyers for home use were preparing to come in and replenish their stores on such reasonable terms as were considered to be quite safe, viz., on the basis of 38s to 42s for prime September make. At that moment (about the middle of May) everything appeared to be in favor of the dealers, who were fain to believe that their hopes would be realized, more particularly as the first c. i. f. prices then named for new "fodder" cheese were as low as 34s to 35s 6d, and augured well for the success of operations which might subsequently follow. Suddenly, however, there came a rude shock to these anticipations, and quotations went up 6s per cwt. at a single bound, making the c. i. f. figures 40s to 41s. The onward movement, once started, went on uninterruptedly, but only for a short period—till June, when the c. i. f. terms were 42s to 43s 6d. Meanwhile, "spot" prices also rose; and while fodder make was fetching 43s to 44s, old colored cheese was bringing 43s to 48s, and fancy white 46s to 50s per cwt. This was the utmost stretch to which the market would go, and it has since leaned more towards the downward track.

From this outline of events that have followed in regular order, it is pretty evident that the time was ill-chosen for a great upheaval in prices of Canadian cheese, with so excessive a weight of stock of old season's goods to carry over; and the new make coming forward faster and more extensively than had been expected, took speculators completely by surprise. The determined stand of the English trade against the attitude adopted by operators on the other side of the Atlantic convinced holders here that it would be useless to try on the game of speculation any longer, and immediately the cabled terms began to recede. These soon fell to 39s to 41s, and with them the rates ex warehouse to 36s to 41s, according to quality and condition; and old cheese has gone back to 40s to 46s per cwt. Thus, in the clearest manner, has been proved the soundness of the views of those who took up the position of predicting the cheapness and plentifulness of cheese for the present year, and with an increasing production in the States and Canada, the only point which now remains undecided is whether best Canadian cheese will be sold here wholesale as low as about 34s delivered, as it was in midsummer of 1896 and 1898.

Model Poultry Farm.

The Dominion Government has decided to place a most interesting exhibit at the coming Canadian National Exposition in Toronto. It is a model poultry farm. The exhibit will occupy fifty square feet of ground, and will comprise a model poultry house, a model poultry yard, two movable colony houses, brooders with chickens, incubators and feeding cages.

New Cheese Loading Apparatus.

A veteran steamship man, in the person of Captain Macmaster, Montreal, has invented a new cheese loading apparatus, that should lessen the labor and chance of injury to the cheese. The device was tested one day last week on the steamer Kildona, at the Thomson Line wharf. A number of prominent produce men were invited to the test, and certainly great interest was shown. The old method of gathering all he cheese boxes in a huge rope in the form of a fish net has been discarded, or at least will be shortly, if this new scheme comes into popular use. A long shaft leads from the top of the deck to the bottom of the hold. Within this is a carrier. When the cheese is placed on the carrier, down it goes, and as soon as it is deposited, up comes the try. One or two cheeses can be carried at once, and it is said that over 1,000 cheeses per hour have been loaded. The new apparatus loads cheese much faster and at the same time requires fewer men, in addition to the adjunct of not injuring the boxes in any way.

One of the most recent inventions is an apparatus for milking cows by electricity. To the udder of the cow is attached a rubber hood, connected with a vessel for receiving the milk by means of a rubber tube. The air is exhausted from the tube by an electrical device, a gentle suction being thus secured.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—There is a good demand for smoked meats, and prices are firmer, although there is no quotable change. The meat packers' strike in the United States is felt a little already, but merely in revealing a tendency to higher quotations. Should it continue much longer there is certain to be an advance, a possibility which dealers hail with delight, as at present prices there is very little profit in meats. The fresh meat market is as dead as it well can be, the warm weather taking away all demand for meat, and rendering it almost impossible to keep. Butchers are buying next to nothing. There are no hogs coming forward, as farmers are too busy with their crops to attend to killing and delivery. At this season of the year heavy hogs are not wanted at any price. A notable difference is to be observed in the class of meat being sold during the Summer to what was in demand not over a couple of years ago. At that time every kind of meat had its season, and the consumer could not be induced to buy mutton, or lamb or pork during certain months, as they were considered out of season. Now, however, we have a more or less steady demand all the year round. Improved storage facilities are accountable for a great deal of this. Prices this week are as follows:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 07½	$0 07¾
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12	0 12½
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09	0 09½
Small hams per lb	0 12	0 13

Butter—Almost all the butter coming to hand now is in tubs, and during the few very warm days no prints at all were received. Fairly large quantities are being shipped, and there is every prospect of a great deal larger appearing during the next few weeks. Country merchants had become accustomed to a certain price for their butter, and because it was not offered this year they have been holding back stocks. One small merchant writes that he has 500 tubs in his cellar, and daily letters are received of large quantities for sale. One result of this, which is sure to disturb the market, is the fact that there will be a lot of poor butter offered on the market very soon. Butter cannot be withheld for any time without depreciating in value, and merchants would do well to remember this. While, as a rule, butter is not sold to the dealer on its individual merits, if he finds a large amount of a poor grade offered he is sure to lower the price he offers. We quote these prices:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 17	0 18
" solids, fresh	0 16½	0 17½
Dairy prints	0 13	0 14
" in tubs	0 12	0 14

Cheese—The situation in the cheese market is the same as last week. Prices on the board are weak, perhaps owing to the larger offerings, the result of stock having been withheld during the past month. Dealers can see no encouragement in the outlook. The export demand and price offered remains the same. Board meetings during the week ending July 18 were as follows:

Board.	Boxes.		Price.
Brantford	1,492	0 7 7-16	0 07⅞
Ingersoll	270		0 07⅞
Campbellford	2,125		0 07 11-16
Stirling	1,240		0 07⅞
Picton	1,170	(none sold)	0 07⅞
Woodstock	3,380	(few sold)	0 0711-16
Kingston	1,553	(300 sold)	0 07⅞
Madoc	965	(700 sold)	0 07 9-16
Brockville	2,887	(none sold)	0 07⅞
Tweed	695	(573 sold)	0 7 9-16 0 07⅞
Vankleek Hill	1,954	(1351 sold)	0 07⅞
Kemptville	2,021	(none sold)	0 07⅞
Ottawa	2,810		0 07¾ 0 07¾
Iroquois	1,200	(none sold)	0 07⅞
Winchester	1,410	(none sold)	0 07⅞
Perth	2,540		0 07⅞ 0 07¾
Napanee	2,115	(1,915 sold)	0 07⅞
Belleville	3,600	(1,200 sold)	0 07 9-16
London	2,962		0 07½ 0 07⅝

As will be seen, a much larger proportion is being sold at prevailing prices than has been the case for weeks past. Stocks on hand in the factories must have been getting rather unwieldy. Much, too, was sold on the curb. Prices are a quarter-cent lower. Old cheese has practically disappeared. We quote:

Provisions—For the time of year activity is keeping up pretty well in the provision market. The market is much stronger for live hogs, and this is becoming a feature, as receipts are noticeably declining in quantity. Demand being good, sales are beng made at $5.50 to $5.70, weighed off cars. This shows an advance of from 10 to 20c per 100 lbs. in a week. Fresh killed abattoir stock is very firm at $7.50 to $7.75 per 100 lbs. 100 boxes of hams and bacon arrived on Monday, and the demand was active, with considerable trading going on. We quote:

butter. The local market is quite steady, and the produce men are growing more cheerful. Export business has been done in Eastern Townships creamery at an equivalent of 17 3-4c to 18c, and in some cases a fraction more. In spot business to-day, exporters talk freely of 17 1-2c and 17 5-8c, and in medium to good at 17 to 17 1-4c. At country points good prices are being paid. As many as 600 boxes sold at the wharf at 17 1-4c, which is just the same as ruled a week ago. In England better feelings are abroad, owing to the improvement in the English cotton manufacturing districts. The statement by mail that imports in England had increased for the half year 15,909 tons, is very hopeful, as that beats all previous records. This amazing amount was largely contributed by the colonies, while from the pasture countries of Holland, France and Germany a falling off was reported. The total exports for the week ending July 18 were 14,724 boxes, and only a little over 1,200 boxes was through freight. During the corresponding week of 1903 the exports were only 10,912, and in 1902, 1,897 boxes.

Cheese—Another weak turn has been affecting the cheese market. Stocks are evidently accumulating on both sides of the Atlantic, which is an unerring sign of the curtailment of consumption. In England, the favorite Cheshires are selling at less than Canadian cheese, and advices state that im- The situation, then, in the Old Country, porters are losing money on Canadians. is far from being bullish, and it is no wonder that the British importers haggle at paying low prices, even for Canadian cheese. No one is willing to forecast much on the cheese question. At the wharf, sales were made at 7 1-4 to 7 1-2c, with 7 1-4 ruling price. As many as 6,000 boxes sold at that price. This makes business about steady, compared with last week. For spot business the day's range was: Ontario, 8c; Townships, 7 3-4c, and Quebecs, 7 1-2 to 7 5-8c. The exports of cheese were, for the week ending July 18, 82,254 boxes, and of this 15,534 were through freight. For the same week of 1903 the exports were 98,342, and for the corresponding week of 1902, 46,641 boxes.

Provisions—Business is dull. While pork is rather easier, beef is firm. There is but light business. Lard continues very low, with but limited sale. Smoked meats sell only in a limited way. In fresh meats, lamb is a large seller. Quality is now good. Beef is quite high, as best stock is scarce. Mutton is very dull. Veal brings full figure. Little pork is being received.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. S. Wotherspoon, Montreal, is on a two months' business trip to England and Scotland.

Mr. J. H. Maiden, Montreal, leaves for Halifax and St. John this week, in the interests of San Toy Starch and Eagle Baking Powder.

Mr. Fred Hughes, Montreal, selling agent for the Ozo Co., Ltd., leaves for Murray Bay this week to join his family, who are summering there.

After the Ontario and Quebec members of the Dominion Grocers' Guild held their special meeting last week the delegates were the guests of Mayor Laporte at dinner in the Canadian Club.

Mr. A. H. Brittain, Montreal agent for Black, Bros. & Co., Halifax, has returned from a two weeks' trip to Boston, Halifax, and the Maritime Provinces. He returns full of fish stories and interesting facts.

Mr. J. E. Maybee, of the Metropolitan Soap Co., Toronto, was in Montreal last week, in the interest of Mrs. Dooley's Laundry Soap. Mr. Maybee spoke very enthusiastically of the progress made in the east since its introduction.

Mr. William Meldrum, produce merchant, of Montreal, who has been seriously ill, has recovered, and has gone with his family to Summer resorts down the River St. Lawrence.

Mr. J. A. Stewart one of the leading grocers of Woodstock, died on July 12.

Mr. J. H. Mackenzie, of the High Grade Coffee and Specialty Co., Ltd., Ottawa, was a visitor to the Montreal trade this week. Mr. Mackenzie speaks glowingly of the reception his company's brands are meeting.

A brandy which has attracted great attention in the Province of Quebec is that made by Claudon & Co., and represented in Montreal by H. L. Boisseau at 4 and 6 St. James street. Messrs. Boisseau have got after the business in an enterprising way, and in a very practical way. They created a demand for their goods in the right place by judicious advertising, and this, coupled with the efforts of A. Cadieux, their traveler, so arranged things that results have abundantly followed.

Mr. J. Percy Thompson, for the past two years representative of the E. W. Gillett Co., in Toronto, has joined the traveling staff of the Eby, Blain Co., Toronto. Mr. Thompson received his training in the grocery line with Mr. James Whimster, Aurora, serving eight years, during the last of which he was buyer and manager. His training for the road is therefore a thorough one, and his experience should be valuable for both his customers and his house. The territory allotted to Mr. Thompson is north of Toronto, on the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk.

Mr. M. H. Adams, a hustling American business man from Chicago, called at the Montreal office of The Grocer last week. He was holidaying in town, the guest of Mr. W. E. Davis, general passenger agent of the G. T. R. system. The irrepressible commercial spirit of the American was much appreciated, as it was early in the morning when he called. He is buyer for Steele, Weddels & Co., Chicago, who handle all kinds of grocery sundries and products. Mr. Adams just called to find out where to find a certain party in town, and The Grocer was glad to be able to give the information.

NEW YORK GROCERY FIRM ENTERTAINS.

FRANCIS H. LEGGETT & CO., New York, will again entertain their out-of-town friends and patrons to the number of 300 on Pennsylvania and Ohio Day. The object of these gatherings is to set forth the advantages of New York as a trading centre and to convince buyers that there are many lines of merchandise they can buy to greater advantage in New York than in any other city in the United States. Also to show visitors that New York is an ideal Summer resort and offers a maximum number of attractions. There is Coney Island, for instance, Long Branch, and many other similar places on Long Island within 30 minutes' ride where one can find excellent fishing, boating, yachting, etc. Then there are the roof gardens, which afford excellent entertainment. Another attraction is seeing New York up-town and down-town by automobile coaches. There is also a yacht trip around Manhattan Island. On the last three pleasure tours a guide is provided who describes each point or object along the route worth noting.

It ought, perhaps, to be added that another purpose of special days for various sections of the country is to bring together the buying and selling interests of Francis H. Leggett & Co., with the idea of promoting cordial relations between buyers and salesmen. Visiting friends are shown through their ten storey manufactory at 132 to 138 King street, where the methods and processes employed in preparing Premier pitted olives, Premier plum pudding, Premier jams, jellies, etc., may be seen in actual operation. The process of roasting coffee by electricity is on exhibition, as well as the gas and dry heat processes, and the grinding of spices, all of which combine to make the plant an exhibition in itself and a sight worth seeing from an educational standpoint.

BOARDS OF TRADE MEET.

AT the annual meeting of the Board of Trade of Victoria, B. C., held on July 8, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year :

President—S. J. Pitts.
Vice-President—W. T. Oliver.
Secretary—F. Elworthy.
Council—S. Jones, C. F. Todd, L. G. McQuade, J. L. Beckwith, J. G. Cox, D. R. Ker, W. H. Bone, T. M. Henderson, S. Leiser, T. W. Paterson, W. F. Bullen, J. Forman, J. Kingham, J. Simon, J. J. Shallcross.

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was an address by Lord Monk Bretton, who is at present visiting British Columbia. Lord Monk Bretton has come to Canada direct from Australia, and says the two things which struck him most during his visit to Canada's sister colony were a distinct desire on the part of the latter to find some means of drawing closer together the different portions of the Empire, and a strong feeling among Australians that there is scope for the conclusion of a commercial treaty between the mother country and the colonies which might be a benefit to all parties.

The following interesting items are taken from the annual report presented at this meeting :

Assessment Act.

At the last session of the Local Legislature a bill was introduced which included some very material changes in the assessments for revenue. The bill came as a surprise and appeared to be an ill-digested measure. The representations of this board resulted in a few changes being made before the Act was passed, and assurance was given that a commission would be appointed to enquire into the system of provincial taxation. Further modifications may, therefore, be expected. The views of this board were expressed in the following resolution :

"That this board considers that the provisions adopted or confirmed in the present Assessment Act will tend to hamper trade; this board considers that the endeavor should be not to tax more than a firm's net worth and net profit or gains; that the present Assessment Act goes beyond this in not permitting the deduction of liabilities from the gross value of the stocks of merchandise, debts, etc., and in other respects.

"That this board would urge upon the Government to appoint a commission—not of an official or political character—to report upon the present Assessment Act and to make such recommendations as may seem advisable."

Bills of Sale.

In consequence of the absence of a Bankruptcy Act applicable to the whole Dominion, it has developed upon the individual provinces to enact laws to meet to some extent the exigencies of the situation. This board has taken every opportunity to urge Dominion Government legislation; at the same time the local Government has been moved and the board was successful during the session of 1902 in securing the passage of the "Act to Prevent Priority Among Execution Creditors." That Act has proved beneficial, but something further was required in regard to chattel mortgages and bills of sale. A committee was therefore appointed, who submitted the recommendations, appended hereto, which were subsequently approved by the board. At the suggestion of the honorable the attorney-general the report was put in the form of a bill, but read only a first time in the Legislature just before prorogation. The honorable the attorney-general has given his assurance, however, that during the recess the whole question of bills of sale and kindred instruments shall receive his best attention and that legislation shall be introduced at the next session. In the meantime an Act was passed providing for the registration of bills of sale, in County Court cities and towns, within five days of the date thereof and declaring such sales void in the event of judgment being entered against the grantor, within sixty days of such registration.

Joint Meetings of the Provincial Boards of Trade.

Another attempt was made to organize a meeting of representatives from all boards of trade in British Columbia. Some of the boards promptly endorsed the proposal, but, taken collectively, sufficient encouragement was not found in the replies to warrant the expectations of a successful gathering, and the matter was therefore allowed to drop. It must be stated that such a meeting would entail considerable cost, both in time and money, while the subjects for discussion of equal interest to the entire province are not many. Better means of communication will bring the various boards into closer touch, and joint meetings, thoroughly represented in every way, may then be looked for.

Trade with Mexico.

This board is on record as a strong advocate of a direct line of steamships between British Columbia and Mexico. Early in the year 1897 the possibilities of making the service mutually advantageous to both countries were gone into very fully and communicated to the Dominion Government through the Victoria City representatives in the House of Commons. The arrangements now made are just what this board recommended some years ago.

Victoria City.

The trade and commerce of the city of Victoria has been maintained, and it is safe to say, speaking generally, that there is not another city on the Pacific Coast where business is in a healthier condition. Nowhere is business conducted on a more sound basis.

The proportion of factory hands and artisans is large in Victoria with population, say, 27,500, and a stranger is apt to overlook the local industries. The foundries, ship yards, lumber mills and factories, too numerous to here mention specifically, furnish steady employment, at good wages, the importance of which is underrated. A large increase in such establishments may be looked for as the local conditions become better known. The competitive transportation facilities and cheap fuel will do much to make the City of Victoria an industrial centre of the first rank. A step in this direction and one that may be expected in the very near future is the development of the fisheries. The canning of salmon, now made possible by the Dominion Government having issued the necessary licenses to operate purse seines and traps, will doubtless be followed by the establishment of industries in other branches of the fisheries.

The vicinity of Victoria is very suitable for fruit growing and poultry raising. The climate and land conditions are excellent. Good prices for such products are obtained locally and the Northwest Territories affords an outlet for all the fruits that are likely to be grown for many years to come. The Yukon is now supplied with eggs and poultry which originate principally in Eastern Canada. Mutual advantages would be derived if such were raised here.

QUEBEC CITY BOARD.

A general meeting of the Board of Trade of Quebec City was held on July 12, P. J. Bazin, 1st vice-president, presiding, and among those present being Hon. J. Sharples, G. Tanguay, W. Dobell, L. Evans, E. Paquet, G. E. Amyot, L. Laveau, L. A. Carrier, E. Leclerc, J. O. Jacot, F. X. Morency, J. Hone, jr., J. B. Bedard, G. Simard, W. G. McConnel, B. A. Scott, M. Joseph, J. Murphy, R. C. Muir, A. Turcotte, C. Kirouac, O. Chalifour, and T. LeVasseur, secretary.

G. Bazin read a short summary of matters dealt with since the last general meeting of the board. At the last meeting an interesting memorial in favor of the compulsory inspection of hides and leather was communicated by the president of the standing committee on hides and leather, G. Roy, and approved. Events have since proved the attitude of the board on the matter was judicious. A car load of hides received at Quebec after inspection in another province, proved to be short in weight and grade after reinspection by the standing committee on hides and leather at the instance of the tanner, who had bought this carload of hides. The tanner in question is one of the members of the Quebec Board of Trade. The matter is now in the hands of the general inspector of hides and leather for investigation.

HOW ABOUT PICKLING SPICES? NOW is the time to lay in a stock of selctədə high grade spices. YOU WANT THE BEST, therefore handle

The standing committee on dry goods was called to meet on the 14th of June last to consider the advisability of addressing the Government with regard to granting delay in the application of the tariff changes announced in the Budget speech, and specially those relating to woolens. The Government was petitioned to request that the woolens which could be certified to have been bought before the 7th of June, be entered at the old rate, that is to say 35 per cent. less one-third, till the 31st of August next. The same movement was made by nearly all the commercial bodies of the Dominion, and the Minister of Finance has complied with this request.

A letter was read from W. Price, tendering his resignation as president of the board, pressure of business making it impossible for him to attend to its duties. A letter was also read from D. J. Rattray resigning as treasurer of the board, owing to business keeping him most of his time in Montreal. Mr. Bazin was unanimously elected president to succeed Mr. Price, and E. E. B. Rattray was unanimously elected treasurer to succeed his brother. W. Power, 2nd vice-president, was elected 1st vice-president, and G. E. Amyot 2nd vice-president, and the vacancy on the council was filled by the election of O. Poitras. S. Rioux was also elected a member of the board.

An appeal was made to the members of the board upon the subject of making the port of Quebec the national port of the Dominion, and a motion presented requesting that the various commercial bodies of Canada be invited to express themselves in favor of such a movement. This matter was, however, deferred.

The annual convention of the Boards of Trade of the Maritime Provinces will be held at Moncton, N. B., on August 17.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Nova Scotia Herring.

J. COWIE, the Scottish herring expert, now engaged in exploiting the herring fisheries off the Nova Scotia coast, in a recent interview with the Halifax Chronicle said:

"Nova Scotia herring are equal to the best of the same species of fish taken from the waters of Scotland."

Mr. Cowie has every confidence in the success of curing and marketing of Canadian herring, and believes that when everything is in working order a ready sale will be found for those fish.

In answer to the reporter's inquiry as to how the fish are cured, Mr. Cowie said:

"In Scotland the curing is all done on the shore by girls trained for the purpose. As soon as the fish are landed from the boats they are gibbed with a short knife and selected. That is, the fish are graded according to quality. The girls are experts in handling the fish, and as soon as they touch them they can tell the quality of them, and they are separated in large baskets. The herring are not split. Only the gills are cut out, the entrails being drawn at the same time.

During the months of May and June on the west coast of Scotland, fat herring, known as matges, similar to the Nova Scotia fish, are taken, and when cured they bring the biggest price in the German and Russian markets."

"The west coast," continued Mr. Cowie, "is the chief fishery place of Scotland. "Three girls, commonly called a crew, work together. Two of them do the gibbing and selecting, while the third one salts and packs the fish. The herring are placed in large tubs, and turned over and over in dry salt. Then they are taken out and packed in barrels, the bottom tier one way and the next tier at right angles, and so on until the barrel is filled. In this way they are allowed to stand for three days. After the third day, when the fish have sunk down, other tiers are put in up to the 'crows.' The barrel is then headed up and placed on its side, being allowed to remain in that position from eight to ten days, according to the size of the fish.

"By this time the fish are well salted and the barrel is filled with pickle. A bung hole is then bored below the bilge, and part of the pickle run off. The head is again taken out, more tiers of fish are put in, the head pressed into the barrel, and the fish are ready for market.

"The chief test of the fish on the other side," said Mr. Cowie, "is the eating of them, and it is by this means that I judge of their quality."

With regard to kippers, Mr. Cowie said the fish should be split, salted and smoked the same day that they are caught. In Scotland they never think of making kippers out of fish that are two days old. Nova Scotia herring make ideal kippers, and all the people there who tasted the fish were delighted with them.

Fish Traps Successful.

That the fish traps on the southern end of Vancouver Island are quite the success which advocates of the system claimed for them, was amply demonstrated on July 11, when huge catches were made at Sooke and Otter Point—15,000 in all: 7,500 at Otter Point and 7,500 at Sooke. This big haul is all the more significant when it is remembered that the trap at Sooke had the previous week been damaged by stormy weather, and was not working well. The salmon, as soon as lifted, were all shipped to the Fraser, where they will be canned.

PRICES ON CANNED GOODS.

THE item of greatest interest in the grocery trade for the week has undoubtedly been the fixing of prices on 1904 pack of canned fruits and vegetables for future delivery by the Canadian canners. These prices will rule in Toronto, Montreal and Quebec City; elsewhere throughout the Dominion a special price list is issued owing to the comparatively high cost of transportation.

On the whole, the opening prices will suit Quebec and Ontario buyers better this year than last; canned vegetables, which are the biggest item in the above mentioned markets are considerably lower than last year: For instance, beans are 2 1-2 cents per dozen cheaper than they were at the opening of the season a year ago. Peas are 5 cents lower with the exception of "Sweet Wrinkled" which are unchanged, and "Extra Fine Sifted" which have dropped 10 cents. Prices on corn and tomato futures have not yet been named and in view of the lateness of the season it is not likely that the pack will be completed before September 15. Spinach and asparagus remain unchanged from last year.

Canned fruits, on the other hand, rule higher than last year. This principally concerns buyers in the west, where the consumption of canned fruits is comparatively large and continually increasing. Red cherries, not pitted, are 5c cheaper than last year, while pitted cherries remain unchanged. Black cherries, pitted and unpitted, are down 5c and 10c respectively. There are no changes to record in white cherries. Red currants are 7 1-2 cents higher, and black currants 10 cents higher. Gooseberries, heavy syrup, are 7 1-2 cents higher, and preserved 10c higher. The same remarks apply to Lawton berries as to gooseberries. Damson plums 2's are 5c higher than last year, while 2 1-2's have advanced 7 1-2c and 3's, 10 cents, respectively. Prices of lombard plums show corresponding advances. Egg plums 2's are 7 1-2 cents higher and 2 1-2's and 3's, each 10 cents higher. There are no changes in red raspberries, except in gallon sizes, solid pack, which are quoted 50c lower than last year. The only change in black raspberries is in 2's preserved, which are 5c lower. Preserved rhubarb 2's, 3's and gallons show advances of 5 cents, 10 cents and 12 1-2 cents respectively. Prices of strawberries, 2's, heavy syrup, 1903 pack, have advanced 7 1-2 cents; quotations for 1904 pack show the following advances over last year's prices; 2's, heavy syrup, 20 cents, preserved, 15c; gallon standards, 50c, while gallons, solid pack, remain unchanged.

With regard to this year's pack in general the prices fixed are a pretty good gauge of its extent. The strawberry pack is now practically over, and it is no secret that this year's was considerably below the average. The various small fruits are actually in sight, where the pack has not begun, and the comparative size of the pack can easily be determined by a comparison of prices named for this year and last. Plums are in the distance; the assumption, however, that canners go upon is that an average crop of plums can nearly always be counted upon, and as a result prices of futures have already been named.

Perhaps there is no industry in the Dominion of Canada that has made greater strides than that of fruit and vegetable canning, during the past few years. Business men have not been slow to size up its possibilities in a country second to none in the world, in growing fruit and vegetables. As a direct result the canning of fruit and vegetables already ranks among the leading Canadian industries. At the present time there are about 55 of such canning factories in Canada, of which about 29 are members of the Canners' Consolidated. The number of canning factories, moreover, is steadily increasing.

The general opinion is that reductions of prices in canned fruits and vegetables which have taken place within the last year or so are to some extent due to the increase in the factories.

By way of giving an approximate idea of the amount of canned goods, such as fruits, vegetables and meats, put up in Canada in a single year, it is estimated that the pack requires in the neighborhood of 45,000,000 cans; to carry these a train 6 miles long is necessary when the cans are light; if they are full, the train will have to be three or four times as long.

A QUEER PROCEEDING.

A PETTY piece of protective policy has just received publicity, which places the Australian government in a miserable light. By a recent decision of the customs authorities in Australia, all trade catalogues, price lists, circulars, and trade journals, even when sent in single copies are to be detained by the customs and delivered only upon payment of duty. As might be readily expected, large numbers of these papers, etc., do not reach their destination or at least do not reach the people to whom they are sent, because the latter refuse, and quite reasonably too, to pay the duty.

An enterprising Australian business man has proposed that Canadian business men should send such trade matter to him and allow his firm to put them through the customs and distribute them. He forgets that the general inclination of the business men, while thanking him very kindly, would be to stop sending catalogues or papers to that country. In Canada the conditions are sensible at least, for the customs allow two copies of all trade catalogues, price lists and circulars to enter the Dominion free of duty to any one address. Thus, there is no interference with any British or foreign house which may wish to introduce its goods by such means to the Canadian buyer.

In the present instance it will be not a little disgusting to many a merchant and big company to find that their catalogues, probably sent out in thousands, have not even been received by their prospective customers in Australia. Of what value can these catalogues be to any one? Then, too, the amount collected must be very trifling, and scarcely worthy of collection, unless a bankruptcy were threatened in the customs exchequer. However, one would fancy there was bankruptcy in farsightedness somewhere in that usually intelligent land, for are not these illustrated catalogues of great educational value, while trade journals are among the most important literature that is sent abroad? They, more than all other newspapers, keep the merchants and the manufacturers up to date.

COMMENDABLE ACTIVITY.

ALREADY the appointment of Mr. F. C. T. O'Hara to the post of superintendent of commercial agencies for the Dominion Government has been amply justified. Mr. O'Hara is brimful of ideas and, under his energetic management, new life will be breathed into the dry bones of the Department of Trade and Commerce. The result will undoubtedly be much to the advantage of Canadian trade.

One of Mr. O'Hara's first steps and one on which he must be complimented, was to request each commercial agent to send in information as to how to increase and maintain Canadian trade in their respective districts. Replies are now being received and these will appear in the Weekly Bulletin of the Department for July 25 or August 1. Business men can look forward to the publication of these reports with much interest, for the Canadian corps of commercial agents, though small, is intelligent and active and each agent's contribution will undoubtedly be right to the point.

In thus directing the work of the agents towards definite results and combining their labors towards the consummation of a united result, Mr. O'Hara is doing a work that has long been necessary and one which the business men of Canada will appreciate.

THE DUMPING CLAUSE.

FOLLOWING up our discussion of last week regarding the important legislation re "dumping" to be put in force by the Dominion Government, it must be apparent to our readers that special machinery for carrying out the provisions of the new enactment will have to be provided.

The basis of the legislation rests on the difference between the market price of any article in the country of production and the price at which it is being disposed of in Canada. Obviously, it will be of the utmost importance that absolutely correct information regarding the former price be obtained.

It is understood that the Government are already beginning to train men, whose duty it will be to secure data for this purpose. These men will be required to visit different points in the United States and inquire into prevailing prices there, and it is understood a number of resident officials will be stationed at the principal markets of that country.

Naturally men of insight and shrewdness will be needed, men who are capable of conducting difficult investigations. For this purpose journalists are said to be far and away the best persons available.

On the other hand, men will be needed to study the Canadian side of the problem and watch the foreign goods coming into the country. Taken all and all, the system is a complex one and the result of its trial will be watched with keen interest.

THE MONTREAL DEMONSTRATION

MONTREAL grocers have given their brethren all over Canada a splendid example of the value of grocers' associations. The celebration of last week at Delorimier Park, reported in full in another column of this issue, provided a practical demonstration of the all-around utility of a live and up-to-date association.

Every year the picnic of the Montreal Grocers' Association is becoming a more noteworthy function. Every year it interests a wider and wider circle of people. In fact, this picnic is one of the events in Montreal life and claims the interest of everybody.

It is good to see the Englishman fraternize with the Frenchman, the wholesaler with the retailer, the clerk with the master, while the traveler allows his geniality to extend away beyond his business acquaintances. This cultivation of friendly feelings is an important direction in which the association accomplishes a good work.

The secret of the success of this function is that the Montreal Association has been blessed with splendid workers, men who put their whole soul into the undertaking and carry it through to a triumphant finale. No obstacle is insuperable to them. They have got their hand in and never know what failure is.

Were it only because of its social features, the Montreal Association would be worth maintaining. But it unites to the lighter interests of life, numerous valuable assets, from which every member can derive help in his business difficulties. Thereby its value is at least doubled.

PACKERS' MEAT STRIKE.

THAT war has again invaded the domains of trade was felt with a vengeance Tuesday week, July 12, when as the result of a desagreement chiefly over wages for unskilled labor, one of the most extensive strikes in the history of the meat packing industry of the United States began in Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis, Mo., and other American cities where large packing plants are located. In Chicago alone 50,000 men went on strike, and the operations of packers in the abattoir districts seriously crippled. The price of meat in the United States jumped to an alarming extent, the advance in some cases being as much as 50 per cent., thus putting the commodity beyond the reach of many. A general meat famine became imminent owing to the general demoralization of the packing industry throughout the United States.

On Wednesday, July 20, however the situation took another turn, when an agreement was reached between the packers and representatives of the meat cutters' union, and other allied trades, whereby the whole controversy will be submitted to a board of arbitration, both sides agreeing to abide by whatever decision this board may reach.

Pending the decision of the arbitration board, the men will be taken back to work as rapidly as possible by the packers, and it is agreed by the packers, that all the old employes are to be reinstated within 45 days from the date work is resumed. If any of the former employes are still unemployed at the expiration of that time such persons are to have the privilege of submitting their cases to the arbitration board for settlement.

The strikers will return to work as soon as they can be notified of the peaceable adjustment of the trouble, and it is expected that by Friday morning everything will be in normal shape at all the plants in the different cities where the employes are on strike.

Since the people of the United States seem to have the happy faculty of getting into more commercial scrapes than the citizens of any other country under the sun it may not be out of place to speculate as to the effect such a strike, if prolonged, might have upon Canadian trade. During the past week the bacon market in Canada firmed considerably in sympathy with the American meat market, although there was no appreciable advance in actual quotations. Prices in the States would have to go very high before Canadian meat could be shipped there at a big profit. The duty on dressed meats of all kinds entering the United States is three cents per pound. If, however, there were to be a big jump in American prices, Canada's export trade with Uncle Sam might be increased considerably. American packers supply the English market with large quantities of meat. In the event of an extended strike this department of the United States export trade would of necessity be curtailed. Canada might then take advantage of any shortage across the line as well as of higher quotations ruling there.

F. C. T. O'HARA

Appointed to the new office of Superintendent of Commercial Agents in the Department of Trade and Commerce.

A TEST OF FACTORY JAM.

A recent test which was made by the Inland Revenue Department at Ottawa of factory-made jams tells its own story. Seventy-four samples of jam were analyzed, including raspberry, strawberry, plum, peach and miscelaneous jams and jellies, all of which had been offered for sale throughout Canada. Of these jams 14 were pronounced genuine, five doubtful, and 59 adulterated. Seventy-four per cent therefore, of the samples contained foreign substances, and this figure is below the truth since none were condemned on account of the use only of preservatives and artificial dyes.

GREEN FRUIT EXTORTION.

EXTREMES have their limitations. Extortion in trade will defeat its own end just about as surely as the old saying is verified "Murder will out." This week the well-known, wholesome fruit the lime became a subject of great importance in Montreal. Nearly every ordinary citizen is aware of the cooling, clean, healthy qualities of the lime, but the price of the fruit itself has interfered with its sale. An inquiry into the reason of the high price of limes elicited a remarkable statement from a gentleman of unquestioned reputation and knowledge of the West Indies. He said that the average wholesale fruit dealer made over five hundred per cent. on every consignment of limes sold in Montreal. The said gentleman is an importer of limes in large quantities; as a grower of limes and as a trade commissioner in Montreal for the British West Indies, he declared it was high time the trade was made aware of the situation. He called attention to a demonstration of Dominica limes known as the Atlantis limes, which was carried on all the week at a big Montreal up town departmental store, where limes were sold at five cents a dozen. In distinct contrast to this, the prices asked by some of the leading grocers, at Fraser Viger's, for instance, one of the largest in Canada, was 25c a dozen. How is this explained? The wholesale fruit men quote limes at a still higher price proportionately, namely, $1.25 per hundred. These latter are, of course, selected, but that is not good enough reason for the high price. For an article like limes, which should be in general consumption, the price is nearly always so high that the average buyer thinks these things foolishly expensive. The Grocer is investigating the question, and details will be given next week to show how exorbitant prices have been continuously charged for limes. The same commissioner, who is anxious to promote trade more freely in this product alone, stated that he had gone so far as to visit the wholesale fruit men and had asked them to co-operate with him in order to reduce the price of limes. Naturally he was turned down, as the big dealers have their warehouses full of limes.

Can't take a Defeat Gracefully Must try to cover it up in "Any Old Way."

The true facts are as follows :—The "SALADA" Tea Co. issued a challenge which the Blue Ribbon Tea Co. refused to accept, but issued another, which we accepted, and we were willing to abide by any decision given by the umpires. If it had been against us we would have taken our "gruelling" gracefully.

Our Opponents can't, and endeavor to cover up defeat by a page of verbiage that has no connection with the issue.

We have the decision and the $500.00, which we have devoted to charity, and so we dismiss this case and say next.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Groceries.

Toronto, July 21, 1904.

THE grocery trade continues fair to brisk in spite of the proximity of the holiday season. Toronto wholesale grocers report a satisfactory volume of trade during the week, but at the same time brokers complain of quietness on the street. Sorting up orders and general orders from the northwest are occupying the attention of the wholesale trade largely at the present time. Canned goods continue lively, a brisk business being done in all lines. Stocks of old goods are gradually disappearing, and in the opinion of one wholesaler stocks out of first hands will be entirely used up by the time the new pack is ready. Prices for 1904 pack of fruit and vegetables have been issued by the canners; on the whole they are a little higher than those of last year. Corn, tomatoes and peaches are not yet named in the list. Trade in syrup and molasses, and rice and tapioca, continues steady, while spices are beginning to brighten a little on account of the nearness of the pickling season. The sugar situation is still firm, with no signs of an easier market. Sales have been seasonable, although not so large as they would have been had there been an average crop of strawberries. The tea trade shows some signs of brightening, blacks being active, while greens continue quiet. There are increased inquiries for Japans, and the trade is watching this market with a great deal of interest. Coffee is fair to quiet with grades suitable for this market difficult to obtain at the moment. Foreign dried fruits and nuts are without special feature.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods trade is one of the liveliest in the category of the wholesale grocer at this time of year. Canned fish of all descriptions, as well as potted meats, are meeting with record sales. Stocks of old canned salmon are reported to be pretty well cleaned up. Regarding the report that canned salmon would be scarce and dear as long as the Russia-Japan war lasted on account of Japan being such a heavy buyer in British Columbia markets, a leading Toronto wholesaler says the effect has not been felt here as yet, and it is doubtful if this factor will mean any appreciable advance in prices. Considerable quantities of canned fruits are being sold to customers in Northern Ontario in spite of the fact that this is the fresh fruit season. It is reported that the canning factories have stock over from last season as a result of smaller consumption, and the fact that they have instructed buyers of fresh fruit throughout the country to offer a maximum of 3½c a box would seem to strengthen this report. It is not surprising, therefore, that the prices for this season's pack by the canners for future delivery are considerably lower all round than last year's. The following prices have been fixed: Asparagus, 2s, at $2.50; golden waxed beans, 80c; refugee, 82½c; crystal waxed, 92½c; standard peas, 82½c; early June, 85c; sweet wrinkle, 95c; extra sifted, $1.30; cherries, 2s, red pitted, $2.20; black and white pitted, each, $2.40; raspberries, red in heavy syrup, $1.40; preserved, $1.60; strawberries, in heavy syrup, $1.60; preserved, $1.75; prices on plums and peaches will be announced in a couple of weeks.

It is interesting to note that vegetables continue firm and scarce, particularly corn, with prospects that old stocks will be entirely cleaned up by the time the new pack arrives. Our quotations are as follows:

SUGAR

The firmness indicated in last week's report has been fully maintained without, however, leading to a further increase in values, which remain entirely nominal on bases last quoted. Just as we went to press last week a sale was effected of 10,000 bags Cuban centrifugals for August shipment at 2⅝c c. and f. New York, which is equal to 4.02c duty paid. Since then a further lot of 5,000 bags of assorted sugars in port New York changed hands, including centrifugals, at 3.94c. duty paid for basis 96 test. It will thus be observed that refiners are willing to pay a premium for sugar for shipment over spot offerings. The reasons for this will be observed in view of their present holdings and of a natural reluctance on the part of importers to put sugar in warehouse. There have been no further transactions in centrifugals to record, but we hear of sale of 500 tons British West Indian sugar to American refiners in port, New York, principally Muscovados, which have sold at full value of 3½c duty paid for basis 89.

At the moment buyers and sellers remain indifferent, with the latter as firm in their pretensions as ever and no apparent likelihood of concession. Holders of cane sugars are strengthened in their ideas by continued firmness in Europe, where beet sugars have again advanced to 9s 8¼d for July shipment, and 9s 9d for August shipment, basis f. o. b. Hamburg. July beet is now quoted equivalent to full parity of 4.06c duty paid, New York, for 96 test centrifugals, and so long as these sugars are held at a premium over cane sugars we may expect to see the general strength of the market fully maintained.

There are still five plantations reported in operation in Cuba, but of these some are merely boiling molasses and have ceased grinding cane. Receipts at 6 principal shipping ports for the week were only 4,000 tons, with exports of 13,800 tons, leaving stocks in the island of only 129,000 tons, of which from 15,000 to 20,000 tons will be required for local consumption.

Combined stocks of the United States and Cuba for week ending July 13 were 335,000 tons, a reduction of 14,000 tons for the week, and of 295,439 tons as compared with the corresponding period last year.

Total stock in Europe and America at latest uneven dates was 2,398,000 tons, as against 2,730,425 tons for the same time a year ago, a decrease of 332,425 tons.

Receipts at U. S. four ports for the week ending July 13 were 35,714 tons, with meltings 40,000 tons, and total stock 206,000 tons, of which 183,000 tons was held by refiners.

There are no further changes in refined to record. In New York granulated is selling on net basis of 4.85c f. o. b., leaving a margin of 91c per hundred lbs. over spot quotations for centrifugals, compared with a margin of $1.10 at same time last year.

In Canadian refined nothing of particular interest has developed during the week. There are no changes in quotations, and the demand so far has been seasonable, though doubtless less than had there been a good average crop of strawberries. Prices to-day are ½c per lb. above lowest value for current year, but are only 20c per hundred lbs. on granulated and 25c per hundred lbs. on yellows above the value of last year. To-day's spot quotations for centrifugal sugars are 25c per hundred lbs. over

TEAS.

The market is comparatively quiet. Considerable black tea is selling, while green is comparatively stationary. Japan tea is enjoying the attention of importers to a much greater extent than last year, and this in consequence of a lower range of values, the difference amounting to about 2c per lb. on medium grades. This brings Japan tea of good quality within a range of prices to send it to the counter at 25c. The fact that no good medium Japan was obtainable last year at a figure which would show a margin to the dealer and reach him at the popular price resulted in small business being done. This year more business is likely to be done in Japans, but there is still a good deal of hesitation on the part of the trade which has been handling fine liquoring Ceylon greens about going back to Japans, the feeling being that consumers will prefer to continue drinking Ceylon greens. As the latter are on a lower basis even of value than Japans, grade for grade, there is still a strong competition for the trade of green tea-drinking countries.

In the English market Indians are easier and quiet, while Ceylons show a shade firmer and continue steady. Our quotations are as follows :

COFFEES.

The coffee market continues firm and quiet, grades of Rios suitable for the Canadian market being hard to get. The demand here is principally for a flinty green Rio, which is a very attractive bean. Notwithstanding the prevailing lull in the market, one firm says that the coffee trade for the month up to July 19 has been phenomenal, being already equal to the outturn for all of June.

The New York market has exhibited a quiet, waiting tendency for the week, in view of an expected freer movement of the Brazil crop. So far in July receipts at Rio and Santos have been comparatively light, amounting to 363,000 bags. It is expected, however, by many of the trade, that they will be heavier for the second half of July, and that the total receipts for the month will be close to the estimate of 1,050,000 bags given out at the opening of the market. Stocks in Santos from the first of the month have increased 122,000 bags, and it is expected that in the near future Brazil, particularly Santos, will appear in the market as a free seller. Foreign Dried Fruits

The market in foreign dried fruits continues quiet to fair at unchanged prices. Quotations on new crop California raisins, including seeded, have been issued, subject to fluctuation, and are considerably lower than last year's. Some interest is being shown in figs futures, and although the price has not been fixed as yet, the bulk of the orders have been placed and considerable speculative buying is reported. The first shipment of figs will arrive about September 1.

It is stated that the crop of California figs will be about the same as that of last season. Opening prices are lower than those put out at the opening last year. Advices from Denia say that the crop of valencia shelled almonds this year gives promise of being 25 per cent. less than that of last year. The crop of small jordans will also be light. We quote the following prices :

FOREIGN NUTS.

A fair trade in foreign nuts, particularly peanuts and cocoanuts, is reported for the week. The market in Sicily filberts is active and advancing on the strength of advices from primary markets. Brazil nuts, on account of the short crop, are in a very strong position, and an advance is expected in the near future. Pecan nuts also have an upward tendency as a result of increased demand and reported shortage in Texas crop. Advices from Bordeaux, France, say the prospects for the coming crop f walnuts continue good. Gatherings of marbots, cornes and cahors are likely to be as abundant as last year. Dealers are complaining very seriously about the amount of "shrinks" in the cases now being received. As these are bought f. o. b. there is no redress for the loss sustained. There is an average of two dozen "shrinks" to the case, and in some cases it has gone to two dozen and a half. This takes all the profit out of the transaction and prices accordingly are higher. Receipts are light. There is little doubt that receipts for the entire season will be noticeably smaller than last year, although for some weeks they have been up to the average. The reason for this is found not only in the late Spring, but in the fact that farmers have not so many hens as they had last year on account of the thinning out they got last Fall and Winter during the extremely high prices for poultry. Many a farmer who has in other years kept a great number of hens has this year been unable to sell any eggs. If prices for poultry remain low this Winter eggs will be in normal supply next Spring. The price quoted for eggs now is 16 to 16½c.

HONEY

The honey market is quiet except for a few inquiries on the part of speculative buyers. The new crop is not yet to hand, but prospects are for a limited supply. Our quotations are as follows :

Green Fruits.

The volume of fruit trade for the week has been satisfactory for this season of the year, which is usually the beginning for a big turn over in fruit. The strawberry season is now at an end; fruitmen estimate the output of the season at one-half an average crop. Raspberries have taken the place of strawberries, and are now coming to the market plentifully from Burlington, and at prices considerably lower than last week. Oakville cherries from these districts and the Niagara belt are also meeting with big demand. Blueberries and currants have appeared on the market. Trade in oranges has been brisk during the week, with Mediterranean sweets out of the market. The lemon trade shows signs of improvement along with the hot weather. Florida pines in limited quantities are now supplying the fancy trade. New apples are arriving regularly from Baltimore, and are easier in price. California peaches are cheaper in price, while the demand for California fruit in general is increasing rapidly. Our quotations are as follows:

Vegetables.

A brisk business in vegetables of all descriptions, and particularly in cabbage, beets and green stuff, is reported for the week. Some rhubarb is still seen on the market, although stocks are slowly being used up. The demand for new potatoes is steadily increasing, and this week will end importations from Baltimore, as home grown potatoes are now beginning to come to the market plentifully. Egg plants are off the market temporarily, and new beets are 5c easier in price. The season for outdoor asparagus is nearly over, while beans, cabbage and peas are easier in price. We quote the following prices :

Fish.

Trade in fish has been fair to quiet during the past week, the falling off in demand being due to the hot weather. The principal call continues to be for salmon and white fish. Our quotations are as follows :

Seeds.

The seed market at the present time has ceased to be of interest to buyers. The corn, millet and Hungarian season is over, and there will be no more prices to quote until clover seed is threshed during the latter part of August.

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

There has been a good demand the past week for all kinds of grain, with the exception of Manitoba wheat No. 1 hard, which is not available at the present time. Oats are firmer, though the price remains the same. Manitoba northern Nos. 1 and 2 have each advanced 1c, while No. 3 has advanced 1½c. Red and white have each advanced from 1½ to 2c. Rye has taken a drop of 1c. Our quotations are as follows :

FLOUR.

The flour market continues good, the demand to-day being greater than a week ago. Trade is brisk and prospects bright.

During the week under review Manitoba wheat patents advanced in price from $4.70 and $4.85 to $4.80 and $4.90; strong bakers' from $4.45 and $4.60 to $4.50 and $4.65. Ontario wheat patents and straight roller remain unchanged. We quote the following :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 21, 1904.

Groceries.

WHOLESALE houses are bound to confess dullness. The season demands it and it is natural. Midsummer trade, however, is by no means lighter than in former years. Canned goods continue to hold a prominent place in the grocery eye. New pack prices are quoted in this issue and they should be very interesting. Not much advance is noticed in comparison with what was expected. For instance, a glance at new and old prices will show that in salmon, old goods are about on a parity with new stock. Molasses still holds an exceptionally strong position and the prices are firm and steady. Twenty-seven cents is a good price and certainly there is no prospect of a decline, simply because there is not a puncheon available. Tea and coffee remain in a steady state and Japans especially are low-priced. Flake tapioca is selling slowly and firmly while some of the common grades have been reduced. Singapore advices report an unchanged market and business limited. Large grain sago is reported scarce. There seems to be little demand for this line. Small grain goods remain firm with supplies improved. Peppers remain about the same. Distant delivery cloves are reported lower. Canary seed continues to be interesting as it is sure to be high-priced. Prices cannot be forced much higher at present because some speculators have been trying to "work" the market a little, to no purpose. The trade do not seem to be worrying much about canary seed and are abstaining from buying almost entirely. Hence, notwithstanding the fact that the visible world supply of canary seed is scarce enough to supply ordinary requirements, no agitation has taken hold of the trade. Canned tomatoes are stronger than ever. Corn remains very scarce, but for this there is a remedy, as new stock will be available before tomatoes. Canned blueberries, new pack, are bringing good prices and are selling freely. The price of country produce is good. Eggs, for instance, have not been so high for years, at this time of the year. The quality of eggs seems peculiarly poor this season. Dried fruits are reported to be very promising for the coming crop. The dangerous time cannot, however, be said to be past yet. Green fruits and vegetables are an excellent crop all over the province and abundant harvests are likely. Collections are splendid for the time of year and generally grocers are wearing a smiling face.

SUGAR.

Sugar is quite an important article of commerce just now. No one can tell for a minute how long the price will be stable. Up and down is the order. The market remains firm, generally, but the demand for actual sugar seems to be disappointing. The American refiners pile new stock on old. There is no this refers to speculative buyers chiefly. The growing beet crop is reported to be satisfactory and the plants evidently got a good start before the hot and dry weather at present holding set in. From cane producing centres little news is available, but normal conditions rule. Spot sugar is firm, but refined and grocery sugar is selling slowly. Prices nevertheless are maintained, though indications are for an advance. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The position of molasses is very strong. No matter how some members of the trade may try, no possible corner can be found. Even the report about the broker on the Islands holding some 20,000 puncheons cannot be verified. The whole trade is unanimous now in the belief that molasses is bound to remain high. There are good logical reasons for this and the chief one is that there has been an overestimate of the crop and suddenly Old Country buyers have stepped in and hence the supply for regular patrons has been reduced. We quote:

COFFEE.

Definite evidence of a weak Brazil crop coupled with the fact that the world's visible supply has been reduced about 24,000 tons, have caused a decided firmness in the coffee markets. Quotations lowered a little and again advanced to normal rates. The hardening tendency is notable because both American and Canadian business has increased. The receipts from all quarters seem to be light. Demand generally is good and business steady. We quote:

TEA.

Prices are low for tea of all kinds. The demand is improving. Some improvement has been noted in the demand for Ceylons. Pekoes showed exceptional value. The bottom prices are supposed to have been reached, particularly in low-priced teas as the supplies of Indian teas will be small for some time. Congos are quiet. China teas are fairly active. Considerable activity has been noted in the caper market and fair business has been done in lower grades. Oolongs and scented pekoes remain firm and unchanged. Japan teas still hold their very strong position, although prices are still low. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

New prices of this season's pack have been made known to the trade in a limited way and they are printed herewith. Blueberries are quoted at 80 cents for two pound tins and $3.50 for gallon cans. Spot salmon is very scarce; so much so that it is quoted on a par with new pack stock. Corn is even stronger than it was last week, while tomatoes have in no way receded from their strong position. From sardine fishing centres comes the news that the fish are still small and are running 14 to 18 to the quarter tin. Then as packers have to pay such high prices for their fish, the prices generally are expected to be high. It is early in the season yet, and things may improve. California fruits are still strong and prices are firm. Canned meats are still easier in tone and the demand is fairly good. It is said that Hunt Bros. of California, one of the largest packers, have already sold their entire pack of extra standards in apricots, peaches and pears. Pines are selling slowly and quotations remain unchanged. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Average business for the time of year is reported. Hopeful news for the season's crop is to hand, although it is too soon to be absolutely sure of the currants. It is thought that the crop will be on hand earlier than usual. A good business has been done in valencias, but some declines took place. Local merchants are expecting some new interest in dried fruits from the fact that some Australian raisins are finding favor in the Canadian market. They are said to excel in quality even the best Spanish variety and their advent in trade will no doubt be welcome, and they will help keep the early arrivals of valencias from being abnormal.

Watt, Scott & Goodacre report: "There has been an appreciable turnover of valencia almonds during the past week between jobbers. Ferd. Baller & Co. of Messina, writing under date of 30th. ult., advise that from further information received, it appears that the yield of filberts this year will probably not be more than one third of last year's crop of 90,000 bales; and their cable of this week advises a further advance of 3s per bale, actually paid by speculators. The New York market has been reluctant to follow Messina, but has at last been convinced that the shortage in the coming crop much more than exceeds the carry-over. Tarragona almonds are attracting considerable attention, these likewise promising a small crop in contradistinction to French walnuts. From present indications the importations of earliest shipments valencia raisins will be considerably reduced as compared with recent years. The stocks of 1903 crop still undisposed of are not as light as they should be, and buyers are unwilling to pile new stock on old. There is no diminution in the strength of advices on currants from Greece. The crop of comadre figs is reported from Portugal as progressing most favourably. The quantity promises to be considerable and the fruit large. With good dry-

Green Fruits.

Green fruits are at their height just now and the arrivals are copious and of reasonably good quality. The intensely hot weather makes it difficult to keep raspberries and all kinds of fruit are in good demand. A notable run has been made on limes from Dominica, B. W. I., by Mr. J. Russell-Murray. He has made a demonstration of the lime fruit juice by serving drinks at Scroggie's store up town. Limes were retailed at the exceedingly low price of five cents a dozen. At Fraser, Viger's and other large groceries, limes were selling at 25 cents a dozen. Mr. Russell-Murray is anxious to sell more limes and he says the wholesale fruit men are charging too much for their limes in accordance with the cost of the fruit. The wholesale fruit men decline to answer this statement and simply say limes are of various kinds and what they sell they can get big prices for, so it is just a matter of difference in quality. Time will smooth out all these difficulties. Canadian fruits are selling high as supplies are limited. California fruit is in full supply and is selling well. We quote:

Vegetables.

From all over the Province the best of news has been received regarding the season's crop of vegetables. There is an excellent supply of green stuff on the markets and it is all of abundant growth and excellent quality. New carrots and turnips are down a little, compared with what they were when they first came in and the demand is good. Local celery is noticeable in its luxuriant growth and green cucumbers are in large quantities on the market. We quote:

Fish.

Quietness rules in the fish market and scarcity is the order. Good prices, therefore, are maintained in all lines. Gaspe salmon is up another cent, holding strong at 17 cents. Halibut is up half a cent, also being firm and in good demand. Lobsters, of course, are out of the market, yet some from the States are asked for. Canadian lobsters, however, will not be in again until January. We quote:

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS.

Some kicks have been registered lately regarding eggs being of poor quality and the tainted egg is not nearly so close to being extinct as the fresh egg is. Montreal has been getting eggs from the Lower Provinces that is while prices were up. The receipts of eggs fell off considerably Monday and Tuesday as compared with the last days of last week. Business is quiet owing to the excessive heat. Prices rule about steady at 15 to 15 1-2 cents for straight gathered stock and 17 cents for candled with 11 1-2 to 12 cents for seconds per dozen.

BEANS.

The bean market is slow. In a jobbing way, choice primes were sold at $1.35 to $1.40 a bushel, while car lots of choice primes were quoted at $1.30, and primes at $1.25 per bushel.

HONEY.

The consumption of honey is very small at this time of the year, and the market remains unchanged. White clover is quoted at 13 1-2 to 14c. Extracted white clover remains at 8 1-2 to 9c in 10 lb. tins, and 7 to 7 1-2c in 300 lb. kegs. Buckwheat remains at 6 and 7c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple products are without much interest nowadays, although prices remain strong. We quote:

Maple syrup, in wood, per lb.	0 05½	0 06
Maple syrup, in large tins	0 80	0 85
Pure sugar, per lb.	0 07	0 07½

POTATOES.

Potatoes are selling at 40 to 60 cents per bag and new ones ruling at $3.75.

FLOUR AND FEED.

FLOUR.

Flour is growing more active and trade is livening up considerably, although no quotable change in price has taken place. We quote:

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of the Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., July, 1904.

THE rush of tourist travel is here. We regret not seeing more Ontario people. Certainly anyone looking for fine, cool weather cannot fail to be satisfied. And what can be more health giving to inland people than to get to the salt water? Business is only fair. Collections are not altogether satisfactory. The fact that lumber continues so flat affects us very much. Large quantities, however, are being shipped. There are many vessels in harbor and so the ship labourers are being kept particularly usy, which is a good thing.

Several wholesale grocers were at Halifax this past week attending the Wholesale Grocers' Guild. They had the laugh on the Halifax people, as the day was a foggy one. With the increased number of lines now controlled by the Guild, one needs to be somewhat of a lawyer to understand the rules governing the sale of different lines.

For July and August the Saturday half holiday is quite general with the larger retail stores. There is, however, much difference of opinion in regard to its effect on trade, and in regard to its ultimate benefit to the employe. To nearly every employe it means extra expense.

In markets, there is little of particular interest to note, except in pork products, where there is quite a firm feeling. Rice has shown a slight advance. Cream of tartar is slightly lower, but not enough to affect local prices.

Oil.

There is just the regular business doing, except it may be that the low price of burning oil is tending to a freer booking of future business. Turpentine while perhaps not as firm, is unchanged. Linseeds are firm, but still low. Lubricating oils are unchanged. Fish oil is rather easier.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt, there is a fair stock held. This is a rather quiet season. Arrivals are not large or close together. In Liverpool fine there is but a limited sale. Canadian fine is selling quite freely. Cheese or butter salt is having a good demand.

Canned Goods.

Dealers are still waiting the naming of prices by the Consolidated Co. The present system has somewhat changed the style of doing business in regard to selling ahead and this year nearly all the trade are under agreement to sell at one price. In this way, business becomes largely a personal matter, as few inducements can be offered. In spot vegetales, corn is the strong feature. It is expected new strawberries and peaches will be held firm. In salmon the higher prices are held. Meats are firm. Local fish are very firm. Few clams were packed. Scallops were almost a failure. So far sardines have been a light pack and full prices are asked. It is yet early for kippered herring. There has been a fair pack of haddies.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are very busy. Lemons, which were scarce, are now quite plentiful and much better in quality. Rice is rather higher. Oranges sell quite freely, chiefly "Rodies" Californias, which are quite high. Bananas sell very freely. Pines are about done. Melons have a better sale. In apples and pears the quality is yet poor. Nice Georgia peaches are offered; these are the best eating peaches we get. In strawberries, the crop is not large. It is thought there will be more blueberries than for some years. Nova Scotia cherries are now on the market and also raspberries.

Dried Fruits.

Spot market is dull. In futures California prunes have been quite largely sold. Prices are low. In peels some orders have been placed; there is more range in prices, particularly in citron, than is usual. Dates are low. Figs are firm. Little is heard yet in currants. Raisins, spot goods, are low. Evaporated apples are firm. Some French peanuts have been received.

Sugar.

Price unchanged this week. Sales large. Market very firm. Quite a little foreign received.

Molasses.

In Porto Rico receipts have been large and prices quite firm. In Barbadoes, stock is rather light and it is thought will be rather short. Price is firm at the advance.

Fish.

Fresh fish are getting scarce. Halibut are about out of the market. A few shad and mackerel have been seen. These are good. Salmon season is about over. In dry fish, receipts have been light and prices are still high. Some new pickled herring have come to hand, but full prices are asked. It is early for smoked, which are high and scarce.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour, the market is very firm, though no change is reported this week. Feed is quite freely offered and the price is low. There is a light sale. Cornmeal is a little easier. Beans are very dull. The market has been very unsatisfactory for some time. Barrels have been scarce in the west, which has affected beans and barley. Primes chiefly are offered. Oatmeal is still high with a fair sale only. Barley and split peas are scarce.

A large percentage of the grocers of London are closing their stores at 1 p. m. every Wednesday during the months of July and August.

BEET SUGAR BOUNTY.

A meeting was held in Wiarton, Ont., last week, for the purpose of appointing a trustee or joint trustees to receive the beet-sugar bounty from the Ontario Government, and pay it out pro rata to the unpaid beet-growers in the district.

The following resolution was passed: "That we, the delegates representing our respective localities, while assembled at Wiarton for the purpose of appointing trustees to receive and pay out the Government bounty, wish collectively to express our entire confidence in the beet-sugar industry, as a profitable and beneficial crop for our farmers to grow, and under favorable financial auspices the industry will in the near future be one of the great industries of the Province of Ontario and of the great Dominion of Canada."

USEFUL BOOK MARK.

Mr. J. H. Maiden, Montreal, has just issued a handsome and useful little book mark, portraying San Toy Starch and Eagle Baking Powder. This neat little card will be mailed to applicants free, and to grocers desiring to send same out to their customers Mr. Maiden will be pleased to mail a supply on application by mentioning The Canadian Grocer.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Heinz Evaporated Horse Radish, stocked by H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, is a good line to handle, especially for summer trade.

Buyers of molasses will do well to communicate with H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, are offering some Japan teas at interesting prices.

MR. D. J. KELLY DEAD.

News has just been received in Toronto, as The Grocer goes to press, of the death at Ponoka, Alta, of Mr. D. J. Kelly, who three years ago held the position of president of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association. The body is being sent to Toronto for interment.

BEET SUGAR FACTORY FOR CALGARY.

Senator Gustavus Theden, representing a Minneapolis syndicate, has been in Winnipeg for the past few weeks, and the other day, in conference with Mr. J. S. Dennis, assistant to Mr. William Whyte, vice-president of the C. P. R., he said that the intention of the syndicate in sending him west was for the purpose of handling a new industrial enterprise involving the erection of a 700 ton beet sugar factory in the vicinity of Calgary, with an output of 140,000 lbs. per day. This is somewhat of a speculative movement, as it will entail bringing in about 700 families and placing them on the irrigated land of the C. P. R. for the production of the sugar beet.

MR. J. H. MAGOR'S BEREAVEMENT.

Mr. J. H. Magor of Frank Magor & Co., the Montreal commission merchants, who was spending a few weeks' vacation with his family at Bic P. O. has been visited with a sad loss in the death of his second son, Francis Bellville, a bright lad of nine years and six months. Appendicitis was the cause of death, and, though the best medical service was called in from Montreal, and an operation performed, the patient succumbed. Mr. Magor and family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and business acquaintances. The funeral was held on Friday, the 15th. The Grocer's condolences are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Magor.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Amid the plethora of soaps that are on the market, still another was noted last week, which was being put before the Montreal trade by Kirk Bros., of Chicago. A new agent is to be announced shortly. They call it "Lemon Castile Toilet Soap," and it is said to be made under the formula of "Il Dottere Lorenzi, Livorno, Itali."

Mr. James B. Campbell, of the Acme Can Works, Montreal, was in Toronto last Saturday, en route for St. Louis. Mr. Campbell reports that business is exceptionally good; in fact, better than he anticipated, good orders having come in from the packers of canned goods, from all parts of the country.

Mr. H. P. Pennock, of Winnipeg, has been appointed agent for the Canadian Salt Co., of Windsor, Ont., to succeed the late Mr. A. Harvey.

Mr. G. H. Moss, of New York, representing John C. Siegfried & Co., tea merchants, Kobe, Japan, was in Toronto last week, calling upon the trade. Mr. Moss reports that buyers speak favorably of the prospects for Japan teas this season. Hamilton dealers are looking for increased sales of Japans at prices likely to rule in the Canadian market.

Mr. A. F. Barclay, who has been a member of the traveling staff of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., coffee and spice merchants, Toronto, for many years, was chants, Toronto, for many years, was married on July 20 to Miss Sinclair, of Toronto.

Mr. R. K. McIntosh, of P. McIntosh & Son, millers, Toronto, has returned from England, where he spent his honeymoon.

Mr. James M. Cunningham of Cunningham & Strain, wholesale wine and liquor merchants, has sailed for the Old Country on a business trip.

AGENCY FOR INDIAN CHUTNEY.

An English firm is desirous of securing a representative in Canada to take up agency for Indian chutney, etc. Interested parties can be placed in touch by addressing the Advertising Manager of The Canadian Grocer.

TORONTO AGENTS.

The Rexall Chemical Co., 29 Church St., Toronto, have been appointed agents for S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal. They will pay especial attention to the drug and patent medicine interests. S. H. Ewing & Sons have fully settled all matters of insurance resulting from the recent Toronto fire and their customers in the west will receive prompt attention through their new representatives.

FREE SAMPLES.

"Blueol," the laundry blue that is meeting with such good success is being distributed in a very unique manner by the manufacturers, J. M. Douglas & Co., Montreal. All readers of the Star on presenting the coupon in their ad in the Thursday and Saturday editions of last week, received a sample four square package free. There certainly was a rush at the offices and this mode of reaching the people should [illegible] through the retail grocery trade.

CURRENT REPORTS.

In their latest report, dated Jult 4, Hancock & Wood, Patras, Greece, say:

The Currant Bill has at last been voted and we shall henceforth have to pay the export duty on currants at the rate of 15 per cent. in kind, instead of cash, as heretofore. The retention law remains in force, so that, whenever the crop is larger than annual consumption requirements, 20 per cent. retention and 15 per cent. in lieu of export duty will have to be delivered by shippers into the warehouses of the Currant Bank. The other clauses in the bill, which interest currant merchants generally, are: A tax, which is almost prohibitive, on all new currant plantations and authority given to the Government, whenever it deems it necessary, to order the Currant Bank to purchase any currants offered to it at the prices of Dr. 125 to 135 per 1,000 lbs., according to quality, (equal at the present rate of exchange to 12s 6d to 13s per cwt. f. o. b. in quarter cases.)

Since the month of March we have had a drop in the exchange of fully 10 per cent., which has caused a proportionate decline in the currency price of currants. Unless we have some improvement in the exchange before the new currant season sets in, another severe burden will have to be borne by the already hardly tried currant grower.

The growing crop of currants is progressing very favorably on the whole; reports of considerable damage by peronosporos have reached us from some districts.

Last year's total crop must have been close upon 190,000 tons, and from all accounts we seem likely to have pretty much the same result this year if the weather is favorable between this and harvesting, so that we look to a low range of prices.

The fruit is maturing somewhat earlier than usual, and first shipments might commence by 20th August.

ASSOCIATION NEWS.

The grocers of Smith's Falls, Ont., are forming a Retail Grocers' Association.

The excursion to Niagara Falls under the auspices of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association, was held on Wednesday, July 20. About 5,000 Hamiltonians patronized the picnic, which was further augmented at the Falls by the junction of another excursion from Brantford, under the auspices of the Brantford Grocers' Association. The 91st Highlanders' brass band, and also the 91st pipe band, played at Queen Victoria Park, and the pipers gave an exhibition of Scotch dancing. The Hamilton crowd was carried on 67 coaches of the G. T. R. to and from the Falls in excellent time, and without a hitch. The Brantford grocers and friends went on the T., H. & B. Nearly $250 was given in prizes for athletic contests by the Hamilton grocers, and special prizes were given by the Comfort Soap Co. On the whole the combined picnic was a huge success.

WIARTON BEET-SUGAR PLANT NOT SOLD.

No offer has as yet been made for the plant of the Wiarton Beet Sugar Co., which was advertised to be sold by auction last Friday, July 15.

CANADA IN THE VAN.

A United States packing house has recently introduced to the Canadian trade a glass jar of dried beef and bacon, a style of prepared meat which commends itself at once to the epicurean consumer. The manner in which this beef and bacon is put up should appeal at once to the grocer who caters to good family trade. Mr. Wm. Clark, Montreal, was the first man to put up and prepare dried sliced beef in Canada, and it was in the year 1896 that his jar was placed on sale. Mr. Clark's preparation in style, quality and price is such that every grocer should give it his consideration. It is a compliment to Canadian industry to find that in matters of this kind Canada is in the van.

MAPLE SUGAR WORKERS' PICNIC.

The employes of the Canada Maple Exchange, King St., Montreal, with their foremen and manager, spent a most enjoyable afternoon on St. Helen's Island on July 7. A programme was furnished that proved to be most enjoyable and with refreshments and perfect weather furnished an ideal outing. Small's Maple Creams were in evidence and enjoyed by all.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B. C., July 14, 1904.

SUMMER demand for fruit has placed the market in good condition, and in all lines there is brisk selling. The warm weather of the past few weeks has been the cause of this, and the fact that stocks are arriving in fine shape tends to keep the demand up to a little higher than the usual. Prices are firm, but not high, except in lemons, which have become stiffer in all grades, and may remain so for a while.

Excellent shipments of fruit from the Newcastle District in California are being received. These are free from the pests which are often found in fruit from San Francisco and which are frequently condemned by the Provincial Inspector of the Horticultural Board. This fruit is shipped in refrigerator cars, and is as fine when it arrives here as the day it was picked. Careful packing, too, assists in maintaining condition. Peaches sell for $1.25 to $1.40; plums, $1.50 to $1.75; prunes, $1.50 to $1.75; pears, $2.75; tomatoes, $2.50; apples, $2.

Two cars of bananas are expected in to-night, and will relieve the stringency in this line, which has been occasioned by the great demand. A car of watermelons will be here in a day or two, and will be the first large consignment this year. The season is a little later this year, almost two weeks, for by this time last year they were well in the market.

Some of the finest cherries ever shown in the city are in the wholesalers' hands, and they are of local growth. They are perfect in size, color, and flavor, and surpass anything of the kind imported from the south.

Navel oranges are practically out of the market, and valencias are taking their place. Yellow freestone peaches are now in and used principally for preserving.

The fruit crop in the Okanagan District, the fruit district of the province, will be fine this year. Mr. R. M. Palmer, freight rates commissioner of the Provincial Government, returned this week from there, and reports that the continued warm weather has put it in fine condition. As irrigation is the method by which water is supplied, the trees will not suffer from drought.

Conditions in the Dawson market have been easy since the arrival of the Spring stuff from the outside. A feature of the importations is that of Tasmanian apples which are shipped 13,000 miles to the Yukon. They sell at a stiff figure, as one would suppose, but move well. The Tardiff variety of oranges is finding a good demand. These are obtained by grafting a valencia on a navel tree, thus obtaining a product that long outlasts the navel by combining the keeping qualities of the valencia. Eggs are steadily dropping, and the decline of $1 a case may be followed by another of 50c. They sell now at $11.50. The prospect of hot weather is cleaning out dry packed butter at a low price. Milk and cream is in the market in large quantities, and it is estimated that without any more arriving there will be sufficient to last until September 1st. Reindeer, Eagle and Gold Seal milks have declined 25c a case, and on July 1 were selling at $7.50. The first car of new potatoes has reached Dawson; these sell at 7 and 8c wholesale, and 10c retail.

Shipments of flour from the Pacific Coast to the Orient are not considered very encouraging to exporters, for the reason that prices are from five to ten cents per barrel lower than what they should be, basing the comparison on the quality of the product given in the far eastern market. If buyers in Japan and China were more inclined to meet the figures asked for on this side the consignments would be doubled immediately.

The embargo placed on Chilian flour by Peru may have the tendency of a few shipments being sent south from this part of the west coast. There is an inclination on the part of dealers to initiate a trade with that country, and the opportunity now offering may be taken advantage of. The only steamers going south now are the big round-the-world liners.

The condensed milk and cream business of British Columbia is about to be catered to by a new concern which is starting up in Calgary. The company is a strong one, and as the district is a good one, and nearer to this province, it should secure some of the trade, especially as the price should be better. Everything sold here has freight rates added, and any diminition in these tells materially in the price. At present the Truro, N. S., brand obtains favor, but it has a competitor in importations from Washington State, particularly in cream. This latter is more of a preserved cream than condensed, and gives good satisfaction. There is a fair trade with the Orient, which would increase if properly worked up, and the Calgary factory should be able to ship there. At any rate the market is good for a Canadian product, that is, of course, taking into consideration that the product is good, for anything else here goes a-begging.

The salmon fishing season for 1904 will soon be in full swing, and indications are that the pack will be better than at first supposed. The first traps laid in Canadian waters have had a big catch, and the run has not yet commenced. What is more encouraging is that these fish are of the best variety, and it seems as if the Canadian traps will have the first chance at fish coming in for the Fraser River. Heretofore traps have not been allowed in British Columbia waters, and next year they will be used by all the large canners. At present it is too late for any more to be put in this season, and the B. C. Packers' Association is prospecting with a view to using purse seines.

A new market for canned salmon is likely to open in New Zealand. The United States packers have previously had the monopoly of this market, but since the preferential tariff was established in New Zealand, buyers are looking to British Columbia. There is a buyer on the coast at present. Robert Ward & Co., of Victoria, have already contracted to place 10,000 cases of talls of this season's pack in Australia at $6.60 a case. It is thought the price will advance this year. Small canners are now receiving $5.50 per case f. o. b. steamers.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, July 16, 1904.

BUSINESS continues bright and prospects are splendid. All staple lines are well maintained at good prices, and are fully meeting the expectations of the trade. Already the spacious exhibition grounds are alive with numerous exhibitors, and the indefatigable assiduity that prevails shows that the most unlimited interest is being taken.

Sugar—The market is still quoting sugar at the advanced price; Montreal granulated at $5.10 in barrels, and $5 in sacks; yellows at $4.50. Wallaceburg is holding the price firm at $4.95 in barrels and $4.85 in sacks.

Rolled Oats—Prices are firm. The market quotes 80 lb. sacks at $2.25; 40 lb. sacks at $2.30; 20 lb. sacks at $2.35; 8 lb. sacks at $2.65; and 6 lb. sacks at $2.85.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits — The market is firm. All kinds of evaporated fruits are scarce. There are practically no evaporated apples to be had. 1903 choice apricots are about off the market; 1904 stock will likely be quoted at about 13c a lb., and will be in about the first of August.

Canned Fruits—Strawberries will likely be on the market in the course of a week. The canners control the price list and we will be unable to quote opening prices, but they will undoubtedly be higher than last year, owing to the crop being so small. All lines of jams are expected to advance in price on account of the scarcity of all fruits and the high price of sugar.

Green Fruits—The market is fairly firm. Late valencia oranges are quoted at $4 to $5 per case; California lemons $5 per case; bananas $2.75 to $3.25 a bunch; peaches $1.75 per crate; pears $4 per case; plums $2.25 per case; apricots $1.75 per case; watermelons $4 to $5 a dozen; apples in boxes $2.50; raspberries in pints $2.25 per case, and quarts $3.25; cucumbers 65c a dozen; rhubarb 2c a lb.; onions 4c a lb.; new cabbage 4c a lb., and new potatoes, which are now on the market in very limited quantities, are being quoted at 3c a lb.

Salt—The market on the whole quotes prices a little lower than last year. 3 lb. bags at $3.25; 5 lb. bags at $5.25; 50 lb. cotton sacks at 49c a sack; 50 lb. jute sacks at 39c a sack, and common, fine, or coarse, in barrels, $1.95.

Canned Fish—The 1904 pack of salmon is now on the market, and Fraser River sockeye is now quoted at $6.75 to $7 per case; cohoes $5.25 to $5.50 per case; humpbacks $3.75 to $4 per case, and finnan haddies $4.50 to $4.60 per case. The 1904 pack lobster will be on the market about the 25th of the month, and will be quoted at the following prices: 1 lb. lobster at $3.65 to $3.75; ½ lb. lobster at $2.65 to $2.75; ¼ lb. lobster at $2.10 to $2.15 per doz.

Eggs—The market is firm and the demand is good, and eggs are jobbing to the trade at 20c.

Flour—The market is firm and quotes No. 1 patent at $2.45; No. 2 patent at $2.30, and No. 3 patent at $1.80.

MONTREAL GROCERS' PICNIC.

By W. H. S.

TO the grocers and their families Montreal has no greater pageant than the annual picnic of the Grocers' Association. It is the best spectacle in the calendar; best because it is a day of old-time merrymaking

N. CHARTRAND.
President Montreal Grocers' Association.

and innocent rejoicing, and because its motive is always good.

Once more it has come and gone, and its twenty-fourth anniversary, held at Delorimier Park on July 13, from a financial standpoint, outstripped all previous events.

The Place.

However, money making is not all there is in life, and many a grocer kicked about the place where the picnic was held. Delorimier Park is located in the open fields away at the extreme east of the city, and is a fine place for a race meeting; in fact, it would be a fine place for almost anything but the grocers' picnic. There were no trees, no swings, no places for the jolly big families, so famous in Quebec, to spread out on the sward and camp on grassy floors. In fact, while the programme of sports and races, etc., was carried out in good style, and while there was plenty of fun, it was not like the old picnics, which are fixed in the memories of everyone, such as the one to St. Hyacinthe, the one to St. Hilaire, the one to Magog, and all the others that rise up like spectres to haunt the sun-burnt picnicers of Wednesday, July 13. But the officers worked hard and the money results were fine, so that we bow and extend congratulations.

Work of Committee.

For weeks Secretary Beaudry has been working his boots off to send this picnic off with a "bing" that would make it remembered. Then, the untiring president, Mr. N. Chartrand, was conspicuous for his untiring zeal to make everyone happy, and see that arrangements were carried out without a hitch. He succeeded all right, and with such officers as he had to help him it was no wonder things went well. These men include: E. Limoges, J. A. Maynard, Arthur Bastien, Ald. R. Turner, Ald. J. A. Paquin, E. Beaudoin, E. Bergeron, A. Laurendeau, J. A. Labonte and E. P. Guillemette.

The Parade.

The day of the picnic broke fine and clear, and promptly at nine o'clock a parade of grocery wagons took place that was in every way a credit to the city. They assembled on Champ de Mars, and many of the rigs were attractively decorated with ribbons, bunting and papers, which added to the picture. The western section of the city was visited first, and then the eastern, so that the arrival at the park took place shortly before twelve o'clock. Under a huge white tent tables were laid, and there the officers, committee men and guests dined. The president, Mr. Chartrand, made a fine chairman, and in his own clever way said and did the right thing at the right time. Toasts were proposed, and pretty things were said in bunches about the Grocers' Association. Secretary Beaudry was assured he was all right, and so were the officers again and again. The subject of the accomplishment of federation of the different retail societies came in for a few words of praise. Then the press was called upon. The Grocer representative simply told the officials what has always been told, namely, that the paper is behind the good work of the association.

The Games.

It was two o'clock before the games started. The results of these games given in cold print merely form a skeleton of the fun which each represented. The tug of war, called "Greek Meets Greek," was between the teams of city firemen and policemen. The firemen outpulled the "Bobbies," but it was a fine competition. Then the funnily costumed Timothee and Ladeclay pipe and slow old horse, and with a switch from the trees as a whip. When he won the race the judge, who announced with a megaphone each race, told how Ladebauche, with a "Bon Cheval" captured a prize worth ten piastres in the amazing time of a mile in fifteen minutes. At this the band played "Mon Pays" and other French airs so pleasing to everyone. There were races to please all, and in the committee race, where all the prominent men of the day doffed their coats, and some their shoes, those who had been hobnobbing friendly enough previously became competitors for the coveted prize.

Amusing Races.

The commercial travelers' race was a very interesing one, for there many of the jolly and fat little and big men vied with each other just as they are doing every day in the selling of goods. The only difference is that races are harder for many of them than selling goods. The sack race caused great amusement, for when the word "go" was given, every one of the competitors but one small lad, named Levesque, fell flat on the ground. Laugh! Well, it was side-splitting to watch the scramble for the winning post. The horse racing was remarkably well conducted, and the system and fairness shown could not be surpassed.

So the day passed away, leaving behind memories as unfading as the sun.

"The Finest Goods we have ever seen."

That is the sort of talk that pleases. When a man who has been in daily touch with Canadian canned goods for the past 20 years or so gives spontaneous expression to such words as the above, it means something.

The Old Homestead Brand of Canned Goods started out to be the best this country ever produced. THE OLD HOMESTEAD CANNING CO. believe in that time-honored saying, "there's always room at the top." To be in the middle class, or even to be along with the best, is not their ambition. They mean to be head and shoulders above every other canning company. THE OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND has taken its proper place, and every grocer who makes it a point to have the best goods possible will of necessity get acquainted with THE OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND. The label is the finest in the land.

Notes of Picnic.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., wholesale grocers, had a very attractive advertisement on the grounds. It was in the form of a fan, which illustrated perpetual motion. By squeezing a wood handle backed by a spring, the fan whirled around and back freely. This device was much appreciated by the ladies and children, who were scorching on the grandstand. The fan itself was made in Germany.

The Lawrence A. Wilson Co. made themselves prominent by distributing small bottles of King Edward Whiskey. These samples were nicely put up and called for admiration from the crowd.

La Patrie, one of the leading French newspapers, took advantage of the opportunity and sent up a huge flag, in the form of a kite, bearing the name of the paper and its figures for circulation.

A notable feature of the picnic was that gambling went on freely without stint. This department was carried on by men who rented the privilege, and many a young and old man dropped his wad on the glory of seeing a wheel with colored figures go around.

In the commercial travelers' race, E. J. Cowan, of Cowan Chocolate fame, made a good run, but he was among the also rans, and deserves a handshake for his spurt. Cowan was not a bit downhearted, for he said that if his feet will not win first place, his chocolate can, and does.

For genuine hard workers, Messrs. Ethier, Hodge and Middleton are certainly a hard team to beat at a picnic, and the Retail Grocers' Association were fortunate in having them as judges.

That megaphone in the hands, or, rather, the mouth, of Mr. Lafleur, did its work well, considering the strong breeze it had to contend with.

Vice-president Maynard showed himself as good a sprinter in the 150 yards dash as he is a hustling grocer and worker for the association.

The speeches in the pavilion at the mid-day lunch were of an encouraging order, and the five grocer aldermen showed that they were not in the City Council as silent representatives.

This was the eighteenth year that Mr. Jos. Ethier, of Laporte, Martin & Cie., officiated as one of the association's judges, and right well did he do his work.

The Canadian Grocer was complimented by the president at the luncheon, and the flattering remarks to that journal, as well as to its French confrere, Le Prix Courant (represented by Mr. Nightingale) were replied to by Mr. W. H. Seyler, of The Grocer staff.

A pleasant diversion to the committee in charge of the picnic was the arrival on the grounds of the executive of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild—Mayor Laporte, Mr. L. E. Geoffrion, of Montreal, and Messrs. J. F. Eby, Toronto; Geo. E. Bristol, and H. C. Beckett, Hamilton; T. B. Escott, London, and A. Miller, Quebec. After introductions, adjournment to the refreshment booth cemented the acquaintanceships formed.

Cowan's Cocoa, usually in the van, was one of the "also rans." Mr. E. G. Cowan, their popular representative, can sell cocoa, but as a sprinter a few years' training would do E. G. good.

That veteran grocer and civic solon, Alderman R. Turner, ex-president of the Retail Grocers' Association, enjoyed the proceedings thoroughly, exemptions from active duties this year contributing largely to this end.

A quartette that enjoyed the picnic up to the brim was composed of J. A. Curtis and A. W. Childs representing Lipton's Teas, and Laporte, Martin &

Cie.; A. R. Tourgis, of Thomas Bros., St. Thomas, Ont., and F. G. Beardsell, of the National Bakery. They all enjoyed seeing "the wheels go round," as one of Helen's Babies expressed it. Mr. C. Chartres was chaperoning them.

Ald. N. Lapointe, the west end grocer, whose many years' experience in the association's affairs and its picnics is known, was ubiquitously conspicuous with advice and aid to have matters run along smoothly.

"Tademagouche" and "Timothee" furnished an amusing act in their half-mile race, and visions of the "one hoss shay" were brought to mind. "Tademagouche" won, and "La Presse" hoisted the tri-color.

Mr. A. Leduc, the St. Henri packer, easily distanced all competitors in the 100 yards dash. As he says, "St. Henri always leads."

Harry Hofmann and Geo. Silcocks buried the hatchet for the day, and "Wight's" and "Matthews'" bacon were both "neck and neck," or rather, "side and side."

"Sovereign" Lime Juice was well represented by Mr. J. H. Morden, Montreal representative. The cooling and refreshing properties of this Summer drink were much appreciated by The Grocer's reporters, who never drink anything stronger.

The procession of nearly two hundred and fifty grocers' rigs and delivery wagons through the principal streets of the city was a unique departure from the conventional picnic programme, and the display was a most creditable one, and much commented upon by the citizens.

Delorimier Park is all right for a racing course, but for an ideal picnic ground is decidedly unsuitable. No trees, no water, no shady nooks. Strong comment was heard on many sides, and pity expressed for the ladies and children, whose only enjoyment consisted in standing in the grand stand for hours and watching their liege lords and brothers in the arena. It is to be hoped that next year's outing will be held where the ladies can take more active interest and enjoyment. Making money at a picnic should be the last consideration, not the first. Messieurs les epiciers de detail de Montreal l'annee prochain, demandez l'opinion de vos femmes et enfants sur le choix d'un lieu plus convenable pour votre piquenique.

At the luncheon Mr. J. A. Beaudry, the hard working secretary, was positively pink with emotion at the highly flattering remarks made by the speakers. Mr. Beaudry certainly has done his duty to all, and none of the compliments expressed were undeserved.

MOLASSES STILL EXCITED.

With the jump up of a cent last week molasses still is in the class which advertising writers call "attention inviters." More news of a corner has been received, and it is now found that the suspected holder of the missing 20,000 puncheons is in Barbadoes. With the price here 27c per gallon for puncheons, things begin to look interesting. It has been stated to The Grocer that a certain broker in Barbadoes is holding heavy stocks, with a hope of selling at advanced rates when the market gets short of supplies. Further inquiries in the trade go to show that the molasses explanation is based on other reasons. For instance, Madeira, a place which only ordered 169 puncheons last year, took the enormous number of 6,000 puncheons this year. Then England has taken immense quantities, and so, with about ten thousand puncheons unexpectedly taken off of a 42,000 puncheon crop, little was left on the islands for anyone to corner. At any rate, the trade is talking about molasses, and these opinions are interesting.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

The "Salada" Tea Co. have devoted the $500 they won from the "Blue Ribbon" Tea Co. in their contest as to which sold the most tea in Canada, as follows: $400 to the Muskoka Sanitarium for Consumptives, $100 to the Home for Incurable Children. The "Salada" Tea Co. decided on the Muskoka Sanitarium for Consumptives, as this charity is perhaps the most universal one in Canada, it receiving victims of that dread disease from all parts of the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Trimming for Entrance.

THE novice window dresser when he first determines to devote more time on his display space, almost always starts out with ideas that are too limited in their scope, and do not include a close attention to points that are really prominent in every first-class window. Of course this must be expected, as it is only with time that anything is learned satisfactorily. But window dressing, in spite of the attempts confidently made by those young at the business, and in spite of the faith so many merchants have in their own ability to arrange a window as well as is necessary, is an art, and similar to any other art must be acquired by faithful endeavor and close study. And also like any other art there are those who are adapted to it by nature, and those who would never in a life time make a success of it. For this reason it is always wise for the merchant before selecting the clerk who is to increase his business by attractive windows, to study his entire staff from an artistic and inventive standpoint. Art and invention must both be prominent characteristics of the window dresser, and contrary to what is too often thought, the head clerk is no more likely to be fitted to fill the position than the errand boy. Although the junior clerks are seldom chosen, from the failures the older salesmen make of it, it is evident any one else could have done better.

The only advantage a senior clerk or the proprietor has over the lowest down is in his knowledge of the stock, of what will be in demand, and of what should be sold immediately. These things can, however, be kept before the mind of the window dresser by the suggestions that should be made by every employe. No window dresser, of whatever experience, is above where suggestions will be of use to him. He may be most expert at his business, but anyone may still get an idea that could be profitably worked out. In fact this point should be enforced and enlarged upon by the proprietor, for only in this way will the very best use be made of the window, and the proper goods be displayed at the proper time. Co-operation on the part of all the staff is necessary, and a window dresser who is too high in his own estimation to accept ideas, and thankfully, should be open for engagement the next week.

One of the details that the inexperienced window dresser is apt to neglect is the appearance of the window from the entrance. This is not only important on account of the number who notice it when they are entering the store but also from the fact that the first sight a passer-by has of the farther window is through the glass facing the entrance. And first sights are exceedingly important. If the view first obtained is not of a nature to attract attention the observer may walk past without turning at right angles as he must to see the front view, but if it is noticeably good he will wish to see more of it, and thus the front view will come in for its share.

With the end in view of stopping anyone who passes, the window dresser must arrange towards the entrance as well, although not as elaborately, as towards the front. This is one of the reasons why sloping window floors should not be used. A floor that slopes allows the trim only towards the lower side. The floor with the slope towards the front and another towards the side, the point of connection running back at an angle from the corner of the entrance is not at all satisfactory. Although it admits of a certain arrangement toward both sides, very few really tasty displays can be built up for either. The unevenness of the floors prevents very many arrangements, and at any rate the slope is disagreeable to the observer, save perhaps in the case of very low displays.

The windows then must be built up in such a way as to have depth as well as a good face. By showing a deep display the entrance will of course show up one side. A shallow display is at the very best suitable only as a variety, and seldom as that.

A plan that can be adopted with great success is to place a double-sided mirror in the window running back at right angles to the front glass and between this and the entrance glass which will, in ninety-nine out of a hundred stores, leave a wider space at the back than at the front, place shelves perhaps a foot or more apart. On these can be piled quite tasty displays of certain lines of goods that will allow of more variation than may be thought. This, too, makes the window square and a square window can be much more easily treated than one with one side at right angles to the front and the other running off at an angle of perhaps 115 degrees. No matter if both sides run back at equal angles there will still be considerably difficulty in arranging the displays.

This Week's Illustration.

The interior shown is that of the store of the Hudson's Bay Company, Calgary, Alta. The manager of the store, Mr. Edgar, and the head of the grocery department, Mr. Avison, have reason to be proud of their neatly arranged stock, counters and floor space. The glass covered receptacles at the side are very convenient for fancy biscuits, etc, and the long counter down one side only leaves ample floor space. The "Orange Meat" advertisement is, of course, only a temporary affair. The shelves are very neatly and conveniently filled, and the goods on the counter are not obtrusive.

TRADE WITH MEXICO.

Mr. W. Marshall, of W. Marshall & Son, flour and feed merchants, Montreal, has just returned from a month's trip through Mexico. As mentioned in The Grocer some time ago, a movement is on foot to establish steamship connection between Canada and Mexico. Mr. Marshall's trip was chiefly to construct and extend the limited connection established. It is gratifying to note both the Canadian and Mexican Governments have voted in the neighborhood of $200,000 to establish and subsidize the proposed line of steamers. To use Mr. Marshall's own words: "There is a good opening for Canadian rolled oats, split peas, flour, lumber and coal; in return, we can take to advantage their tobacco, coffee and some spices." He speaks of trade conditions as being peculiar from our standpoint. The people are far from enterprising, and just at present all trade is at a standstill, owing to a small-pox scare. He is heartily in accord with the proposed service and considers a profitable trade can be established within a very short time. The sailings would probably be from Montreal in the Summer and Halifax in the Winter.

R. T. Miller, grocer, of Toronto Junction, has sold out his business to Mr. Scott, of Mount Forest, Ont.

E. B. Farwell, of Orillia, formerly with J. Dunn of that town, has started in the grocery business for himself. His many friends wish him every success.

S. H. Matthews, grocer, of Guelph, is holidaying at Tara, Owen Sound and Collingwood.

T. S. Ford, of the firm of T. S. Ford & Co., general merchants, of Mitchell, Ont., has taken an extended pleasure and business trip to the Old Country. His name has appeared frequently in the English papers in connection with the bowling tournament at Bisley Camp.

I. Hord, of the firm of Isaac Hord & Co., general merchants, Mitchell, Ont., has recently returned from an extended pleasure trip to Palestine.

W. R. Cole, grocers, of Mitchell, Ont., reports business good for this season of the year.

Couch & Schneider, general merchants, Mitchell, Ont., report business as good in all branches. The firm has already purchased extensively for the Fall trade.

INQUIRIES AND ANSWERS.

A firm in London, Eng., inquires through the London office of The Canadian Grocer for the services of a young man experienced in the canned goods trade. They do not, however, give any information as to salary they will pay. The firm in question is anxious to push Canadian goods in the British market, and feel that the best way to do it is to secure the services of a Canadian who understands the business. Any one desiring to be placed in communication with the firm in question can do so through the editor of The Canadian Grocer.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

The Grocer is in receipt of a booklet issued by Sandbach, Parker & Co., Demerara, describing the merits of a new animal food product called "Molasculi." It is claimed for this preparation that it is the pure product of the sugar cane and contains no foreign substance.

OF GREAT INTEREST TO CANADA.

NOT long ago The Grocer published a short interview with a gentleman from Jamaica. It appears that he did not at the time care to tell the full details of his mission. He was here with a view to promoting a permanent exclusive West Indian exhibition of the food products and manufactures of the Dominion of Canada and the United Kingdom. The Board of Trade reading rooms, not only in Montreal, but in different parts of the Dominion, have been well stocked by G. E. Burke, commercial agent for Canada in Jamaica, with circulars, on one side of which is a blank sheet of application for space in this exhibition. Among the patrons of the exhibition are His Excellency Sir Augustus A. L. Hemming, G.C.M.G., Governor of Jamaica; the Department of Trade and Commerce, and the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

This movement should prove an eye opener for Canada. For instance, United States supplied $4,000,000 worth of exports to Jamaica during the past year. Is there any reason why Canada should have exported less than one-sixth of that amount of goods? There is not a farm product or a manufactured article in the list of American exports that could not have been supplied by the Dominion. This exhibition will afford an opportunity for traders and consumers to inspect throughout the year such articles as would suit that market. Arrangements have been made by Pickford and Black, of Halifax, for the free shipment of all samples, shipments and exhibits, addressed "Anglo-Canadian Commercial Museum," Kingston, Jamaica, with the name of the exhibitor attached. It is contemplated now that the first Canadian section will be opened by Sept. 1. Of course, there is a charge for space, namely, $2 per square foot, with a minimum of $20 per year. Any Canadian board of trade will be able to supply further information on this subject.

GREEN FRUITS

Fruit and Vegetable Prospects.

ONTARIO.

ACCORDING to latest reports received from correspondents of The Grocer, the fruit crop in the Niagara belt will be much below that of last year in quantity, while in quality it will be superior. Notwithstanding the severity and length of last Winter there will be a lot of peaches in the Niagara District—probably from a quarter to a half crop. There will be an abundant crop of early peaches, but only about one-third crop of the later free-stone varieties. Crawfords are beginning to drop some and the yield will be smaller than is shown now. Plums, also, suffered from the severe Winter, and will be about a quarter of last year's crop. In some sections there are none at all. The smaller varieties will be plentiful, but the larger ones somewhat scarce. Grapes will be a heavy crop, from three to four tons an acre being expected. Raspberries and currants are good, while blackberries will be light. There will be plenty of early varieties of apples and only a small crop of Winter apples. Pears are very good in sections, but will not average high. In the vicinity of Hamilton, where tomatoes are grown extensively, they have made great progress during the last ten days. The Hamilton and Burlington canning factories have contracted for their tomatoes at 25c a bushel, which is 2½c above the prices of 2 years ago. The crop of peas for canning purposes is good, but corn, like tomatoes, suffered in the early part of the season, and has not yet recovered. Early potatoes are turning out well with good prospects for the late crop. Melons and cucumbers, which are cultivated extensively near Burlington, will, with some dry, hot weather, pay well.

In the Oakville district the fruit prospects are promising. Occasionally in a season of much rain, accompanied with heat, the flavor of fruit is undecided and of a watery quality. Cherries, however, were never better than this year. Raspberries are scarce and blackcups promise a good crop. Plums are an entire failure. Last year's crop was enormous, but one sees no plums to-day except on old trees that did not bear last year. Pears promise a good crop, and growers are giving special attention to a grade of pears for the English market. The apple crop, which figures as a big factor in Halton, does not promise to be large; early apples are plentiful, but Winter varieties are going to be scarce. In Essex the apple crop will not be large, the trees having been blighted. There will only be a medium crop of plums. Outside of the Niagara and Essex Districts plums will be a light yield except for Japan and native varieties. Peaches will be very light in Essex, Kent and Brant Counties.

QUEBEC.

From all parts of the Province of Quebec the most encouraging news has arrived regarding the green fruit prospects. This includes small fruits, such as raspberries, gooseberries, currants, etc., which are, one might say, already on the market. However, the details are most interesting. From Bagot, Beauce, Berthier, Bonaventure and Brome Counties the reports for apples and cherries and plums and fruits in general were all stamped good. In Chateauguay County, which is not far from Montreal, and which borders New York State and the river on one side, it is reported that apples are good but plums and cherries are not good; then, around about Howick, a little place within the county, apples are said to be good but other fruits poor. Wild fruits are reported plentiful. Compton, one of the best agricultural counties in the Eastern Townships, reports that apples are a large yield,—strawberries and raspberries, currants, and all small fruits are looking well. Similar news comes from Drummond County, and in Huntingdon, also very near Montreal, apples are reported good and other fruits fair. All over Megantic County, fruit is looking fine and the prospects for an abundant yield are very bright. In Montcalm County crops generally are only medium and drought has hindered vegetation, and in some cases affected fruit of all kinds. Nicolet, Rimouski and Laval all are teeming with fruit. There is an average crop of currants and berries in Shefford County, and apples are good. Sherbrooke and Stanstead Counties are two of the fruit leaders, and apples will be the largest crop for years. Even away off in the roughest section of Wright County reports for wild fruits are glowing and apples are said to be medium. In fact Quebec is going to surpass her usual fruit record, and the prolific outlook is now of such a positive character that everyone is glad. Fruit men in Montreal are looking forward to a great season.

NOVA SCOTIA.

In Nova Scotia potatoes are light, and vegetables suffering from drouth in the locality of Kentville. Apples do not as a rule suffer from drouth, but quantities are already beginning to fall. Plums, pears and peaches are a light crop. Cherries are abundant and ripening well. In Wolfville District potatoes promise well. In the three counties there are now in sight about 600,000 barrels of apples, as against 500,000 for last year. Plums will be a small crop, about 50 per cent. of the average, owing to the ravages of black knot, and the comparative failure of the Burbank Peaches will fall far below the average, while pears will be a very small crop, about 25 per cent. The prospects for a good apple crop in the Annapolis Valley were never brighter. The fruit has set very well, and with an average Summer should produce an excellent quality of fruit. Small fruits, cherries, etc., seem very plentiful. Roots and vegetables generally are from a week to ten days in advance of last year, and will likely prove an average crop.

Latest reports from Nova Scotia on the condition of the growing fruit crops say that previous estimates will in all probability have to be reduced by from 10 to 20 per cent. within the next few weeks. The section of Kentville has not been so dry in years as it is at the present time, owing to the extreme heat and lack of rain during the past few weeks.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

In British Columbia the prospects are for a good to full crop of apples, pears, and small fruits.

New Commercial Agent.

MR. W. A. MACKINNON, chief of the Fruit Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, has been appointed commercial agent for the Dominion Government, at Bristol, Eng. At present Mr. MacKinnon is visiting various points in Ontario in order to consult with Canadian exporters before sailing for England on August 13. He will be succeeded in Ottawa by Mr. A. McNeill.

Mr. MacKinnon's promotion has been rapid, but quite in keeping with his career as a student. He took the first Blake scholarship in his collegiate course, and graduated from Toronto University with honors in political science and modern languages. He was called to the Bar in 1901, after a number of years' experience in fruit farming and the hardware business.

He was first employed in Government work to supervise the trial shipments of tender fruits to Great Britain in 1899. The next year he had charge of the Canadian Food Products at the Paris Exposition. His success in these undertakings marked him as the proper person to administer the Fruit Marks Act, and from this duty he was made chief of the fruit division in 1901.

He has won the highest praise from all quarters in this work, which has extended quite beyond the mere inspection of packages, and has become an instrument of horticultural education, recognized and appreciated by the fruit growers and shippers of the whole Dominion.

Mr. MacKinnon's appointment to an important commercial agency in Great Britain is a fitting tribute to the industry, skill and intelligence that has marked his career at every stage.

Packing of Fruit Pulp for Export.

Fruit pulp, in order to meet the requirements of the British jam manufacturer, should be packed in gallon tins, six in a case. The most useful jams are raspberries, strawberries and plums, in 1, 2, 4, 7 and 14 lb. jars (net weight of fruit). Raspberries are the fruit of which there is shortest supply and an ever-increasing demand; sometimes mixed with red currants or a similar fruit with a tart flavor, probably something in the nature of cranberries would do equally well.

In these days of Changing Cereals it is wise for the grocer to develop a trade for a cereal that lasts.

Swiss Food

is a cereal that has been sold for 10 years with absolute satisfaction and that has before it, so far as human judgment can foresee, twice ten years

and more, of favor

We suppose that there s not a single grocer in the country but what has lost money and muddled up his trade to some extent by being called upon to handle the score of package cereals that have come and gone, and continue to come year after year.

Swiss Food

stands out a conspicuous example of the food that endures. If you do not now handle SWISS FOOD—try it.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Grain Situation.

THE crop situation in Ontario continues practically unchanged from last week. Frequent downpours have been general; but it is not thought, however, that the growing crops, except hay, have been injured to any extent. Isolated cases of rust in wheat are reported, notably in North York, but the damage from this source will be small except in the event of continued damp weather. Barley is unusually strong and advanced for this time of year. In some cases it has suffered from the heavy rains. The oat crop in appearance and luxuriance leaves nothing to be desired, and an interesting feature is the probable return to the growing of peas. The Fall wheat crop of Ontario is now estimated at from one-half to three-quarters of the average, while prospects point to a bumper crop of Spring grain. Promising reports continue to be received from Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, which bid fair to be blessed with one of the most satisfactory yields of recent years.

Reports from Manitoba and the Northwest indicate that general rains have fallen throughout the northwestern portions of Manitoba and the Territories, in many sections of which rain was badly needed. In eastern Manitoba no rain is needed. In the majority of cases crops are showing a fine average and are in splendid condition. The grain in the higher lands and early grain showing the best growth, while crops on low lying lands or late-sown fields are rather backward. Crops are beginning to head out in the majority of districts.

The only drawback in the present crop situation in the United States is the continued excess of moisture reported throughout practically the entire western country. Enough has already fallen in Texas to guarantee the cotton and corn crops, but heavy damage is reported to have been done to Winter wheat in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, not only in quality but also in yield. While stories of southwestern wheat damage are claimed to be exaggerated, a serious reduction in the ultimate yield is apparently certain. All the moisture that is needed for Spring wheat is reported in the northwest, and warm, dry weather is reported just as necessary there as in the southwest. Corn is doing well but needs hot, forcing weather, heretofore conspicuously lacking. On the Pacific Coast the yield of Winter sown grain has proved disappointing, particularly in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys and in southern California. Some coast districts are in better shape. Dry weather has reduced the yield of wheat in Oregon and Washington.

Broomhall's foreign crop summary of last week says: "United Kingdom weather forcing; harvest may begin last week in July. France harvesting progressing rapidly; great producing sections of north still reporting favorably. Germany recent weather favorable in some portions yet many eastern districts report poor condition. Hungary, now certain that yield of wheat will be deficient; Rumania, harvest now general; crop yielding somewhat better than anticipated; heavy rain of short duration benefited corn. Bulgaria reports still favorable. Russia wheat very irregular; additional dispatches bring poor reports; cables from Crimean agent (Broomhall's) report extremely hot weather interfering with field work; stocks of wheat exhausted. (The Crimea is a large wheat producer.) India, further desirable rains have fallen. Portugal wheat yield will be very light; substantial imports required; corn promises excellent yield. (Average wheat crop ten years 8,400,000 bushels; average imports, 3,700,000 bushels. Latest report of corn 20,225,000 bushels for 1899.) Spain, extensive damage from hail storms.

The recent rise of 6 to 7c per bushel in the price of wheat in Chicago is due chiefly to the bad harvesting weather in the southwestern and southern states, particularly in Kansas. Latest reports from that state say that storms and floods have caused a loss of fully 25,000,000 bushels. Other disturbing factors are losses by rust and sprouting. These reports are supported by the smallest visible and invisible supplies of grain in five years in the United States and Canada, namely, 59,429,000 bushels on July 1, as well as by advices from Russia to the effect that the shortage in that section verges close upon famine. There is certainly nothing to point to lower prices for wheat in the near future. Corn and oats are lower on reports directly contrary to those affecting wheat.

The total amount of corn in sight is 19,924,000, against 19,774,000 last week, 23,618,000 last year, and 23,618,000 in 1902.

New Duty on Corn.

The following variation of the two-shilling duty on corn entering Great Britain has been recommended by Sir

Alfred Hickman: It is to impose a duty on all foreign importations of grain except on maize, of two shillings a quarter, admitting colonial grain free, and to give a bounty to colonial importations of one shilling and a bounty to home-grown grain except oats of two shillings a quarter. This leaves a balance of £1,273,000, which, used as a bonus of five per cent. on colonial importations of meal, would leave £525,000 for meat bounties. The natural increase of colonial importations and the home agricultural returns issued show a pitiful tale of English untilled acres. The imports of colonial wheat from Canada show an increase of 112,000 tons; India, 410,000 tons.

U. S. Millers Want Manitoba Wheat.

THE millers and grain trade of the United States are interested in framing a bill for the next session of Congress which will permit the payment of "drawback" on Canadian wheat exported in the form of flour. The situation is as follows:

Within recent years conditions have arisen in the American export flour trade that make it desirable, and in fact necessary, for millers to furnish certain grades of flour manufactured wholly or in part from the hard wheat produced in the western district of Canada. The demand for this quality of flour is being supplied either through the product of Canadian mills or of foreign mills which purchase the Canadian wheat. In either case the result is to diminish the sales of American flour abroad as well as in the domestic market, the latter because Liverpool practically fixes the price of wheat for the world, and when the price of American wheat and flour abroad is depressed it reacts upon the domestic market.

Many of the American mills are favorably situated, in so far as location and facilities for transportation are concerned, for grinding Canadian wheat, which they would undoubtedly do, converting it into flour for the export trade, were it not for the customs' duty on imported wheat. The present customs drawback law was intended to provide for such conditions, by allowing a refund of the duties paid on imported materials used in the manufacture of exported articles, but owing to the difficulty of tracing the imported wheat or flour manufactured from it, so as to keep it separate from domestic wheat and flour and "identify" the flour, as required under the present drawback regulations, it has not been found practicable for American millers to take advantage of the drawback law.

The enactment of the drawback provision would enable American millers to import Canadian wheat, paying the customs' duties thereon, and on the exportation of flour made from it to secure a refund of the duties paid, even though they might not be able to positively identify the imported wheat as having entered into any particular lot of flour exported.

To meet the competition of Canadian millers in foreign markets the only course open to American millers under present circumstances, says the New York Journal of Commerce, is to establish branch mills in Canada. The enactment of such a bill as the one contemplated would make it possible for American millers to take advantage of the drawback law and use Canadian wheat in the manufacture of flour for export trade, avoiding the necessity for developing the Canadian industry.

The proposed legislation is merely an administrative measure and does not involve any change in the present tariff schedule. The existing customs drawback law, which was intended to give a refund of the duties paid on all imported materials used in the manufacture of exported articles, was first enacted as part of the McKinley Tariff Act of 1890. It was re-enacted as part of the Wilson tariff of 1894, and again in the Tariff Act of 1897. The purpose of the amendment is simply to make effective the declared intent of the present law, which is defeated, in so far as many important industries are concerned, because of manufacturing conditions which make it difficult or impossible to identify the imported materials.

Canadian Flour in Bermuda.

The Maritime Merchant contains an interview with Mr. W. T. James, the largest importer of Canadian flour at Bermuda, in which he says: "Canadian trade with Bermuda is steadily increasing, and although dissatisfaction with the quality of Canadian goods is sometimes expressed, yet on the whole the connection is being more firmly established."

Importations, he said, have not fallen off, and he is still drawing the bulk of his flour supplies from Canada. Other merchants who formerly purchased wholly in New York have, during the last year or two, begun to handle Canadian flour on a large scale.

Mr. James thinks that the future for Canadian products in Bermuda is bright, but he also says that some Canadian exporters are very careless in making shipments. Bad packages, careless marking, and sometimes indifference to orders at the moment they arrive, all stand in the way of conducting an export trade with success to all concerned.

British Tobacco Statistics.

IN May, 1904, British imports of stemmed tobacco fell to 1,610,669 pounds, of which the United States supplied 1,476,457 pounds, while the imports of unstemmed tobacco increased to 3,864,821 pounds, the United States supplying 2,296,879 pounds. These fluctuations are attributed to the increased duty on stemmed tobacco of three pence per pound.

The story for the five months ending May 31st is practically the same. For this period in 1902 the total importation of stemmed tobacco was 18,371,837 pounds; in 1903 it was 17,743,110 pounds; in 1904, it was 15,633,922 pounds. The importation of unstemmed tobacco for the first five months of 1903 was 9,304,206 pounds; in 1903 it was 11,155,521 pounds; in 1904 it rose to 18,469,539 pounds. So that while the importation of stemmed tobacco decreased from 18,371,837 pounds in 1902 to 15,633,922 pounds in 1904, that of unstemmed tobacco increased from 9,304,206 pounds to 18,469,539 pounds, the importation of stemmed tobacco falling off about sixteen per cent., while that of unstemmed tobacco increased almost one hundred per cent. In the five months of 1902 the total importation of unmanufactured tobacco was 27,676,043 pounds, of which 18,371,837 pounds was stemmed tobacco and only 9,304,206 pounds was unstemmed; in 1903, the total importation was 28,898,631 pounds of which the stemmed tobacco was 17,743,110 pounds and the unstemmed 11,115,521 pounds; but in 1904 out of a total importation of 34,103,461 pounds, 18,469,539 pounds was unstemmed tobacco and only 15,633,922 pounds was stemmed, the importation of unstemmed tobacco for the first time exceeding that of the stemmed tobacco and the latter decreasing, although the total importation in 1904 exceeded that of 1903 by 5,205,830 pounds and that of 1902 by 6,427,418 pounds.

Apparently the prices realized for tobacco in 1904 are not as good as the prices for the preceding two years. Although the importation for May, 1904, is 5,474,490 pounds as compared with ,874,843 pounds for 1902, the value for May, 1904, is given as £151;796 against £179,836 for 1902. For the five months the value of the 28,898,631 pounds is given as £900,704, while in 1904 the 34,103,461 pounds is valued at £1,062,748. In 1902 the 18,371,837 pounds of stemmed tobacco was valued at £573,704 and the 9,304,206 pounds of unstemmed tobacco at £352,212, so that the unstemmed tobacco was more valuable pound for pound than the stemmed tobacco, but in 1904 the 15,633,922 pounds of stemmed tobacco was valued at £489,011, while the 18,469,539 pounds of unstemmed tobacco was valued at only £564,737.

The importation of cigars shows a considerable decrease from 184,785 pounds, valued at £16,309 in May, 1902, to 204,309 pounds valued at £124,926 in 1903, to 151,070 pounds, valued at £93,517 in 1904. For the five months in 1902 the total importation of cigars was 1,268,279 pounds, valued at £730,913. In 1903 there was a decrease to a total of 1,042,772 pounds, valued at £622,363. In 1904 there was a further decrease to a total of 888,930 pounds, valued at £581,801.

The importations of cigarettes from all countries show a considerable decrease from 1903, both for the month and for the five months.

Tobacco in Siam.

ALTHOUGH it is said that the article is not very well known on the markets of Europe, says the Western Tobacco Journal, Siamese tobacco is extremely popular in Siam, and is produced in every province of the kingdom. In Bangkok alone there are about a hundred tobacco factories, all in working order. The great bulk of the consumers are Siamese, and most of the cigarettes are made to suit their taste. The typical buree is as thick as an ordinary walking stick and as long as a very long manila. The buree is the only indispensable portion of Siamese attire, and many a time and oft have we seen children promenading the streets clothed in nothing save wreaths of tobacco smoke. In Siam smoking before the king is not prohibited, and Siamese children of any age may smoke in the presence of their parents. In so far as the great tobacco question goes, Siam would be without doubt an ideal country for the average school boy. The sister of a Siamese boy never complains of "those horrid cigars"—because she smokes them herself.

In speaking of the manufacture of cigars in Siam there is no reason for using the word "factory." The business is carried on in quite a family way, generally in the largest room in the proprietor's house, by from twelve to fifty women and young girls. A woman can generally make 1,000 cigarettes a day, and for this she gets fifteen ticals per month. Some turn out as many as 1,800 a day and are paid accordingly, but it is not often they can do so much, as they become intoxicated by handling the strong tobacco, mixed as it is sometimes with opium, etc. Before being used in cigarettes the "weed" is carefully chopped, and a little pile is placed on a large leaf before each worker.

Paper is never used in these cigarettes, being considered unhealthy by the Siamese, and its place is taken by a thin, dried film stripped off young areca nut leaves, or by a dried banana leaf or a dried tobacco leaf. The buree is made in exactly the same way in which one makes the cigarette. For some reason or other it is difficult to keep the Siamese buree alight for any length of time, and every smoker has always two boxes of matches with him —one in his hand and one in his clothes, and the quantity of matches which the Siamese use in this way is very great. It is marvelous, indeed, what good tobacco one sometimes finds in these Siamese burees, considering what little care is taken of the plant, and it is clear that the soil of Siam must be fairly well suited for growing tobacco.

After the Tobacco Monopoly.

The Dominion Government have decided to get after certain tobacco companies, who are alleged to have been trying to kill competition in Canada by refusing to sell to Canadian retailers unless they handled their goods exclusively. With the object of putting an end to such an unjust system the following amendments to the Inland Revenue Act are proposed: "Any license authorized by this Act may be cancelled in any case where a person, who, being a manufacturer of any class of goods subject to a duty of excise, either directly or indirectly (a) makes a sale of any such goods to a person who sells or intends to sell goods of that class in connection with his own business, subject to the condition that the purchaser shall not sell or deal in goods of a like kind produced by or obtained or to be obtained from any other manufacturer or dealer, or (b) makes such sale upon terms that would in their application deprive the purchaser of any profit upon the sale of such goods, if they should so sell or deal, or (c) consigns any such goods to another person for sale upon commission upon such terms that the consignee can profit by such sale only if he does not sell or deal in goods of a like manner manufactured by or obtained or to be obtained from any other manufacturer or dealer."

London, Ont., Inland Revenue Returns.

According to the statement of the year's returns issued by the collector of the London Division of the Inland Revenue Department, the total number of cigars manufactured in the division, almost wholly in London, was 33,138,565, as against 32,935,010 last year. The increase noted is not the whole increase, however. It will be remembered that during the fiscal year just closed a strike occurred among the union employes of the several factories, as a result of which a considerable quantity of tobacco was made up into cigars in Montreal. Local manufacturers sent their raw material to that city, where it was manufactured, and will count in Montreal's total output. The actual increase in the number of cigars manufactured in London for the twelve months was 203,555, but it is estimated that the increase would have been close upon a million had it not been for the labor trouble. The sales made by London manufacturers are believed to have amounted to an increase of this most gratifying proportion.

Amendment of Cigarette Bill.

The cigarette bill now before the House at Ottawa is now confronted by an amendment introduced by Mr. Gervais, of Montreal, asking that the title of the present bill be altered and every clause in it struch out. Instead of prohibiting the manufacture, importation and sale of cigarettes, as in Tennessee, Oklahoma, etc., it provides that the sale to those under sixteen years of age be forbidden.

The following objections have been raised against the amendment:

(1) Five out of seven provinces in the Dominion have already legislated against the sale to minors, not only of cigarettes, as in Mr. Gervais' bill, but of all forms of tobacco. British Columbia set the age at fifteen, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island at sixteen, and New Brunswick and Ontario at eighteen years of age. It is because these enactments have not proved successful that the present bill has been formulated.

(2) In over twenty states of the American Union cigarettes are prohibited to those under stated ages. The general verdict is that the purpose intended is not even inadequately served.

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

Tobacco Notes.

The Daly Cigar Co., London, have sold out to W. R. Dyer.

Isaac Blumensteil, of the Helda Cigar Factory, Hamilton, is thoroughly renovating his premises and increasing its capacity.

The American Tobacco Co.'s ad. on the large chimney at Hanlan's point, Toronto, is attracting considerable attention. Sweet Caporal cigarettes certainly cannot be overlooked in visiting the island.

At Sohmer Park, Montreal's great Summer garden, the immense snow shoe advertising "Bobs" plug chewing tobacco, is a novel feature. The snow shoe, the largest ever made, being over 20 feet in length, was made at Indian Lorette, at a cost of $50. It certainly arrests the eye and attention of visitors.

The premium syatem of the American Tobacco Co. is being pushed throughout the larger towns of Quebec. Two employes are visiting the leading grocery and tobacco stores making a display of two or three hundred of the premiums for which Snow Shoe tags may be exchanged. In the larger cities Col. Collins Young, the midget, is on exhibition as an attraction and the drawing card of the exhibit.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE strike of the meat packers and butchers of Chicago is affecting that class of freight very strongly just now, and the big railroads are not a little concerned about it. For instance, an embargo is placed, or, at least, was placed (no telling how soon it would be lifted) upon empty meat cars bound for Chicago. This step was taken because the switch lines, which among other lines take over cars from these cars, while the G. T. R. have even more. It would appear from this action that there is little possibility of an immediate settlement of the strike.

Ocean tonnage is quiet now, and the chief charters are the sugar ships which were mentioned last week. The steamer Yanariva has been chartered by MacLean Kennedy Co. to load deals and general cargo for the United Kingdom. She just unloaded a 4-000 ton cargo of sugar and 1,000 puncheons of molasses. The Indianapolis has arrived with a cargo of molasses and sugar. She has been chartered by MacLean Kennedy Co. for general work outwards.

Freight from the west is still low. Engagements have been made for wheat from Fort William to Montreal at 3 1-2 to 3 3-4c per bushel, and by lake and rail at 3 3-4c. The same hopeful position has been maintained regarding ocean freights, and the grain men are getting more pleasant every day. The test of the new Webber elevator in Montreal was interesting. It was simply a contractor's test, and the quantity of grain available for it was only 20,000 bushels. Mr. Webber said things worked well. It requires several days to test, and the results will be noted elsewhere in this issue.

railways and deliver them to meat packing companies, are unable to handle the usual number of cars owing to the strike. The freight returns of the Canadian roads will thus be materially affected. The big Chicago packing houses have their own cars for meat. This embargo compels the G. T. R. and C. P. R. to hold all their cars for meat on a siding until called for. The C. P. R. handle about three hundred of

FRANK MAGOR & CO.,

CANADIAN AGENTS, 403 St. Paul St., MONTREAL.

One way to run a store is to make it as safe for stupid people to shop there as for those who know all about what they're getting. You can always be sure of satisfaction if you sell and somehow people who're slow to learn are equally slow to take their trade elsewhere.

A HAPPY HIT

This is what we are certain the trade will concede to be the case in our having decided to put up "Alexandra" and "Oswego" hard, sweet biscuits, in half-pound cartons, packed in tin instead of, as hitherto, in bulk. Possibility of breakage will not only be reduced to a minimum, but the cartons will be attractive to your customers as well as convenient for yourself.

The "VAMPIRE" Spiral Flycatcher

Clean, Simple, Novel, and Effective.

Clears the House of Flies.

THE "Vampire" Spiral Fly-catcher consists of a small closely-wound Spiral, covered with a sticky material, and hermetically sealed in a short tube. By simply pulling out one end, the Spiral is elongated and forms the most effective Flycatcher known. When the Spiral is full, lay on a sheet of newspaper, crumple up and burn.

Oh! What a pity!

Is the usual exclamation when a delicate or much-cherished piece of china or glass comes to grief. When this happens you want which permanently mends china or g as and joins wood, leather, etc., etc. In collapsible tubes.

"Tenasitine"

The Canadian Grocer
When an Apple Drops
from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.
And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.
In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.
Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.
Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.
The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.
"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

An Evening in the Commercial Room

By Algernon Warren, in "Commercial Traveling."

A TRAVELER had lured a customer into the commercial room, and was mellowing his heart with ale, so that the latter, in benevolent mood, had drunk to the company, and the commercial, following suit, re-echoed his sentiments. It was half-past eight in the evening, and although some men were still engaged with correspondence, there was a general sign of slacking off. Thanks to the introduction of manifold order-books, the traveler can despatch his work more quickly than in former days when he was necessitated to write his orders afresh. Now, by the method employed, the process of taking down an order affords the traveler a duplicate in each case, which he can post off after assuring himself as to its legibility.

Most of the men wore a satisfied look, as if the day's work had not been bad. Probably the exceptionally fine weather accounted for this to some extent. An outsider might perhaps think that a commercial traveler should hail the advent of a wet day with some amount of satisfaction, as being calculated to afford him uninterrupted interviews with his customers. But in reality, the case is almost invariably the reverse. A trader is wont to like to see money coming in at the same time that he is paying it out, or pledging him to payments at a future date; and bad weather and absence of purchasers sometimes lead him to return the civil greeting of the commercial representative with ungracious speech such as, "It seems to be nothing but rain and commercial travelers!" Or, in reply to a polite inquiry as to wanting certain things, "The only thing I am looking for, sir, is business."

In a few minutes the commercial, who had been standing treat, rose and said to his customer, "Well, Mr. ——, if you'll excuse me two minutes I'll send off that little addition to your order, and I'll tell my people to execute the lot promptly. And, look here! I'm just going to write a private line to the manager of the hard goods department and tell him to see to it specially. It's necessary, because we are very much pressed at present, our people tell me. We've been obliged to keep a lot of our hands working overtime for the past three weeks."

Hereupon a fellow traveler, who was passing behind his chair, clapped him on the shoulder and said in a loud whisper, "Old fellow! Just remember the fate of Ananias." Whereupon the other lunged out at him in mock wrath.

The sally evoked a general chuckling. The youngest commercial in the room seemed specially to appreciate it, the more so perhaps because he had not been long enough on the road to have heard the like before. (N. B.—The commercial room is a dreadful place for remarks of the chestnut order.)

He had quite a youthful appearance, and was in fact barely twenty, having only been sent out to travel some three months previously, when his employers were suddenly called upon to supply a gap, owing to an accident sustained by one of their representatives. But, fortunately for him and for them, he had been already tried at town traveling, so that he was not entirely raw, and he had, moreover, before starting on this journey, received some valuable preliminary coaching; for his predecessor on the route was not one of those who say to their successor: "You must find out for yourself; I had to find out for myself; no one helped me." As a matter of fact, no one had helped this senior when a junior and a novice, and he had suffered in consequence, and years rolling by had not hardened him into callousness as to the suffering of others who followed his calling. Consequently, he had spared no pains in helping the youth to steer clear of commercial rocks and breakers. He had bade him be mindful that an appearance of a large stock behind the plate-glass window is not incompatible with the fact that its owner may be thoroughly untrustworthy. He had recounted to him how, at the beginning of his own career, the result of the hard work on the journey had been marred by a big bad debt, owing to his having taken an order from a shifty trader, who, noting his youth, had more than met him halfway, and enticed him into booking it without proper inquiry into the giver's commercial status; the result being that the latter collapsed financially not two months after, to the tune of a shilling in the pound.

His employers, too, had given him some sound and useful advice. One of them, who had himself had some experience of commercial traveling, had urged upon him the necessity of endeavoring to suit customers' convenience as to time of calling. "A tradesman," said he, "looks upon the traveler as one who solicits a favor from him. I know that there are some who say it's no favor to pay an account when it is properly due. Nor is it. But it is a favor for a customer to sacrifice more time than he can conveniently spare to listen to a traveler who desires to convince him that it is to his interest to purchase from him. It is perfectly true that he may be, and very often is, the better off for having listened to him; but it must be remembered that the traveler has to request the favor of an audience. It is open to the trader not to grant it, and therefore if he does give it, he to that extent obliges the traveler, who in return should prove himself grateful by being as concise as possible, thereby showing no disposition to presume on the courtesy accorded to him."

The young fellow had brains enough to profit by the advice tendered to him, and consequently did not approach buyers in the lamentable state of verdancy and ignorance which is too common amongst young representatives, sometimes owing to the carelessness of their employers in neglecting to put them in the way of proper information about their work, but very often, too, owing in a large measure to their own conceit, which makes them slow to profit by the experience of others, and induces them to pass themselves off as being far better qualified for traveling than they are in reality.

Self-opinionated youngsters of this class are a terrible drag on the wheels of commerce. They commit all sorts of indiscretions, such as telegraphing home the order of a shaky customer, for immediate dispatch. "Diddleums paid account, wants such and such goods urgently," they wire. On the strength of this the order is executed, only for the disgusted firm to learn too late that the so-called payment consists of a one-month's bill accepted by Diddleums, made payable by him at his own premises, and not worth the paper it is drawn upon.

Two young commercials sat talking in a corner. Although assuming an air of privacy they relieved themselves occasionally with remarks which were audible to the whole roomful. "I tell you what it is," said one, "it's all jealousy. Our house has been doing more and more every year, and they know it, and don't like it." Then further whispering ensued, both wearing a look as if discussing matters of the gravest importance, and indicative of immense responsibilities.

A consequential young fellow, who wore that unmistakable "still-got-to-be-chaffed-down" look on his face, rang the bell loudly.

"Boots ! bring me a pair of slippers."

The Boots, who had answered the peal with promptitude, withdrew with equal celerity, and reappeared with the desired articles. The knight of the road did not descend to the weakness of expressing thanks for the service, but recalled him as he was leaving the room with :

"Boots, what is the name of the street where the shops are ?"

Hereupon the expression on the face of nearly every commercial in the room evinced clearly the mental reflection of "What an ass the man must be !"

"I suppose you mean High street, sir."

"Yes, of course, I mean where the principal shops are."

"Well, old man," said a fellow traveler, "You've got to know this place a bit better than you do now, if you think the High street is the only one to do good 'biz' in."

"Oh, I shall get to know it soon. Me and my cousin are going to take this journey betwixt us."

"Indeed ! Well, I hope you will get as many lines as you deserve" (lines signify orders in commercial phraseology), said the other ironically.

"I got one good line out of D—— H——. You know whom I mean; you do with him. But you remember when you met me coming in this evening at six, wasn't I black in the face ?"

"Well, you didn't look particularly joyful."

"No, I was like a devil. I'd called upon a man and got him to promise to come to the hotel and see all my samples laid out in the small room behind this. Well, he came, and I stood drinks —cost me two shillings it did—and after talking for more than an hour he said no; he wouldn't order just now. I was in a rage, I tell you, a regular fume; and, when he had gone, I just lit my pipe and marched out for a walk along the road to try and get over it."

"So you couldn't get him to nibble, eh ? You didn't play him long enough, that's about it. People in this place are not too keen about giving orders offhand, especially when it's a new man that calls. Let's get up a rubber. Will you play, sir ?" he added, turning to the youthful traveler already alluded to.

"Thank you. A customer of mine is going to call for me in a few minutes to take me to his club."

"Oh, the Tradesmen's Club, off the High street ! Ever been there before ?"

"No, but I have heard that the members there are all very good to visitors."

"Yes, they're not a bad sort."

While he was speaking another traveler bustled into the room rather boisterously and addressed a friend who was still writing : "Hello ! Not done yet? I say, old man, I am going to have a day for a spree in the country to-morrow. Will you come too ? It will be just your sort."

"No; I can't. You see my people expect me to work on the Saturday while I'm here, and allow me the day's expenses just like any other day."

So do mine; but (sinking his voice rather lower and putting on a look of mighty cunning) you know how to work the trick, don't you ? Look here ! By the look of those order-sheets, you have done a good lot to-day. Well, do as I am going to do—keep some of them back, date them for to-morrow, and get the Boots to post them for you."

"Don't you think that is a bit rough on your house ?"

"Oh, they're rich enough to stand it, and I'll make it up to them later on. It's half the fun of a trip to feel you're getting your 'exes' paid."

And the holiday-maker did work the trick, with the result that the delay caused through his holding back one of the orders lost a good customer to the firm. Tradesmen nowadays when they give orders want the goods quickly more often than not, and some of them consider that they are unfairly treated if their orders be not despatched on the day on which they are received.

It was now past 9 p. m., which in the commercial room is the orthodox time for lighting up, and pipes and cigars, with accompaniments of whisky and soda, were going freely, while there was a general buzz of conversation. Two travelers, who had not met before for some time, were comparing notes about mutual friends and acquaintances. "I was told," said the younger of the two, "that you told some one that you had been working this ground for over forty years, and were thinking of knocking off altogether."

"That's quite true," rejoined the senior. "I came here on my first journey when I was nineteen, and I shall be sixty-two next month, and if all's well I shall be giving up for good at the end of the year. I've got some house property, which will give me just enough to do, and I think I've stuck to work close enough all these years to have earned a bit of leisure."

"By jove! what a lot of changes you must have seen in your time!" said the other, and then added in a regretful tone, "Well, I wish I were you, that's all. There are too many of us out nowadays. And things get so cut, because a lot of these new firms haven't got much capital, and they must turn it over quickly or they can't go on, so they offer at ridiculous figures and spoil the trade. My people are continually getting worried, and so am I, because men that have done with us for years are always saying that they are quoted lower figures, and asking for reductions. You see, they get these other houses' prices. They don't trust them but they do us; so they want to drive us to take the same prices for our articles that the others quote, because they know our goods will be all right. And what's more, a lot of them want three months' credit from us at the same figures that these men quote for prompt cash payment. It's just sickening! Well, it's no use grumbling, I suppose; only it's very discouraging to do a bigger turnover and have so little to show for it in the way of profits. And what I maintain is, that if there is much more business to be done than there was forty or fifty years ago, the increase is not proportionate to the numbers that are trying to get slices of it."

"Yes, that's true," said the other, "though it is rather hard to get men who have left off traveling themselves to realize it. When I began, I had to cover a lot of my ground with a horse and trap, and was allowed thirty shillings a day for expenses, Sundays and all, as I was often out a month straight on end. But though I back you about the increased competition, I cannot conscientiously say that nearly everything was more comfortable then. What I think made things more rose-colored than they really were, were the big profits we used to get. One man whom I used to meet very often traveled for a paint firm. He used to say that high prices were merely a matter of nerve. But much longer credit had to be given; six months, and then settlement by a four months' bill was quite an ordinary thing, and we made some big bad debts now and then. There was a lot more, too, of paying so much money on account and never settling up to hand till they got hopelessly insolvent. Then, again, there was no home life. It wasn't fair to the wife, when there was one, nor yet to the children, where there was a family."

"Did you miss your trap much when you took to going by rail?"

"Very much in the fine weather, but it was no joke getting soaked for hours in driving rain. I've often driven when it was so cold that I got nearly benumbed and could hardly hold the reins. Suppose we adjourn to the seats in the porch. This room is getting rather stuffy, and it is a fine evening."

The other agreed, but they had some difficulty in finding comfortable resting places, for several travelers were already sitting in the entrance hall and outside the door. Some of them were carrying on an animated but rather heated political discussion. Unfortunately, too many of the "genus commercial" are prone not only to lay down the law about the affairs of the nation, but to take a side with disregard to the feelings of those present who hold contrary views. If they have tendencies to Radicalism, the fact that they may know some of their auditors to be staunch admirers of Mr. Balfour and Lord Salisbury, will not ordinarily deter them from launching out into abuse of those ministers, and if they hold Conservative views, although someone present may have openly avowed an amount of regard for the memory of the G. O. M., that will not keep one of them from vehemently declaring how he "Hated the beast." Moreover, they wax hot, and indulge in flat contradictions, though their anger is usually short-lived; for, deny it who will, commercial travelers are a good-tempered race—which they have need to be, seeing what many of them have to put up with from customers. That numbers of them think they could give the Government no end of wrinkles is undeniable. And so in truth they could—of a commercial kind. They become keen observers, and are quick to detect wherein commercial obstructions lie. Indeed, their power and influence would be far greater were it not that, in their struggles for trade, number one is so very much the first consideration. If Brown sells goods which a railway company will carry at rates that enable him to do a fair business, he is not likely to agitate because that same company may demand higher rates for the class of goods sold by his friend and fellow-traveler, Jones. He will listen to his complaints, and say, "Hard lines, old man! but the railway beggars treat us pretty fairly, so I must speak of them as I find them and don't see my way to help you." He is not, as a rule, long-sighted enough to see that it is to his own interest to assist his friend in this respect.

By this time many who had been elsewhere had returned and were hanging about the hotel entrance for a final smoke and chat before going to bed. Amongst them was the young fellow who had, by his customer's courtesy, been made free of the Tradesmen's Club. He had thoroughly enjoyed his evening there, having been kindly received and hospitably entertained; and, as he showed his appreciation of his reception without presuming on it or giving himself airs, he was asked to come again, as was not another commercial traveler who also came as a visitor, and from the first made himself too aggressively at home there.

One of the senior members, to whom this free-and-easy individual had been introduced, remarked:

"Well, how are they serving you?"

"Oh, very well, thank you! I've done first-rate so far," was the traveler's answer, he being anxious to convey the impression that he was a fine fellow, likely to make headway anywhere.

"Serve them right!" rejoined the other, with grim facetiousness.

This (in his own estimation) heaven-born genius now thought it time to declare himself further. Lolling back in his chair, and sipping the whisky and water which his introducer had provided and paid for, according to the club regulations, he thus commenced to give the members his unsolicited views touching the harbor works of their town.

"Where you made your mistake when you built your pier was in putting it in the place where it is. It ought to have been fifty yards further to the left."

In some places a speaker who propounded his ideas on the strength of a forty-eight hours' stay in the locality would have been remorselessly snubbed Here one of his hearers merely remarked "that it was difficult for a stranger to form a correct opinion about their harbor off-hand."

Others murmured a quiet acquiescence, but the commercial was in no way abashed, and favored the company with some more remarks for their benefit.

He knew it not, but he was effectually barring himself from being asked again to the club; for, although the good manners of those members present restrained them from setting him down in some such a manner as he would have understood—namely, by telling him straight that he was a conceited fellow who knew nothing about what he was talking of—they would certainly be sure to take the first opportunity of censuring the member, who had introduced him, for having brought such a "confounded fool" into their company, and he would probably feel so irritated that he would not only never offer to take the traveler to the club again, but would be strongly disinclined to buy goods of him on the next occasion of his calling for orders; for these things rankle.

After sitting and chatting for another half-hour the younger of the two men who had come out together, said, "Well, good night, old fellow. I may not see you again before you have left the road for good. Don't be too proud to remember old acquaintances, and say a good word for us when you can. You know all that rot that is said and written about commercials being a thirsty, gambling lot. Stick up for the order. You'll be believed when you've retired and people think you haven't got an 'axe of your own to grind.'

"Of course I will," said the other, "and there's one remark which I forgot to make when we were talking about earlier times. I'll make it now. There isn't half that stupid, senseless, practical joking that there was once. It used to be very much in the way to take down a young cub by some rough-and-ready trick. Why, you yourself must remember old Twizzler. He traveled till two or three years after you came on. Well, if there was a thing he hated, it was to see a young fellow doing the grand. Once, I was having breakfast in the same hotel with him and Jenkins; and young Cygnet, who hadn't been traveling more than a month or two, began bragging that he wasn't easily taken in. I saw old Twizzler look across at Jenkins, and wink. In another minute Jenkins feels in his pockets and then jumps up saying 'I'll be back in a minute. I've left something valuable upstairs. Just see that the waiter doesn't walk my egg off while I'm gone.' The moment he shut the door, Twizzler says to young Cygnet, 'I say! suppose you hide his egg in your waistcoat pocket, and sell him.' 'All right,' says Cygnet, and does it. Back comes Jenkins with, 'I say, where's my egg?' Cygnet tries to look knowing. 'Guess you've got it there,' says Jenkins, drives at his waistcoat, and smashes the egg all over him. It was a dirty jest rather, but at the time no one sympathized with Cygnet."

"I daresay not," said the other.

There was now a general ingress for departure to bed—a welcome place to a hard-worked commercial representative. And in these days travelers must work hard or they get out of the running. The majority of them, whatever be their faults and indiscretions, cannot be justly accused of downright laziness. On the contrary, they merit commendation for their industry, and sympathy on account of the constant obstacles and inconveniences they encounter and have to put up with in the course of their daily avocation.

ANNUAL MEETING OF MANUFACTURERS.

Mr. R. J. Younge, general secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, was in Montreal last week making arrangements for the annual meeting of the association, which is to be held on Sept. 20, 21 and 22. He believed that the meeting would be by far the largest in the history of the association.

PACKING HOUSE STRIKE RESUMED.

The big American meat strike which was apparently settled has broken out again owing to an alleged violation of agreement by the packing-house proprietors. When three thousand cattle butchers reported at the Chicago stockyards on July 22, only half of them were given places. As a direct result none were willing to go to work. They reported the fact to union headquarters and a general order for the renewal of the strike was issued immediately.

Up to the present, attempts to adjust the difficulty have been unsuccessful. On Saturday, July 23rd, the Butchers' Union and allied organizations sent an ultimatum to the packers demanding a settlement of the strike before the morning of July 25th on penalty of a general walk-out of all union employes at work in the stock yards. The Teamsters' Union have refused to sanction the decision of the packing house teamsters to join the strike and have appointed a committee to communicate with the packers in an effort to open peace negotiations.

Bradstreets' comments as follows on the strike: While it will no doubt be claimed that the strike has not lasted long enough to let its full effects be exercised, it is probably safe to say that a general strike of meat butchers has lost considerable of its terrors. So far the chief sufferers by the strike would seem to have been those members of the retail trade who loaded up freely with meat and then advanced prices heavily to take advantage of fancied public necessities. One reflection that comes to mind just now must convey considerable comfort to those who see "trust" machinations in any and all advances in prices, whether due to strikes or other causes. This is that despite the claims that the meat business of the United States was in the control of a "big four" of great packing concerns, controlling absolutely the sale, slaughter and marketing of a great public necessary, there was a very large amount of meat handled by the outside or independent slaughterers, who seem to have been able to keep at work and in a measure supply the markets in a fairly satisfactory manner. This demonstration of strength on the part of the thousand or more slaughtering concerns of the United States should certainly be encouraging to those who view with alarm the tendency to centralization of industry in the hands of a few persons or corporations.

PACKING ROOM ON THIRD FLOOR.

In this room there are seven packing machines, together with electric automatic weighing machines and an electric motor which furnishes power for operating them. The teas feed into the automatic weighers from the hoppers on the floor above, and are weighed in 1 lb., ½ lb., ¼ lb., or ⅛ lb. packages as fast as the operator can handle the packages; the output averaging about 4,000 per day for each machine. Some of the packing machines are run by electric power and press the tea into the packages instead of pounding it as is done with the hand packers. These presses are a new machine not in use by any other firm in Canada and are a very great improvement on the old one, as the pressing does not break the leaf near so much as pounding.

The packages, when completed, are placed in trays holding about 50 lbs. each and are then sent through an iron chute, which has an automatic, self-closing attachment, to the floor below where the packages are labelled.

On this floor there is a lunch room for the convenience of the men and boys employed in the building. It is fitted up with all the necessary conveniences and much appreciated by the workmen; this room is the only place in the building in which smoking is permitted.

The balance of the third floor is used for storing teas.

Next week a description of the labelling room on the second floor will be given.

DAIRYING IN DENMARK.

By P. B. Ball.

AS AN explanation of the premier position occupied by Danish butter in the English market at the present time, the following resume of an interview with one of the largest importers of Danish butter in Great Britain is not without interest:

Uniform Quality a Feature.

In the first place the Danes see to it that the English housewife is able throughout the whole of the year to secure an article of uniform quality and fresh made every week. Denmark has a system of balancing her milk supply. Instead of having all her cows to calve in the spring, she has almost an equal number calving in autumn, which is the source of her additional supply at a period when her competitors (of the summer) are not in a position at present to successfully compete. Her exports to Great Britain are, indeed almost as large in winter as at any other period of the year—a very great advantage.

Government Supervises Dairies.

The first consideration when a factory (for Danish butter is factory-made) has to be erected is to find a plentiful supply of pure spring water. Then a community of farmers arrange to deliver their milk daily, the produce to be divided pro rata. The factories are subjected to surprise visits by officials appointed by the Government, and any irregularity is reported and severely deal with. Also a dairyman can call upon an expert in his district to visit the factory and find out the source of any difficulty which prevents the production of the desired quality.

Surprise examinations are also instituted by the Government, and at any moment a telegram may be received asking for a cask of that day's make to be forwarded for analysis, points being given for quality, texture and dryness. Yearly the sum total of points is published, and gold, silver and bronze medals are awarded for them.

Cleanliness the First Law

Cleanliness is the first law with Danish dairymen. All utensils, and the walls and floors of glazed bricks, are daily cleansed with the aid of a powerful jet of scalding water from the boilers.

Casks Branded to Avoid Deception.

Some people have stated that large quantities of Russian and Finnish butters are shipped from Copenhagen as Danish butter, but this is absolutely untrue. In the first place there is no butter arriving as good or as fresh from those countries as Danish butter, and an expert could not be deceived. It is true that many attempts have been made by unscrupulous merchants to deceive ignorant and inexperienced buyers; but it was suggested that every cask of Danish butter should have a stave bearing a mark of origin from top to bottom, and now almost every dairy uses the special "Lur-brand" on the side of the casks, which is the "hallmark" of Danish butter.

How Prices are Made.

Every week a committee of merchants in Copenhagen decide the price to be paid to the dairies after receiving the reports from the various markets in Great Britain. This price, however, is only nominal, and as much as five shillings per cwt. is paid above the quotation.

Canadian Butter not Uniform.

The Canadians do not pay sufficient attention to the regularity of their butter, not differentiating between the products of the various creameries. Some Canadian butter is quite as good in quality as any Danish. The main difficulty, however, is that if a box of such is discovered in a shipment it is a rare thing to discover another like it even when all the boxes are similarly marked. It is not unusual to find as small a maximum as two boxes in ten which are even in color and quality.

Butter Importations to Great Birtain.

The following figures represent the quantity and value of butter imported by Great Britain for the first five months of 1904 and 1903 respectively:

Refrigerator Service.

BOTH the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railways have succeeded in getting their refrigerator service in working order in Ontario and Quebec. The special cars are intended for the export and local delivery trade in cheese and butter. The Federal Government has agreed until September 10th to assume the cost of icing to the extent of $5 on any number of cars up to 50. In this connection the following regulations have been issued:

"All cars supplied are to be properly iced, but it is suggested that a ton of ice per car, or possibly slightly in excess of this, will be all that is necessary to reduce the temperature sufficiently for the safe transportation of cheese; this, however, would depend to some extent upon the distance the car is to be hauled and the condition of the weather.

The full cost of ice supplied, on the basis of $2.50 per ton of 2,000 lbs., as provided for by paragraph 8 of Freight Traffic Manager's Circular No. 33, May 2nd, 1904, must be billed forward to Montreal, on carload shipments for export or for local delivery, unless the shipper may desire to prepay charges if any, in excess of the five dollars per car, provided for herein, in which event the five dollars will be billed forward to collect.

The agent at Montreal will collect any excess over the charge of $5.00 per car, except where the excess has been prepaid, and will receive instructions from the accounting department as to clearance of the charge which the Government assumes.

Should the total icing charges not exceed $5.00, no collection will be made from the consignee.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The provision market has been brisk and firm during the week under review. Prices rule at last week's level except in hams which show considerable strength and are up a half cent. There is every evidence that things are shaping for higher prices. The most interesting happening of the week was the shipment of ten cars of long clear bacon to England. It is seldom that any of this leaves this country, but it is probable that the strike in the United States has left its customers without supply and Canada is called upon to fill the demand. The price of bacon has not advanced but present quotations are firmer than last week. Things are dull in fresh meats and will be for a month. Light hogs are scarce and as a result have advanced 65 cents a cwt. We quote the following prices:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 07½	$0 07¾
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12	0 12½
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09	0 09½
Small hams per lb	0 12½	0 13
Medium hams, per lb	0 12½	0 13

Butter—Receipts of butter are falling off considerably on account of poor grass and difficulties of shipping. Dairy prints are coming in much smaller quantities and in poorer quality, but there is still a great deal to be had. On account of decreasing shipments of dairy butter, creamery prints have advanced a cent a pound. There is still a large quantity of dairy tubs offering. Farmers, too, are making less butter on account of the low prices prevailing, and this has a tendency to harden themarket. The following prices rule this week:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 18	0 19½
" solids, fresh	0 16½	0 17½
Dairy prints	0 13	0 14
" in tubs	0 12	0 14

Cheese—The cheese market is showing little variation from week to week. Conditions are unsatisfactory and have been for a couple of months. The ruling price on the boards was about 7 1-2 cents. Reports from centres for the week ending July 25 are as follows:

Provisions—Receipts for provisions of all kinds have been heavy as may be evidenced from the fact that on Monday there arrived 100 barrels of pork, 46 packages of lard and 380 cases of tinned meat. Live hogs came in very freely during the first part of the week but there was a falling off on Tuesday, while the demand from the packers was very good indeed. The market held firm and the steadiness of last week was maintained. Selected lots sold at 5 to 5 1-2c weighed off cars. Fresh killed abattoir stock remained firm and the prices changed not, selling at $7.75 for light weights and $7.50 for heavy per 100 lbs. The season is good for hams and bacon and a fine trade has been done in these lines. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 50	$18 00
American short cut clear	16 50	17 00

" cases (12 5-lb. tins)	0 08½	0 09½
" cases (24 3-lb. tins)	0 08¾	0 09½

Butter—Everything is confused in the butter market. No one seems to be positive just what is being done or what is to be done. However, the situation is that extreme prices have been paid at country points by certain Montreal dealers. Mail advices say that these same folks have offered finest Eastern Townships' creamery at 17 1-2c for August-September shipment. This is fully 1-2 to 3-4c per lb. less than they have paid at country points. So there is a puzzle. To-day farmers realized 17 1-2c on spot for creamery (Quebec). Over 1,100 boxes sold at this price while for the finest Townships the ruling price was 17 3-4c. Some sellers claimed to have reached as high as 18c.

The exports of butter were heavy again last week and showed up well in comparison with those of last year at the same time; for instance, the total exports were 25,806 boxes and of this only 3,163 were through. Last season the shipments for the corresponding period were 17,870 boxes and in 1902, 28,-117.

Cheese—There is a little better feeling in cheese. The price is now 1-8 to 1-4 of a cent in advance of what it was last week and not a pound has been moving at that even. Some considerable quantities of Quebec at 7 3-8 to 7 5-8c on spot were sold and on seconds there was an advance of 1-8c per pound more than they were selling for last week. Ontarios sold at 7 3-4c and Townships were selling at 7 1-4 to 7 5-8s. There were good sales of large quantities on the wharf at 7 1-4 to 7 3-8c. It is still believed that with the shipments nearly 40 per cent. behind what they were last year and with receipts less and country board offerings decreased, the farmers have no inducements to feed, which they were doing last year at this time. Some knowing ones declare that speculators are putting cheese away for future shipment as the ruling prices are extremely low and it certainly would not be a bad speculation.

The exports of cheese for the week ending July 26 were 79,034 boxes and of this 10,635 were through shipment. For last year at the same time 102,048 boxes were exported and for 1902, 138,896 boxes. The total shipments since the opening of navigation to date were 686,718 boxes; for 1903, 950,909; for 1902, 780,178.

Provisions—The market continues very dull. Pork is low. Beef seems fairly firm, but sale is very small. The continued low price of pure lard and the limited sale is disappointing to the trade. Hams and rolls have a light sale. In fresh meats, beef shows a rather smaller sale. Prices remain unchanged. Lamb has a large demand with prices lower and supply coming to hand freely. Mutton is not wanted. Veal is scarce. Little pork is offered.

The Brine Duty.

The United States Government has rendered a decision in the case that has been before the appraisers as to the proper duty on fish imported into the country in brine. The controversy arose over the fact that the Government collected duty on the brine as well as the fish. The decision was favorable to the fish men. It means a considerable saving as it reduces the duty to be paid from $3 to $2 a barrel.

A Fine New Packing House.

A PROJECT of large proportions has just been launched in Montreal. A new packing company has been organized with a capital of $500,000 and will carry on a meat packing business in that city under the firm name of the Montreal Packing Co. The leading shareholders will be the same as those of the English-Canadian produce house of Lovell and Christmas, Limited. Mr. R. M. Ballantyne and Mr. P. W. McLagan, who are the joint directors of the company in Canada, are responsible for carrying through the organization of the company. A large plant will be at once built at Point St. Charles and the chief energy will be devoted towards the exportation of hams and bacon. Mr. C. W. Bowman of Ingersoll, Ont., will be the new manager of the company.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., wholesale groeers, Montreal, are arranging for holidays for their travelers. All salesmen will be off the road from the 6th to 15th August, and it goes without saying that the boys will appreciate their breathing spell.

BISCUITS IN CARTONS.

Christie, Brown & Co., Limited, Toronto, are putting up their "Alexandra" and "Oswego" hard sweet biscuits in 1-2 lb. cartons packed in tins. These packages should please the trade as they are not only handy, but will avoid the breakage which sometimes takes place in biscuits when put up in bulk.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Shrimp Fishing.

SHRIMPS are generally caught in from 25 to 30 fathoms of water where the tides are sluggish, but near a strong current, or else in the same depths near the mouths of rivers, evidencing to me they feed after the manner of oysters. They are also migratory; they become uneasy when fished and are constantly shifting their grounds, sometimes but a few rods, and at other times a mile or more. This habit of theirs makes it necessary for the fishermen to constantly study the condition of the tides and weather that he may re-discover them promptly.

The appliance used in taking them is a modification of the beam trawl constructed of iron or of pipes, with runners on the bottom. These "frames" average about sixteen feet in length by three feet in height, the sack or net averaging about fourteen feet.—Pacific Fisherman.

Funny Fish is the Puffer.

The funniest little fellow in salt water is the puffer, or swell fish. Fishermen call him the blow fish.

When he is swimming around at ease, with nothing to alarm him, he looks queer enough, for the skin of his abdomen is all loose and wrinkled, and he has such a funny little tail and such ridiculous little fins and such a big, three-cornered head that he looks entirely absurd. His mouth, instead of being big and gaping, as most fish mouths are, is only a tiny round hole at the end of a pointed, conical snout. Out of this circular mouth protrude his teeth, like those of a rabbit.

He would be about as homely a fish as could be made if it were not for the beautiful orange and yellow and silver coloring that play all over him.

But queer as he looks when he is at ease, it is only when he is frightened or excited that he becomes really funny. If he is hooked, for instance, he comes to the surface grinding those protruding teeth so that the sound can be heard a good many feet away. And then, as soon as the hand touches him, he begins to grunt hoarsely, and with each grunt he swells a bit, till within a few moments he has puffed himself so full of air that he is quite round and firm, like a ball. So thoroughly does he distend himself with air that when the fishermen hurl him at the water with all their force, as they often do, he will bounce just like a rubber ball.

If he is dropped into the water after blowing himself full of air he floats on it as lightly as thistledown, and he will stay that way until he has assured himself that danger has gone by. He does the same when he is pursued by other fish. And, as he floats almost entirely out of water, with only a little bit of his hard, spiny body sunk under the surface, very few fish can hurt him once he is inflated.

Fish Notes.

The Government is contemplating the establishment of a fish hatchery on an extensive scale at some point on Lake Huron or the Georgian Bay, namely, Sarnia, Goderich, Owen Sound, or Collingwood. A representative of the fisheries department will shortly visit these places to decide where it shall be located.

THE TRAVELERS AND THEIR HOLIDAYS

HOW THE DRUMMER BOYS ARE SPENDING THEIR VACATIONS.

ON August 1 the grocery travelers enter upon their well-deserved Summer holidays, extending over two weeks. No one place seems to have been singled out as a special favorite this year, and during the next few days our drummer boys will be making themselves scarce over the country, honoring with their presence every place that merits the title of Summer resort. The Grocer has much pleasure in wishing one and all of the fraternity of the gripsack a very happy holiday, and hopes they will not forget for the time being to cast aside entirely the load of care and worry attending the vocation of the traveling man. Many they not be afraid to stow away credentials in grips for the next few weeks, and enjoy life "according to nature" like any other holiday seeker.

The Grocer has attempted to improvise a travelers' directory, extending over the next few weeks, for the special benefit of anxious friends at home, and presents the following list :

From the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto :

F. J. Watson will be found at his Summer cottage, Presqu'Isle, near Brighton, Ont.

J. W. Borsbry will divide his attention between the sights at the Soo and a voyage of discovery in New Ontario.

R. W. Ritchie expects to take part in a geological survey of the Georgian Bay District.

W. T. Wickham will enjoy the balmy breezes of New York City.

T. A. Wilson will listen to the wee small voices of nature at Garret's Rest, Rideau Point.

R. A. Smith will continue his Summer outing at Burlington Beach, Hamilton.

J. A. Milne will go on a fishing excursion up the lakes.

J. A. Montgomery will journey to New York and Coney Island, that Mecca of pleasure seekers.

H. C. Baker will take in the river and lake trip through the Thousand Islands to Montreal and Tadousac.

D. Casey will holiday at Niagara Falls and Crystal Beach, New York.

J. W. Mabee, the coffee king, will renew his youth in Bay City, Mich., incidentally taking in Chicago and the St. Louis Fair.

M. A. Muldrew will disport himself at Roache's Point, Muskoka.

T. S. Grant expects to put in two weeks at Onondagua, New York.

Traveling Men Without Credentials.

J. A. Taylor will enjoy the pellucid waters of Lake Simcoe.

J. P. Thompson will be found at Orchard Beach, Lake Simcoe.

H. A. Ernst will spend the holidays in Muskoka.

W. P. Eby will experiment with fishing tackle on the Georgian Bay.

Representatives of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto :

F. Anderson will spend the holidays at St. Thomas.

J. W. Charles will take a trip to Toronto.

F. J. Blackburn will rusticate at Forest Hill, Ont.

J. H. Lehman will be found at Ringwood, Ont.

C. E. Kyle will recuperate at the Welland House, St. Catharines.

J. W. Shouldice will inhale the ozone of Honey Harbor.

W. J. Bradley will assist his brother, J. W. Shouldice, in his devotions at Honey Harbor.

F. Menzie will holiday at Niagara Falls.

Representatives of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton :

H. Hickey has left on a trip to the Northwest.

Jas. Price will enjoy the holidays at home, taking care of the baby.

Billy McPherson will be off on his usual fishing tour, but has kept everything very quiet.

Thos. Edwards is going back to his old occupation on the farm to recuperate.

W. T. Harris will put in his time between Port Stanley and Hamilton, studying out how to manipulate some new change sheets recently received.

Nat Irvine will likely be seen a good deal around Hamilton Beach and on the Turbinia. His fishing days are over. He says he has a surfeit of it.

W. T. Orton is still a tender-foot and Hamilton has too great attractions for him to get outside of the city limits. He is held pretty tight there.

G. F. Foote, who is on the north trip, will probably spend his time around Manitoulin Island.

Representatives of the E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto :

J. F. Holden, J. W. Powell, and other Ontario representatives of E. W. Gillett Co., will enjoy their usual two weeks' vacation, beginning August 1. The above named gentlemen will put in the two weeks at their homes in Toronto, as they do sufficient traveling during the balance of the year and do not care for any during the vacation period.

Representatives of Davidson & Hay, Toronto :

W. B. Smith will spend his vacation at his roost sur le mer.

W. Anderson will take an experimental course in farming at his Niagara fruit farm.

A. D. Leslie will join his brother travelers at Roache's Point.

W. T. Bowes will spend his holidays at Lindsay.

C. Shields will take a trip across the lake to Saratoga, N. Y.

F. C. Ramsey will holiday in Muskoka.

Sam Qua will remain in Toronto.

Representatives of John Sloan & Co., Toronto :

C. F. Sharpe will spend his time at Port Stanley.

W. H. Maxwell will go back to the wild regions of Strawberry Island, Lake Couchiching.

E. G. Williams will spend his vacation at Waterloo, Ont.

E. G. Jones will spend part of the time in Toronto, cutting the lawn, and part visiting in Michigan.

J. H. Devaney will take part in the golf tournament at Old Orchard Beach.

J. Owen will spend his time between Munro Park and the baseball grounds.

J. B. Mayled will seek relaxation among the Thousand Islands.

J. Hayden will visit the World's Fair and Arkansaw.

F. M. Tait will take daily constitutionals on the Oshawa Beach.

C. S. Parsons will join his wife and family at Beaumaris, Muskoka.

H. Brett will take the Montreal and Thousand Islands trip.

Representatives of Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto :

W. Glover will indulge in sea bathing at Saratoga, to reduce his avoirdupois.

W. B. Dack is away back in the pine woods of Muskoka chasing mosquitos and incidentally picking up a bass or two.

D. J. Warren will be found at Niagara-on-the-Lake, playing tennis and keeping an eye on the fair damsels.

Representatives of F. W. Humphrey, Toronto :

T. Dowswell will spend his holidays fishing and hunting on the Moon River.

T. L. Willis will try his luck at fishing on the Trent River.

J. B. Dingwall will go on a cruising trip to Charlotte, Bay of Quinte, and Brockville.

W. A. Mitchell will take the trip to Mackinac.

W. Corrigan will rusticate at Lucknow, Ont.

W. Totten will be found at Owen Sound.

E. F. Walker has joined a kodak party in Muskoka.

Representatives of T. B. Escott & Co., London :

W. E. Eardley will likely visit friends in the north.

W. H. Escott will spend his holidays at Port Stanley.

Erle Insley will take a quiet rest at his home in London.

J. C. Bowers is intending a trip up the lakes.

B. L. Moorehouse will spend his holidays at the Soo.

F. Mayhew will spend his holidays in Ridgetown.

Representatives of the R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph :

W. H. McWatters expects to take in the Mackinac trip.

J. R. McDonald will camp at Muskoka.

E. S. Little will spend his holidays at Puslinch Lake.

A. M. Magee will enjoy the Highlands of Muskoka.

Representatives of Lind, Kerrigan & Co., London :

R. G. Lind will be found at Springbank, Ont.

W. A. Banghart will rusticate at Kilworth, Ont.

N. M. Ripley will spend his holiday with nature at Komoka, Ont.

F. Kerrigan will take a trip to Pond Mills, Ont.

Representatives of James Lumbers, Toronto :

J. H. Lumbers will spend the holidays with his family at Beaverton.

A. Dilworth will enjoy the scenery on the Welland Canal.

Condensed Sentiment.

The English custom of abbreviating familiar phrases by using the initial letter of each word is one of the first to arouse the interest, and occasionally the amusement, of Americans.

"R. I. P.," signifying "Rest in peace," is frequently inscribed on monuments; and recently on a very old stone a tourist discovered an epitaph which read something like this :

"Here lieth my beloved wife,
ELIZABETH ANNE,
Born———— Died ——
Let her R I P."

Story of the Green Ticket.

Jenkins had left college, where he had lived rather fast, but now meditated matrimony and settling down. As an old aunt had died and left him a little money, what was more natural than that he should redeem some of his many articles of clothing which he had deposited with his "Uncle Ike" in the days of necessity ?

By sad mishap, however, the obliging relative forgot to remove the tickets, which led to an embarrassing contretemps on his return home.

Full of kindness and pride for her dear boy, his mother, on his return to the parental home, insisted on unpacking his boxes. In doing so she first discovered an overcoat with an ominous looking label upon it.

"What a nuisance !" said Jenkins in answer to her expression of surprise. "They must have forgotten to take off the ticket at the ball at Smith's when I left my overcoat in the ante room."

Mamma was satisfied, but when, shortly afterwards, she found a pair of trousers bearing a similar label, imagine the puzzled surprise with which she exclaimed :

"But surely, my darling, you didn't leave these in the ante room, too ?" — Tit-Bits.

A Birth They Expected.

Little three-year-old William Bryans had long wished for a little baby at his home. One Winter day he said to his mother :

"Mamma, where do babies come from ? Where did Aunt Jennie get little baby Allen ?" His mother explained to him that God sent the babies, and if he so much wanted a little baby he must ask God, so that night he ended his usual prayer with a petition for a tiny little baby.

"It will be here when we wake in the morning, won't it, mamma ?"

"No, William, God won't send it so soon; it is cold, and we would not be ready for it; we will wait until it gets warm and the leaves come out on the trees, and the grass gets green, and the flowers come, then God will send it."

Now of all this conversation the father was ignorant, and what was his consternation when one day in early Spring William was standing by the window and suddenly exclaimed :

"Look, papa, over there the grass is coming up all green; pretty soon God will say, 'It's time for Bryans's baby.' "

HOLIDAYS

For two weeks, commencing Monday, August 1st, our travellers will be withdrawn from the road to enable them to enjoy a well-earned rest. We therefore ask our customers, who we know are in sympathy with this movement, to Telephone or Telegraph their orders at our expense.

A HEALTH TO THE TRAVELERS.

THE GROCER has many good friends among the commercial travelers representing the wholesale grocery houses of the Dominion. As a mark of appreciation of past kindnesses received at their hands, this week's issue is gratefully dedicated to them. At the same time the hope is expressed that the future relations of the travelers and their trade organ will be as cordial and friendly as they have been in the past.

The travelers are now about to give up the cares of business and enjoy a well-earned vacation, and certainly the ardors of the past Winter were sufficiently severe to make the present holiday a well-earned one. Possibly no vocation entails the endurance of more inconvenience and weariness than that of the commercial traveler. The change from place to place, the exposure to various climatic conditions, the poor fare, the absence of home comforts, the loss of business, are all very real evils, though the traveler seems to put up with them all with callous indifference. A relief from these cares is certainly welcome and should be accorded ungrudgingly.

THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.

AS an indication of the growing importance of the Canadian west, the Dominion Exhibition, which was opened this week at Winnipeg, is significant. Such an exhibition is never held in a city or province only just coming into existence. It is only possible where a community has reached a high state of development, intellectually and materially. The Winnipeg Exhibition accordingly marks a new phase in the history of western Canada, and a turning point in its career.

That the people of eastern Canada are alive to the importance of the west has been demonstrated by the number of exhibits, as well as by the number of representatives, sent west by eastern firms. A few years ago the managers of such firms would never have countenanced such a step. To-day they are only too anxious to improve their footing in the west.

The exhibition will undoubtedly be of the greatest benefit, not only to exhibitors but to the nation generally. No better way of bringing east and west into sympathetic touch could have been devised. Visitors to the exhibition, seeing the interest taken by the east in their city and country, will appreciate their fellow-Canadians more, and easterners will understand better the magnitude and needs of the west.

DOG FISH UTILITY.

SOME time ago The Grocer went into a full explanation of the dogfish question. In Parliament the other day the subject was exhaustively treated. No one had a word to say in favor of the pest though it sometimes is the case that there is "a soul of goodness in things miscalled evil."

Mr. Prefontaine, for instance, said that the fish were used for food in certain parts of Europe but that on this continent they were considered too coarse to eat. Mr. Ross of Victoria, N. S., was of the opinion that they might be used for canning purposes and the "results" could be sent to China or Japan where the inhabitants were not so sensitive as to what they took for food. Mark the word "results." Perhaps Mr. Ross used the word judicously, for why should not the fish be canned?

The extraction of oil is not exactly profitable because it only sells for 15 cents a gallon, but Mr. Macpherson of British Columbia pointed out that out there the people had not waited upon the Government but had established oil refineries and had made a success of oil extracting, while the offal was used for fertilizing purposes.

If the pest is as bad as is reported from the Atlantic coast then the bounty system is certainly the best possible method of getting rid of it.

The discussion in the House was very interesting, though it would appear as if certain members made rather a joke out of a very vital issue as far as Canadian fisheries are concerned.

THE HIGH PRICE OF LIMES.

QUITE a stir was caused in the green fruit trade of Montreal by the exposure in The Grocer of the extortionate price of limes in that market. Further details were supplied regarding the causes for these fruits being so expensive. For instance, in a case of limes, there are about 60 dozen. A case costs originally $1.50. If imported direct they would cost about $1.67 a case, with freight of course to be added. Barrels of limes cost $3.50 originally, and the average barrel contains about a little over 800 limes. It was in this manner that Mr. Russel-Murray imported his limes from Dominica, and which were sold at the low price of 5c a dozen, and at that price made a handsome profit.

Even fruit that is not imported direct can be sold at a great deal less than 25c a dozen, as may be proven by the following figures: There is a duty of 1c a pound on the arrival of the limes in New York, and an additional levy of 30 per cent. on the value of the package. When these goods are reshipped to Canada another duty of 25c a case has to be paid, and 55c on barrels (specific). Thus with freight, duty, and all charges included, limes can be laid down in Montreal at $2.45 a case.

These figures were supplied by an importer and he stated that that was exactly what it cost him. Hence it will be seen readily by dividing $2.45 by 60, that it leaves the cost of limes at about four and a fraction of a cent, per dozen. Why then should such a price be asked as $1.25 per hundred? Wholesale fruit men will say that their limes are cultured limes, that they are specially grown, and that they are of fine quality. This all may be true, yet the British commissioner from the West Indies in Montreal, states that the lime is a fruit that grows wild in the tropics, and that it requires little culture, and that there are no such things as cultivated limes, which are sold in Canada under this falsified pretext. This gentleman has no intention of antagonizing the lime trade, but on the other hand is ambitious to broaden the sale of the fruit. If the price could be reduced, a more general consumption would at once set in, and it would be better both for producer and consumer. At any rate the trade has had its eyes opened to the situation, and it is the duty of the fruit men to do something. Enquiry at different groceries during the week elicited the fact, that in several instances limes had been reduced in price.

CALIFORNIA FRUITS.

THE outlook for California fruits this season is a very good one providing there are no drawbacks. Reports from all sections are very favorable. The fire which recently destroyed some 800 tons of raisins will help to reduce carry-over stocks some and clear the market for new fruit. Any old fruit carried over will very largely be used up for wine making.

Prices of new crop to hand are such as to augur good business, in fact, they are so low that the question of profit to packers is a very doubtful one.

The new crop seeded raisins, taking the average all through, will run fully as low, if not lower than old crop seeded. Loose muscatels can be bought for delivery in October and November, 3 crowns at about 6 1-2 to 7c duty and freight paid, though it is highly probable that the present excessively low prices will cease as suddenly as they were made. Apricots are firm and opening prices for jobbers will be equal to about 13 to 15c according to grade. Peaches also are reported as limited, prices ranging from 9 1-2 to 12c, according to grade.

In prunes a considerable number of orders have been placed already and prices will rule about 1-4c below last year's figures. There is little doubt but that many old prunes will be sold as new crop and buyers will have to rely entirely upon the character of the shippers. It will be wise for Canadian buyers to stick to standard brands and well-known responsible shippers.

Over-grading may be expected to be resorted to and 2-crown mixed with 3-crown and 3-crown with 4-crown. Taking the California market on the whole it offers very favorable inducements to the Canadian trade.

In California canned goods, generally speaking, prices are somewhat higher than last year, the advance in peaches being the most striking on account of the scarcity of lemon clings. Orders for canned goods are reported as being about the same as last season.

NECESSITY FOR KEEPING BOOKS.

AN important amendment has been made to the law regarding fraudulent debtors, which has just received the signature of the Governor-General in Council.

It provides for the imposition of a fine of eight hundred dollars and one year's imprisonment on any person who, being a trader and indebted to an amount exceeding one thousand dollars, is unable to pay his creditors in full and has not, for five years next before such inability, kept such books of account as, according to the usual course of any trade or business in which he may have been engaged, are necessary to exhibit or explain his transactions, uuless he be able to account for his losses to the satisfaction of the court or judge and to show that the absence of such books was not intended to defraud his creditors.

In other words, the Act shows the necessity of keeping books of account of sufficient clearness of detail to give a proper explanation of the course of any business.

A TITLED BILLHEAD.

Billheads bearing the names of titled men are so rare in Canada as to be a matter of note. In fact there is probably only one man in the Dominion who makes use of such a billhead, and that is Sir William C. Macdonald, of Montreal, the great tobacco manufacturer. In England, on the other hand, firm names are frequently seen bearing the names of men of title. There the conferring of a title is looked upon as an appropriate way of recognizing a man's prowess in business.

CHANGE IN SELLING TERMS.

The retail grocery trade of the Province of Quebec will be interested in proceedings taken by the wholesale grocers of Quebec at the last meeting of the executive of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild. With the object of rejuvenating trade, and after hearing reports from experts on the subject, as well as the advice of a number of the leading Quebec grocers, the Quebec section of the guild decided unanimously to sell all groceries, wines and liquors, with the exception of teas, on a basis of 30 days' net, or one per cent. 10 days.

It is anticipated that the new arrangement will profit the grocery trade generally. A leading wholesale grocer who attended the executive meeting in Montreal, when questioned by The Grocer, said the whole thing had been brought about by one man, who at the risk of personal sacrifice compelled the majority to fall into line.

It is thought that a similar scheme will be adopted by the wholesale trade of Ontario, it being manifestly an advantage where as high a percentage as 75 of the goods sold is on a basis of 30 days' net.

DEFECTIVE FRUIT JARS AND LAMP CHIMNEYS.

A CORRESPONDENT in the Montreal Herald this week calls attention to a complaint of the quality of fruit jars. He states that a close examination will show that a jar on which the rubber ring is laid will reveal two little ridges, one on each side. These are mould marks, due to badly fitting moulds, or carelessness in making the jar. It is claimed that when the fruit is put in and the top screwed down, there will be a leak at these mould marks. He also claims a defect in the glass tops, stating that a roughness on the top tears the rubber ring.

He also calls attention to poor lamp chimneys, the principal fault being found with the fact that they are not evenly finished, and would not stand if placed on a perfectly smooth table, or counter, and when put on the lamp cause the light to flicker and smoke the chimney, from naturally improper combustion.

In conclusion he writes as follows: "It is a pity that manufacturing concerns that are granted protection, as against imported articles, cannot be compelled to turn out a better quality of goods. Our Government should have the power to admit goods free of duty when it is shown that our manufacturers are taking advantage of the tariff to produce inferior goods."

A representative of The Grocer called upon the John L. Cassidy Co., Limited, and Barnard & Holland, two leading crockery and lamp goods houses in Montreal. Mr. Boyle of the former company stated that the complaint, as far as their house was concerned, was a new one, and added that during the past few years they had not heard of a single fault in connection with the jars handled by them. The same also applied to lamp chimneys. In company with the representative of The Grocer, an examination was made of their stock, and it was found that the jars were as stated, perfect in every respect. Mr. Boyle very appropriately remarked that if there was any complaint their travelers would certainly have heard of it before this.

Canadian manufacturers have every facility and experience in turning out jars equal to those imported. The only reason for complaint on the part of the Herald's correspondent would appear in the fact that possibly he has had passed off on him, either a cheap lot of culled goods, or secured some very old stock.

Mr. Barnard, of Barnard & Holland, stated that they did not make a specialty of handling fruit jars, and also said that from his personal experience he had found no reason to complain of Canadian manufacture.

The writer of the letter, from his concluding paragraph, is evidently a representative of some American, or other foreign concern, undoubtedly imbued, from business reasons, with free trade ideas.

The Grocer would be pleased to have those interested, throughout the country, favor it with their views on this question. If there should be any cause for complaint the attention of the Canadian manufacturers of fruit jars and lamp chimneys will be called to the matter.

The late Mr. D. J. Kelly.

DEMISE OF MR. D. J. KELLY.

As The Grocer was going to press last week a message was received announcing the sudden death of Mr. D. J. Kelly, at Ponoka, Alberta, on July 19. Mr. Kelly was a comparatively young man, being only 35 years of age, and until last July had spent practically his whole life in the grocery trade of Toronto. When a mere youth he entered the firm of T. Kinnear & Co., wholesale grocers, where he served an apprenticeship of five years. In 1890 the present retail grocery firm of Kelly Bros., at 90 Queen street east, was started with Messrs. D. J. and H. D. Kelly as partners. Mr. Kelly continued in business with his brother until last Summer, when, on account of ill health, he was compelled to seek a drier climate. Moving to Alberta he bought and stocked a large ranch. From time to time encouraging messages were received by eastern friends of Mr. Kelly's improving health and prosperity in business, and on this account the news of his death came as all the greater shock.

Mr. Kelly was president of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association in 1901, the year in which the association voted down trading stamps and secured early closing, but before and since, up to the time of his removal from Toronto, he was considered one of the most active and influential members of the association. Mr. Kelly was also past master of Orient Masonic Lodge, Toronto, a member of McKinley Orange Lodge, and prominent in A. O. U. W. circles. He took active interest in athletics, having served on the racing board of the C. W. A. for years. He was also a member of the Atheneum and Ramblers' Clubs.

The funeral was held from the residence of his brother, 44 St. James avenue, Toronto, on Tuesday, July 26th, to Mount Pleasant cemetery.

IMPORTANT VISITORS COMING.

At the annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, to be held in September next in Montreal, many distinguished visitors will attend. Among these will be the Hon. A. B. Morine, and Sir Robt. Bond, of Newfoundland. It has been officially stated that the mission of these visitors will be to discuss with the business men of Canada the question of confederation with the Dominion. For years the officials of the association have watched the development of trade between Canada and Newfoundland. In all their workings they had in view a still higher purpose, namely, the rounding out of confederation by bringing Newfoundland into the Dominion. It is firmly believed that the time now is opportune for bringing in Britain's oldest colony. Much enthusiasm has been created in commercial circles by the announcement of these facts, and the final outcome of the conference will be waited for anxiously all over Canada.

Another feature of the convention will be the visit of Hon. R. H. McCarthy, Comptroller of Customs of Trinidad, who has been specially invited. His visit will create a better trade understanding between Canada and the West Indies, and it is hoped it will result in the formation and passing of a reciprocity treaty between Canada and the islands. Following this consummation, so much to be wished, it is likely that a modern steamship service will be immediately inaugurated between Canada and the Indies, and it is said that the Elder-Dempster Co. will be only too willing to talk over the matter with the Canadian representatives.

Annual Outing of Toronto Retail Grocers.

NIAGARA FALLS AND BUFFALO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1904.

AT the outset The Grocer wishes to congratulate the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association on the huge success of their annual Summer excursion to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, on Wednesday of this week, without a doubt the most enjoyable excursion that has gone out of Toronto this season. The retail grocers have now held eighteen of these outings, each seemingly eclipsing the one before it. That of Wednesday, July 27, 1904, however, must be considered in a class by itself, according to the verdict of over 750 holiday seekers, grocers and their friends, who were enthusiastic and even demonstrative, which is saying a great deal for a sedate Canadian grocer, over the jolly time provided for them by the F. W. Johnston, President, Toronto Retail Grocers' Association.

Toronto association. Much credit is due to the committee for the admirable way in which they handled the big crowd. The stalwart form of President Johnston was to be seen everywhere and all the time, except for a brief period after Buffalo was reached, strange to say, looking after the comfort of his guests. It was like a big at home instead of an excursion, where every one seemed to know everyone else. Some one on the boat was heard to say, "Why that big man shows quite as much interest in the crowd as if he were the mother of a brood of chickens." Secretary Nettlefield ably assisted the "big man" in his arduous task, and it is in no small measure due to the indefatigable efforts of this "duo" that the day went with such eclat.

The excursion committee was composed as follows :

F. W. Johnston, president.
H. Kelly, vice-president.
J. T. Schoales, treasurer.
E. B. Nettlefield, secretary.
R. B. Snow, D. Bell, B. Panter,
R. W. Davies, F. Thorne,
R. VanLoon, T. Clark.

The excursion left Yonge street at 7.30 a .m., by the Niagara Navigation Co.'s boat Chippewa, arriving at Niagara-on-the-Lake at about 10 o'clock, after a delightful sail across the lake. By the time this stage was reached the party had become gay and resplendent with badges of all kinds and colors, prominent among them "Grocer" souvenir badges of white silk embossed in blue. The latter were in particular demand among the ladies—because they were so artistic, as many of the fair damsels remarked. That every grocer wore one goes without saying, but the small boy, by fair means or foul, succeeded in obtaining whole strings of them, which he proudly pinned on his diminutive form wherever a pin would stick.

At Niagara-on-the-Lake the party separated, about 250 taking the Gorge route to the Falls, while full 500 boarded the Special Michigan Central train for Buffalo. For the benefit of special friends of the grocers it may be remarked that this train was a whopper, consisting of 10 cars, every one filled to its utmost capacity. By the time Buffalo was reached the pangs of hunger were beginning to gnaw pretty badly, and no one lost a moment in making Statler's restaurant in the big Ellicott square building, Main street. Here a delightful table d' hote dinner was expeditiously served to 500 Canadian appetites.

About 2 o'clock the crowd was again "rounded up." It may be mentioned that a number of the grocers were missing at first, and that they were located only after diligent search. The event of the day was a tally-ho ride through Delaware avenue, North street, and the other principal residential sections, the park and Forest Lawn Cemeteries. At special points of interest the drivers stopped and allowed the sight-seers to dismount and inspect critically to their heart's content. One is inclined to wonder how other visitors to Buffalo on Wednesday made out, since there isn't the slightest doubt but that the grocers took up the majority of available conveyances.

Buffalonians evidently appreciated the grocers' visit. At any rate the evening dailies had leaders on "An Interesting Event," welcoming the retail grocers of Toronto to their city, and hoping they might be sufficiently well impressed to come again soon. They were not far wrong, either, when they said the Toronto grocers numbered ten big trainloads. About every other man on Main street for blocks around the Ellicott square building Wednesday wore a grocer's badge. When asked their opinion of Buffalo, the grocers were unanimous in their praise of the big city. They were gracious, however, as only grocers know how to be, and refrained from instituting comparisons, although they knew they might have, and not unfairly either.

The coach drive terminated at about 5.30 p. m., giving the excursionists time to catch the 6.30 train, which connected at 8.30 with the Chicora at Niagara-on-the-Lake. En route a goodly number of stragglers were picked up. From all appearances the grocers must have pretty well populated the whole Niagara and Buffalo District for the day. A sail of two and a half hours brought the Toronto retail grocers to the Yonge street wharf at about 11 o'clock. Tired enough every mother's son of them was to be sure, but tired because they had crammed into one day what pleasure seekers usually are content to do in two. Not a complaint or grumble was heard the whole day through, and what better evidence could there be that everybody had a good time? Of course it would be a libel on the Toronto grocers to presume that a kicker could be found among them, and even if there had happened to be on Wednesday he would have been converted within ten minutes after leaving Toronto. The Toronto retail grocers are all right, and the best thing of all is that hundreds of Toronto citizens who were ignorant before, now have experimental knowledge of the fact.

TRAVELERS' HOLIDAYS.

According to a leading Ontario wholesale grocer the travelers' holidays, which run as usual during the first two weeks of August are a boon to all concerned. He trusts that all conerned will look at it in the same way. An odd house here and there intend sending out men; if such be the case, it is to be hoped that they will receive the same treatment that some of these fellows had meted out to them last year.

Mr. H. P. Eckardt of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, is spending his holidays at Sans-Souci Hotel, Georgian Bay.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 28.

Groceries.

LITTLE occasion has been given the big houses for complaint this season regarding dullness. From all the big markets east and west the news comes that Montreal houses are selling immense quantities of goods. Distant orders are numerous and things are looking well. Sugar has again absorbed full interest in commercial circles and advanced another five cents. This takes effect in Ontario, Quebec and the Northwest while in the Maritime Provinces an advance of ten cents has been made. Sugar is certainly getting stronger, too, and with the fruit season at its height and the excellent demand for sugar of all kinds generally the chances are that sugar will tend to rise further. There is a scarcity of Carolina rice on spot and sago is also scarce and dear. Cloves have held the high rate of 20 to 22c and as the next year's stock is not available until January the statisucal position of cloves is strong. Canary seed is strong at 5 and 5 1-2c and the Turkish supplies being limited, there may be some interest later. Sago is selling at 4 1-2 to 5c. Molasses is rigidly strong and at 28c has held good demand for the week. All kinds of Barbadoes molasses is very firm. In canned goods the same firmness has been maintained and tomatoes and corn have not relaxed any on their attitude of some time ago. The receipts of green fruits have been excessive and the big dealers are doing a fine business. Raspberries have come in so freely that a drop in the price has taken place and 10 and 11 cents are the prices. In vegetables considerable activity has been noted and green peas have dropped in price from 50 to 25c for a 12 qt. bushel basket. Green cabbages are selling at 70c a dozen head, being a drop of five cents. Green house water cress is selling for 30c, an advance of five cents. Home grown cauliflowers have brought as high as $2 a dozen. Fish of all kinds are scarce and the trade at this time is dull owing to the change of seasons being at hand. Gaspe salmon is still firm at its old price, 17c, and halibut is somewhat easier. Country produce of all kinds has sold well. Eggs are keeping strong and the prices keep up well for the time of year: quality has improved in some of the eggs arriving lately. Collections are good

SUGAR.

Still another advance of five cents has greeted the public in refined sugar. This makes granulated sell at the remarkable price of $4 50. However, those who have been watching the markets are in no manner surprised at the fluctuations, as they have been long since anticipated. In fact it is thought that before this week is out an advance of another five cents may be recorded The weather generally is seasonable for a large consumption of sugar and the fine fruit crop will simply accentuate this situation. SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

With Barbadoes molasses a cent higher, and that being the high price of 29c, molasses a cent higher than last week and that being the high price of 29c, things look very well for molasses dealers everywhere in the east. The strong position is no longer doubted and the big dealers, who were unprepared for the advance, do not feel pleased with the condition of the market. No corner has been held. It has been just a natural outcome of a peculiar occurrence which was quoted in The Grocer last week. It was that the English and Madeira markets, which heretofore took scarcely anything from the Islands, have stepped in this season and purchased over 6,000 puncheons. We quote:

COFFEE.

There is still a confirmed feeling in the coffee market that we shall see much higher prices in the Fall. The bears are reporting that a very large visible supply is the best argument possible for them and that the statements about damaged crops are all premature and that we shall have a very large crop similar to that of 1900 when similar forebodings were current regarding the then growing crop. The bullish feeling is on the other hand pretty well backed up. They claim that the crop indications are anything but favorable and the stocks in the country of production are about exhausted. Here are the best points from both sides as furnished by an authority like Frederick J. West:

Bull Points—For the last three years trees have been weakened or destroyed by too much rain, frost or drouth.

Owing to low prices obtained, many plantations have been neglected, being unprofitable. Many imported laborers have left Brazil owing to inability to secure payment of wages; for the same reason.

Recent caples from reliable Santos houses state harvesting of present crop impeded by wet weather; that the growing crop is damaged by severe frosts; that the quality of the new crop will be below the average as to size of bean, and inferior roasters.

For the first time in several years, the maximum estimates for the crop of 1904-1905 are below consumption. On and after July 1st, the world's visible supply is expected to show substantial decrease each month. The quality of the present very large visible supply is largely poor roasters and of grades above 3's, which are hardly practicable from the roasters' point of view.

The present low price of 7 1-4c for Rio 7s as compared with previous years and with record high price of 21c. The wide public interest in the article as an investment or for speculation; the confidence which financial interests have in the article as collateral security, and the comparatively small stocks held by distributors in the interior, they having taken but small supplies since February 1st. Small stocks carried by retailers, and their ability to absorb a large quantity of the article. The large demand which appears when Santos 3s reach 8 1-4c.

Europe is buying freely at prices above our market.

Bear Points—December options are 250 points above same date 1903. Rio 7s are 7 1-4c as compared with 5 3-4c same date last year. Largest visible supply in the history of the coffee trade.

Recent cables relative to harvesting the present, and prospects of the growing crop, premature; too early to secure reliable information.

The most powerful interests in the coffee trade are opposed to an advance at the present moment, and believe a considerable advance would be unfortunate for the trade at the moment. This is not the season of the year for a considerable advance.

The present buying is principally by interests outside of the coffee trade. The cables of crop damaged by wet weather and frosts are similar to cables received relative to the growing crop in 1900; this crop yielded 15,500,000 bags of Brazils. The bears say that frost in May and June is good for the growing crop and does no harm to the crop being harvested. We quote:

TEA.

A better tone is prevailing in tea at the Colombo auctions, and a more general demand. The quality however, in many cases, is disappointing, being somewhat inferior in appearance, but in spite of this, prices are well maintained. There is more activity in greens, chiefly due to the smaller quantity offered, and probably on account of the anticipated shortage, this season, owing to several large estates being reverted to blacks.

The Calcutta market is without much alteration; common kinds, though showing a tendency to an easiness, maintained previous rates.

There have been a few parcels of new Japan teas sold locally the past week on actual samples, but outside of this the market remains about the same.

CANNED GOODS

The condition at present of all kinds of canned goods is strong and interesting. New pack stock of peas, blueberries and small fruits is coming in freely and the demand is better than it was last year at this time. Tomatoes and corn are the strongest two of the old stock and corn is remarkably scarce. Canned meats have strengthened a little and there is a good demand for all kinds of tasty productions. Canned fish are attracting a good deal of attention with salmon as the leader. Holders of old stock salmon are lucky, for good prices can be obtained for it any day. The run on fresh fruits of all kinds has affected the fruit in preserves, etc., but not so much as in former years. California canned fruit is in excellent demand and is selling freely. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Everything is reported lively in the green fruit business. Plenty of arrivals and good demand are the two requisites for good trade. Raspberries have been piling up in immense quantities and hence they have dropped away down to 10 and 11c. Tennessee tomatoes have dropped from a dollar down to 80c and are in good demand. Limes have dropped from $1.25 per 100 to $1, and this was explained by abundance of supplies. Jersey tomatoes are away down to $1.25 per crate and they were quoted only last week at $2.25 to $2.50. Bartlett pears are down to $3 and new potatoes are selling freely at $3.50 per bbl. We quote:

Fish.

This is the time of the year when all kinds of fish are scarce and, as it is what they call between seasons, no one is surprised. Demand has been fairly good for the popular varieties and the Gaspe salmon has held its price of 17c all the week; halibut has dropped a cent owing to the abundant supplies while dore and some other kindred fish have stiffened a little owing to the shortage. Country Produce.

EGGS.

A good solid price is still well maintained for eggs. Consumption has been slightly curtailed by the warm weather but the prices are still strong. The demand seems to be for small lots and keeps about steady. Straight gathered stock sold at 15 to 15 1-2c, candled at 17c and the seconds keep at 12 to 12 1-2c per dozen.

BEANS.

The bean market continues slow. In a jobbing way, choice primes were sold at $1.35 to $1.40 a bushel, while car lots of choice primes were quoted at $1.30, and primes at $1.25 per bushel.

HONEY.

The consumption of honey is always very small at this time of the year, and the market remains unchanged. White clover is quoted at 13 1-2 to 14c. Extracted white clover remains at 8 1-2 to 9c in 10 lb. tins, and 7 to 7 1-2c in 300 lb. kegs. Buckwheat remains at 6 and 7c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

No change has taken place in maple products. We quote:

POTATOES.

The old stock is still selling at about 60c a bag and new stock is bringing from $1.50 to $3 while barrels are selling at $3.50.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Considerable interest is still being taken in flour, but the prices refuse to change to suit either the western or eastern millers. Flour, nevertheless, is interesting as a jump is expected any minute. We quote:

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Groceries.

Toronto, July 28, 1904.

WHOLESALE grocers claim that July trade has been quite up to the average, and a seasonable demand is reported in all lines, particularly in sugar and canned goods. It is expected that during the next two weeks there will be more or less of a lull as the travelers will be off on their annual fortnightly outing. Sugar is the feature of the week, a rise of 5c per hundred lbs. having taken place since last report. Howell and Arbuckle advanced prices, and owing to the strong statistical position of sugar at the present time the Canadian refined market advanced in sympathy. Canned goods remain firm and active; new pack peas have already been delivered on the market. Coffees and syrups and molasses remain quiet, as well as tea, in the latter of which Ceylons, Indians, and Japans are showing good quality. Spices exhibit a firmer tendency. Foreign dried fruits are brightening; new crop California seeded raisins show a decline since the opening prices of last week. Sales of peanuts are reported to have been considerably above the average during the week under review.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods continue to lead along with sugar in the grocery trade. Business for the week is reported to be surprisingly good, particularly in canned fish and vegetables. New pack canned vegetables are gradually making their way on the market, new canned peas having been delivered during the week. The canned meat trade is also a big item at this season of the year. The official reports on chemical analyses of canned fruits, jams and jellies ought to be a warning to the Canadian manufacturer, since nearly 75 per cent. of samples collected indiscriminately on the Canadian market were found to contain adulteratives. SUGAR

The market continues very firm and in local refined we have to record an advance of 5c per cwt. all round, which came into effect at noon on Monday, the 25th inst. This has greatly stimulated the demand and there has been considerable new business done in addition to heavy withdrawals under existing contracts. The advance locally was in sympathy with conditions in New York, inst. On Monday Arbuckle advanced his continued shadings on Saturday, 23rd inst. On Monday Arbuckle advanced his price 5c per cwt. to full list quotations, putting all refiners on the same basis, viz., $4.90 net for standard granulated in barrels. Canadian refined sugars are now firm on basis of $4.50 for Redpath and St. Lawrence, and $4.10 for Acadia and Berlin granulated, all basis f. o. b. Montreal. Yellows are firm at list price of $3.90, f. o. b. Montreal.

In raws the tendency has been towards higher prices, with refiners buyers of centrifugals on basis 2 5/8 c. f. New York for 95 test. Holders, however, are firmer in their ideas and are sellers at 2 19-32 c. f. for 91 test, with some even asking 2 5/8 for 94 test,—all for shipment from Cuba.

The spot market remains quiet with sellers at 1c duty paid for basis 96, and refiners buyers at 1-16 less, leaving the market, as last advised, with basis 96 at the nominal price of 3.94 duty paid.

Europe, after an advance to 9s 9d basis f. o. b. Hamburg, July and August shipment, is quoted fractionally easier at the close and the price remains nominally at 9s 8½d as last advised. With beets held at ⅛ above spot parity for centrifugal sugars, American refiners are for the present withdrawn from European markets. Shipments of recent American purchases are now on the way and we hear of no further freight engagements.

The market in Cuba holds firm and receipts at shipping ports according to latest advices were only 4,000 tons with total stock in the island 122,000 tons as against 295,047 tons this time last year. There are still 5 central factories grinding.

Receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending July 20 were light, say only 20,380 tons, with meltings at full former figure of 40,000 tons, thus reducing stocks to 186,380 tons against 325,285 tons this time last year. The combined stock of United States and Cuba is 308,380 tons, against 620,332 tons last year, a decrease of 311,952 tons.

Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,110,380 tons against 2,535,741 tons last year, a decrease of 425,361 tons. It will be observed that this deficiency is increasing heavily week by week, which is only natural during this period of large consumption and almost no production.

European advices report the weather unfavorable for growing crops with an unusual drought, especially in Germany, where the waters of the rivers are said to be at the lowest level for many years. Reports from France indicate a poor stand of beets, said by some to be owing to cool nights and by others to the short-sighted policy of the farmers, who have been economizing in fertilizers.

watermelons. The California fruit market is active, a large number of weekly car shipments being received regularly. This market will last until about September. California Bartlett pears are cheaper, also blueberries. The raspberry season is almost on the wane, and another ten days is likely to see the end of it. The crop is about an average one but prices have so far ruled higher than usual. Stocks are arriving from Clarkson, Oakville, and Burlington, and show good quality. Blackberries are on the market for the first time this week. Our quotations are as follows:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The grain market continues good, the demand is stronger and trade moves briskly along. Oats are firmer. Manitoba Northern No. 1 has advanced 1c, while Nos. 2 and 3 have each advanced 2c; otherwise the prices are unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

THE RECENT TEA CONTEST.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER:

Since the investigation made by Messrs. Clarkson & Cross of our books, the books of Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt and the books of the "Blue Ribbon" Tea Co., of Toronto, and the decision given by Messrs. Clarkson & Cross that we sold in Canada in 1903, 419,141 lbs. more "Salada" tea than was sold of "Blue Ribbon" tea, Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt over their own signature have published the following: "Whilst the issue left to the decision of Messrs. Clarkson & Cross was decided against us owing to Messrs. Clarkson & Cross feeling bound by the terms of the submission to exclude large quantities of our teas, etc., etc."

We want to distinctly state that this is not so, that it is an attempt to convey a wrong impression. Messrs. Clarkson & Cross left nothing whatever out of consideration that was involved in the issue of Messrs. Galts' challenge, that Messrs. Galt have not disputed, to Messrs. Clarkson & Cross nor to us, the decision, but the money was paid over without a word, and to now make such an assertion as the above we consider most unsportsmanlike. Messrs. Galt should accept their defeat in the way any firm of gentlemen would accept it, and if they have other challenges to issue, we are prepared to entertain them. If they have not they will gain nothing by making such assertions as the above.

NEW CATSUP FLAVOR.

Parke & Parke, Hamilton, are putting on the market a new catsup flavor which they have pleasure in recommending to the trade at this season of the year, which is the season par excellence for catsup-making. Parke & Parke claim for their catsup flavor that catsup made with it will not sour, and that the natural flavor of catsup is thereby much enhanced.

WHO WANTS A HALIFAX AGENT?

A business man in Halifax, who is in close touch with the trade, is in a position to look after the interests of a few firms, handling their goods on commission. Address the editor of The Canadian Grocer for further information.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Buyers of valencia raisins should communicate with H. P. Eckardt & Co.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, has just received shipment of 88 half chests fine Sun Dried Fannings, beautiful large leaf, which he is offering at 8 1-2c.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling Carlo Niemack's pure olive oil. It is the finest quality.

Porto Rico molasses may be had from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

PERSONAL MENTION.

The Grocer office, Montreal, was favored with a call this week from Mr. A. W. Caldwell, representing Geo. Sparrow & Co., Toronto. Mr. Caldwell was on a business trip to Montreal and Ottawa.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Use Your Own Window.

WITH their window space at their disposal to use as they please, the merchant is too apt to place too low an estimate on its value. Perhaps from a sense of its object, he uses some endeavor to fill the space with the goods he is selling, or it may be from the knowledge that his competitors are doing so. He may dress his window simply because it is there and must be filled, or he may have some faith in its selling powers. But whatever his reason, he too often treats it in a half-hearted way, as though it was a disagreeable necessity rather than a valuable opportunity.

A canned goods display, shown by Geo. Hasenflug, Waterloo, Ont.

But if circus is coming to town, or the theatre is engaged for the week, or the church is giving a social, or a lacrosse match is coming off, those who have the advertising of the event to look after are not slow to show how great a value they attach to a couple of square feet of the window space. They know that there is scarcely any method of advertising that is so effective as these few feet they can secure from the local merchants. Almost the first thing they do is to solicit the stores for their permission to post up a few dodgers or bills that tell when and where the event occurs, and a few details in connection with it. They know that there is no spot in town more likely to attract the eyes of the citizens than the show window.

The inconsiderable value placed on the window by the merchant is taken advantage of by these advertising agents, and in most cases they find it of little difficulty to obtain the desired space, providing it is not too large, and the event of such a nature as to interest the merchant himself. The bribe offered is almost always a free ticket in the case of a circus or play, but in local entertainments and games, there is nothing given at all, the agent counting upon the storekeeper's unwillingness to refuse the insertion of such a bill. In fact the poor merchant is in such cases usually held up for a few tickets at the same time.

If the merchant starts to allow this setting up of advertising bills and posters in his window, he will, in some towns, find that he is seldom without one or two defacing his store front. There are many who allow only the insertion of announcements of events of particular local interest, such as a church entertainment or a game, and this is much to be preferred to a promiscuous permission, where a choir concert and a melodrama are advertised side by side. But the only safe method is to forbid the placing of a bill or dodger of any kind. The window belongs to the merchant and is his most useful advertisement, accordingly it should not be sold at any price, nor given away for any cause. By establishing the precedent of refusing all advertising matter the annoyance of petitioners for a small space will soon be stopped.

And one of the most serious objections to this disposal of the window space is the losing of caste which results to any store that allows it. No first-class place of business in any town or city will hesitate to refuse any and every agent that calls, for they are well aware of the "cheap impression" given by a window filled with bills. A customer is going to deal where business is business, and where interest in business is displayed at every turn. He will trade where an effort to obtain his trade is apparent, and where events outside of the business circle of the store are kept outside. A store that retains its window space for the purpose for which it was built, will have far greater prestige among the residents of the town than the one that thinks so little of this space that he is willing to dispose of it to any advertising agent that asks for it.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special Correspondence of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Vancouver, B. C., July 21, 1904.

THERE is a quietness in the general market conditions here just at present, the cause of which is difficult to assign. The weather has been very warm and, while possibly this may have a little to do with it, general activity should not be lessened on that account to any great degree. The only thing that would really affect the market is the depression in the lumber industry. There is no denying the fact that immediately business is poor in this industry, it is felt generally. Particularly does this affect business when the loggers are not operating. There is a great trade done in supplying the camps tributary to Vancouver, but there is little doing in them this Summer, and the prospect is that the depression will continue.

Fruits are moving briskly. Local stocks are cleaning up. Cherries are scarce, while raspberries are plentiful at $1.50 to $1.75 a crate. Red and black currants are scarce, and sell from 6 to 8c per lb.

California fruit is arriving in fine condition, owing to the very good refrigerator car service. Watermelons are now well on the market and sell from $30 to $40 per hundred, with the demand good; peaches, $1.25, a slight reduction from last week; plums, $1.50 to $1.75; pears, $2.25 to $2.50, a reduction of 25c; canteloupes, Fresno, $3 per crate, and Cochillas, $5,25 per crate. The scarcity of oranges is causing an advance in price, and valencias are now at $4.

The failure of the local crop of plums is creating a very good demand for the California product, which is now on the market and of excellent quality.

In apricots there is a short crop and heavy demand this season, and consequently the prices are very high, especially in California. In the Wenatchee Valley, in eastern Washington, the crop has been better. The apricots grown there are of very fine quality, large in size and excellent for preserving. Small shipments of these have been received during the past week or two, and the first carload is due here to-day.

No changes worthy of mention have occurred in general groceries, with the exception of a rise in the price of eggs to 24c. Fresh eggs are worth 30c.

Dawson advices of the 8th instant show a steady market, now that Summer shipments have reached there. The first peaches are on the market in that distant part, and are selling at $4.50 a box; strawberries, 75c and $1 per box; rhubarb, 25c to 35c per lb.; bananas, $12 a bunch. The fresh apples and onions they have on that market now are all from Tasmania, Australia.

* * *

Mr. R. M. Palmer, freight rates commissioner of the Provincial Government, and Mr. W. J. Brandrith, secretary of the B. C. Fruit Growers' Association, have left for Winnipeg. They have charge of the fruit exhibit from this province, which consists mainly of this season's cherries and strawberries, and which cannot be surpassed in any way by the product of any other country. In fact, the fruit in these lines this year is simply perfect. After the exhibition at Winnipeg, the jars will be sent to London, England, where they will be placed on view in the office of the agent-general.

Turtle soup and turtle jelly may soon be on the market here, the importations to be made from Japan. A short time ago Richard Chester, of Tanegashima, Kagoshimaken, Japan, was in Vancouver, and was making inquiries here concerning the demand for these products. In a letter written subsequent to his return to Japan, he noted that he was about to establish turtle ponds, and at the time of writing his men were at Tokio. In Great Britain, turtle soup sells for $1.75 for 1½ lb. tins, and $1.25 for 1 lb. tins, while turtle jelly made from parts not suitable for soup, is worth 60c a lb. in bottles.

There is general dissatisfaction in the interior over the new rates recently levied by the C. P. R., which line has a monopoly of the traffic so far. An idea of the condition of things in Sandon may be imagined by a couple of recent transactions. When the advance was announced it was discovered that the Great Northern increase, not quite so heavy, would not come into effect for a day or two later, and though that railway is not so convenient, the business men of that town immediately ordered several cars of goods from Vancouver, billed out at the old rate. The C. P. R. made a change back to common points as soon as it heard of this action, but was too late, and the result will be that the Great Northern will likely receive most of the merchant trade from Sandon.

Potatoes were scarce there a week or two ago, and they were only obtainable in Enderby or Vernon. Under the new schedule the rate from these towns to Sandon was $15.40 and $16.20 per ton, so high that it startled even those people in the interior mining camps who are accustomed to pretty high figures.

Revelstoke, too, is kicking; in fact most of the towns. The average increase on fourth class freights is 50 per cent., and on sugar alone $4.60 a ton. Evidence in the matter is being prepared for presentation to the railway commission.

Imports of sugar, raw material for the refinery here, have been made of late. The Kosmos liner Luxor brought in 1,200 tons from Peru, and was followed by the steamer Crusader, 2,774 tons, from Java, the latter arriving this week.

The cargo manifest of the Australia liner showed large lines of Australian products, including another shipment of maize. It was on the liner previous that the maize arrived which was ordered to be sent back because of being infested with the weevil. The consignment was sold before arrival.

While provisions remain unchanged, a general rise in the price of cured meats was being looked for because of the strike among the meat packers in Chicago. Now that a settlement is in sight it is not expected this will take place.

Prices in flour, grain and feed will not likely rule higher than at present. The dry weather may affect the hay crop on the high land, but in swampy places grass will be cut where it is usually impossible in ordinary seasons. Prices of all brands of flour show a slight reduction, which may, perhaps, be accounted for by the good crop prospects in the Territories and Manitoba.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., July 25, 1904.

BUSINESS is quite good. The interest of the week has been in California fruits. Prices have been settled much earlier than usual and are very low. The loose muscatels are lower than for some years, and the seeded are offered at a price lower than ever before.

There is some complaint that payments are not satisfactory. The Maritime Board of Trade will meet next month at Moncton. Our local board has already decided on some of the matters they want taken up. Among them are the following: Government ownership of telegraph lines and cables, provision that the full preference to British goods shall only be allowed when such goods are imported via Canadian ports, provision for the weight of canned goods being stamped on the tins, and a motion to the effect that a united effort be made to induce retail dealers to carry at least enough insurance on stock to cover their liability. This is considered most important. There are many cases now where the wholesale man for protection has a policy made payable to himself for at least the amount of his account.

A number of our wholesale men have applied for incorporation as an importing company, with power to carry on general business. The particular object, it is believed, is the handling of the molasses business.

Prices show little change. Cream of tartar is rather easier. In dry fish the price is very high for the season. Perhaps the continued low price of lard is the next important feature of the market.

Oil.

There is an improved consumptive demand for burning oil. The low price tends to free buying for future delivery. In lubricating oil there is a steady sale at even prices. Paint oils are unchanged but linseeds are very firm. Turpentine, on the other hand, seems easier. Cod oil is being received. Prices are somewhat lower.

Salt.

There is a steady sale for Liverpool coarse salt ex store at firm prices. There is none due to arrive for sometime. Liverpool factory filled has but a fair sale. In Canadian fine there is a good business being done.

Canned Goods.

The association have named some prices, including peas and strawberries, the two important lines, and also a large variety of small fruits. Prices are firmly held at quite full figures. The wholesale trade are largely under agreement to sell canned goods at the association price, having the discount for profit. This, it is expected, while not giving a large profit, will prevent the price cuttion of previous years. Salmon are very firm at full figures. Domestic sardines, haddies and kippers are all held at full figures.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are very busy. California plums, peaches, and particularly pears, occupy much attention. Some very good apples begin to arrive. Lemons and oranges are rather higher. Bananas are plentiful. Melons have only a fair sale. Nova Scotia cherries are to hand. Berries have kept at full figures. At this season the fruit men are busy with early vegetables, such as cabbage, squash, etc., received from Boston. Georgia peaches have quite a large sale.

Sugar.

While there has been no further advance, the market is very firm. There are still a few importers outside the guild and quite a little foreign sugar continues to be received.

Molasses.

There are continued receipts of Porto Rico molasses. There is quite a full stock held and full prices are still asked. In Barbadoes the supply is rather short. It is selling well below Porto Rico and there is a steady demand.

Fish.

Dry cod fish are very scarce and high—much higher than usual at this season. Pollock show a light sale but full figures are asked. Few herring have yet been received. Prices are high. So far there is limited inquiry for alewives, of which quite a large stock is held. Fresh salmon season is about over. Halibut are very scarce.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour, while the market is firm there is no change. Feed is quite freely offered. Cornmeal is hardly as firm. Oatmeal seems in a strong position; the high prices have held better than the trade expected. Beans are rather lower and dull. Barley is scarce and shippers have found difficulty to get barrels. Split and blue peas have but a light sale.

Dried Fruits.

The early naming of prices on California fruits, particularly raisins, was a great surprise to the trade, as for some years prices have not been named till late, in fact too late. The great surprise, perhaps, was the low price named on seeded raisins, the lowest in the history of this line. When the low price on old fruit were quoted a short time ago and the trade found they could buy freshly seeded stock for later shipment quite a few were sold. But the price quoted on new choice seeded is a half-cent lower than the price then named. The price is at least two and a half cents below last year. Loose raisins, while quoted low, have been quoted lower, but not for several years. Prunes are still quoted at extremely low prices. Spot business in dried fruit is light. Evaporated apples are scarce and high. Some shipments of French peanuts have been received. The quality is quite satisfactory.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, July 25, 1904.

BUSINESS has been rather quiet of late. All are rejoicing that the strike at Sydney has terminated and that the usual conditions will shortly be restored throughout Cape Breton. The Nova Scotia Government crop report just published indicates a shortage in the hay crop owing to drought, but copious rains have since fallen and the general belief is that the crop will not fall far below the average. The apple crop promises to be very good indeed. The fisheries are yielding good returns, and people along the shores will have plenty of money next Fall and Winter. The outlook is not at all discouraging.

The Maritime Wholesale Grocers' Guild met in Halifax last week, and officers for the current year were elected as follows :

President, Henry G. Bauld, Halifax ; 1st vice-president, Chas. H. Peters, St. John; 2nd vice-president, W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown; secretary, A. C. Pyke, Halifax.

The president was empowered to make an assessment on the provincial guilds in the proportion of 40 per cent. to New Brunswick, 40 per cent. to Nova Scotia, and 20 per cent. to Prince Edward Island. A resolution was passed asking the local banks to cash at par all bank agency cheques presented for deposit by their customers.

It was also decided that all orders for sugar taken after the close of navigation for shipment by water to closed ports at the opening of navigation, shall hereafter be invoiced at the prices ruling on the date of shipment.

The secretary was asked to write the Montreal and Quebec Guilds to secure uniformity in the selling of canned goods. All the local wholesale houses have signed the following :

"We, the undersigned wholesale grocers, agree to sell our stock of canned goods in assorted lots of ten cases and upwards, irrespective of brand, at not less than the list prices of the Canadian Canners, Limited, terms 30 days net. When sold on three months' we agree to add not less than 2½c per doz. to the list prices of the Canadian Canners, Limited.

"On orders for less than ten cases we agree to charge not less than 2½c per dozen over the list of the C. C., Limited, when sold at 30 days' net, and not less than 5c per dozen over the list when sold on 3 months. Three months' prices to be subject to a discount of 2 per cent. if paid for within 30 days."

Prices on canned fruits have been announced. Canned strawberries are 15 to 20c per dozen higher than at last year's opening, and other canned fruits are 10 to 15c higher. Some lines of vegetables have also been priced, but these show little change from last year. Evaporated apples are costing 1¾c more than last month. Molasses is very firm and dealers here think it likely to advance. Some brands of flour are slightly higher than at last report.

* * *

There is some consternation among druggists and others who deal in proprietary articles. The dumping clause affects over 200 articles in the stock of a wholesale drug house, many of which are handled through the country by the grocery trade. A delegation is now in Ottawa to have this class of goods exempted from the dumping clause. Otherwise they will have to retail at a higher price than that printed upon the labels.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, July 23, 1904.

THERE is now quite a noticeable stir on the streets of Winnipeg. The great Dominion Fair is about to open its gates to the public, and the many strangers that are visiting the Chicago of the Northwest will be well rewarded by the numerous and magnificent displays of exhibits which are to be seen within the bounds of this agricultural and industrial exhibition.

Business for the past week has been bright and trade in general is reported by the jobbers as being good and quite up to their expectations.

Sugar—The market is firm and Montreal granulated is quoted at $5.10 in barrels and $5 in sacks; yellows at $4.50; Wallaceburg at $4.95 in barrels and $4.85 in sacks.

Canned Vegetables—The market is firm and prices in all lines are generally well maintained, but the different brands of canned corn are now very scarce and the market quotation is still holding corn at $2.75 a case.

Flour—The market is firm and the flour situation still holds No. 1 patent at $2.45, No. 2 at $2.30, and No. 3 at $1.80.

Rolled Oats—The market is quite firm. 80 lb. sacks are quoted at $2.25; 40 lb. sacks at $2.30; 30 lb. sacks at $2.35; 8 lb. sacks at $2.65, and 6 lb. sacks at $2.85.

Cornmeal—The market is steady and prices firm, quoting cornmeal $1.75 per sack and 90c per ½ sack.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—The market is very firm, but all kinds of evaporated fruits are scarce, more especially evaporated apricots, while evaporated apples are just about off the market and are now quoted at 7¾c per lb.

Green Fruits—The market is a little easier on some lines. Oranges are quoted at $5 a case; lemons $4.75 a case; bananas $2.75 to $3 a bunch; peaches $1.75 a case; pears $4 a case; plums $2.25 a crate; Washington apples $2.50 a box; watermelons $4 to $5 a doz., according to size; raspberries in pints $2.25 a case of 24 quarts; tomatoes, $2 a crate; blueberries 11c a lb.; cucumbers 65c a doz.; rhubarb 2c a lb.; cabbage 3c a lb.; radishes 45c a doz. bunches, and lettuce 35c a doz. bunches.

Canned Fish—The market is now quoting canned fish as follows : 1904 pack salmon, Fraser River and sockeye, $6.75 to $7 per case; cohoes $5.25 to $5.50 a case; humpbacks $3.75 to $4 a case; finnan haddie $4.50 to $4.60 a case; and the 1904 pack lobster will be on the market in the course of a few weeks, and the market will then quote 1 lb. lobster at $3.65 to $3.75 a doz.; ½ lb. lobster $2.65 to $2.75 a doz.; and ¼ lb. lobster at $2.10 to $2.15 a doz.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by John C. Kirkwood, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

THIS question is being continually asked, both by men who are advertisers and by men who have not yet entered the arena of publicity. Some say "yes" without an instant's hesitation; others will say "no," and some others will answer, "We don't know." Experience has provided the answer for many; others never having ventured, have no positive views on the subject.

Does farming pay? Does manufacturing pay? Does merchandising pay? To such questions it will be perceived that there is a double answer—one affirmative, one negative. So is it with the question, does advertising pay? So much depends upon the advertiser; upon his courage, his caution, his sanity, his experience; something depends, too, upon local conditions. The history of advertising abounds with examples of remarkable successes, and likewise of grievous failures.

Advertising is a force in business-building—a subtle force resembling the electric current; in the hands of novices, its employment is fraught with danger; in charge of the trained man, it accomplishes its work surely and safely.

I know of a young man engaged in the wholesale dry goods trade, who three years ago began with $15,000—a bequest from his father's estate. Within this period he has twice been in financial straits, and his known surplus to-day is less than $3,000. I know another young man who began life without a dollar; drove a delivery wagon; served behind a grocery counter; later became a dry goods salesman in a large departmental store; was speedily promoted to an important executive position, and in a year or two was crossing the ocean buying merchandise in the great centres of Britain and Europe. His career was one of steady progress, attended by an ever enlarging income. To-day he has a business, a wholesale business, of his own. Such histories are not rare. The point I make in narrating these contrasted experiences is that it is the man, rather than the business or the opportunity, that makes for success or failure.

So it is with advertising. It pays or does not pay, according to the quality of the individual who directs it. Blind ignorance of its principles and practice is likely to result in waste and loss. Enlightened knowledge of its nature and preparation, supported by good judgment, will make advertising profitable—how profitable depends upon the conditions governing each individual case.

Ramsay's Biscuits

And only a quarter spent it's o'er

Old ideas—We don't sell our name, only a big tin, 2 lbs. Ramsay's Empire Cream Sodas for 25c. All grocers.

A bright writer has said in answering this question, "Does advertising pay?": "Good advertising is news; presented at the right time, in the right place, and in a readable way. Much of the advertising of to-day is put in front of us so that we may by chance stumble over it; shoved at us as street hawkers shove gewgaws in front of passers-by; or so muddled with pictures and type and fantastic designs as to give us eye-strain. Fourteen sizes and styles of type are used to make an impression on people who all their lives are accustomed to reading from type of one size and style at a time. Advertising is necessary not only to the merchant, but to the consumer, and it deserves better treatment. It cannot be done with success "in any old way." Advertising should have ginger and dash and spirit. It shouldn't have to be peddled about to find readers. Good advertising pays; but only when it endorses quality and merit."

Notes.

There is given this week an example of a grocery advertisement of a New York department store. The space devoted to this advertisement is small, but as an example of compact yet satisfying grocery advertising, it is to be commended.

The man who prepared the advertisement for Ramsay's Biscuits is ignorant, one is forced to conclude, of the essentials of effective "copy." Rarely does one come across a more labored and senseless example of advertising. It is intended, doubtless, to be clever, but I venture to say that most people will judge it too puerile. Ramsay's Empire Cream Sodas are surely deserving of more sensible and stronger advertising.

Higher Quality is Our Constant Endeavor.

No food can be too pure, no staple of too high a grade, and no article of household consumption too good for our trade. We sell straight from the producer to the consumer. Not a cent extra profits sticks to anything you buy. That is the reason we outstrip all competition. We have the most economical system, working on the largest scale, for distributing to families the choicest eatables and drinkables. If occasionally an odd package escapes us and falls below our high standard, the purchaser will favor us by returning it. Let us rectify it promptly.

Three of our specials this week—NEW POTATOES, CREAMERY BUTTER and CHEESE—are particularly attractive to housekeepers because of their superior quality. Buying them at the low prices is like finding money for the next three days.

A good introduction, in the form of a general statement, is a good feature from time to time in connection with any firm's advertising,—a sort of declaration of policy, of purpose. Such a statement, if not too long, and if well said, does much good in the line of inspiring confidence.

TESTING A WATER CURTAIN.

CHRISTIE, BROWN & Co., Limited, of Toronto, have just completed putting in a water curtain system on the Frederick street side of their large factory. The curtain protects the five storeys of the building. On Thursday of last week a test was made. A large number of business men who were considering the advisability of putting in such a system were present as well as the representatives of the leading fire insurance companies. The first test was made direct from the city water service by means of a 6-inch hose, and was successful. Each of the five rows of piping threw a good stream. As in case of a big fire the pressure on the water mains would be decreased it was also decided to make a test by having one of the fire engines pump directly into the curtain. This did not prove successful. From the three storeys a good curtain of water was thrown. From the fourth storey pipes scarcely any water was emitted, while from the fifth storey there was none whatever. This was somewhat disappointing to all concerned, but it is expected that with some alterations each range of pipe will be made to work.

It should be explained that while the pressure from the fire engine was five pounds more water than from the water mains direct the diameter of the hose through which the water was forced from the engine was much smaller. Christie, Brown & Co. put in a water curtain system on the south side of their building some time ago.

A GOOD REPORT.

The Duncan Mfg. Co, Montreal, manufacturers of "Chaser Soap," report being very much behind in their orders. The demand in fact has increased to such an extent that they are again compelled to look out for larger premises. This company's profit sharing scheme is an entirely new one and has met with ready acceptance by the trade in the east. They are looking for live representatives in Ontario.

VICTORIA, B. C., MERCHANTS' PICNIC.

On Thursday, July 28th, was held the 3rd annual merchants' picnic, including the grocers, butchers and bakers of Victoria, B. C. The grocers were the first to inaugurate these successful and now much looked for annual outings three years ago. Last year the butchers combined with them, but on this occasion the bakers have decided to fall in line; it is also understood that other trades are looking in the same direction. This necessitated changing the name to merchants' basket picnic.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. McNeill, chief of Fruit Division Commissioners' Branch, Ottawa, is in Toronto this week, offering his services to the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association in connection with their annual Fall meeting.

Mr. W. A. MacKinnon, commercial agent of the Dominion Government in England with headquarters at Bristol, is in Toronto this week for the purpose of consulting with the leading exporters in regard to the extension of Canadian trade in England.

Mr. Valentine Deolloqui of St. John, N. B. has been appointed assistant to Mr. Walter C. Gayden, Montreal agent for Red Rose tea.

Mr. Albert N. Reay, manager for the Force Food Co., Toronto, was in Montreal Tuesday on his way back from the Maritime Provinces where he stated that he had been most successful.

Mr. Archie Snowdon of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, has just returned from what might be called a rattling trip in the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. D. J. Byrne of the firm of Leonnard Bros. leaves this week on an extended business trip to their eastern fishing grounds. Mr. Byrne will be joined at Newfoundland by one of his partners, Mr. Leonard.

The Montreal offices of The Grocer were favored with a call this week by Mr. T. B. Nicholson, representing the Keystone Mfg. Co., Buffalo. Mr. Nicholson, who is an old Toronto boy and an old grocery traveler, having represented the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, and T. Kinnear & Co., has done remarkably well since leaving for the United States.

Mr. Albert Neuberger representing the Preservaline Mfg. Co., New York, was a visitor to the Montreal trade this week.

Mr. Wm. Lamb, Omemee, passed through Montreal last week on his way to Ste. Anne de Beaupre. While here, he was the guest of Mr. Arthur Bryson of the C. P. R. Mr. Harry Lamb, also of Omemee, was another Ste. Anne excursionist.

BORAX IS FOOD.

OF late years the use of borax as a preservative is increasing somewhat. In dairying countries, particularly, the modern butter-maker uses borax freely in the preservation of dairy products. It is well known that in Denmark borax is used extensively in butter. It is largely on account of the pleasing flavor imparted to butter by the boric acid that the Danish article finds favor in England. In view of the fact that boric acid is beginning to take the place of salt to a considerable extent in the preservation of food, the Department of Agriculture in the United States recently arranged for some tests of its use.

Twelve young men at Washington submitted themselves to the test. As the effect of boric acid is not regarded as dangerous, or of a poisonous nature, the American authorities decided that a practical as well as a positive method of ascertaining the results was to practice on the human system. The twelve young men, for a time would use food preserved with salt, and for a time they would eat the food containing borax in varying quantities. The effects upon their systems were carefully noted by experts. Week after week for six months the experiment was tried under various circumstances, in order that the American Agricultural Department would definitely arrive at the effects of boric acid on the human system.

A full report of the experiment on the twelve young men has been submitted for the department's consideration. The report shows that boric acid taken in food is eliminated from the system almost entirely by the kidneys. It is not stated that the drug is directly injurious to the kidneys, but there are obvious reasons for caution in its use. It was found that the long use of the acid, which rarely produces immediate injurious effects, and is not noticeable to the taste, ends in loss of appetite, bad feeling, fullness of the head and stomach trouble. Habitual users of borated food often lose weight. It was further shown by the analysis that a smaller proportion of borated than of natural food is digested and assimilated by the body.

The report does not condemn the use of borax, but points out the need of greater attention to its excessive use. This applies particularly to meat and dairy products. Meats shipped raw and not kept too long may be given a coating of the preservative which prevents germs from affecting the meat. But it should not be allowed to go too far below the surface.

It is thus pointed out that the habitual use of the acid is apt to produce an injurious effect. The drug may not affect a healthy person, but for delicate people and children the safest rule is to exclude it. While the human body may endure considerable quantities of boric acid, without harmful effects, its long usage is liable to produce injury to a delicate system.

EFFECT OF WAR ON SUGAR VALUES.

"It is an ill wind that blows nobody good" s an old saying and it seems that even the war in the Far East is not without beneficial blasts. In particular it is doing a good turn for the beet-sugar growers of Europe. Hitherto, about 300,000 Poles have been accustomed to flock into the German beet fields every spring to work, but owing to the war Russia has announced its intention rigidly to enforce the police regulations along the Russian frontier; so this year, at least, these Poles will be compelled to stay at home—perhaps to be sent to Manchuria to fight for the Czar, or otherwise to earn money enough to pay the heavy war taxes. It cannot be thought that the good wind is blowing in the direction of these Poles. No, it is all for the German laborers, whose wages will now go up in a lively fashion owing to the absence of the Poles, and the consequent dearth of hands. It is thought, too, that the scarcity of help will be so great that it will compel beet-growers to reduce their acreage. This again will reduce the yield and enhance prices. So it appears that the Russo-Japanese war may blow good to the German laborer, and, let us not forget, to the British West India sugar producers. For if it reduces the European beet acreage, it will likely mean a better market for the sugar production of the British West Indies.—Exchange.

COMPANIES INCORPORATED.

THE Canadian United Milling Co., Montreal, have been incorporated to carry on a flour, cement and sawmilling business. The share capital is $150,000 and provisional directors are H. J. Pidgeon, Grand Cascapedia, Que.; C. Broudeis, W. A. Weir, E. A. Schmidt, D. Mahaffy and J. B. Vosbourgh, of Montreal, and J. Earle, of Lacuhte, Que.

CROCKERY DEPARTMENT.

Open Stock Patterns.

"MY experience with open-stock patterns," commented the uptown buyer, as he called the writer's attention to a table heavily laden with these goods, "has taught me that careful judgment in selecting must be exercised. Too many buyers, carried away by the increasing popularity of open-stock lines, choose patterns with little or no consideration of the present or future requirements of their patrons. They seem to think that any thing in open stock will move, and if disappointed they sweepingly denounce the selling proclivities of the patterns in general.

"In ordering an open-stock line the buyer should remember that he is virtually inaugurating an endless chain of china. The moment he or his assistants make a sale, that pattern becomes a permanent adjunct of his display. He must be ever afterwards prepared to replace a missing or damaged piece of that particular set, no matter if it has been dignified by but one order. It can be readily seen, therefore, how easily a buyer might burden himself with a lot of 'dead stock' merely to preserve an open stock pledge with some patrons who had taken kindly to slow-selling lines.

"Do you see that green border pattern over there?" the buyer inquired, pointing out a neat, tasteful design. "Yes, that's it. Well, I thought I had a bad one in that pattern for a long time. Why, it actually lay around this department for several months before any one ordered it. About that time I had begun to feel rather fearful of its future, and was seriously entertaining the idea of taking it away from my open stock assortment. When I at last heard of the woman visitor who had honored it with the initial order I felt rather regretful, for I had been convinced that I would be forced to maintain possession of it for the sole reason of fulfilling our contract with that lone buyer. But after a time some one else condescended to order it, and later others came along, until now it is the best seller among all my open-stock lines.

"That one instance," he explained, "merely illustrates the uncertainty of shoppers' likes and dislikes, and indicates how innocently, too, a buyer might permanently burden himself with an open-stock pattern for the sake of one or a few purchases.

"But the buyer who selects open-stock patterns judiciously," he added "could do nothing more beneficial to the interests of his house than to establish several patterns in his department. The margin of profit on them is considerably larger than on the ordinary dinner service, which is quite deserved by reason of the much greater risk assumed. I have found, too, that the ordinary run of shoppers, when they become fully acquainted with the significance of an open-stock pattern, waste little time in deciding upon one of them. To my mind the popularity of the open-stock pattern is really in its infancy. All that is necessary to nurture its growth is the exercise of discretion on the part of the buyers, who, by ordering patterns that will prove popular, will insure the permanency of their stay upon the display tables."

Non-Crazing Ware.

IT goes without saying that the wide-awake crockery dealer has discontinued filling up his stock principally with a large variety of dinner sets, but instead selects one or more open stock patterns. This enables him at once to supply his patrons with just as few pieces as may be wanted at the time or an entire dinner set.

While some discretion is generally exercised in the selection of a stock pattern, it is, however, frequently based only on price, color and design without regard to quality. This is a fatal mistake. The first recommendation must be the quality of the ware, and not until that is assured should other considerations come into play. The necessity of having the best obtainable ware is quite apparent when one reflects but a moment upon the object of carrying a stock pattern; it is to supply patrons with their immediate wants whether large or small, and at the same time afford them an opportunity of providing them with their future requirements in the same pattern, shape and color, as previously supplied. Now, if the ware originally supplied was not of good quality, no matter how tasty the pattern may have been, the customer will either not come back at all, or come only to make complaints—that ware breaks or chips too easily or, worse than all, is badly crazed. Handling such goods there is but one result, loss of business to the dealer and disappointment to the customer.

There are several good makes of dinnerware in the market and one of the best is Maddock's Royal Vitreous. Of this now celebrated non-crazing ware, E. W. Klotz, the sole agent for Canada, shows a large range of samples at 24 Wellington street west, Toronto.

Fine Crockery Show Rooms.

The intending visitor to the warehouse of the John L. Cassidy Co., Limited, of Montreal, naturally expects the surroundings there to be in keeping with the standing of the house, claimed to be the largest in its line in the metropolis. But despite all this, he will hardly be prepared for anything so imposing as he will actually find. Covering an area three warehouses wide, the showrooms are filled to their utmost capacity with the samples required to represent the enormous stock carried. Elaborately mounted vases shown on mirrors, cut glass arranged on plush, silverware in cases, and table after table of exquisitely decorated china, all go to the making up of a striking exhibition of all that is best in the potters' and glass cutters' arts. Lovers of fine pottery, as well as those in search of special values—to all of whom the house extends its cordial invitation—will be well repaid by a visit.

WELL-KNOWN GROCER DEAD.

FULL of years, honors and success, Mr. J. E. Mullin, one of the oldest wholesale grocers in Montreal, passed away last week. The long procession of sorrowing citizens that followed him in funeral procession last Monday morning was a sterling testimony to his record in life. He had been ailing for some time, but his friends thought that his hardy constitution and good care would combine to keep him in comparative good health and strength for some time. At 80 years of age the change came over him quickly and it was just a few days ago that the worst was feared. He passed away peacefully on Friday morning, July 22.

Mr. Mullin came to Montreal from Ireland when a very young man. He was successful in business from the very first. Of late years he gave up groceries, being interested in the cold storage business. He at one time represented St. Lawrence divsion in the City Council and once contested St. Ann's division for parliamentary honors. Mr. Mullin was a bachelor.

AUTOMATIC CHEESE CABINET.

One of the most serviceable grocery accessories recently put on the market is an automatic cheese cabinet which, it is claimed, keeps the cheese clean and fresh and free from flies. It has glass on three sides, and perfect ventilation is afforded by a front drop door. By a special contrivance the cheese is drawn out automatically by simply lowering the drop door. This novelty is for sale by Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, who recommend it to the trade as being indispensable at this particular season. They claim that it will save its cost, viz.: $8.75, within a few weeks.

WINNER IN FRUIT GUESSING CONTEST.

The award in White & Co's. fruit guessing contest was made this week, when H. A. Powers, of Picton, was declared the winner, having come the nearest to the correct number of bunches of bananas handled by this Toronto firm during the week of June 4-10. His guess was 6,013, whereas the correct number was 6,071. Over one hundred competed in the contest, and the keenest interest was manifested throughout. White & Co. will give Mr. Powers a free trip to the St. Louis fair.

Why?

Why should our pack of goods be better than any other company's? That is a fair question and we shall answer it.

We are in the very heart of admittedly the best spot in the whole of Canada for the growing of fruits and vegetables.

Our factory and equipment are the newest and most modern to be found on the continent.

Our work people are skilled, having had many years training in this very work in the home of the canning industry in Canada.

Our head process-man has not his peer in all America. We "paid the price."

The management know the business thoroughly.

Went in for a grade of goods distinctly better than the best hitherto produced. "Where there's a will, there's a way," and they have the will.

Old Homestead Brand of Canned Fruits and Vegetables are in a class by themselves. Yet they can be had by every grocer who wants them if orders are given early. There is a limit to the pack, of course. Strawberries, Peas, Raspberries have been packed, and the goods are on the market. Order from your wholesaler, and order now. Later on you may have your troubles.

A COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET.

THE banquet to Mr. George E. Drummond, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, given at the Canada Club, Montreal, was a unique affair. There were in attendance politicians of note from both parties. Race, creed, politics and nationality were all set aside and it was a gentlemen's banquet to one of Montreal's first gentlemen and in fact one of Canada's. The notable speeches were not made by ministers, but by business men, and notable among these were the terse utterances of Mr. Drummond himself. Mr. Robert Meighen, president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. and R. A. Donald, manager of the Pure Gold Mfg. Co., of Toronto, as well as Messrs. J. J. McGill, H. Cockshutt, R. M. Ballantyne and Robert Munro had some things to say and they all said them like level-headed business men who believed in the future of the Dominion.

EXPORTS OF TEA FROM JAPAN.

Statistics as follows regarding exportations of tea from Japan for the present season to June 15 have been received from C. M. Bernard, Chicago, agent for Bernard & Co., Yokohoma, Japan:

To New York	2,859,173	lbs.
To Chicago	3,104,035	"
To San Francisco	824,240	"
To Canada	372,799	"
Total	7,160,247	"

As against 9,870,393 lbs. to same date last season. This shows a decrease to all points of 2,899,269 lbs., but to Canada there is an increase of 189,123 lbs.

GUELPH BOARD OF TRADE MEETS.

A regular meeting of the Guelph Board of Trade was held on Tuesday, July 19. Among the items considered under the head of business was the report of the manufacturers' committee to the effect that they were in favor of advertising the advantages of Guelph as a manufacturing, business, and residential centre and would suggest the appointment of a committee to wait upon the City Council and ask their co-operation in this important matter. The advertising medium suggested was some largely circulated trade-journal in Canada and the United States respectively. The appointment of a committee was recommended to act either in conjunction with the manufacturers' committee or independently to arrange the details of carrying the above scheme to completion. The various other standing committees reported. The remaining items of particular interest were the annual report of the Stratford Board of Trade, and an address on the local railway situation by J. W. Lyons. The question of running an excursion under the auspices of the board was also introduced and finally handed over to the banqueting committee for further consideration.

GREEN FRUITS

Fruit and Vegetable Prospects.

IN the Niagara District the fruit prospects continue excellent, with the exception of peaches, in the yield of which there will be considerable decrease. Around Port Dalhousie the loss to the peach crop will be comparatively small, while in St. Catharines District the outlook has improved considerable, and authorities on fruit say the crop for 1904 will basket up to a good average.

The crop of cherries has been good and the yield of raspberries, now beginning to be picked, will be large and of good quality. Plums are expected to be a light crop all round. An abundance of Winter apples is expected.

The feature in the Niagara fruit belt, however, is the splendid outlook for grapes. Everywhere the vines give evidence of an exceptional yield. Plums, pears and the many small fruits grown in the Niagara District promise an abundant yield.

In the Leamington fruit district it is estimated that frost destroyed about 75 per cent. of the peach trees. Cherries have been a profitable crop, and apples promise well. The bean crop in Ontario is late this year, but looks particularly well.

All along Lake Erie and north the crop of Fall and Winter apples promise to be large and of excellent quality, while plums and peaches are an entire failure.

There have been no changes in the fruit and vegetable situation in the Provinces of Quebec, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, since last week's report, and the prospects for apples, small fruits, vegetables and roots continue fair.

In British Columbia prospects are equally good. The famed Kelowna District promises a record fruit crop of all varieties.

How Bananas Reach Montreal—A Trainload of 17 Cars.

Banana Traffic to Montreal.

THE average citizen of Montreal no doubt is under the impression that one or two cars of bananas a day are disposed of throughout the City of Montreal, when as a matter of fact, the quantity used is from six to ten per day.

Speaking literally, 42 cars arrived in Montreal during the week ending July 16th. Two weeks ago the Delaware & Hudson Co. brought in a solid train of 17 cars, which would no doubt be an eye opener to the citizen who does not indulge in this fruit.

The banana trade reaches Montreal through Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston, the shipments from New York averaging about 75 per cent.

The principal routes over which this traffic reaches Montreal, are the New York Central, and Delaware & Hudson. Up to two weeks ago the Delaware & Hudson, with its Grand Trunk connection from Rouses' Point, handled the bulk of the business, but it has now gone over to the New York Central, owing to the inability of the Grand Trunk to give the necessary service, that is, early morning delivery.

The terminal facilities for handling this ever growing industry in Montreal are considered very good and fruit merchants appear to be well satisfied, whether delivery is given on Grand Trunk or Canadian Pacific tracks.

Exhibit of Canadian Fruit.

Arrangements are being made for three exhibits of Canadian fruit in London, Eng., to open September 1 and to last for six weeks. This will include 500 cases of fruit and 150 bottles of preserves.

Preliminary arrangements are also being completed for a large display of Canadian fruit at the great Industrial Exhibition, which is to be held in Liege, Belgium, beginning in May, 1905.

Canadian fruit growers are also making a creditable exhibition of fresh fruits at the St. Louis Exposition, large quantities of strawberries, gooseberries, currants and cherries having been already sent forward.

New Way of Selling Bananas.

Within the next few weeks the United Fruit Company, of Boston, Mass., will establish throughout the scope of their distribution the system of selling bananas by weight instead of by the bunch. This will place the method of disposing of the fruit on an entirely different basis. The announcement is a most important one to commission merchants and dealers, but among them there seems to be a feeling of unanimity that the change is a good one. One prominent Boston dealer is of the opinion that the selling of bananas by the pound will prove a satisfactory arrangement, and that after dealers are accustomed to it they will find it much more equitable than the present method. The system is in operation at New Orleans at the present time, the southern division of the company's territory, where it has given perfect satisfaction.

The bunches vary so in size that under the old method there was no way of regulating matters so that some dealer would not have a decidedly better deal than others. For instance, two dealers might bid for first, and when it came to delivery the bunches coming to one man might contain a fifth more fruit than that which fell to the lot of the other party. It is also claimed that as long as the system of selling by bunches is in vogue such uneven apportionment of fruit cannot be avoided.

Result of

Banana Guessing Contest

6071 bunches Bananas handled by us from June 4th to June 10th—an average of 1012 per day—nearest guess 6013—won by

H. A. POWERS, Picton

We certify the above as being correct, having examined the books of Messrs. White & Co., and find that from June 4th to June 10th (both days inclusive), they received and handled 6071 bunches bananas, and that H. A. Powers, Picton, was the first person to guess the nearest to the correct number.

Grain Situation.

ADVICES received from points all over the Dominion are hopeful regarding the coming harvest. In western Ontario the harvest will be late owing to the backwardness of the season, but generally a good average grain yield is expected. In some parts, particularly the south and southwest, from Hamilton to Port Dover, wheat is very poor. Reports on oats are generally satisfactory, while other grain crops are above the average. Owing to the excessive rains of the last few weeks there are continued reports of rust in certain localities. In eastern Ontario grain is on the whole progressing well, and conditions are more favorable than in the west. In Nova Scotia and the east reports show considerable falling off in average returns. Rains, however, have much brightened the prospects for grain, and the crop is estimated at 90 per cent. of a full crop.

Conditions throughout the entire Canadian west have shown marked improvement during the last few days. Parts of the Districts of Saskatchewan, Alberta, Assiniboia, and western Manitoba, were beginning to suffer for want of rain. Abundant showers, however, have relieved the situation. All grain is well headed out except in small areas where sown late. Oats and barley are progressing favorably as well as wheat; they also are in head and give every promise of an excellent crop.

Five weeks of favorable weather from now on is all that is needed to insure one of the heaviest crops of the finest quality ever harvested in the Canadian west. In some localities the heads of grain are fully 4 inches in length, while the straw generally runs from two to three feet in length. Several districts place the estimated yield as high as 40 bushels to the acre. Some barley has already been cut, but it is not expected that harvesting will be general before the middle or end of August.

The increase in the grain acreage of Manitoba and the Canadian west for 1901, as compared with 1903, is not as great as had been expected. It was expected by grain men that there would be a large increase in wheat area in Manitoba, but what increase there has been took place largely in the Territories. The number of acres under crop this year in both Manitoba and the Territories is 5,065,480, or an increase on last year of 394,710 acres, or about 9 per cent. There are 3,120,411 acres under wheat, as against 3,123,663 acres last year, showing an increase of 9½ per cent.; 1,205,960 acres under oats, as against 1,101,333 last year, an increase of 9½ per cent; 392,569 acres under barley, as against 381,135 last year, an increase of 3 per cent., and 16,510 acres under flax, as against 64,639 last year, a decrease of 28 per cent. The above increase of 9½ per cent. in the number of acres of oats is a fair one, and is due to the late Spring in some sections, which caused the sowing of oats in preference to wheat. The decrease in the number of acres under flax is very noticeable, but it is not surprising after last year's failure of the flax crop in the Territories.

In Manitoba alone the number of acres under wheat is 2,366,200, which shows a slight increase over last year, under oats, 551,311 acres; under barley, 280,590 acres, and under flax, 25,602 acres. The figures of crop area for the Territories are, under wheat, 1,051,211 acres; under oats, 654,649 acres; under barley, 111,979, and under flax 20,938 acres. The number of acres under flax last year was 32,431, so this is a decrease of 11,493 acres. The increase in the number of acres under wheat in the Territories is much in advance of the increase in Manitoba.

The crop situation in the United States shows improvement on the whole, though the effects of Winter wheat damage are being realized. A shortage from 1903 is indicated in Nebraska, Kansas and portions of Missouri. In the majority of cases the wet harvest has had a perceptibly bad effect on the quality of the grain. On the Pacific Coast, California grain crops will be smaller than a year ago, but much needed rain has helped Spring wheat in Oregon and Washington, while affecting the quality of Winter wheat now being harvested.

The Trade Bulletin of Chicago estimates tne wheat crop of the United States at 610,000,000 bushels, and claims that reducing supplies to a minimum, the surplus for export may be 142,000,000 bushels. Exports last year were 121,000,000 bushels, and the average for the past fifteen years 170,000,000 bushels. Supplies of flour and wheat in America are about one million seven hundred thousand bushels less than last year, while the amount of wheat in farmers' hands is 6,000,000 bushels less.

Stocks in Europe, Argentina, and afloat are 22,500,000 bushels more. According to the Bulletin, the world's wheat crop for 1904 is 14,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels less than last year. An increase in Asia, it is declared, will offset the decrease in the United States. The decrease is chiefly in Europe and mainly in Russia, Roumania, Austria-Hungary and Italy

According to a London cablegram the prospective shortage in the world's wheat output this year is becoming serious. The best authorities consider that the United States, Canada, Russia, and the Danube countries will not be able to spare Europe more than 25,000,000 quarters, compared with 36,000,000 in the past season, and as European countries need to import 58,000,000 quarters, it may become a serious question whether our requirements can be easily satisfied. Beerbohm is even more pessimistic than this: he suggests that your exportable surplus of wheat to Europe, and Canada's may not exceed 10,000,000 quarters, and adds that seldom has the outlook been so apparently in favor of a higher cost of breadstuffs than now.

Given the short supplies present and immediately prospective there is sufficient strength to furnish a strong undertone to the market. In addition come steady reductions in stocks both at home and abroad, and advices of less than earlier anticipated yields of wheat in leading European countries.

Canadian Barley in England.

P. B. MacNamara.

THE quantity of barley imported by Great Britain during the year ending December 31, 1903, as shown by the trade and navigation returns, may prove of interest to Canadian growers and shippers, and may stimulate the former to greater efforts, to furnish a larger share of the demand that exists in this country, than they at present supply. The quantity shipped by Canada is not stated in the report, but is merged with "All Other Countries."

	Cwt.	Bushels.	£	$
Russia	12,117,287	22,618,936	2,870,362	13,969,095
Roumania	3,550,536	6,627,667	877,902	4,272,456
Turkey	4,365,018	8,148,034	1,294,053	6,297,725
United States	2,526,772	4,716,641	818,804	3,984,846
Other countries	3,988,465	7,445,134	1,378,193	6,707,206
Totals	26,548,078	49,556,412	7,239,314	35,231,328

To the above quantity must be added the production of barley in England for the year 1903 from 1,858,000 acres, in order to realize the enormous consumption. There was a falling off in the acreage devoted to barley for 1903, compared with 1902, of 51,000 acres. The principal barley-growing counties are Yorkshire, Lincolnshire and Norfolk. The agricultural returns do not give the number of bushels produced from the acreage devoted to its growth. For stock feeding purposes the largest quantity is used, chiefly that from Russia and Roumania.

ORIGIN OF BEST QUALITY.

For malting purposes, apart from local production, the best quality and that commanding the highest price, comes from Chili and California, the Syrian coast, Smyrna and Morocco, and from Montana a high class of malting barley is shipped, the price of the latter averaging 3s 6d to 4s, or 85 to 97c per bushel. The price of Chili and California barley averages 4s, or 97c per bushel. The price of local malting barley ranges from 3s 3d to 4s, or 79c to 97c per bushel.

MARKET FOR CANADA.

By an analysis of the figures representing the total quantities from different countries, and the value thereof, the average price per bushel is as follows :

	Cents per bushel.
Russia	61
Roumania	67
Turkey	77
United States	84
Other countries	90

From the above figures it is manifest that the Canadian growers of fine malting barley have within their reach a field of great proportions for their product.

MALT.

In my list of inquiries furnished the department for the month of May there is one for malt by a large brewing firm of Manchester. The trade and navigation returns for Great Britain show that there was no malt imported and only a very small quantity exported, both British and Irish, viz.:

Cwt.	Bushels.	£	$
268,916	501,477	173,154	842,683

The shipment of malt by steamship is one requiring the most absolute care as to moisture. It is usually shipped in bags by rail, but if there is the faintest doubt that if shipped in bags by steamships there is a possibility, however remote, of moisture being absorbed, it should be shipped in barrels, which would add but little to the freight charges, and eliminate all chances of moisture under ordinary circumstances.

PRICE VARIES.

The price for malt in England varies as in the case of barley itself. If choice selected barley is malted the highest price is obtainable, ranging from 4s 8d to 5s, or $1.13 to $1.21 per bushel. I visited a small malt house here only using three kilns, and the quantity of barley malted yearly is 112,000 bushels. Some of the large breweries, and there are many such, will use as much as 250,000 to 300,000 bushels of malt yearly. The field for the Canadian exporter of malt is by no means limited, as some of the large brewers do not make the malt used by them, and others use more than their malt houses worked full time can produce.

New Elevator Opened.

LAST week the Steel Storage and Elevator Construction Co., represented by the president and general manager of the company, Mr. F. J. Weber, conducted a large number of distinguished guests through the new elevator at Montreal, which will be formally handed over to the harbor commissioners within a few days.

Mr. Weber and a staff, consisting of Mr. Hill, secretary of the company; Mr. H. R. Wait, chief engineer; Mr. F. S. Weber, assistant engineer, and Mr. Davidson, chief foreman, received the guests on the ground floor of the elevator shortly after one o'clock. Among the invited guests were the Hon. Mr. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Hon. Jas. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works; Hon. Louis Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue; the harbor commissioners of Montreal. Deputy Ministers of Public Works and Marine and Fisheries, and the acting chief engineer of the Department of Public Works; Hon. F. L. Beique, Hon. J. P. B. Casgrain, Hon. R. Dandurand, Hon. L. O. David, Hon. Sir G. A. Drummond, Hon. L. J. Forget, Hon. Sir W. Hingston, Hon. R. Mackay, Hon. W. Owens, Hon. A. A. Thibaudeau, Hon. J. R. Thibaudeau, Messrs. D. Gallery, M. P.; T. G. Roddick, M. P.; O. Desmarais, M. P.; R. Bickerdike, M. P.; M. Gervais, M. P., and the Hon. J. I. Tarte, M. P. In addition to the above were invited officials of the Montreal Board of Trade, the Chambre de Commerce and the Corn Exchange, the railways, the steamship companies, the proprietors and press representatives, also representatives of the local grain dealers, Mr. Vantelet and Mr. J. O. Metcalfe.

The following friends of Mr. Weber were present from Buffalo: Mr. F. O. Elder, manager of the Great Eastern Grain Elevator; A. Haerette, manager of the Buffalo Electric Elevator; Messrs. W. H. Patterson, Konzelmann, E. H. Dickenson and Peter Will.

After examining the ground floor, where the cars are unloaded and where the electric switch board controlling all the machinery of the building is situated, the party proceeded direct to the top flat, where the garners are situated. They then visited the scale floor beneath, and also the conveyor floor on the next flat, and the distributing floor. Here the gentlemen conducting the party showed the workings of the hoppers.

After inspecting the entire building, including the marine leg, the party returned to the scale floor, where the office is situated. Hon. Mr. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and the Hon. Robt. Mackay, president of the Board of Commissioners, simultaneously touched two buttons, which set all the machinery in the building in motion. This comprised the official starting of the elevator.

After the inspection the guests, numbering in all about 150, sat down to luncheon, which was served in the elevator.

Wheat Yield of Nova Scotia.

The experimental farms, carried on under the direction of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, give the results of experiments with wheat in the Maritime Provinces and in Manitoba.

Out of 58 varieties tested, both at the experimental farm at Nappan, Nova Scotia, and Brandon, Manitoba, there were 40 in which the maritime farm had the better results, i. e., more yield per acre and heavier grain. Over two-thirds of the varieties were more successful in Nova Scotia than in Manitoba.

Wheat and Flour Exports.

According to Bradstreet the quantity of wheat (including flour as wheat) exported from United States and Canadian ports for the week ending with July 21 was as follows, in bushels:

ATTENTION!

We have surprised the grocery trade with our success. Naturally we didn't receive much encouragement when we put on the market

ORANGE MEAT

—the breakfast food.

"Too many package cereals already" said the wholesalers and retailers. However, we had to sell ORANGE MEAT, or lose a lot of money, and we knew we had something a little better than anything that others were making.

We have by dint of hard work, advertising, premiums, and so on, to say nothing of the excellence of our breakfast food, succeeded in placing in the best grocery stores of the Dominion.

It seems to us that we have thoroughly broken down the inevitable prejudice against a new food. Of course here and there there is still a work of persuasion to do.

If you find it wisest to buy Orange Meat, order from your wholesale grocer.

The Plan of Japanese Monopoly.

AFTER the Japanese Government's plan of controlling the manufacture of tobacco for fiscal purposes was made officially known to the public, the tobacco people changed their attitude and expressed their willingness to support it if the terms could be made satisfactory, says Sajiro Tateish, Japanese representative of the tobacco monopoly. The outbreak of the Japan-Russo war hastened the decision of Parliament, and the bill was passed on the 26th of March with slight modifications. The vital point of the discussion was regarding the number of years and the basis of indemnity to the manufacturers who would be bought out. The original bill provided for a tax on the income of each individual manufacturer, but the committee who had charge of the bill reported in favor of taking the amount of sales as a basis, and favored three years' indemnity instead of four on account of the financial condition of the treasury.

The amount provided for indemnity was 9,100,000 yen (about $4,500,000), which will be distributed among all the manufacturers in Japan, but about one-half of it will go to four prominent companies. This is at the rate of 20 per cent. indemnity per annum for three years, based on the amount of sales. If of suitable character, the factories and machinery will be bought by the Government. The administration of the tobacco monopoly by the Government will be patterned chiefly after that of Austria, and the Government expects to manufacture various brands to suit the public taste. The monopoly for the manufacture of cigarettes began the first of June, and for cut tobaco will begin a year later.

U. S. Tobacco Acreage.

A REPORT of the acreage and condition of the tobacco crop in the United States has been published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture as follows:—Among those sections producing cigar types Florida and Ohio report an increased acreage. The increase in Florida is due entirely to the larger area planted to shade-grown tobacco, as the sun-grown crop of this state is 10 per cent. less than that of last year. The largest reduction of acreage is reported from New York and Wisconsin, while New England and Pennsylvania report a reduction of less than 10 per cent.

The few counties in Virginia producing sun-cured tobacco report an increase, while all other sections producing chewing, smoking, snuff and export types report a decrease. The preliminary statement of the Bureau indicated a slight increase in the Burley district, which is composed of certain counties in Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia and Indiana, but later reports since planting was finished show a decrease of 3 per cent. The greatest reduction in acreage has been in South Carolina and in the eastern counties of North Carolina. The dark tobacco sections of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia also report a marked reduction.

East Indies Tobacco Output.

OFFICIAL statistics for 1902 of the production and export of tobacco from the Dutch East Indies have just been received. Part of the land in Java is held by lease from the natives and other lands by leases from the Government. The statistics give the production for both classes of leased lands and for the lands owned by individuals. For 1902 the production in Java on native leased land of "Bladtabak" and "Krossok" is given as 16,820,987 kilograms (a kilogram equaling 2.204 pounds); on Government leased land as 2,895,346 kilograms; on private lands 4,215 kilograms; on "land ceded by the native princes" as 6,568,985 kilograms; a total of 26,289,533 kilograms. During the same year the production of tobacco in Sumatra was 21,250,689 kilograms. The production in Sumatra in 1902 was much larger than in 1893, when it amounted to only 15,210,315 kilograms, but fell below that of 1899, when it reached 23,958,367 kilograms.

The total exports from Java and Madoura for 1903 are given as 464,144 picols (a picol equaling 135 pounds), of which 462,669 picols went to Holland and 1,475 picols to Germany. In the past ten years the exportation has been exceeded only once—in 1900—when it amounted to 465,009 picols.

Mexican Tobacco Tax.

In view of the probable improvement of trade relations existing between Canada and Mexico in the near future, the following information in regard to the Mexican tax on tobacco, which went into effect on the first of the month, is not without interest :

All foreign or native manufactured tobacco, such as selected leaf, granulated, long cut or chewing, must be put up in sealed packages and a special internal revenue stamp must be affixed to each package, the value of the stamp being governed by the weight of the package, in accordance with the following scale : 100 grams (1 gram—15.43 grains) or less, net weight, 2c; more than 100 and up to 250 grams, 5c; more than 250 and up to 500 grams, 9c; more than 500 grams, and up to 1 kilogram (2.20 lbs.) 18c. Snuff of native manufacture is taxed double the amount, and if it is not put up in sealed packages its sale will be prohibited.

For all imported tobacco of the classes previously mentioned revenue stamps of the same relative value but printed in a different color are to be used. The revenue stamps required will be of double the value of those required for tobacco of native manufacture. Foreign snuff also must be packed in the manner prescribed for the native article, and pays double the amount in revenue stamps.

Tobacco Dealers at Ottawa.

A deputation of grocers and tobacco dealers called upon the Premier and Minister of Inland Revenue last week and asked that Government legislation which aims at preventing the contracts made by the American Tobacco Co. with its patrons under which the latter agree to handle none but these particular brands of tobacco, cigarettes, etc., be not put into force.

Cigars and How to Smoke Them.

Buy none but new cigars, the newer the better. Old cigars that are dry and brittle are avoided in those countries and among people where smoking is a second nature.

Leave the ash on your cigar until it falls off. A cigar not only burns more evenly while the ash remains, but it lasts longer and tastes better.

If your cigar goes out be sure to blow through it as soon as possible. You will see some dead smoke leave it. That would become stale, and make your cigar stale if left in.

You cannot tell whether a cigar is good or bad unless you light it properly —that is to say thoroughly.

Do not smoke too much, and do not smoke a good cigar while you are out of doors.

If you think smoking is injurious to your health, stop smoking in the early morning. Two-thirds of the people of this country have their stomachs out of order, and no man ailing that way can smoke in the early morning before or after breakfast.—Merchants' Journal.

The After Dinner Smoke in London.

In the "good old days," says the London, England, City Press, when the wine circulated freely after dinner, and every bon viveur could gauge the merits of a glass of port, to have paid homage to the goddess Nicotine would have been almost an act of sacrilege. To-day a cigar is looked upon as the inevitable sequel to a dinner. For a long while the more sedate city guilds resented this departure from precedent, but one by one they have conceded the point, and now the last of the "old guard" has fallen into line. The Goldsmiths' Co. has just granted permission to smoke as soon as the loyal toasts have been honored.

Crop Conditions.

The outlook for the tobacco crop in Essex, Ont., is bad, owing to the wet season and cold weather. Mayor Brault, of Amherstburg, who is an extensive tobacco buyer, says that the crop will not be as large as that of last year if the present weather continues. The rains of the last few days have helped the tobacco crop in the Province of Quebec, but more rain is necessary, as some of the farmers have only been able to put in their seedlings within the last few days.

Tobacco Drinkers.

"Tobacco drinking is not one of the bad habits of to-day," said a snuff manufacturer, "but several hundred years ago it was a pretty prevalent custom. A poet took occasion, in 1643 to attack it. He wrote:

To quaffe, roare, sweare and drink
Tobacco well
Is fit for such as pledge sick healths in hell.

"John Swan was the name of this poet, and the place where I found his couplet against tobacco drinking was in a book of his, a book which attacked all the vices of the age.

"Till I read Swan's work I was unaware that man had ever drunk tobacco. It seems that they powdered up the herb, those old-timers, mixed a half teaspoonful of it with a whisky glass of hot water, and tossed off this red-brown fluid as you or I would toss off a lemonade.

"The effect of tobacco drinking was like the effect of smoking. It soothed and calmed the nerves, producing a pleasant feeling of contentment. It did not appear to be particularly harmful. Many a tobacco drinker lived to a green old age."

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What

U. S. Industry Changes Hands.

The Commonwealth Tobacco Co. are reported to have bought the property of the Universal Tobacco Co., now dissolved. The Commonwealth Tobacco Co. will continue the manufacture of the former's brands of cigarettes, little cigars and tobacco. The reason for the change as given by the directors is that the Universal Co. was over-capitalized and had suffered by reason of litigation in which it had been involved.

British Tobacco Duties Reduced.

In the course of the debate on the Finance Bill in the House of Commons, London, Eng., on July 18, Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced a reduction of the additional taxation on unstripped tobacco from six cents to three cents on stocks held previous to April 20, with the object of preventing hardship to manufacturers with large stocks in bond. The duty on other unstripped tobacco remains at six cents.

Tobacco Notes.

The Cigar Makers' International Convention of the United States will be held in Baltimore on September 12.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE tone of the freight market is firm and encouraging. It is firmer than it has been for some time. Space for July shipment is practically out of the market, and only a couple of ports have any to spare. The principal quotations are for August shipment, or even September. Things are looking well for September. The record of charters will show that many boats, both steamers and schooners, are being chartered from New York to Charlottetown and St. John, N. B.

Live stock shipments have been so moved when the strike is declared off. However, it was declared settled and it has again broken out, so that strikes

St. Lawrence route being very low, but there are other export markets that are undervaluing Montreal. For instance, a cargo of 120,000 bush. of Manitoba wheat was lost to this route recently, owing to it being "rigged" via Boston at the low freight of 5c per bush. from Fort William to Liverpool. If this form of rate cutting continues some action is likely to be taken by the big Montreal companies.

Two Lines That Lead.

A Vinegar with Advantages.

You want a brand absolutely pure. One which will keep a long time without deteriorating. One known for its delicate aroma and its excellent flavour. Hill, Evans & Co. (Worcester, Eng), produce the one. A Malt Vinegar which is unapproached by any other for these essential properties. A Vinegar you may always rely upon.

Quinine Wine with a Reputation.

None so Blind As Those Who Won't See.

THE CANADIAN GROCER can prove of valuable assistance to the selling end of any business which seeks trade among the grocery and general storekeepers of Canada.

We advance many plain, indisputable arguments to this effect.

And still there are some folks who can't see it.

Some who can't see how it's going to pay them.

And won't even invest a few dollars to find out.

Very few folks like this, but we would like to convince even them.

If we only could, we'd get a good deal of satisfaction out of it—and we know they would, too.

Don't you think they're blind to their own interests?

Here's a paper that finds a welcome in every worth-while grocery store from Halifax to Vancouver once every week—so can't you see that an announcement of any interest must surely command some attention?

The advertising columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER provide about the best way we know of keeping in close touch with all the grocers of Canada all the time.

You can see value in a paper like this—

SNOWDON, FORBES & CO., Montreal

A COMMERCIAL KNIGHT

WHEN the news of the King's birthday honors flashed across the continent, on the morning of June 24, one of Canada's most successful business men was given the distinguished honor of Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George. That man was the Hon. Geo. A. Drummond. In every commercial interest in the Dominion, his influence has been at work for close on half a century. Yet if one were asked what characteristic about him was more prominent than another, the answer would have to be "unostentation." This was very clearly emphasized by the exclamation of hundreds of people, even in Montreal, of "Which Mr. Drummond is that?" To those who knew the man there was only one answer to that question, "Mr. Drummond, president of the Canada Sugar Refinery." Thus the new Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George in one of his business ventures alone has made commercial history for Canada.

Sir George, the Man.

A glance at the man himself would see a medium-sized, closely-knit, broad-chested man, with a ruddy face, fresh and clear as a boy of twenty, and a head broad and full, stamped with reflectiveness. The portraits of Sir George A. Drummond do not in any way flatter him. for his half century of strenuous life, striving towards higher ends, has not left a trace of worry upon him.

It would be impossible to detail the manifold services which Sir George has rendered to the community, to say nothing of describing their value to the Dominion at large. That peculiar unostentation which has made him so little known anywhere has been described as a certain aloofness of manner, which may have tended to shade the light which usually blazes on conspicuous people. Perhaps this is one of the reasons for the serenity which marks the life, both private and public, of the newly chosen Knight. Neither the world of commerce, the world of politics, nor the world of art has held him entirely for its own, yet he may be said to have trodden every stage with success. His mind may be said to gravitate between the moral and material interests of the age, and rests in neither. In fact, it is amazing to all his friends, how in every walk of important or semi-private life, he has maintained that unfailing reticence which has often prompted the question from disinterested parties: "Who is this Mr. Drummond, and what did he do to obtain such distinction?" To reply to that would require a short history of the House of Commons, a resume of the proceedings of the Senate, an outline of the most important doings of the Montreal Board of Trade, and a chronological statement of all the meetings of the Bank of Montreal for half a century. Of the Bank of

RETURNED
AUG 8 1904

Sir George A. Drummond.

Montreal he is vice-president, yet for years he has taken the position of president, owing to the absence of Lord Strathcona in the Old Country. Perhaps his peculiar quietness on all occasions is caused by his peculiar temperament. It has prevented him from ever needing to be excused for sincere misconceptions, which are just as hurtful as dishonest opportunism. Sir George talks little himself, and being studious of human personality, listens contentedly, even to persons who, he already knows well, are boring him.

An Unostentatious Man.

Sir George has followed the policy of improving the world without noise, without the blaring of trumpets, either in the press or the pulpit, and has illustrated how good the world would be if each man was as fond of his neighbor as he is of beauty and of power; in short, if we were all as good as we are clever, the machinery of life would wheel more easily on its rounds. If he had accomplished nothing else than the founding of St. Margaret's Home for Incurables, this alone would be a monument of which knighthood would be but a poor reward in comparison.

However, though a many-sided man, he is, above all, a representative of the best type of business men. One who has not only attained a remarkable success, but whose multiplicity of activities have connected him with many branches of commerce, and its handmaid, banking. Since the departure of Lord Strathcona, Sir Geo. A. Drummond has been described as easily the first citizen of Canada. He has received an honor at the hands of the Sovereign, which is shared with many merchant princes of Great Britain, but it would be far too narrow a view of his services to limit the vision of his accomplishments to mere business success. In the larger domain of national life he has been a staunch Imperialist, desiring always the binding together of all parts of the Empire. To give an idea of how extended and strenuous his life work thus far has been, it need only be mentioned that nearly forty years ago he had attained to such a prominent place in the community as to be made a candidate for the House of Commons, for one of the most important constituencies in Canada, Montreal West. It is over a quarter of a century since he was elevated to the Senate. There, he has been a conservative and yet progressive force, always striking the note of sanity and dignity and reticence. While a lucid speaker, he has never been styled as a popular orator. The well-stored mind, coupled with the aesthetic sense and the deeper taste for literature, tend towards the nice, the exact, and the polished utterance. Ben Johnson wrote of one of his contemporaries: "No man ever spake more neatly, more pressly, more weightily, or suffered less emptiness, less idleness, in what he uttered." This might easily be applied to Sir Geo. Drummond. When he speaks anywhere, on the public platform, his words are notable for knowledge, suitable gravity, and a constant sense of weight and dignity.

Sir George, the Citizen.

In the early days of the Montreal Board of Trade, Sir George was a power. As member of the council, as vice-president, and as president, his weight was always felt. In fact, no important movement, in half a century past, which had for its object the welfare of Montreal, could leave the name of Sir Geo. Drummond out of its history. It was just a little over a year ago that the chambers of commerce of the Empire met in Montreal, and Sir Geo. Drummond was instinctively turned to, as a merchant preeminently suited to represent Montreal as one of the delegates to that congress. It was there that he made a most notable speech, in which he struck the note of larger Imperialism.

His Labors for Charity.

His charitable work has been of the most unassuming character. He has been interested in public health, in the prevention of consumption, in improved sanitary conditions, and in arranging a scientific method of carrying on charitable work. He made generous contributions to charitable objects, not only to the Home for Incurables in Montreal, but in active aid to the Victorian Order of Nurses, of which he is a trustee, and of countless private benefactions. Characteristic of the broad-minded culture which he possesses, he has snipped off the frayed edges of life by his love for pastoral scenes, and has solaced himself with the country air, in the breeding of blue-blooded stock. He is an ardent lover of art, possessing one of the best private collections of paintings on this continent, in the gathering of which his exacting, sound and critical judgment has aided much. He has been one of the best and most enthusiastic patrons of the Art Association of Montreal, to which body he has loaned his fine collections again and again. His counsel and support have also been of great value to the associaition. His success as a business man has been most conspicuous, and to commerce he has given the majority of his mental powers. Thus, it is the more gratifying to note that stocks and bonds and sugar refining have not sapped the well-spring of his being, for the things that he prizes most are the love for, and the study of, art, wherein his best pleasures have been found.

Lady Drummond.

A word may be said about Lady Drummond, who in most of the essentials is like minded with her distinguished husband. In many movements, philanthropic, educational, and relating to social sciences, Lady Drummond has taken an earnest and active interest. The Countess of Aberdeen once said about Lady Drummond: "She unites with a most distinguished presence, a great personal charm, gifts of rare eloquence, and power." Better than that, Lady Drummond possesses a sympathetic and charitable nature; she has been a wide reader; she has studied life as she saw it, as well as many of the most complex psychological problems of the time. The Drummond home in Montreal is the scene of many of the most brilliant social and intellectual functions, and some of the most important charitable movements of the time have been initiated within the walls of that attractive mansion.

At a meeting of the council of the Montreal Board of Trade, held June 30, the president made reference to the honors which had fallen to the lot of two prominent members of the board, Sir George A. Drummond and Sir Hugh Montagu Allan, and observed that he was sure every member of the council had been greatly pleased thereat.

The council then embodied the feeling of the members in this connection in the following resolutions:

"That the council of the Montreal Board of Trade welcomes with great satisfaction the announcement that the Hon. George A. Drummond, a past president of this board, has been created a Knight Commander of the most distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George;

"That Sir George Drummond's record in this city, his home for fifty years, as a leader among commercial men, as a wise director and friend of charitable institutions, as an energetic and capable worker for the improvement of civic conditions, as a generous and discriminating patron of the arts, as the gracious dispenser of generous hospitalities, together with his valuable services as a Senator of the Dominion Parliament, have long marked him out as one specially worthy to be honored by the Sovereign, and that the council rejoices that the King has been pleased, in his wisdom and graciousness, to thus confirm the views and fulfil the wishes of Sir George Drummond's fellow citizens;

"That to Sir George Drummond the council tenders its heartiest congratulations that his many services to the City of Montreal and to the country

IMPORTED HORSES AND CATTLE.

Several of the most prominent breeders of horses and cattle in Canada are at present in England, or have recently returned from the trip, which was undertaken for the sole purpose of procuring stock for show at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to September 10th, and for the improvement of their well-known stables. The exhibits of these geneltmen alone would offer an interesting horse show, and when combined with the hundreds of other entries in all classes, will complete the finest display of horses and cattle ever seen in Canada. Among those whose direct and recent importations will be shown, are Robert Beith, M. P., of Bowmanville; Thomas Graham, of Graham Bros., Claremont; J. M. Gardhouse, of the Highfield stables, and William Smith, ex-M. P., of Columbus. Among the cattle breeders, Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, and Robert Miller, of Stouffville, will show for the first time their recent purchases in England. All the exhibitors agree to keep their entries on the grounds during the full period of the exhibition.

WESTERN ONTARIO TRAVELERS' PICNIC.

THERE were between ten and eleven thousand people in attendance at the annual picnic of the Western Ontario Travelers' Club, of London, at Port Stanley on Saturday last.

The first train pulled out of the Grand Trunk station at six o'clock in the morning, having on board the fishermen and the early risers, the youths who intended to make a long day of it, and the committeemen who had to look after some details in the arrangements. The next train left at 9.45, and it was one of the big trains of the day, and loaded in every part of every coach.

The special train bearing he travelers, their brass and bagpipe bands and a host of their friends, pulled out promptly at the announced hour of eleven o'clock. The drummers, wearing white duck hats and trousers, marched in a body from their club rooms in the Masonic Temple to the railway station, with bands playing and everybody in a merry mood. The train made only one stop en route, and, after a quick run, the party found themselves at the pretty summer resort, and the day had well begun.

Everybody repaired to the heights to get a look at old Erie; to cool off in the breezes that were blowing landward, and—most important of all—to open hampers and partake of lunch in thorough picnic fashion and with evident picnic appetite. The scene on Fraser Heights was during this time an extremely lively one. The crowd was so large as to occupy almost every available foot of the green sward, beneath the shade of the trees. The ladies were busied with spreading spotless white table linen on the grass, while men and boys were hurrying to and fro, making sure of hot water for tea-making, and upon other messages. Then came the happy moment, when all gathered about and good things began to disappear in regulation order. It was a pleasant operation and soon concluded.

The Sports Programme.

Then there was a general resort to the beach playground. Hampers were safely stowed away, and the picnickers gave themselves over to enjoyment of the events of the long programme of sports and entertainment.

The baseball match was between the Grips and the Trunks, and the men who carry the heavier samples were the men who carried off the victory.

The foot races were all well contested and evoked the keenest interest from the spectators. In addition, there were exhibitions of fencing, slack-rope walking and fancy drills; the greasy pig was caught and, to cap it all, a baby show was held.

The various committees which looked after the picnic were composed as follows:

Finance—J. S. Townsend, chairman; A. T. Edwards, secretary; James Mattinson, W. R. Grant, Wm. Turnbull, A. McPherson.

Sports—George Sippi, chairman; A. H. Brener, secretary; J. A. Jones, Walter Pierson, J. A. Connors, Percy Millman, Herbert Henderson, W. H. Grenfell, A. E. Cowley, A. S. Sippi, Ernie Crouch, Wm. Shosenberg, S. M. Screaton, J. A. Tune, Wm. Ward, Wm. Smith, George Detlor, J. M. Daly, Bert Masuret, J. R. Sproule.

Transportation — J. J. Harkness, chairman; B. S. Murray, secretary; S. F. Lawrason, J. C. Pocock, James Dooley, Ed. B. Chase.

Entertainment—F. S. Fisher, chairman; D. McPherson, secretary; H. W. Lind, L. C. Johnston, J. Angus, H. Turner, H. Lewis, R. A. Green, Thomas Allan, Hugh Rennie, C. H. Firth, D. J. McLeod, John Garvey, Jr., H. Dodson, A. H. Moran, Roland Munro, F. G. Brenton, W. R. Keyes, Jos. Leech, George W. Heard.

Music—C. W. McGuire, chairman; Wm. Wright, secretary; J. McMartin,, F. R. Harris, E. Sehl, W. Hawkshawe, J. M. Ferguson, C. W. Nichols.

Printing—H. E. Putrey, chairman; J. R. McPetrie, secretary; C. A. Wilson, C. E. Mountjoy, J. W. Couse, Hy. Avey, Alf. Gunther, S. Frank Glass, J. K. Spry, J. J. Dyer.

Reception—R. D. Kilgour, chairman; F. Lawson, secretary; C. S. Hyman, Adam Beck, T. H. Carling, S. Munro, John T. Green, T. H. Howden, R. E. Davis.

A More Active Tea Campaign.

Mr. J. Keithley Crowther, manager for the United States and Canada of Sir Thomas Lipton, Limited, spent part of last week in Montreal and Toronto, calling upon the trade in the respective cities.

In conversation with The Canadian Grocer, Mr. Crowther said that his firm had decided upon a more vigorous campaign for the Canadian trade, and that it was his intention to make more frequent visits to Canada than he had done in the past.

"You know," said he, "that when Sir Thomas decides upon a thing he usually carries it out, and he has made up his mind to secure a larger share of the Canadian trade. Sir Thomas will arrive on this continent some time in September for the chief purpose of visiting the World's Fair. It is altogether likely that he will pay a visit to Canada, and I am going to do my best to persuade him to do so."

Mr. Crowther has recently returned from the exhibition at St. Louis, where his firm have three exhibits. Besides having contracts for supplying a number of small hotels and restaurants, the Lipton Co. supply the coffee consumed in the famous Inside Inn. The quantity of coffee required for this hotel alone is nearly a ton a week.

The agents of the Lipton Co. in Canada are Laporte, Martin & Cie., of Montreal, with J. A. Curtis as representative in that city, and George Musson & Son, representatives in Toronto.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

The Grocer is in receipt of a catalogue issued by the Toledo Computing Scale Co., of Toledo, U. S. A., describing their automatic weighing and money-value measuring machines, and containing a number of illustrations of leading stores throughout the state of California in which the Toledo system is used.

DROWNING ACCIDENT.

Mr. J. J. Duffy, of the wholesale spice and coffee house of Montreal, had the misfortune to lose his 18-year-old son, J. J. Cyprian, on Sunday last, by drowning. The accident occurred during the sudden storm that swept over this district Sunday afternoon, and which was particularly sudden and strong at Isle Perrot, where the young man was summering with his parents. The sympathy of a large number of friends is extended to Mr. Duffy.

GLEANED FROM THE TRAVELERS.

Ross Bros., of Mount Albert, have bought out Mr. Harry Fisher, Cookstown, and took over the business on August 1st.

The Wilson Grocery Co., Gananoque, who recently bought the old-established business of Kenny & Cockrill, have set the pace among the trade in that thriving burg by their artistic ideas in window dressing and display. The result has elicited many ecomiums from residents as well as from numbers of American visitors who are summering in and around Gananoque.

Tattle Bros., grocers, Yonge street, Toronto, have assigned to W. J. McDonald. Liabilities are small.

C. N. Babbitt, of Gagetown, N. B., has moved his grocery store to Sydney street, St. John.

SECTION OF SECOND FLOOR—LABELING.

The packages as they come through the chute from the floor above, are labelled, placed on boards and put in racks to dry. The capacity of these racks is about 200,000 lbs. of package tea.

The labeling is done by girls seated at tables beside an endless belt running from the gumming machine. The labels are gummed by being fed between rollers, and are carried along the belt to the labellers. This machine is also run by electric power. At one end of this room there is a label cupboard having compartments for the different kinds and sizes of labels. A cloak room, etc., is also provided for the use of the girls.

This section of the second floor is on the Mill St. side, near the elevator; three to four men are kept busy packing tea into cases, ready for shipment. The packing order is sent from the office, and as soon as the cases are ready, they are sent by electric elevator to the floor below. At one end of this packing department a considerable quantity of advertising is stored. Many attractive cards, etc., are sent out in the cases, and the fact that they are continually asked for by the merchants shows that they are appreciated.

Next week a description of the shipping room will be given.

ENGLISH PROVISION IMPORTS.

IMPORTS of butter in Great Britain for the six months ending June 30, 1904, total 2,267,318 cwts., an increase of 317,000 cwts. over imports for the same period last year. The greatest relative increase is from New South Wales, closely followed by Victoria. Canada's share in the increase is from 16,585 to 28,710 cwts.

The gross amount of dead meats, consisting of fresh and chilled beef, fresh mutton, frozen beef and mutton, fresh pork, salt beef and pork, bacon, hams, rabbits, and tinned meats, in 1903, was 8,627,177 cwts., valued at £19,651,837; for the present year the weight is greater, 8,677,461 cwts., and the value considerably less, £18,526,625; this difference in value to a large extent comes from the frozen mutton and beef. Australia shows over 50 per cent. increase in frozen beef; Argentina has increased her export 35 per cent., the United States have exported to the United Kingdom 53,693 cwts. more than last year, while other countries have decreased 35 per cent. Australia, Argentina and other countries have all recorded against them a decrease in frozen mutton. Holland, United States and Belgium show small decreases in fresh pork supplies. Importations of bacon from the United States amounted to 1,502,101 cwts., an increase of 36,058 cwts. over last year; from Denmark to 835,325 cwts., an increase of 80,938 cwts.; from Canada to 295,221 cwts., an increase of 66,813 cwts.; from other countries to 35,026 cwts., a decrease of 20 per cent. The United States have supplied hams to the extent of 518,183 cwts., an increase of 68,894 cwts. Canada has increased her exportations from 69,628 cwts. to 73,092 cwts., while other countries have dwindled down to 1,719 cwts.

Poultry Demonstration.

Mr. Elford, the poultry expert of Ottawa, will superintend the showing of a complete model hennery under the auspices of the Dominion Government at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to September 10th. Poultry raising during recent years has become such an important industry, both with exclusive breeders and with general farmers throughout Canada, that the Government wisely decided to demonstrate all that was most modern and most successful in incubation, brooding, caring and feeding. For those who keep poultry, whether for profit or pleasure, the information derived from this exhibit will be extremely valuable.

Early Potato Growing in Ireland.

The early potato growing industry, which was started in Ireland some time ago, seems to have taken well in some districts and to have been very successful. Experiments are being tried at a number of places in the south and southwest of Ireland—chiefly on the coast. From a few small plots in 1901, the area under experiment has gradually increased. Clonakilty, County Cork, was found to be a very suitable district. Though it is said the crop is fully a week later than last year, samples have already been dug in the County Clare, and in other districts the potatoes are earlier than last year. The sales which have taken place have been satisfactory so far.

Proposed Enlargement.

At a meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Cold Storage and Provision Co. on July 27, a proposal to enlarge the powers of the company was considered.

The intention is to enlarge the scope of the company to permit it to engage in the manufacture of beet sugar. If the proposed change is made the name of the company will be changed to "The Trent Valley Sugar, Provision and Cold Storage Co.," the capital stock will be increased to $750,000 and the present board of directors enlarged to nine members.

Cheese—There is not much of interest in the cheese market, which is away below the level of a year ago. The make is about that of last year, but the great difference lies in the fact of large stocks being held at the opening of the season. The board sales on Saturday were as follows:

Belleville—Offered 2,845 white and 190 colored cheese; sales, 2,400 at 7 1-16c, and 150 at 7 1-8c.

Cowansville—Twenty-six creameries offered 1,761 boxes butter, and 31 factories offered 2,150 boxes cheese. Butter sales, 18c to 19c; cheese sale, 7 1-4 to 7 1-2c. Twenty-six boxes of butter and 919 boxes of cheese held over.

Cornwall—2,008 cheese were boarded, 1,014 white and 994 colored. White sold at 7 5-8c; colored at 7 3-8c. Twenty boxes remained unsold.

London—Thirteen factories offered 2,220 boxes; sales, 370 at 7 5-8c, and 70 at 7 1-2c.

Watertown, N. Y.—Large white, 1,275 boxes, at 7 1-4 to 7 1-2c; large colored, 700 boxes, at 7 1-4c; small white, 1,480 boxes, at 7 5-8c; white twins, 2,043 boxes, at 7 5-8c; colored twins, 3,770 boxes, at 7 5-8 to 7 3-4c.

Alexandria—1,075 boxes of white and 407 colored were offered; white sold at 7 5-8c; colored at 7 3-4c. We quote:

Provisions—The demand for cured hams and bacon during the week has been good and prices steady. Lard is also in better demand and position. Business in barrelled pork has been dull, Canada short mess pork selling at from $24.00 to $25.00. Receipts fairly good and in excess of last week's:

Butter—Butter shipments for the past week were 20,562 pkgs, which is very satisfactory. The receipts so far this season exceed those of 1903. Opinions as to prices are decidedly diverse, some looking for still higher figures, while others maintain the limit has been reached. Choicest Townships creamery is bringing 18 to 18 1-4c; Ontarios, 17 1-2c, and finest Quebecs, 18 to 18 1-2c. Dairy quoted at 14 to 14 1-2c.

Cheese—The market is exceedingly quiet both here and abroad. Stocks are large, despite the report of a shorter make this year, and are, in fact, in excess of those of 1903. Finest Quebec is being held at 7 1-2c, Townships at 7 5-8 to 7 3-4c, and 7 7-8 to 8c for Ontarios.

St. John, N.B.

Provisions—While the big strike has not yet affected prices of barreled meats here, the market is rather firmer. Sales are very light at this season. Pure lard has but a limited demand even at the extreme low prices. Hams and rolls are scarce. In fresh meat the demand is for lamb, and prices are well maintained. Beef is somewhat dull and rather lower.

Provision Notes.

The lard refinery of Swift & Co., Chicago, was damaged by fire on July 27 to the extent of $400,000.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. F. McDonald, of the firm of McDonald Bros., Colborne, Ont., died on July 22.

Mr. Mackenzie, of the Standard Vinegar Co., Toronto, was a visitor to Montreal this week.

Mr. W. P. Rice, of the Wm. Ryan Co., was among those at the Toronto Grocers' excursion to Buffalo last week.

Mr. Alex. Anderson of the Japan Central Traders' Association, who was laid up for a week or ten days, is out again.

Mr. R. J. Sharpe, representing W. P. Downey, Montreal, reports good sales of Hires' Root Beer in Quebec City and district.

Mr. W. J. Earon, who has been traveling for the Fox Bros. Packing Co., Brantford, for some years, has given up that post and is leaving for Pittsburg.

Mr. Albert N. Reay, Canadian manager of the Force Food Co., has just returned to Toronto after an extensive and very successful trip in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Reay seems to have taken full advantage of the sea breezes.

Mr. Alfred Irving, west end traveler for the Salada Ceylon Tea Co., again broke his record for the number of orders secured in one day's work, he having sold to 75 grocers on Tuesday last.

Mr. H. McCutcheon, well known in London, Ont., business circles, died on July 25. Mr. McCutcheon was engaged until a short time ago in the grocery trade, and also in the coal and wood business.

Mr. John Fisher, manufacturers' agent, Toronto, left on Wednesday on a trip to Winnipeg and other points in Manitoba and the Northwest. Mr. Fisher goes by way of Sarnia on the Northern Navigation Co's. steamer "Huronic" to Fort William and thence via Canadian Northern to Winnipeg.

Mr. B. Trudel, who has charge of the tea department in L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, is taking a vacation at St. Tite. Mr. Trudel's particular object is a rest but, as he is taking along a set of rods and lines, the lively speckled trout in the waters around St. Tite will have to be on their guard.

Mr. F. W. Klemm, manufacturer of Klemm's Tubes, Chicago, is at present in Montreal, canvassing the trade. Mr. Klemm, who is represented in Canada by Snowdon, Forbes & Co., has met with good success in the east, and on his return trip to Chicago will visit the larger western cities, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, London, etc.

Mr. J. T. Paul, of the traveling staff of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., was married on Wednesday to Miss Isabel Carter. The happy couple left on the "International Limited" for Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis, and on their return will reside in Toronto.

Mr. Newton A. Hill, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, has just returned from a three months' trip through Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia. To The Grocer Mr. Hill stated that trade on the whole was satisfactory. As to the future, referring specially to crop prospects, Mr. Hill said that providing no unforeseen dangers such as frost or hail strike the country, crops will be good. In some sections there has been a trifle too much rain, but as the country is so large these spot drawbacks will not seriously affect the general result.

"We are too apt in the east on reading reports of hail or frost in the Northwest to imagine the whole country is affected. Why, bless me," said Mr. Hill, "you don't get worried here much when you read of a cyclone in western Ontario, only a few hundred miles off, while a touch of frost in Manitoba is considered here as a serious blow to the crops around Calgary or Edmonton. Western cities and towns are pushing ahead rapidly, noticeably so Winnipeg, Brandon and Calgary, the latter remarkably so." Mr. Hill looks for good Fall trade throughout his territory.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Fisheries Fights.

"To assert the authority of the Dominion over the fisheries," was the reason given for the despatch of a Government cruiser to the Labrador coast a few days ago. According to an Ottawa despatch "a dispute had arisen between the Federal authority and the Provincial Government of Quebec in regard to the issuance of a fishing license to a Nova Scotia firm. The Dominion cruiser will see to it that the rights of the Dominion are maintained."

The Montreal Star referred editorially to the situation as follows:

"And yet there are people who complain that we have none of the excitements of war in this part of the world! Here is an armed cruiser sent out by the Ottawa Government against the minions of Premier Parent. What could possibly be more exciting for us in Quebec?

"It would not be so nerve racking if we quite knew which side we were on. But as Canadians we cheer for the gallant craft which carries the flag of our country against her perfidious enemies; while as Quebeckers we swing our hats for the noble defenders of the provincial fishing license issued by the bold Government at Quebec. If this province is beaten down by the insolent 'foreigners' from Ottawa, we cannot but fall under the ruins; but if the Dominion is set at naught by the rebellious 'natives' from Quebec, will we not, as Canadians, suffer ineffaceable outrage?"

Canned Salmon.

In a short interview with The Grocer, Watt, Scott & Goodacre stated "It is notorious that each year's pack resembles that of the fourth year previous. On this theory, 1904 should be a short year. On the Fraser River 32 canneries are closed and 18 are running on a much reduced scale. Buyers are taking the attitude, however, that these actual and problematical conditions are more than discounted in the opening prices, which it is thought will prove too high in the event of even a moderately fair run. A 'go slow policy' is likely to obtain until September 1."

Canners Confer.

At the recent conference of American and Canadian canners in Vancouver, B.C., it was decided to establish a police patrol at the boundary to prevent net cutting, the theft of boats, etc. The Americans also agreed to the principle of a weekly closed season, and will urge the Washington Government to make it compulsory south of the boundary line. The hatchery question was discussed, but no action taken, and it was unanimously decided that Canadians and Americans will hereafter refrain from invading each other's territory to buy fish.

Trade and Commerce in the East.

WITHIN the week The Grocer has had the pleasure of an interview with Mr. Alexander MacWillie, of Toronto, who has just completed a trip around the world in the interest of H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, U. S. Mr. MacWillie was for years in the grocery trade in Toronto, and has always been an admirer of The Grocer, although he says it has grown away from him by leaps and bounds since the early days. For the benefit of readers of The Grocer he has given the following impressions of trade and commerce as they exist to-day in the far east.

Japan as a Nation.

"Westerners are awakening to the fact that Japan is a wonderful nation. She has been making very rapid strides during the last ten or fifteen years, although it is the Russo-Japanese war that has brought her so prominently before the eyes of the civilized world. Speaking about civilization, there is a copper mine in the interior of Japan, probably one of the largest in the world, which has been worked for centuries. Long before the European ever set foot in Japan, the miners enjoyed the advantages of reading, writing and recreation rooms, baths, etc. To-day Japan has lines of steamships whose tonnage exceeds those of the White Star and Cunard lines. The service and accommodation to be had on these Japanese liners, moreover, is equal, and in many cases superior, to that on European boats, and if one wishes to travel in comfort he will not think twice about taking a berth on a Japanese steamship.

"Japan has more newspapers to the square mile than any other country in the world. Her system of government is the admiration of all who come into contact with conditions in Japan. You visit a Japanese school and will almost be deceived into believing you are in an up-to-date Canadian educational institution, except that our discipline does not suffer comparison with theirs. Another thing which immediately strikes the foreigner is the never-failing courtesy and politeness of the Jap. Wherever you go you are greeted with a smile and the Japanese salutation "Ohiho !"

Mr. MacWillie in Japan.

"The two outstanding features of the Jap are his thoroughness and wonderful genius for imitation. He thinks twice where we only think once. He goes into a modern confectionery factory for instance. He not only wishes to have the actual processes explained to the minutest details, but must needs know 'how you do this in first place,' 'how you improve on original methods.' You try to bargain with a Japanese woman for a piece of carving or silk embroidery in process of manufacture. You offer her 35 yen. 'It is not finished and I will not sell,' says she. You offer her 50 yen and may keep on increasing your offer but will not succeed in tempting her. Years ago oculists considered lenses of German manufacture to be without a peer. The Jap found this out, with the result that to-day Japanese lenses have largely taken their place in popular fancy. Columbia River salmon were exported to Japan, and in an incredibly short time a new brand of salmon made its appearance on the Japanese market which, except to experts, was an exact duplicate of the former.

The Jap is Not a Money-Grabber.

"Those in authority in Japan are beginning to see the evil influence of western civilization on their countrymen, and regular weekly letters are being distributed among the merchants of Japan by the Minister of Trade and Commerce, urging upon them the importance of honest trading. Strange to say, the Chinaman has not yet felt the influence of his money-grabbing white brother. A Chinaman goes into the bank at Shanghai for a loan of 40,000 taels. The bankers jot down the amount and John's name and the money is forthcoming without even the signing of a note. Not so the European or Jap ; with him gilt edged security is required. Right here it may be remarked that Canada had better think twice before introducing anti-alien labor laws against Japan and China. The time is coming, if not already here, when Canada will though it is questionable how long he will remain so, thanks to the European trader. Unfortunately it cannot be denied that he is tricky, so tricky that European merchants have found in advisable to transact all their business with Japan through the medium of Chinese agents stationed at Hong Kong. He is not wilfully dishonest; it is merely that he has found the methods adopted by the European trader to pay. You make money, and do so and so; I do the same, and the result is that the European is kept busy watching the Jap, so keen and sharp is the latter in a business deal.

SPECIAL NOTICE to the TRADE.

SUGAR PEAS.

WE are making a specialty of Sugar Peas packed under the label--very tender Sugar Peas. This line is sold at a price that brings it within the reach of everybody who eats canned peas. For the price it is the finest pea we pack. It is as tender as asparagus tips and the sweetest pea that grows. We imported the seed originally from England, five years ago, and have found it increase so much in favor that we have had to increase the acreage every year until we are packing more of this variety than any pea we pack.

Trade Prospects in the East.

"There appears to be a splendid opening for Canadian trade in both Japan and China, principally in breadstuffs. The possibility of establishing a permanent market for Canadian flour and fish among such an enormous population ought to be sufficient to tempt Canadian exporters to improve their opportunities to the utmost. True there is a good demand for these products in China and Japan at the present time, but the conditions of war are abnormal, and after things begin again to run smoothly, the flour and fish trade of Japan will go to the country that caters to the eastern trade. The trouble with the Canadian flour now going to Japan is that it's too hard. The American product is much better suited to the Japanese trade for this very reason. It might be worth while for the Canadian exporter with an eye to the future to send a demonstrator to Japan to show Japanese bakers wherein the excellence of Canadian flour consists. The Jap appreciates a practical demonstration above all things, and if he is once convinced that he can make advantageous use of a certain article he is sensible enough to follow up the opportunity.

"Japan undoubtedly appreciated the effort made by Canada last year at the Osaka Exposition. It now rests with Canadian exporters to turn to their own advantage the good impression created there. The trouble with Canada so far has been that wherever the export trade has been exploited, as a rule it has been done after a more or less spasmodic fashion. The eastern market will require the closest watching, as Canada has dangerous competitors on the field. One thing is certain, it will never do to leave things in the hands of brokers resident in these countries. They will undoubtedly look after the actual exchange of goods for the moment. In order to become thoroughly established as one of the foreign bidders for the trade of Japan, or any other country, the future has also to be considered and systematic efforts made towards the development of existing conditions. Nothing short of a thorough investigation of trade conditions in Japan and China will suffice. Canada must be in a position to profit from the experience of traders who have been in the field previously.

"The policy adopted so far by Canadian firms of sending a representative to Australia with a half a dozen lines belonging to different manufacturers, may be all right when viewed from the present. The exploitation of a new market, however, with a single commodity is quite sufficient to occupy the entire time and energy of the most capable business man. Canadians make the mistake of expecting big returns too soon. First establish yourself in a market, what matter if things are slow in coming your way, and keep at it until the tide turns in your direction.

The South African Field.

"The most promising field of all is South Africa. Here the Canadian enjoys the advantage of a prejudice in his favor. All that is necessary is to get the people in the way of using Canadian goods. Whenever this has been done Canadian products have won a secure place on the South African market. The attitude towards Canada in South Africa is such that even Canadian mechanics and artisans are paid more than those of any other nationality.

"Up to the present, Canadian manufacturers have been slow to grasp the possibilities of South African trade, valued as it is at $325,000,000 yearly. If they go about it in the right way they have the option of selling all the furniture, meal and flour used in South Africa. A big demand might also be created for Canadian dairy products and canned goods. Already considerable quantities of these have made their appearance in South African markets, where they have met with general acceptation. Let Canadian exporters, however, beware of sending cheap, bargain lots to South Africa, if they do not wish to cripple trade for the present and kill it for the future.

The West Indies.

"The same possibilities, although comparatively limited in extent, exist for building up a Canadian export trade with the West Indies. There is a big market there for Canadian flour and foodstuffs. Canadian flour is sent to Jamaica to-day, and if the agent in charge of it is judicious he is able to effect a ready sale. The head of the Canadian, however, is apparently turned by his success, for he is as likely as not to have advanced the price by the time the West Indian merchant sends in his next order. The result is that future orders are sent to New York. Canadian manufacturers seem to forget that they cannot afford to exhibit such marked signs of independence in trade until after they have introduced their particular commodity and won a secure place for it by successful competition with other bidders in the market. In the West Indies, as elsewhere, Canadian exporters have much to learn. In the initial stages of the Canadian export trade their aim should be to excel all other competitors, and not to stint money or pains until the desired place in the market is forthcoming. A nation anxious to become a trader in foreign markets, and at the same time content to worry along after a hand to mouth fashion, may awaken to the fact ten years hence, if it is not too late, that her methods of trading have all to be undone. Just now it is highly important for Canada to pay the most careful attention to building up her export trade. The stake is a big one—so big that few appreciate the full significance of it. Canada simply cannot afford to be outbid, and the sooner she realizes it the better."

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

White & Co. received their first car of Indiana cantaloupes in 1-2 bushel baskets. The quality is exceptionally nice, fully equal to the home product. Other cars are expected at regular intervals.

California fruit is receiving a good deal of attention from the trade these days. There has been a temporary scarcity of peaches and prices advanced. Plums have been in good supply, also Bartlett pears. Pears this year are even and regular and free from scab and ripen in excellent hard condition. White & Co. report that they are handling about one car per day.

Jas. Rutherford & Co., Montreal, advise the trade to write for samples of any special teas desired. Their large stock is offering at most interesting figures.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, have received a shipment of two cars of late valencia oranges.

Dandicolle & Gaudin, French and Tarragon vinegars in fancy bottles are in stock now with Lucas, Steele & Bristol, also C. & B. Malt and Tarragon.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol have another lot of Robertson's Scotch marmalade just to hand in pots and 7 lb. tins.

A car of the Golden brand of late valencia oranges and two cars of watermelons have been received by McWilliam and Everist. They are also handling immense quantities of raspberries, cucumbers and tomatoes.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, are at present advertising teas strongly. Interested buyers can write for samples.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, have some very interesting prices to offer the trade.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol have very choice new B. & S. cod in 100-lb. cases, also dry cured cod in bundles.

Fresh crabs in half pound tins have been received by Lucas, Steele & Bristol from British Columbia.

ONE of the principal objects of the canners' amalgamation was to reduce the cost of production to the lowest possible point, and at the same time improve the quality to the highest standard.

Sugar, Labels, Cases, Solder and Labor are considerably higher this season than in 1903. Notwithstanding this, our opening prices, so far as made, are lower than last season.

New Peas, Beans, Strawberries, Raspberries and Cherries are now ready for shipment. We are confident that quality will please, and think the present a favorable time to place your orders, and await your favors.

NEW TOBACCO BILL.

THE Minister of Inland Revenue at Ottawa has announced his firm intention to press into legislation this session a resolution forbidding the wholesale tobacco interests of Canada from framing contracts with retailers binding them to deal with no other concern for supplies of tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, than themselves. Strong pressure is being brought to bear on the Government by the American Tobacco Co. and its friends, to prevent the adoption of Mr. Brodeur's proposed Act, and at the same time manufacturers of Canadian and combination leaf are working tooth and nail to secdre legislation which they claim will put an end to an unjustifiable practice which has existed in the tobacco trade for some time past. According to the new bill the Government appropriates the power to cancel the licenses of any manufacturer of goods subject to the excise duty who either directly or indirectly

(a) Makes a sale of any such goods to a person who sells or intends to sell goods of that class in connection with his own business subject to the condition that the purchaser shall not sell or deal in goods of a like kind produced, obtained or to be obtained from any other manufacturer or dealer; or

(b) Makes such sale upon terms that would in their application deprive the purchaser of any profit upon the sale of such goods, if they should so sell or deal; or

(c) Consign any such goods to another person for sale upon commission, upon such terms that the consignee can profit by such sale only if he does not sell or deal in goods of a like kind manufactured by or obtained, or to be obtained, from any other manufacturer or dealer.

The situation, in brief, is as follows: Manufacturers of tobacco in Canada may make exclusive contracts with wholesale merchants for the handling of their particular goods. If the latter introduce any other brand the manufacturers may boycott them entirely or else put up the price of their goods to such an extent that the profit of handling is greatly minimized.

As far as The Grocer can learn the wholesale grocery and tobacco trades are satisfied with existing conditions, and object to Government interference between the manufacturer of goods and the seller. According to present regulations dealers in tobacco carry only certain lines, usually those in greatest demand, whereas if there were no restrictions they would have to stock a greater variety, for the bulk of which the demand would be more or less irregular. They claim, moreover, that even if the new law were to come in force the manufacturers of Canadian and combination leaf are not in a position to supply the demands of the market.

In the eyes of Canadian tobacco manufacturers the proposed legislation will go far towards putting the Canadian tobacco industry on a proper footing. Up to the present it has been outside the pale of competition on account of having been denied the legitimate channels of trade, viz., the wholesale grocer and wholesale tobacconist. Directly Canadian manufacturers are put on an even footing with the parties to the trust, they haven't the least fear of being able to hold their own. They claim that their products are quite equal to those supplied by the trust, with the exception of cigarettes, and that given reasonable time they will have no difficulty in looking after this end of the tobacco trade. Their plea on the whole is for the more adequate protection of the Canadian tobacco industry. This phase of the question will undoubtedly be carefully considered before the fate of the proposed bill is finally decided.

A REBATE QUESTION.

HAS a manufacturer of any patent article the right to reduce his price without allowing the jobber the amount of such rebate on stock in store, or must the loss fall on the wholesaler?

The Grocer has been asked this question, and unless there are special clauses in the primary purchase order precluding any such allowance on the part of the manufacturer, it strikes us that, in order to be fair and just to the trade, the manufacturer should remit to the jobber amount of rebate on stock carried when reduction is made. By saying "fair and just" is meant fair and just not only to the jobber who has carried the goods in stock for long periods and interested himself and his travelers in the sale of the goods, but also fair to the retailer. It may be said that the notice of reduction in price is given in plenty of time to allow the jobber to dispose of his stock, or reduce it to such a small compass that the loss of the rebate is unworthy of argument, but why should the jobber unload on the retailer and "stick him?" Why should the retailer pay a higher price for the article now when he can purchase it to better advantage in a few weeks or a month?

It is generally understood, and an uncontrovertible trade fact, that the manufacturer as a rule has the largest profit, particularly on articles that are patented, and it seems to us that he can best afford to make the reduction to the jobber. As a matter of policy to retain the good will of the jobber and his interest in the further handling of the goods, the manufacturer, if he is wise and experienced, will get over the question by freely and gracefully sending the credit note. Of course, if this is done, a statutory declaration from the jobber might be required as to the actual number of barrels, or cases, etc., on hand, and this declaration would, no doubt, be readily furnished.

There seems to us to be no question as to the best way of disposing of this matter, which is one that not infrequently enters into transactions between manufacturers and wholesale grocers. It cannot be argued that the jobber is "squealing" unjustly, as the goods are not bought in the open market subject to its fluctuations, but are private, patent articles, to be bought only through a certain channel, at fixed prices, and under stated conditions of sale, and the purchaser has no chance of getting them on the drop and selling them again when the market has recovered. If the manufacturer makes a reduction, it argues chiefly that he has been able to buy his raw material cheaper, or through improved processes of manufacture cost of production is lessened to warrant a concession to the trade and retailer,—he is therefore not the loser. There are a number of manufacturers who follow the right rule of protecting the jobbing and (through the jobber) the retail trade by sending credit notes to the amount of stock on hand. Experience has taught them that this is the easiest and pleasantest way to retain the interest and good will of all concerned.

AN UNFORTUNATE INCIDENT.

MR. R. BACON, a graduate of Harvard University and a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, has been arrested at Port Arthur, on the charge of having violated the Alien Labor Law of Canada. Mr. Bacon entered Canada under a written contract with Mr. J. R. Stephens, chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, to assume the position of harbor expert for the railway at Port Arthur. The arrest is one of the first results of the agitation, which has been general throughout the country, looking towards the exclusive employment of Canadian engineers in such construction works as the building of the G. T. P.

The action taken by the solicitor-general in ordering the arrest of so prominent a man as Mr. Bacon is certainly a most serious step. It will be heard of through the length and breadth of Mr. Bacon's native land, and will assuredly arouse prejudice of an unpleasant character. Possibly the parties responsible for the arrest were not sensible of what the result would be.

If there is one thing the people of the United States have been generous in, it has been the recognition of talent among our professional men. There are few American universities in which Canadians do not hold positions on the staff, and a man has but to do tolerably well in a Canadian university to be welcomed on the other side of the line. The same is true of graduates in medicine, law and applied science, who are all represented in the various centres of the United States. Frequently the only possible openings for young Canadians of brains are to be found there.

By the short-sighted policy of driving out American engineers from Canada, a great injury will be done to this beneficial sentiment in the United States. Can Canada afford at this juncture to incur the prejudices of American professional men? Would it be wise at any time? Assuredly not.

Canada must never allow herself to become so prejudiced and hide-bound that she cannot welcome men of brains to her shores, whatever section of the world they come from. Then she can conscientiously demand equal consideration for her sons wherever they may go.

We do not deny that there has been extreme provocation in the present instance. Mr. Stephens went about hiring engineers for the G. T. P. in a bull-headed way. He evidently took the ground that it was nobody else's business but his own, and that he would engage whom he pleased. This was certainly not the proper course. The G. T. P. is as near being a national work as anything we can name, and it was Mr. Stephens' business to steer a politic course and let Canadians build the line, as far as it was possible. Then, where competent Canadian engineers were not available it would have been perfectly justifiable for him to have accepted the services of competent Americans.

Prior to the arrest of Mr. Bacon, the feeling in certain parts of the United States was exhibiting a tendency to become antagonistic to Canadians. The experiences of several young Canadians were unpleasant,—a circumstance directly due to the unfortunate agitation in Canada against the American engineers. If the antagonism was noticeable before any action was taken to deport these engineers, it is natural to conclude that it will be many times as strong, now that an American has been arrested.

PUT WIRES UNDERGROUND.

THERE was borne home to every witness of the Eby-Blain fire in Toronto last week the vital importance of doing away with those unsightly and dangerous overhead wires with which corporate selfishness impedes our streets. On the west side the tower could not be brought anywhere near the building on account of the wires and in the front the ladder was raised only to be held back by an entangling mass of these ugly barriers.

It is true they were cut in a few minutes, but a few minutes may mean the saving or destruction of millions of property.

In the down town portion of a crowded city there is no excuse for overhead wires. They should be put underground at once, and business men should see that the proper steps are taken to effect this end.

THE HIGH PRICE OF SUGAR.

The advance of five cents per hundred made by Canadian refiners in the sugar list on Wednesday last marks a rise of 60 cents per hundred on the lowest price for the year and the statistical position is strong enough to keep the market firm at this price. Stocks both in Cuba and the United States are much lower than a year ago and meltings keep high, while reports of the crops from Europe are not of an optimistic character. The indications are that the housewife will have to face an adverse market for the canning season. It is probable, however, that the dearness of sugar along with the high price of fruit will curtail consumption and consequently react on the market before a great while.

EGGS.

During the past week receipts have been rather light. The demand is poor, no doubt due to the heavy fruit business. Commission houses report business as not encouraging and are holding off as prices are not in their favor. We quote: Straight gathered stock sold at 15 1-4 to 15 1-2c, candled at 17c and the seconds keep at 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c per dozen.

BEANS.

Market dull and little doing. Car lots are quoted at $1.25, and $1.30 to $1.35 for smaller quantities. The bean market continues slow. In a jobbing way, choice primes were sold at $1.35 to $1.40 a bushel, while car lots of choice primes were quoted at $1.30, and primes at $1.25 per bushel.

HONEY.

The market is featureless. The few lots of new honey that have been offering were not eagerly snapped up and only brought about 11 to 11 1-2c. White clover is quoted at 13 1-2 to 14c. Extracted white clover is 8 to 8 1-2c in 10 lb. tins, and 7 to 7 1-2c in 300 lb. kegs. Buckwheat remains at 6 and 7c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Unchanged market and little business going. Syrup in tins at 60 to 70c, wine measure, while kegs are quoted at 5 1-2 to 5 3 4c per lb.

Prices continue to ease off; new good quality were offered at $2.00 in bbls. and 90c per bag.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

An improvement is apparent, the feeling generally being better. Stocks have been allowed to get down and buying to replenish is being done. This week's business is considerably better than last, receipts being largely in excess, though still very much under last year's.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, August 3, 1904.

Groceries.

TRADE is rather at a standstill owing to the travelers being off the road on their holidays. Mail orders, however, are reported in pretty fair volume, and the general consensus of opinion would go to show that trade is on a pretty good basis, considering the time of the year. There are few failures and collections are on the whole satisfactory. There is little variation to report in prices. Canned goods are enjoying considerable attention, and the price has been made for new peas at 82 1-2c and $1.25. Canned meats are meeting a good enquiry. Sugar is firm at last week's prices and meeting a good consumptive demand. Indeed, one refiner is asking five cents above the list. Syrups and molasses are featureless. No interest is being manifested in teas which are unchanged from last writing. Coffees are higher than buyers' ideas and so little trade is developing. Spices are finding a more brisk demand in anticipation of the pickling season. Rice is about unchanged, but a firmer feeling is reported from primal markets for tapioca. Reports from Patras would indicate a smaller crop of currants than last year and an advance is noted in Smyrna figs, where the crop will also be smaller. Jobbers are said to be unloading Malaga raisins at a loss as it is not thought that the market for new crop will open as high as a year ago. New apricots are held high and little business has been done.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods situation is absorbing a good deal of interest. New peas have appeared on the market and the price made at 82 1-2c and $1.25. The market is practically bare of corn and prospects are not overly encouraging for the new crop. There are plenty of tomatoes to tide over the period before the new pack is marketed. Letters from the Pacific coast report the Spring pack of salmon on the Skeena at 4,000 cases against 23,000 last year. The market for salmon is very strong. Canned meats are in good demand. SUGAR

The firmness noted in our recent reports has been more than fully maintained, and while there has been no change in the Canadian refined sugar list, we understand that one refiner is asking an advance of five cents per hundred pounds over current list quotations. We have, however, to record an advance of five cents per cwt. in New York sugar quotations. All refiners are now selling firm on bass of 4.95 net for standard granulated. Since our last there have been large sales of centrifugal sugars ex warehouse New York at four cents duty paid for basis 96c, an advance of 1-16 over previous spot sales. Just as we went to press last there were large sales of Cuba centrifugal for August shipment at 2 19-32c cost and freight for basis 94c, which is equal to full duty parity of 4.02 for basis 96. Since then there have been sales of further large quantities totaling from 30,000 to 35,000 bags for August shipment at 2 5-8c c. and f for basis 94c and at 2 11-16c c. and f. for basis 95c. These sales establish a further advance of 1-32 to 1-16c over previous sales. U. S. refiners have been eager buyers of all available supplies and while Europe maintains the disparity of prices which at present exists no doubt the Americans will secure every available lot of Cuban sugars at or about current values. It is estimated that the balance supply available in Cuba is only 114,000 tons and of that probably 16,000 tons will be required for local consumption, leaving less than 100,000 tons for export, which is only about 2 1-2 weeks' supply for U. S. Atlantic refiners on present basis of meltings. The significance of this will be observed when it is noted that on January 1st of this year the Cubans were holding stocks of 94,835 tons. Receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports for week ending July 27 were 19,633 tons with meltings of 40,000, thus reducing stocks to 166,013 tons against 186,380 tons previous week and 307,032 tons last year. Combined stocks of U. S. and Cuba according to latest advices were 272,513 tons, against 308,380 tons previous week and 586,532 tons last year, a decrease of 314,019 from last year. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,060,513 tons against 2,511,898 tons last year, the decrease being 451,385 tons.

European markets have assumed further strength during the week, and the price of beet has advanced during the week 1 1-2d and is now equal to duty paid parity of 4.08 for 96 test centrifugals. There has been a good demand for refined, both in U. S. and Canada, and it is within the bounds of probability that the strength of the raw position may now be reflected in refined. It is stated that while prices have advanced 55c per cwt. from the lowest point of the year there is no reason why they should not advance further when the present strong position of raws is taken into consideration, and while all the news indicates a considerable shortage in prospective supplies. The continued drought in Europe is believed to be very damaging to the roots and the question of supplies for refiners during the next 8 weeks has come to be increasingly serious. At present U. S. refineries in New York, Boston and Philadelphia have less than three weeks' stock on hand from which it will be seen that they are very dependent upon all available nearby sugars.

TEAS.

The Japan situation is unchanged. In spite of the lower range of prices as compared with a year ago amounting to 10 per cent. on the average, very little buying has been done for Canadian account, importers fearing that the trade may in large measure continue to take Ceylon greens. There is no change in the position of the Ceylon and Indian markets beyond an improvement in quality of Ceylon and hardening values for the respective grades in consequence. We quote:

COFFEES.

There is a little more interest in coffee reported this week and some inquiries for purchase, but buyers are holding off as the market is higher than their ideas and they are looking for an easier market in which to buy. SPICES.

Cable advices from London on Saturday reported an advance of 1c per pound in white pepper with the market strongly rising. Black has also advanced in London. A very active trade demand for pepper and cassia is reported in New York and the situation shows real improvement along conservative demands and generally higher prices are expected. Stocks are small on the spot. Locally the approach of the pickling season is lending new interest to spices and retailers are laying in their supplies. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits

Currants continue to advance. Not only is the crop much smaller than reported earlier in the season, but it has been damaged by rain and the effect of the new legislation is also making itself felt. Cables from Patras this week report heavy rains and advancing markets. First shipments of raisins will be made about the middle of this month and it is not thought the opening prices will be on so high a level as last year. A cable from Smyrna on Tuesday reports an advance of 2s per cwt. on figs. This crop will be smaller than last year.

On the local market apricots are practically off. Quotations for new apricots are very high and few orders have been placed yet. Stocks of Malaga raisins are being reduced by some houses that have been over-stocked and as much as 1c under cost has been accepted. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Receipts are picking up a little this last week, but prices are yet high and firm. Indeed dealers declare that they do not remember a time when eggs were so high at this time of year. It looks like another winter of dear eggs. Quality is not good and there is a heavy shrinkage. With the hens laying more freely, however, it is expected that the market may be a little easier before long. We quote eggs 16 and 17c.

HONEY.

Interest in honey is developing and some sales are learned of. Values are higher than a year ago and from all reports the crop will not be up to last year. We quote:

BEANS.

The demand for beans shows little change from last week. Quotations are easier. We quote:

APPLES.

Dried apples are not of any particular interest just at present, but for evaporated there is a fair demand. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Activity is very apparent in the fruit market. Supplies are coming in well and the demand is generally able to take care of the supply. On Saturday preceding Monday's holiday there was a glut and raspberries sold down as low as 5 to 5 1-2c. On Tuesday again there were heavy supplies but the market was able to take care of everything. Black currants are somewhat scarce and red quite so. Prices for lemons have gone up and will likely remain so long as the weather keeps hot. A cool spell, however, would witness a fall. Oranges are away up, but still have a good demand. We quote:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The demand on the grain market continues good. The recent change in prices is due to speculating on the outlook of the present crop. Trade is very brisk and the outlook is good. Manitoba northern No. 1 has advanced 5c per bu., while Manitoba northern Nos. 2 and 3 have each advanced 4 1-2c per bu. Red wheat has advanced 2 1-2c per bu., white has advanced 3c per bu. Barley has advanced 2c per bu., while oats have advanced 1c per bu. We quote:

FLOUR.

The demand for flour is increasing. This is caused by an excitable wheat market due to the poor outlook for wheat crops this Fall. Trade is brisk and everything looks bright. During the week under review, Manitoba wheat patents have advanced from 10 to 20c per bbl., strong bakers have advanced from 15 to 25c per bbl., while Ontario wheat patents have advanced from $4.50 and $4.80 to $4.65 and $4.95, and straight roller has advanced from $4.40 and $4.55 to $4.55 and $4.70. Our quotations:

BREAKFAST FOODS.

The demand for breakfast foods continues to be good. Though prices are unchanged trade is still brisk and everything moves brightly along. Our quotations are as follows:

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

The hide market is very firm and receipts are small. Receipts of wool are also small as dealers in the country are holding off for higher prices. Whether or not they will secure prices asked is doubtful. In the meantime business is practically at a standstill. We quote:

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B. C., July 28, 1904.

WITH good conditions prevailing throughout the interior, the demand for goods from this city is almost brisk, with a prospect of continuance. While W. T. Shatford & Co. announce that they will close their Slocan branch because of depression in that part of the province, news comes from Nelson that the south-eastern portion of the province is enjoying better times than at any previous period. Three things combine to make this possible, namely, activity in lumbering, mining and railway building. Shatford & Co. are closing up on the 15th of August, and the fact that they have given less than a month's notice for the clearing up of accounts is an indication that there is some money going, else they would have given longer warning.

In the Okanagan district, the impetus to the fruit growing industry is considerable, and in the Kamloops district both mining and lumbering contribute to make things look lively. Hon. Richard McBride, premier, and Hon. Charles Wilson, attorney-general, have just returned from Cariboo and report that mining operations there are being carried on with vigor. If the report is true that bed rock gravels have been struck on Lightning Creek, one of the richest in the district, it will give a general rise to conditions in Cariboo.

Locally there is no particular feature in the market. With the strike among the meat workers in Chicago, there is a prospect of a sharp advance in the price of cured meats. In hams there is already an increase of five cents per pound to the small buyer, and this may be added to if the strike in Chicago continues.

A public market may now be established in Vancouver since the railway bridge over the Fraser River has been constructed. This market has been long and often talked of, but as Vancouver had no rapid direct communication with the Fraser River valley it was never carried out. Last Summer, the steamer Hamlin, operating between up-river points and Vancouver, brought a considerable amount of goods to this city, and showed what might be done if the merchants were to take hold of the matter with the aid of a railway. With the Fraser valley and Lulu island to supply everything in the way of products of field and farmyard, there is a great advantage for the farmer in trading in this city. The project will likely be taken up in earnest now.

In fruit, stocks are plentiful and conditions good. Peaches are a little scarce, it being too early for Crawfords. There has been an advance of 50c to 75c in oranges, and fancy valencias are now going at $4.25. There is a plentiful supply of plums from the south, and pears have declined 25c. It was thought apricots would be stiff in price, and though the California product was not very plentiful, the market has been flooded with apricots from Wenatchee, in eastern Washington, which are not quite as good a grade as the others. The consequence of rushing them here has been that the price is very low, and they are selling at from 80c to 90c. Potatoes have declined from $1.50 to $1.25. Some excellent "yellow skin" onions have arrived from California and are commanding a high price, going at from $3 to $3.25. The onions from Walla Walla compare very favorably with those from California yet they sell at a much cheaper figure. $2.25. The local fruit market is now quiet. Small fruits have had their day, and early apples and pears are not yet in.

This does not seem to be a year for a big run in salmon. Every four years is the alternate period put down by the canners, and as the big run took place last in 1901, it will be next year before they again come in numbers. It has been again demonstrated, though, that the traps erected off the southern shore of Vancouver island are taking many of the fish which would otherwise go into the American traps. Advices from the Sound are that the pack is so small that the packers do not know how to form an estimate. Few fish are being caught, and the price is 25c, a record height.

At the Skeena and Rivers Inlet the reverse is in order. The run there is good, and instead of an average of 12, 15, 18, with 20 considered very good, the boats are taking away up in the hundreds. Northern salmon is good quality, and the pack will be a good one.

In connection with fish, the New England Fish Co., which have offices here, and bring in the halibut for shipment to eastern markets, are packing considerable away in cold storage. The market just now is not the best, and these fish are being saved for the time when the demand is good.

The crop of hops from the Agassiz and Chilliwack districts is expected to be one of the largest yet.

Steamer Empress of India had on board when she departed for the Orient 2,100 tons of cargo, a large proportion of which was flour. Some of this came from Washington state.

The Kosmos liner Ramses is in port with 200 tons of raw sugar for the refinery here.

Steamer City of Puebla, from San Francisco, brought up a large amount of groceries in her general cargo on the last trip.

Cattle are now being rushed to Dawson, and all the steamers which carry animals have some on board. The hulk Henrietta will get away again next week with a full cargo, and the Venture will also take 35 head, in addition to general cargo. The City of Seattle also had some on when she left for the north in the early part of the week. P. Burns & Co. are big shippers.

Flour was a good part of the cargo of the R. M. S. Aorangi, which left last Friday for Australia.

Sandon people import their ice cream from Spokane, and though duty is $7.50 per shipment it is found profitable.

Mr. McCandless has retired from the business of Carter & McCandless, Victoria, and business is now known as Geo. Carter & Co. They deal in Oriental merchandise.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, July 29, 1904.

THE Dominion fair is now in full swing and, although there was some little delay in the case of a number of exhibits owing to the great rush in the handling of freight, this matter soon remedied itself and every exhibit is now complete. The entire exhibition is proving to be a success and is meeting with the full appreciation of the many thousands of strangers that visit the grounds each day.

Business is bright and all markets are steady with the exception of sugar which advanced five cents on the 25th inst.

Sugar—The market has advanced 5c and Montreal granulated is now quoted at $5.15 in barrels and $5.05 in sacks; yellows, $4.55. Wallaceburgh is still holding the price firm at $4.95 in barrels and $4.85 in sacks.

Rolled Oats—The market is holding prices steady, quoting 80 lb. sacks at $2.25; 40 lb. sacks at $2.30; 20 lb. sacks at $2.35; 8 lb. sacks at $2.65; and 6 lb. sacks at $2.85.

Flour—The market continues firm. No. 1 patent is quoted at $2.45; No. 2 at $2.20, and No. 3 at $1.80.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—The new stock of evaporated apricots is now on the market. They are quoted at 13c per lb. All the old stock of evaporated apples and apricots is practically off the market.

Canned Fruits—Canned strawberries are about to make their appearance on the market and, as the canners control the price list, we will be unable to quote prices. They will undoubtedly be higher this year owing to the crop being so small. Jams will advance in price on account of the scarcity of all fruits and the high price of sugar.

Green Fruits—The market is fairly firm. Oranges are quoted at $5.00 a case; California lemons $5.00 a case; bananas, $2.75 to $3.00 a bunch; peaches, $1.35 a crate; plums $2.25 a crate; pears, $3.50 a crate; watermelons, $4.00 to $5.00 a dozen, according to size; apples in boxes $2.50; raspberries in pints, $2.25 per case; blueberries, 8c a lb.; tomatoes $2.00 a crate; rhubarb 2c a lb. onions, 4c a lb.; new cabbage, 3c a lb.; new potatoes are on the market but they are not very plentiful and are quoted at about 3c a lb.

Salt. The market as a whole quotes prices a little lower than last year, 3 lb. bags at $3.25; 5 lb. bags at $5.25; 50 lb. cotton sacks at 49c a sack; 50 lb. jute sacks at 39c a sack and common fine or coarse in barrels $1.95.

Eggs—The market is a little in advance of last week and eggs are now jobbing to the trade at 21c per dozen.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N. B., August 3, 1904.

BUSINESS continues quiet with payments just fairly satisfactory. One result of the big coal strike of two years ago is the continued large quantity of Scotch coal used here. This was unknown before; now it is very freely used. It commands a higher price than American hard coal, and some consumers will have no other. A steamer arriving this week from Glasgow brought over 10,000 bags. There are continued importations.

Some of our business houses have exhibits at the big fair at Winnipeg. Mr. Emerson, of Emerson & Fisher, and Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, packer of Red Rose tea, are both visiting there, being interested in large exhibits.

We have in the east a product little known in the west, "dulse." You seldom find an eastern person not fond of it, and if they can procure it when away from home, particularly if they have been away sometime, it is greatly prized. We ship quite a quantity to Philadelphia. While cheap it is this season higher than usual as it is very scarce. The best comes from Grand Manan. A feature of our market at this time is the extreme high price of dry fish for the season. Markets are generally firm, though it looks as if nothing would move lard. This is quite a large market for pickles. Chiefly English are used. Quite a trade is done this year in English pickles in gallons and quarts. Except in a retail way American pickles are not seen and even then little outside of sweet are sold. So far there has been little change in the price of rice. The market is firm. The new deal in soda is of much interest. It is understood the Americans will contest the business on this side the Atlantic and much higher prices are expected. J. A. Tilton has been appointed representative in New Brunswick for Lever Bros., manufacturers of Sunlight Soap.

Oil.

There has been little of interest in this line for some time. The demand for burning oil is good and the price continues low. In lubricating oil there is a steady sale and paint oil remains unchanged, but in linseeds the import price is higher. Cod oil is being received; market is somewhat dull and rather lower values rule.

Salt.

A steamer with some 5,000 bags of Liverpool coarse salt and some factory filled will shortly leave the other side. As salt can always be bought lower while landing, than out of store, those needing supplies should have their orders in for delivery ex steamer. So far sales for the season have been but fair. In Canadian salt there is a good steady business. There is a regular sale for cheese and butter salt.

Canned Goods.

New goods are beginning to arrive. Already new Spring salmon are here. Price is high this season. New peas, strawberries and raspberries are seen. In peas the arrival of new goods has tended to rather lower prices. Fruits, however, are rather higher. Crops are light this year. This does not apply to apples. Meats are unchanged. Full prices are asked for corn and tomatoes. In domestic fish such as sardines and kippered herring, the outlook is for a small pack. Clams and haddies are in almost as bad a position.

Green Fruit.

Dealers are very busy. California peaches, pears and plums are arriving freely and prices are rather easier. These somewhat affect the demand for bananas. Oranges, particularly Californias, are higher. Lemons are very firm. Apples are now freely received and quality is continually improving. Melons have but a limited sale. Pines are about out of the market. Market has been well supplied with local strawberries and raspberries.

Dried Fruit.

Business is quiet in the local market. While dealers are very generally buying California fruits they have not bought as freely as one would expect from the extreme low prices quoted, these the result of having no association on the coast. Every effort possible is being made to form one and success would mean a sharp advance. The low price ruling in California raisins will mean valencias and malagas will have to be quoted low to command business. Evaporated apples are higher. French peanuts are being sold quite freely.

Molasses.

In spite of the large stock of Porto Rico molasses held, prices are firm and some are quoting a cent advance. There is some range of quality in this line. Barbadoes is very firm at the advance. There is still quite a wide difference in the two prices.

Sugar.

Prices showed a further small advance during the week. There has been quite a regular steady advance for some time. Market continues very firm. Dealers carry full stocks. There continue to be received quite large quantities of foreign granulated sugar.

Fish.

Business is rather quiet and supply is very light. Season of improved demand is now near. Dry codfish are particularly high and scarce for the season. Pickled herring come to hand slowly and full prices are asked. Smoked herring are still very high. There is a light supply of fresh fish at this season. It is getting late for salmon.

Flour, Feed and Wheat.

In flour, while prices are unchanged, market is firm. Feed is rather higher, but a light demand. Oats are firm; business not large. Oatmeal is still held at the high figures. Cornmeal remains unchanged. Beans are still low and but few are selling. Barley and split peas are rather higher. Light stocks are held.

TRINIDAD MARKET NOTES.

LATEST market reports from Port of Spain, Trinidad, say the market in breadstuffs is steady, with stocks moderate and prices well maintained. Bakers' flour is still selling rather slowly, but there is a good inquiry for other grades, supers particularly, the stock of which is nearly exhausted. Corn meal is wanted, but there has been no improvement in the demand for imported bread and crackers. Provisions remain practically unchanged, and pork and lard, although somewhat firmer, are not quotably higher. Pork heads, loins, shoulders, ribs, and all such articles of sound quality invariably command full prices.

Good split herring are wanted, but the demand for other kinds of pickled fish outside the Lenten season is insignificant. Wrapping paper is in oversupply and difficult of sales even at present low quotations. Blue mottled soap sells readily, but for the imported brown quality there is very little inquiry on account of local supplies.

Cultivation operations for the next sugar crop are being steadily pushed ahead, and under the influence of favorable weather the growing canes are thriving well. During the next few months there is not likely to be any increase to the limited supplies of cocoa now available. The new crop should commence about September or October, and with a continuance of favorable weather liberal supplies are likely to be marketed during the latter months of the year.

HERE IS YOUR CHANCE.

DISCOVERY OF CONDENSED MILK.

IT chanced that in 1854 the journey from New Orleans to New York was a considerable trip. A certain lady—Mrs. Albert Cashingor—had a sick child and found it necessary to make a trip to New York to receive expert medical attention if she hoped to save the child's life, but to travel that long distance the child had to have milk, and milk wouldn't keep fresh more than a few hours. So there she was kept back from the trip merely because she could not supply the child with fresh milk.

In her dispair she began to experiment to see if she could not preserve milk the same as she did jelly or anything else. She tried several different methods, and finally hit upon a plan which seemed to give satisfaction. So she preserved several big jars of the stuff, put it upon a sailing vessel and made the trip. The child fed upon the milk and was nourished. In New York several men learned of her discovery. They tried to make some of the condensed milk in the manner that she had told them, but failed. They followed her to New Orleans, and there she unwittingly unfolded her valuable secret. On the Island of Galveston these men started a small factory, and there the first salable condensed milk was made. The woman died poor. The manufacturers made a fortune. Now condensed milk is sold in every part of the world.

DRUMMERS' SNACK CLUB'S ANNUAL OUTING.

THE seventh annual outing of the Drummers' Snack Club, held at Alton on Friday and Saturday last, proved the most successful in the history of the club. Year by year the interest is growing in the "Carnival of Copers" at "Camp Kilcare," and the event is looked forward to with much enthusiasm, not only by commercial travelers, but the citizens of Alton and surrounding country and towns.

Friday evening the town turned out en masse to welcome the boys, and as the train steamed into the depot cheer after cheer rent the air. A procession was formed, headed by the 13th Regt. band of Hamilton, followed by a magnificent float beautifully decorated, bearing seven charming young ladies, representing the several provinces of the Dominion. Following in line came twenty-six pretty little girls in Scotch bonnets, white dresses and sashes of red, white and blue, altogether an exceedingly pretty picture. Then came the drummers, their wives, sweethearts and friends.

The Concert.

Owing to the train being late the entertainment was somewhat late in commencing, but once under way the vast audience, fully two thousand, were amply repaid for their patient wait. Mr Wm. Algie, honorary president, the "Daddy of the Snack," occupied the chair, filling the position in his usual urban and versatile manner. The Snack minstrels opened the entertainment, the following members taking part: Tambo—Bob. Smith, Billy Thompson, Harry Eckstein. Bones—Bay Hill, Sam. Male, Billy Allen. Chorus—Geo. Robertson, Major Moore, D. Woodcroft, E. Morwick, D. Cameron, Fred. Abbs, D. Griffith, Geo. Smye, Jim. Marshall, John McCoy, Lem. Tufford, Jack Duffy, Charley Beattie, James Hooper, Charley Smith.

At the conclusion of the entertainment a banquet was tendered the drummers by the ladies of Alton. Speeches, songs, recitals, followed, and two hours of pleasure were indulged in.

Saturday's Events.

Saturday broke fine, and with the rise of the sun came the tattoo of the morning call. The boys awakened from their peaceful slumbers, donned the Snack uniform for duty—white pants, shirt, collar, cap and boots, with black tie—and sallied forth, after having enjoyed a sumptuous breakfast provided by their hostesses, the ladies of the town. While the water sports were going on the band gave a delightful open air concert on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Wm. Algie. The afternoon was devoted to all kinds of athletic sports, including baseball match between the home nine and a picked team of travelers, the former winning the handsome medals donated by the club. The "Old Abe" cigar baseball match between travelers was won by "Billy" Irving's team.

Prize Winners.

Winners of the other events were as follows:

Gentlemen's swimming race—1st H. Crosthwaite; 2nd T. Male. Ladies' swimming race—1st Miss Algie; 2nd Miss Dorrington. Dangle dollar or slippery pole—1st Bert. Hellock; 2nd, O. Barber. Shooting the chutes—1st D. Thom; 2nd H. Thurston. Taking the Merrimac—Messrs. Abbs and Crosthwaite. Best lady waltzer—Miss A. Daly, Toronto. Ladies' Comfort Soap race—1st Miss Jean Barber; 2nd Miss Jean Smith; 3rd Miss Nellie Young; 4th Miss Maud Johnston; 5th Miss C. Mackie; 6th Miss Ethel Hill, and 7th Miss Netta Awrey. Baby show—1st Olive, daughter of Mr. Joe Dodds—ten babies exhibited, all pretty. Fat men's race—1st W. B. Tufford; 2nd Fred. Abbs; 3rd M. Mathews. Sorting trip race—1st L. H. Moore; 2nd F. R. Abbs; 3rd D. Woodcroft. Throwing baseball—gentlemen, Mr. J. Gibbs; ladies, Miss J. Gibbs. Cake walk—Miss C. Algie. Traveler's wife attending most Snacks—Mrs. Bert Menzie. Handsomest traveler—Mr. J. Maxwell; homeliest—Mr. C. Smith. Best stump speech—Mr. Jack Mackie. Tug of war, grocers vs. dry goods—a draw. Traveler with best head—the president.

The afternoon band concert by the 13th Regt. band was greatly enjoyed. At the business meeting of the club the following officers were elected for 1904-5: Hon. presidents, Wm. Algie, Jas. Hooper and E. E. W. Moore. President, Robt Keyes, Toronto. Secretaries, for Toronto, Jack Mackie; for Hamilton, Guy Long. Home secretary, Robt. Algie. Treasurer, S. E. Ryan, Guelph. Executive committee, Alton, Dr. Jas. Algie, W. White and Bert. Mason; Hamilton, C. Smith, D. Griffith and J. Maxwell; Toronto, Bert. Menzie, F. C. Hunt and Wm. Anderson. Auditors, S. H. Moore and W. P. Malone. The annual report shows the club to be in a flourishing financial condition, and a handsome balance was carried forward to next year.

Presentation.

At the conclusion of the business meeting Robt. Algie, who for many years has acted as home secretary, was presented with the following address and a beautiful silver service.

Address.

Dear Mr. Algie,—The commercial travelers, (members of the Drummers' Snack Club), desiring to acknowledge the unselfish interest you have always manifested in their behalf, avail themselves of the present occasion to express their sincere appreciation of your untiring efforts and the high esteem in which you are held by every member of the club.

Alton, we owe a deep debt of gratitude for the warm welcome accorded us at all times, yet we know that you, sir, as home secretary for many years, have given freely of your time and means that our comforts might be attended to and the "Snack" made a success.

It must therefore be gratifying to you and the citizens of Alton in general, as it is most certainly to ourselves, that the time has arrived when you can with pride and honor to yourself acclaim "Eureka," and feel assured that the Drummers' Snack is now and will continue to be a time of real enjoyment, not only to commercial travelers and the exceptionally warm hearted people of this most hospitable town, but to the pleasure seeking public that annually come miles to participate at our festive gathering.

Wishing in all sincerity Mrs. Algie, family and yourself, years of health, happiness and prosperity, we ask your acceptance of the accompanying service of silver as a slight token of recognition of time devoted in a labor of love, without a selfish thought, for a noble cause—the formation, completion and perpetuation of a common brotherhood of good fellowship among the travelling salesmen and the citizens of the town of your adoption.

Signed on behalf of the boys: E. E. W. Moore, president; S. E. Ryan, treasurer; C. Smith and W. Colville, secretaries; F. Menzie, Robert. Keyes, E. F. Clarke, Guy Long, Bert. Menzie, W. H. Thompson and F. C. Hunt, executive committee.

BEET SUGAR IN SOUTH OF IRELAND.

AN important scheme is being initiated for the establishment, on a gigantic scale, of a protected sugar industry in the south of Ireland. Arrangements have already been made near Cork for the planting of over 3,000 acres of land with sugar beets. Factories for the manufacture of raw beet sugar will then be erected.

Ireland has been selected for the preliminary work of the company about to be established for the reason that after a long series of experiments beet experts have decided that its climate and soil are most suitable for the crop.

The projected industry has only been made possible by the Sugar Bounties Convention, and the protective tariff of 4s. 2d. per hundredweight, for hitherto it was not possible for the Irish manufacturer to make a profit in competition with the Continental manufacturer, who received a large bounty from his Government.

Is it not a fact that the label has a great deal to do with the selling value of a thing? A good label will oftentimes move a poor article; and, on the other hand, a poor label will kill a good one.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD CANNING CO. have a lively appreciation of the value of a label. First of all they determined to make of Canned Fruits and Vegetables the very best produced in this country. Then came up the question of the label. It was felt that OLD HOMESTEAD goods should have the finest label of them all. Most people are agreed that the richly colored, enbossed-in-gold label of THE OLD HOMESTEAD CANNING CO. is the most beautiful yet seen.

Hence it follows that Old Homestead Canned Goods

have captured the favor of jobbers, wholesalers, retailers and the consuming public on sight. It is the selling qualities of OLD HOMESTEAD goods that should commend them to every retailer in Canada.

CORRESPONDENCE

Travelers' Holidays.

Editor Canadian Grocer: It is reported that some so-called wholesale houses have been soliciting trade other than by the means agreed upon during travelers' holidays. If such be the case every decent traveler in the country should ostracize these fellows.

This holiday arrangement should be one kept with the strictest honor, and I think that every spice house and coffee house soliciting trade during this season should get it in the neck from the regular grocer traveler. This race for wealth seems to me so keen that it is hardly honorable. Apologizing for intruding, I am yours truly,

WATCHDOG.

Dear Grocer: Have been informed on good authority that some of our so called wholesale grocers have not signed the petition to refrain from telephoning or telegraphing the trade during the two weeks travelers' holidays and have also been informed that they will send their travelers to secure the trade.

This arrangement as we know has been indorsed by the retail grocers throughout the province and it is only such unprincipled, grasping people who would try to take advantage of their competitors and it is the wish of every traveler that the trade will give such people their just deserts when they call upon them. Yours truly.

AN OLD TRAVELLER.

CANADIAN IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

ACCORDING to the latest report compiled at the Ottawa Customs Department, the total imports entered for consumption in the Dominion during the month of May were $21,477,676, as compared with $22,486,315 for the same month last year; and for the 11 months ending May was $220,750,180, in comparison of $202,705,294 during the same period last year. Of the grand total $133,160,293 was for dutiable goods and $83,854,878 for free goods. The coin and bullion for the 11 months amounted to $3,735,009. The duty collected during May was $3,512,569, and for the 11 months $36,698,790, being over $3,800,000 ahead of those for the same time last year.

The total exports for May were: Domestic products, $10,732,383; foreign products, $451,635, compared with $7,517,706, and $743,491 respectively. For the 11 months the domestic products were $174,291,791, and foreign products $12,123,174, as compared to $189,375,624 and $9,992,979 for the same time last year. From the Dominion during the aforesaid month $5,858,726 worth of goods was exported to the British Empire and during the 11 months $115,040,445. To the United States this country exported $4,746,517 worth of goods during the month and $61,109,547 during the 11 months: to Belgium $1,010,383 for the latter period, to France $1,414,377, and to Germany $1,755,506.

For the 11 months the total imports of dutiable goods from the British Empire was $46,966,827, the general tariff value $5,641,228; the preferential tariff value $39,991,417, the surtax tariff value $640,997, and the free goods consumption, $19,196,146. The total dutiable and free consumption was $65,469,788. The grand total as regards imports from the United States was $129,795,576. The general tariff amounted to $68,698,939, and the surtax to $137,875. The total dutiable and free consumption goods from Germany was $7,516,464, and from France $5,583,897. At the port of Ottawa such imports amounted o $4,176,613, the consumption dutiable $2,457,435, the consumption free $1,713,687, the domestic exports $58,922.

NEW PEPPER MILL.

R. HERRON & Co., wholesale spice manufacturers of St. Paul St., Montreal, have just installed in their works a new pepper mill, which is the first of its kind in this country. One of the most striking features in connection with this machine is that there is absolutely no dust present when the mill is in full operation, so that even the uninitiated may stand near without inconvenience.

The pepper berries are led by a pipe through the ceiling above, from a bin on the upper floor, to a hopper above the grinding compartment. From this the supply is regulated by an automatic gear, which may be adjusted from the outside. The grinding compartment into which the pepper falls consists of a metal case, and contains three rollers or grinders. These have their axes set in such a manner that the pepper is ground twice before reaching the bottom. A large pulley wheel on the centre roller serves as the driver. On the opposite side each of the rollers has a pulley wheel attached. These are connected by a belt, which makes the upper and lower rollers run in an opposite direction to the centre ones.

After passing through the rollers the ground pepper falls into a sifter, which is in an enclosed bin, and here it is and ready for use. The capacity of this machine is one thousand pounds an hour.

A HANDSOME STARCH PACKAGE.

Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, proprietors of the "Bee" brand grocers' specialties, have added to their list a "Bee" brand corn starch. The package is certainly one of the handsomest corn starch packets on sale, and from an artistic and lithographic point of view leaves nothing to be desired. It is a deep red with a large bee in the centre in gold and blue colors, and highly embossed. As a shelf and display line it should prove attractive to every store. The contents are guaranteed the highest in point of purity and effectiveness.

GREEN FRUITS

High Price of Limes.

IN a recent issue of The Grocer attention was called to the excessively high price of limes ruling in Montreal. It was claimed that limes never could become a feature in the foreign fruit market of Canada so long as the present exorbitant price continued. Further, in view of the fact that an attempt is being made to foster trade with the West Indies, some concerted action ought to be taken towards bringing down the price of limes to a reasonable level, since limes are grown extensively in the West Indies.

The wholesale fruit men of Toronto, when interviewed by The Grocer on the above situation, expressed doubt as to whether the lime will ever become a staple article, at least in the Toronto market. At present the lime trade is confined almost entirely to the fancy trade, hotels and restaurants. The ordinary consumer looks upon the lime as about three times as expensive as the lemon, and not sufficiently superior in flavor to warrant him in exchanging the lemon for it. Some three years ago a leading Toronto firm brought in a large shipment of limes as an experiment, and distributed them among the retail trade at a very low figure. The venture did not prove a success, however, and since then the Toronto wholesalers have been content to order limes from New York in small shipments to supply the demand.

As for the claim that 500 per cent. profit is made on limes by the Canadian wholesaler, the fruit trade are unanimous in declaring that such is not the case in Toronto. As a matter of fact the cost of limes laid down in Toronto is from 65 to 75c. per crate, and the retail price ranges from $1 to $1.25. A material reduction in the actual cost price of limes to the Toronto wholesaler might be made were there only sufficient demand for them to warrant direct shipments from the Islands. Limes are very cheap in the country of growth, costing only from 4s. to 6s. per barrel. On account of the Toronto market requiring such small quantities, however, Toronto fruit merchants find it impracticable to do anything else than to pay the New York price of $9 to $12 per barrel. The limes are re-packed in crates on their arrival in Toronto and sold to the retail trade at the above mentioned prices.

An Outing at Grimsby.

On August 1, the wholesale fruit merchants of Toronto held their annual picnic at Grimsby Park, whither they journeyed by rail. On their arrival at the Park a most enjoyable time was spent. A baseball game between the fruit merchants and the crack Grimsby nine resulted in a victory for the former. There was also a tug-of-war and numerous other sports and games. The attendance was in the neighborhood of four hundred.

Fruit Notes.

The tomato growers in conjunction with the fruit growers of Wentworth and adjacent counties, will hold a demonstration at Brant House Park, Burlington Beach, about the middle of August.

The quarterly meeting of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association will be held at Nelson, on August 12th.

Fruit Pulp in England.

From reliable sources The Grocer is informed the fruit pulp business in the Old Country is at present in a very unsatisfactory condition. Reports from the Canadian agents to the Government have been somewhat misleading. As a matter of fact the prices realized today would not pay for the cost of packing. This applies particularly to raspberry, strawberry and plum pulps. As the prospects are for a large fruit crop in England and on the continent this year, there will not be much money in the fruit pulp business for Canada.

New Brunswick Small Fruits.

A late report from St. John, N. B., indicates that the season for raspberries is about over. A few boxes are arriving in the city and are retailing at 12 cents. Raspberries are selling off the river boats at 9c a box for the cultivated. These are just beginning to come down. The wild ones are now at their height and will soon be a thing of the past, as their season is short. They are worth 8c wholesale. Blueberries are plentiful now and are as low as 6c per box, ten quart pail sells at 60c to 70c. While strawberries were short this year, blueberries and raspberries will be abundant, and their quality is good. Blueberries have really only commenced to arrive in large quantities. As usual Grand Lake is the chief source of the blueberry that is offered in the markets.

When Bananas Are Fit.

Before bananas are thoroughly matured they are apt to be insipid in flavor, and to cause dyspepsia and other forms of intestinal disturbance. They should not be eaten before the skin is blackened in places, or when there is any reluctance in the skin to separate from the pulp. Housekeepers know how bananas will change in the course of a single night from a manifestly sound condition to one in which the skin is blackened and the pulp soft and slightly discolored. Now, children infinitely prefer these last bananas to those that are apparently sounder, and it may well be that in this instance the natural inclination of the child covers more wisdom than the caution of its elders; in fact, experts say that the banana, like the medlar, can hardly be in too ripe a condition for eating.—British Medical Journal.

Cold Storage of Fruit.

THE following experience of a cold storage station for apples in the State of Illinois has reached The Grocer: A house of cheap and simple construction, with a capacity of 2,500 barrels, was erected at a cost of $3,430. On the fifth day of October seventy tons of ice were put into the icebox, and the temperature fell gradually to 33 degrees, at which point it was maintained through the Winter. All the apples kept beautifully, and the cost of storage for seven months was only nineteen cents a barrel, or thirty-one cents less than the farmer usually pays for refrigerating his apple crop. The fruit was examined from time to time, and hardly a bad apple was found. There was no withering, and no appearance of "scald"—that dreadful enemy of the apple storer. All the apples remained in perfect condition. Taking into view the saving to the producer, it was reckoned that such a building would pay for itself in five years.

Such storage outfits as these will be seen in many a town where orchard fruit is grown. A difference of twenty-five or thirty cents a barrel in storage cost would of itself make quite a respectable profit from the product of a large orchard. The nearness to the orchard would also be an advantage, as the fruit could be put away promptly without a long, hot journey by rail.

The Packing of Fruit.

The following resolution was passed recently by the General Purpose Committee of the English Grocers' Federation: "That the movement in America in favor of the packing of apples in boxes of a reasonable capacity, instead of barrels, is deserving of the strongest support at the hands of all retail fruit dealers in this country, such reduced sized packages having very many advantages, whilst the cumbrous barrels hitherto used have many disadvantages, and to recommend that this opinion be sent to all American fruit associations." The speaker, a grocer, in a large way of business, who introduced this matter, was anxious that shippers should know what the English trade thought on this matter in respect of the packing of apples, and grocer after grocer testified to the damage done to otherwise beautiful and salable apples by bruising.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

THE PRESENT SITUATION IN WHEAT.

CANADA'S wheat crop alone will show an increase in volume this year, according to latest reports. Weather conditions in the United States and in Europe have been extremely prejudicial to the welfare of the crops there, and shortages will be the result.

UNITED STATES:—The outlook for the wheat crop of the United States for Fall is that it will fall short of last year's crop. James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, estimates the crop at not more than 600,000,000 bushels, as against 637,000,000 bushels last year.

Reports from Chicago state that continued rains and winds, with the additional blight of rust and ergot, will seriously injure the crop.

From Minneapolis to the Canadian border, drenching rains have soaked the ground and the outlook is doubtful. A few warm days would turn the scale.

The Minnesota estimate is 70,000,000 bushels with a possible 75,000,000 bushels if the weather is favorable.

The damage by rain and rust in Kansas will cause a deterioration, without parallel in the annals of the state, probably forty per cent.

In Nebraska, rust and ergot are expected to make the harvest 12,000,000 bushels less than last year.

RUSSIA:—Crop prospects in Russia are unmistakeably bad. There is grave danger of a wheat famine.

ROUMANIA:—The wheat crop is in extremely poor shape and there will be a heavy falling-off from last year.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY:—A heavy decrease in the wheat yield in this country is predicted.

CANADA:—The estimated crop in Manitoba and the Northwest is expected to exceed all records. A conservative estimate places the yield at not less than 77,000,000 bushels and this may be increased fifteen per cent. The crops will be about a week later than usual in maturing.

New Incorporations.

The Zenith Grain Co., Limited, with a capital stock of $25,000, have been incorporated at Winnipeg, to carry on the business of grain and produce merchants, etc. The directors are Ward Ames, Julius H. Barnes, Ward Ames, jr., and Henry T. Swart, of Duluth, and John Henry Munson and Ernest Forster Haffner, of Winnipeg.

R. W. Oliver, J. Ronald, W. J. Henderson, G. W. Macdougall, and L. Macfarlane, of Montreal, have been incorporated to take over the business of the R. W. Oliver Milling Company. The operations of the company will be carried on under the name of R. W. Oliver Milling Company, Limited, with a capital stock of $100,000.

The Campbell Milling Company, Limited, has been incorporated at Toronto Junction, to acquire, buy, etc., grain mills, elevators, warehouses, etc., and to carry on a general business as millers. The directors are Archibald Campbell, E. M. Campbell, D. A. Campbell, J. McEachren and J. Knight, and the capital stock $150,000.

Canada the Granary of the World.

It will probably not be a great many years before the United States will cease to be an exporter of wheat, says the Duluth Herald. Furthermore, in order to keep its big flour mills running it will be necessary to import a large quantity of this cereal. The United States has long been known as the granary of the world. It is now, however, being forced to the attention of the officials of the agriculture department and those interested in the export trade that the United States is rather rapidly going out of the wheat business, at least so far as the export trade is concerned. Statistics recently furnished by the department of agriculture show that there is a marked decline in the amount of land available or used for the growing of wheat and oats in the United States.

From 1850 to 1880 the production of wheat in America increased from 100,000,000 to more than 400,000,000 bushels. Since that time the crop has occasionally been greater, but the increase has been small and slow, owing, apparently, to the impossibility of enlarging the land area in which wheat can be profitably grown. The department's figures show that there are now about 44,225,000 acres of land devoted to wheat culture in the United States, an area no larger than that used for this purpose in 1898. The same figures show that the acreage devoted to the raising of oats has also apparently reached its maximum, and that the production of both wheat and oats has decreased, or rather failed to increase in proportion with the increased population of the country and the consequent increased demand for domestic consumption. As a natural and unavoidable result, the prospect for a continuing reduction in the amount of our exports of these products is positive.

Special significance is lent to these figures by statistics showing the imports of wheat and oats by the great consuming nations. Great Britain formerly found her greatest source of supply in the United States, American sales of wheat to her amounting in 1902 to 4,792,688 hundred-weight, while last year they amounted to just a little more than half of that total. Canada has also lost in the volume of her export trade to England, while Russia and Argentina have more than doubled their sales to Great Britain. India has increased her wheat production and Australia is giving more attention to the crop.

There is nothing in these figures that need worry the wheat farmers of the American Northwest. They simply show that the home demand is growing more rapidly than the source of supply and that there is little likelihood of low wheat prices in this country in future.

It would seem, however, that a contemplation of these facts will lead to the conclusion that it would pay the United States, and especially the north-western states, to enter into closer trade relations with Canada, the coming wheat country of the American continent.

crop of 1904 is ready for the granary there will be an elevator capacity at country points and terminals of over forty million bushels. Taking into account the quantity of grain sent out of the country directly it is harvested, the storage capacity will be quite equal to the demands of the grain crop for 1904.

In the season of 1900-01, the Province of Manitoba had 33 elevators and 76 warehouses, with a total capacity of 10,323,272 bushels. At the close of the 1902 season there were in the province 427 elevators and 69 warehouses, showing an increase in the number of the former amounting to 94, and a decrease in the latter of 7. The total storage capacity in Manitoba for that season was 12,255,000 bushels, an increase of 1,931,728 bushels. Last season saw a still greater proportionate increase in elevator construction, as at the conclusion of the work of the season the number in the province was 558, while only 60 warehouses remained. The storage capacity then amounted to 16,121,100 bushels. The estimates for the coming season place the elevator capacity of the province at 20,000,000 bushels.

The wheat-raising industry in the Territories is marked by a vigorous policy of elevator building in the wide and ever-increasing area which is under cultivation. When the 1901 season had closed the capacity for storage was 2,436,080 bushels, divided between 88 elevators and 21 warehouses. Next season there were 111 elevators doing business and 18 warehouses, with an aggregate capacity of 3,194,000 bushels. Last season the storage capacity in the Territories had increased to 5,105,000 bushels, there being 176 elevators, with a revival in the construction of the warehouses, bringing their number up to 23. The estimates for the coming season place the storage capacity in the Territories at 8,000,000 bushels.

The terminals at which the product of the Manitoba and Northwest fields are handled are situated in Ontario, at Fort William and Port Arthur, and the capacity of these monster bins has been yearly increased by the railways as the demands of the trade require.

In the year 1901 there were 5 elevators at the terminal points on the lakes, with a total capacity of 6,120,000 bushels. At the close of the 1902 season one new elevator had been built, bringing the total storage capacity up to 7,650,000 bushels. Last year the addition of annexes to the already constructed elevators brought the aggregate capacity to 9,130,000 bushels. Proposed elevator building at the terminal points will in the near future make the total storage capacity reach the enormous figure of 12,000,000 bushels.

For the whole of western Canada interested in the active wheat trade, the total elevator capacity at country points and at terminals in 1901 amounted to 18,879,352 bushels, of which 12,759,352 bushels represented the storage capacity at country points. In 1902 the total storage room would accommodate 23,099,000 bushels, 15,199,000 bushels being the capacity at country points, while last year the aggregate storage room amounted to 30,356,400 bushels, of which the country points represented 21,226,400 bushels.

To Improve Western Seed.

THE Dominion Department of Agriculture has deemed it advisable to co-operate with the grain growers of western Canada in promoting seed selection. To this end J. Murray, an attache of the department, will, under the direction of Professor Robertson of Ottawa, assume the supervision of the western Canadian branch of the Canadian Grain Growers' Association.

Scientific methods of securing good seed have been carried on at the leading experimental stations in Canada and the United States with a measure of success that warrants its introduction to agriculturists all over the country who are engaged extensively in grain growing. It has been the practice of many successful farmers in past years to choose as suitable seed, grains grown in different districts on different soils. This has been done in most cases indiscriminately, without any scientific knowledge to aid in selection. In some cases a measure of success followed the practice. But it only happened so. The plan that Mr. Murray will introduce to farmers of the west has been followed by certain enterprising farmers in touch with the work of the Canadian Grain Growers' Association.

It is proposed that farmers be educated, especially those farmers who have the most desirable locations and soils, to select the strongest and most perfect mature heads from their grain fields from year to year and that the grain from these be sown the following season in the most promising soils, properly prepared. This method of selecting the best is to be carried out from year to year. The results achieved wherever the method has been tried warrant the submission to all grain growers. In the case of wheat the simple plan has been productive of a twenty per cent. increase in yield in five years and gradual improvement in quality is often so marked that the product is really a new variety. In the case of flax the improvement of both seed and fibre by this method has produced a betterment of fifty per cent.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

The Jobbers' Side of the Contract System.

ACCORDING to a contract entered into between the American Tobacco Company and the wholesale grocers of Canada, the latter receive a rebate of two per cent. on goods sold by them, manufactured by this particular company. Canadian tobacco manufacturers find in this contract a serious menace to their trade and, as the result of their representations, the Minister of Inland Revenue has introduced legislation clothing him wtth the right to refuse the license to manufacture tobacco to any person or company making themselves parties to the system.

Exception has been taken to this legislation by the wholesale grocers. They are satisfied with the conditions of things in their trade as far as the handling of tobaccos is concerned. They claim that the exclusive system of contract is a sine qua non to the conducting of their tobacco business on a proper scale and to the keeping of the quality up to a good standard.

A deputation recently waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Mr. Fielding and Hon. Mr. Brodeur, in order to state the opinion of the wholesale grocers. Mr. H. N. Kittson, of Hamilton, was the chief speaker for the deputation, which represented wholesale interests in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Kittson said: "I beg to point out that if the bill becomes law it will cause a great injustice because it is vicious in principle, inasmuch as it attacks the right of private contract, and surely every Canadian claims the right of determining whether a contract is for his advantage. The Government has no more right to interfere in this matter than I have to interfere with the rights of others to enter into a contract. This system of trade contracts is the outcome of severe competition. It has been brought about by the exigencies of trade and is very generally in vogue throughout the country at the present time. The arrangements effected by the manufacturers and grocers and which would be affected by this resolution, were brought about in this way: Certain manufacturers stimulated the trade by ensuring a fair profit to those selling and handling their goods, and as a result they get the business. It has proved an incentive to travelers to push their goods, while the retailer is satisfied with the profit ensured to him. The present system works no hardship on any other manufacturers. They have equal opportunity with any company to make bargains with the wholesale trade. Their contracts can be broken to-morrow, or dissolved if any other manufacturer is prepared to make a better one. There is no demand to alter the existing conditions. True, some manufacturers may be dissatisfied, but let them give better values. They have the remedy in their own hands to work up a trade for their goods, but if the present resolution goes into force it will discourage enterprise, inflict a loss upon the more enterprising firms and introduce the thin edge of the wedge which will make for a dissolution of the present satisfactory condition of things in the grocery trade. It will have the tendency to destroy profits and push the sale of the foreign weed which is gradually being worked out by the increased consumption of the Canadian tobacco. The trade to be affected by the bill are among the largest contributors to the inland revenue, and we are the strongest influence promoting the growth of our own tobacco. This arrangement between manufacturer and wholesale dealer was brought about by the business itself. It was the enterprise of The Empire Tobacco Co. that made it advantageous to push the sale of their goods, and that led to the contracts. These people put travelers out at their own expense, and they told the travelers to turn in all the orders they could and to always satisfy the customers. It was then that the wholesale dealers found it necessary to go to these people and make this arrangement. If any person will come to us and make a better arrangement there is no reason why it should not be accepted. It is the man who makes the best arrangement that is going to get the business. There is no monopoly and no reason why any person else might not get it if they show some enterprise. The people generally throughout Canada want things as they are. They think this is a matter between themselves and the manufacturer and should not be interfered with. They feel that they should have the right to negotiate their own contracts, and I feel certain if you bring this in you are going to dislocate business and create dissatisfaction from one end of the continent to the other."

Mr. Blain, of Toronto, said:—"I might add a little to the conditions that created the system. We used to have to sell tobacco at cost. The smoker did not get any advantage of it. It was perhaps only the retailer, but at any rate it is a fact that we used to sell it at cost, and had to carry a number of lines in stock—lines from independent factories—and if a retail customer ordered any of those lines we had to get them or otherwise he would go elsewhere for it and we would lose his trade. The result was that we had these goods in our warehouses and many of them used to spoil on our hands. The proposed legislation seems a little fraternal in character and we would not object to it, perhaps, if you only carried it a little further in certain directions. The grocery people never asked any favor of the Government, but they would like to retain to themselves the power of protecting themselves. If you can assure us two per cent. on our goods by any other plan we would be pleased to know. Competition is so great that unless you allow us to make some agreement whereby we can get a reasonable profit it is practically impossible for us to live at all. If you grant that privilege to some who have a license I do not see how you can refuse it to others. You cannot expect to go to a man and say, 'You must sell these goods, and not those particular ones alone! You cannot carry on a business in that way.' There are a great many lines that this principle might apply to as well as tobacco. You might as well tell a merchant that he must not sell a particular make of pianos to the exclusion of others. The right of contract is a very serious thing, and if you get mixed up in a matter of this kind you do not know where it will end."

Essex County Tobacco Crop.

By E. Bailey, Kingsville.

UPON going through the county I find a large acreage this year, fully twice as much as last year, although the plants look fully three and in some cases four weeks late. For three weeks back the crop was practically stagnant from growth as the bulk of the plants were only planted about the end of June, and owing to the excessive drought had not more than taken root; but on Saturday, July 23rd, we had a great rain, and now things are looking more prosperous. Through these three weeks I may say quite a percentage withered away after planting, owing to the very hot weather immediately following. In some cases in fields of, say 20 acres, only 10 acres are standing.

There are a few forward crops, planted by the beginning of June, and all of these look well. Should we have three weeks' more excessive heat, I am afraid the crops will not grow to any extent, as it will bleach on account of being so late planted—and so very light in weight. To sum up the situation, I should say if we have a good Fall, we ought to have about a 3,500,000 pound crop—if an early Fall, about 2,000,000 pounds will cover the output. I think the crop will be light in acreage in pounds and do not look for a very good quality of leaf—because of the above drawbacks.

Care in Developing Seed Tobacco.

IT is a matter of universal experience among growers of tobacco that when fresh seed is introduced into any region the type breaks up and the plants are extremely variable. After the type has been grown in this region for several years it gradually becomes more uniform and constant, says an authority on the subject The statement is frequently made that the variety, no matter how different from the native varieties, in a few years assumes the type of the native varieties. The reason given for this condition is the influence of soil and climate on the tobacco plants. However, observations lead one to believe that the change in type is due for the most part to the crossing of the imported varieties with the native varieties.

There is every reason to believe that by preventing cross fertilization, and by careful seed selection after the type of a variety of tobacco has become acclimated, it may be maintained in a uniform condition. One of the principal reasons for the use of home grown seed, instead of depending upon seed grown in other regions, is that the quality of the imported seed is always a matter of uncertainty. In many cases it is claimed that growers kill the seed before sending it out of the country. The kind of plants which the seed will produce cannot be foretold by an examination of the seed, but must be learned by experience from the crop. In some cases whole crops have been lost because of poor imported seed. Therefore it is necessary to have seed for the general crop the pedigree of which is known by the growers. The experience of the breeders of other crops shows that the best plan is to select the seed in the region where the crop is grown, and if possible it would be desirable for every grower to select and improve his seed on his own farm.

It seems probable that one of the chief difficulties in the growing of Sumatra and Cuban varieties in certain districts of the United States has been that it has been necessary to use imported seed for planting the entire crop. While a considerable portion of highly desirable plants have been produced in most fields, the effect of the change of conditions from the tropics was to break the type and cause the production of a large proportion of undesirable and unprofitable plants.

A most careful and painstaking examination of representative fields last season showed that the breaking up into types, the appearances of reversions and strikingly variable plants, and the development of great individual variation, actually did occur. In other words, the industry developed before acclimated strains of tobacco had been secured. There is every reason to believe that by the proper methods of breeding and selection in the types of tobacco grown, during the adaptation of the plants to climatic and soil conditions, uniform varieties can be secured and retained.

Manufacturers Pleased.

Independent tobacco manufacturers in Canada express pleasure at the scope of the proposed law against the contract system.

Mr. A. Goldstein, manager of the Dominion Tobacco Co., speaking of the effects of the new law, stated emphatically that it was the one thing that would enable independent companies to fight what is looked upon as the Tobacco Trust with any chance of success and would always permit of competition. He contended that there was absolutely no truth in the report that there would be a good many men without work if the new law was enforced, as the independent companies would undertake to give employment to all who might be without it.

Mr. J. M. Fortier was entirely in favor of the proposed law and considered that it would place the manufacturer in a much freer position and afford the Canadian grower much greater protection. He stated that as soon as the law was enforced he would begin taking on new men.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

STATISTICS of failures in Canada for the six months ending June 30 have been made public. As compared with last year they are far from satisfactory. Liabilities exeeed in amount those for any year of the preceding six, although the number of failures is less than in 1903. The total number of failures was 583, as compared with 492 last year, but the liabilities were $6,060,-733 this year and only $3,395,637 last year. Manufacturing failures numbered 149, with liabilities of $2,354,498, as against 107 failures and an indebtedness of $1,045,843 a year ago. Trading failures were 420 in number and $3,454,-968 in amount, against $2,207,691 in 1903. In banking alone was there any improvement over 1903, two small suspensions of $30,749 comparing favorably with four defaults and $2,139,225 the preceding year. As to location, the chief increases occurred in Ontario and Quebec, but every province showed more or less rise except New Brunswick.

EXPANSION is the key-note of the June statement of the chartered banks of Canada. Since 1896 this expansion has been constant and even remarkable. Naturally,now that the crops have begun to move, an increase in the circulation of bank notes was to be expected, but it must have been surprising to many to find that the increase of June circulation over May circulation was $300,000 more this year than last year. Deposits in the chartered banks expanded $2,754,861 last year between May and June. This year they expanded $5,205,260. The chief increase in deposits is shown in the deposits without interest and withdrawable upon demand. This expansion is what one would expect to find, establishing, as it does, normal relations with current loans and discounts.

IT would not be possible to find a more intricate or complicated money system than that at present in vogue in Manchuria. This is owing to the fact that they have not there a fixed recognized standard of silver which can be taken as a basis for exchange operations. Although China's currency is on a silver basis, yet there is no standard of silver common to all their provinces. For instance,the silver of Niuchwang has a touch of 99.2, or, in other words, 8 ounces of alloy to 992 ounces of pure silver. The touch of the silver of Liaoyang, Mukden, Kirin and Tieling is supposed to be the same as that of Yingkou, but it never is, Yingkou silver usually being finer by 1 or 2 ounces in the thousand. Kwangchingtsu silver has a touch of 99, which puts it below Yingkou silver, while, on the other hand, Harbin silver has a touch of 99.8, which puts it above that of Niuchwang. When we think that the touch is only one of the items which has to be taken into consideration in the everyday exchange operations which take place between the various Manchurian towns, we can understand that the negotiating of a rate between Chinese currency is not a simple matter. This constant practice in exchange of the Chinese banker accounts for much of his quickness of perception.

The hard coin currency in Manchuria consists of the sycee, small coin, and of late the ruble; yet the bulk of the merchandise bought and sold is not bought or sold against these hard effectives. All prices and rates quoted are against transfer money or mo-lu yingtzu—in other words, goods money, or huo yingtzu. This transfer or mo-lu yingtzu is a peculiar and muddled system. The arrival of the ruble and the establishment of quick communication with Manchuria, thus enabling the rapid transportation of treasure to and from Manchuria, is in large part responsible for the muddling.

The transfer money is a purely nominal currency not substantiated in any way by an effective—in other words, it is a credit. We will say, for instance, that a merchant starts business in Niuchwang and that his capital is deposited in some bank in Shanghai. The first thing he will do will be to sell his draft on Shanghai in the market at the market rate. The purchaser will transfer to the credit of the merchant at the place where he banks the equivalent in transfer money of his draft, and with this credit he can purchase his goods or do his banking. This transfer money can at any time be sold for silver or ruble effectives.

The Chinese year has four settling days or mao-kou, when all transfer money which has been issued has to be released The method of redeeming transfer money has undergone several changes during the last few years. The first system was that transfer money should be redeemed at full value in hard silver at the end of every three months. This system was continued until about two years after the Japanese war. During this period the effective currency was sycee and copper cash, small coin not having then made its appearance in large amounts.

NOTES.

The International Association of Accident Underwriters will meet at the Royal Muskoka Hotel in July, 1905.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE steam and sail tonnage market is without feature, beyond an inquiry for vessels from Maritime Province ports, to the river Plate. No special action is observed in any of the various foreign trades, but in the face of inaction owners appear to maintain their views with firmness. Even lumber freights are dull. Rates for coal are irregular, while lumber remains steady. Steam freights are breaking up somewhat, but, on the whole, are considered disappointing. Inquiry is slight for full cargo boats for hind those of a year ago, while butter, on the other hand, has shown signs of improvement. Abundant quantities of flour are being offered, and the probabilities are, for August and September, that more will follow. A strong feature of the market is noted in the demand for space for cattle shipment, which in a way hinders the export produce men from getting rates that they would like; in fact, anyone who is anxious to get space, would do well to inquire early for live stock is dominating the freight market. This is brought 5c. a hundred, and to London at 7c. prompt, and August 8¾c. The price to Bristol remains 9c. Despite the slowness of the cheese trade, freights remain 20s. to Liverpool, and 25s. to London. Butter per ton, in cold storage, is still ruling at 40s. to Liverpool, and 45s. to London.

Charters are: Italian barque Giuseppino, 1,070 tons, from St. John, N.B., to Buenos Ayres, or Rosario, p. t.,; British barque Brookside, 672 tons, same, from Tusket; barque Addie Morill, 595 tons, from Philadelphia to Boston, p. t.; British

When ocean charges are collectable at port of destination, rates exchanged on basis of $4 80 to £1 stg. When ocean charges are prepaid, rates exchanged on basis of $4 86 to £1 stg.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

immediate loading, and the general demand for forward tonnage compares unfavorably with that of previous years. Interest is without stimulation, and steamship agents and freight brokers report a dullness throughout the market. The offerings of grain are remarkably small, with one exception, namely for London, and there is not one bit of space available for the whole month of August for that port. Shipments of cheese are away behind about by the large offerings of ranch cattle from the west, and there is a strong probability of a large demand for space in the near future, more especially should the meat packers' strike in Chicago continue much longer. Very few new charters have been reported in Montreal, and the two sugar boats, the Yanariva and the Indianapolis have been chartered cargoes to the United Kingdom, with deals. Flour is being shipped to Liverpool, at schooner Shafner Bros., 148 tons, from New York to Halifax, 1.10; British steamer Kelvin, 2,266 tons, from Gulf to United Kingdom, or continent, with general cargo, p. t., September, October; British steamer Matinea, 1,737 tons, from Savannah to United Kingdom, or continent, with cotton, p. t., August; schooner Harry W. Haines, 250 tons, from New York to Cayenne, with general cargo, and back from Belize with log wood, p. t.; schooner Ed. E. Briry, 1,408 tons, from Kennebec to Washington, with ice, p. t.

The Canadian Grocer

When an Apple Drops

from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.

And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.

In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.

Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.

Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.

The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.

"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

It is not so long ago that the tea growers in Ceylon joined forces in a campaign of education on the surpassing merits of

Ceylon Teas

They directed their forward movement on grocers and tea dealers, and on the public. Ceaselessly they have waged their warfare, with what success the world knows.

The grocer to-day is selling more Ceylon Teas by compulsion of the public, if for no other reason, than he is of any other sort.

If people ask for black teas, he gives them Ceylons. If they want greens, he gives Ceylons.

which, though only about two months old as a working corporation, has grown to lusty proportions.

The wholesale and jobbing trade had a watchful eye on the new Canning Company from the time of its inception, and knowing the men who were its principals, and the class of goods that would be certainly turned out, were ready to take over the gross output long in advance of the actual packing. This explains how, that from the first moment of our beginning we have had the proportions of a fully grown and long-established factory. We seek now to persuade the retailer, to lead him to ask for OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND, to insist upon it. There is a work for us here that takes a longer time than it does to get the jobbers and wholesalers.

CANADA'S GREAT AND GROWING WEST

CANADIANS are justly proud of the vast stretches of farming and grazing land which stretch westward from the Great Lakes to the Rockies and far north to the edge of the frozen belt. This is Canada's great western heritage and it is a heritage, on the possession of which Canada is just entering. What this western land may become within the span of a few years may be far beyond the dreams of the most optimistic prophet.

"Wheat" is the one word written across the face of Manitoba and the Territories and it is as the "Granary of the Empire" that this wonderful land is hearlded. For years to come, wheat and wheat production will form the backbone of the west's prosperity. Everywhere, towns and cities are rising from the face of the prairie, called into being to meet the needs of a rapidly growing population. Winnipeg, the metropolis of the west, has already passed the pioneer stage and takes rank among the most modern and stable cities of the Dominion.

Increase in Wheat Crop.

The development of Western Canada as a wheat-producing country has been very rapid in recent years, so rapid, indeed, that grain dealers in other countries have not fully appreciated the growing importance of this country as a contributor to the world's supply of wheat. Seventeen years ago Manitoba produced less than 8,000,000 bushels of wheat, and even as late as 1900, which was a very bad crop year in Western Canada, the total amount of wheat produced in the West did not exceed 20,000,000 bushels. The production suddenly ascended to about 68,000,000 bushels in 1902, and though it fell off to about 55,000,000 bushels last year, it will probably be nearer 80,000,000 than 70,000,000 this year. This year the acreage sown to wheat is just about twice what it was in 1900, being about 3,500,000 acres.

Possible Crop Area.

It is conceded that there is a vast extent of country in Western Canada that is as good for wheat raising as that already under cultivation. Estimates as to the precise extent of the Spring wheat producing area vary. The land area of Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan is 252,000,000 acres. William Saunders, director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, gives it as his opinion that at least 171,000,000 acres of the total are suitable for cultivation. He does not say, however, that all the area suitable for cultivation is adapted to profitable wheat raising, but he does think it is conservative to say that one-fourth of this area will produce wheat satisfactorily. On this cautious basis the wheat-producing area of Western Canada is, roughly speaking, about equal to that now producing wheat in the United States. Applying the average yield in Manitoba for the ten years from 1891 to 1900, 19 bushels per acre, the total yield with all the wheat area under crop would be somewhat in excess of 800,000,000 bushels, from 100,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels more than the United States produces at the present time.

But there have been a number of years when the average yield of wheat per acre in Western Canada has been more than 25 bushels. In such a bumper year Western Canada, with its total wheat acreage utilized, would produce more than 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat. Even if the average yield is to be much smaller in the future than it has been in the past, we have been cautious enough on the score of acreage to make it tolerably certain that when Western Canada is occupied and developed, it will be producing as much wheat as the United States now turns out.

Area in Crop.

The increase in the number of acres under crop for 1904 as compared with 1903 is counted disappointing. It was expected by grain men that there would be a large increase in wheat area in Manitoba, but what increase there has been took place largely in the Territories. The number of acres under crop this year in both Manitoba and the Territories is 5,065,480, or an increase on last year of 394,710 acres, or about 9 per cent. There are 3,420,411 acres under wheat, as against 3,123,663 acres last year, showing an increase of 9 1-2 per cent.; 1,205,960 acres under oats, as against 1,101,333 last year, an increase of 9 1-2 per cent.; 392,569 acres under barley, as against 381,135 last year, an increase of 3 per cent., and 46,540 acres under flax, as against 64,639 last year, a decrease of 28 per cent. The above increase of 9 1-2 per cent. in the number of acres of oats is a fair one, and is due to the late Spring in some sections, which caused the sowing of oats in preference to wheat. The decrease in the number of acres under flax is very noticeable, but it is not surprising after last year's failure of the flax crop in the Territories.

WESTERN DEVELOPMENT.

By Sir William Van Horne.

I have been through the Northwest many times, but the trip I have just concluded was the most satisfactory I have ever made, because I witnessed the realization of the hopes of those who built the Canadian Pacific Railway; hopes that were shared in by few other people in the world. There is an all-pervading prosperity in the west, and it is reflected on the face of everybody you meet. When it is considered that all the present development of the Northwest has come from the cultivation of an exceedingly small percentage of that arable land, the future development must be regarded as being almost without limit. What was more gratifying to me than anything else on the trip was to see the magnificent way in which the country is developing, and this applies just as much to the cities as to the agricultural and mining districts. Winnipeg has been completely transformed within seven or eight years from a big prairie village to a handsome, substantial and most attractive city, which in its architecture, the condition of its streets, as well as its sanitary condition, will compare favorably with any other city in Canada. It has, indeed, become a charming place of residence as well as a great commercial centre. Calgary and Vancouver have also improved immensely in every respect, and this can be said of nearly all the towns I saw on my trip through western Canada.

In Manitoba alone the number of acres under wheat is 2,366,200, which shows a slight increase over last year, under oats, 551,311 acres; under barley, 280,590 acres, and under flax, 25,602 acres. The figures of crop area for the Territories are, under wheat, 1,054,211 acres; under oats, 654,649 acres; under barley, 111,979, and under flax, 20,938 acres. The number of acres under flax last year was 32,431, so this is a decrease of 11,493 acres. The increase in the number of acres under wheat in the Territories is much in advance of the increase in Manitoba.

Progress in the Territories.

The wheat-raising industry in the Territories is marked by the vigorous policy of elevator building in the wide and ever-increasing area which is under cultivation. When the 1901 season had closed the capacity for storage was 2,436,080 bushels, divided between 88 elevators and 21 warehouses. The next season there were 111 elevators doing business and 18 warehouses, with an aggregate capacity of 3,190,000 bushels. Last season the storage capacity in the Territories had increased to 5,105,000 bushels, there being 176 elevators, with a revival in the construction of the warehouses, bringing their number up to 23. The estimates for the coming season place the storage capacity in the Territories at 8,000,000 bushels.

Fort Garry Gate, Winnipeg.

Typical Western Business Street.

Have Spacious Terminals.

The terminals at which the product of the Manitoba and Northwest fields are handled are situated in Ontario, at Fort William and Port Arthur, and the capacity of these monster bins has been yearly increased by the railways as the demands of the trade require.

In the year 1901 there were 5 elevators at the terminal points on the lakes, with a total capacity of 6,120,000 bushels. At the close of the 1902 season one new elevator had been built, bringing the total storage capacity up to 7,650,000 bushels. Last year the addition of annexes to the already constructed elevators brought the aggregate capacity to 9,130,000 bushels. Proposed elevator building at the terminal points will in the near future make the total storage capacity reach the enormous figure of 12,000,000 bushels.

Aggregate Storage Capacity for West.

For the whole of Western Canada interested in the active wheat trade, the total elevator capacity at country points and at terminals in 1901 amounted to 18,879,352 bushels, of which 12,759,352 bushels represented the storage capacity at country points. In 1902 the total storage room would accommodate 23,099,000 bushels, 15,499,000 bushels being the capacity at country points, while last year the aggregate storage room amounted to 30,356,400 bushels, of which the country points represented 21,226,400 bushels.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. F. Morley, of the Canada Brokerage Co., Limited, Toronto, was a visitor to Montreal this week. Mr. Morley reported business as satisfactory and the outlook most encouraging.

Mr. D. H. Rennoldson, wholesale grocer, Montreal, is taking advantage of the temporary quietness in business to spend a few weeks' vacation at Pike's Island, on the coast of Maine.

Mr. Howard Morton, of Belhaven, Ontario, large general storekeeper and postmaster, had a pleasant little call with The Grocer on Monday. He reports business as being excellent.

Mr. W. R. Caron, representing Heinz Co., has returned to Montreal from a few weeks' vacation up around Isle Perrot south. He looks well and evidently enjoyed his vacation.

Mr. L. J. Forget, St. Agathe des Monts, has bought out Murphy Bros. of that town, and fitted up one of the handsomest stores in the Province of Quebec. The new purchaser has converted it into a liquor department. Mr. Forget also conducts a large general store, having for many years been one of the most prominent and pushing merchants in that part of the country. He is wide-awake, progressive and up-to-date in catering to the wants of his customers.

Association News

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held Monday night last in St. George's Hall with President F. W. Johnston in the chair and a goodly number of members in attendance.

The only matters of business to come before the meeting were the report of th Executive Committee and Mr. Clarke's motion to amalgamate with the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association.

The affairs of the Excursion Committee were not in shape for a final report, but an interim statement was made showing a surplus of over $200 as a result of the annual outing. After the report was received various members expressed their appreciation of the Excursion Committee and gave voice to their views on various matters pertaining to excursions in general.

Mr. Clarke was not present to press his motion to amalgamate with the Retail Merchants' Association. The unanimous opinion of those present was opposed to the motion. The association as at present constituted is a live one and it was not thought that any good would come from a change.

On motion of Mr. David Bell, seconded by Mr. R. B. Snow, a vote of thanks was passed to The Canadian Grocer for the handsome badges supplied the association on the occasion of the excursion to Buffalo. The thanks of the association were then very felicitously tendered the representative of The Grocer present by the president, Mr. F. W. Johnston.

Mr. Panther, who has recently returned from a trip to St. Louis, was prevailed upon to recount his adventures for the benefit of the association and gave a most interesting account of some of the wonders to be seen at the Exhibition.

"St. Louis," said Mr. Panther, "has the finest street car service in the world. The cars are commodious, comfortable and run very swiftly. The city is built on a series of hills and the business and residential sections were strangely mixed." He asked a native where was the business section of St. Louis. "Oh, most anywhere," was the answer. No one seemed to know where it was.

The approach to the Exhibition grounds, Mr. Panther thought anything but creditable, but the Exhibition itself was indescribable. It was the largest ever attempted. The floor space of the agricultural hall was 10 acres more than that of all the Pan-American buildings combined. In machinery they even had machines that would talk. You dropped a nickel in the slot, got on a platform and the machine shouted out a hundred and sixty two pounds.

The fine art building and the Pike were also vividly described and the Canadian building said to be very creditable. Among the exhibits Mr. Panther remembered were those of Eby-Blain, A. F. McLaren's Imperial Cheese and Salada.

When the speaker sat down he was roundly applauded.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

A Legal Monthly.

The Mercantile Adjuster and the Lawyer and Credit Man is a monthly commercial law digest, legal directory and bank list, published at St. Louis and New York, which is of value not only to the commercial lawyer but to the commercial men as well. It contains a great deal of valuable information along the lines indicated.

A Handsome Report.

The Vancouver Board of Trade is to be congratulated on its seventeenth annual report. It is safe to say that no other board in Canada gets out such an admirably printed and illustrated report. The book contains not only a report on the work of the board but also a vast amount of statistical and other information on Vancouver and British Columbia, regarding agriculture, fishing, mining, and other industries. The illustrations are particularly well executed.

How to Increase Canadian Trade.

The weekly report of the Department of Trade and Commerce for August 1 is a particularly strong and creditable one. It contains papers from nine commercial agents on the question "How to Increase and Maintain Canadian Trade." J. S. Larke and D. H. Ross write for Australia; P. B. Ball and J. B. Jackson represent Great Britain; G. E. Burke, R. Bryson, S. L. Horsford and Edgar Trepp discuss the West Indies and C. E. Sontum, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

RED ROSE TEA WAREHOUSE

INTERIOR VIEW, NO. 8.

FIRST FLOOR. SHIPPING ROOM.

This floor has two doors opening on Drury Lane, in the rear of the General Offices. One door is used for receiving tea and the other for shipping; while empty cases of which a great quantity are used, are received through a slide from Mill St., which is on the opposite side of the building.

When the teas are received, they are weighed, marks checked, and then by electric elevator are taken to the floor above.

On this floor teas such as Chinas, Formosas, Japans, etc., which are usually sold in the original packages and not used in blending to any great extent, are stored, so as to be convenient for shipping, as well as a stock of Red Rose Tea, and Estabrooks' blends in bulk.

On this floor also is kept the sheet lead which is used for the lead packages. The seven machines in the packing room when working full time use nearly two tons per day. The lead is chiefly imported from England and comes in cases of 3 cwt. each. The scrap lead which is sent down from the fifth floor, a carload of which accumulates in a short time, is also stored on this floor.

This concludes the series of internal views, which, to those who have not had the opportunity of visiting my building, I hope has given a fairly intelligent idea of how the business is conducted.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

New Animal Food.

EXPERIMENTS are being made this Summer at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, for the purpose of determining the value of blood meal and tankage, by-products of the slaughter house, as supplementary food for hogs. From supplies obtained last year from Chicago firms, these products were found to be exceedingly satisfactory. Comparisons are being made this season between inside feeding and ordinary outside feeding. The by-products furnished so far by Canadian packing houses are not sufficiently refined for purposes of animal feeding. Practically all these products in Canada are sold into the United States to be used for fertilizing the land. If this year's experiments are successful, however, some of the Canadian packing houses are likely to see their way clear to put in plants for refining by-products for use as animal food.

Strike Spreads to New York.

The Advisory Board of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' and Butcher Workers' Union of North America, at a meeting on August 8 decided to order a strike in New York and vicinity. Between 3,000 and 4,000 men were called out.

Chilled Meat in Britain.

ALD. DUNN, of Toronto, an accepted authority on the cattle trade, who has just returned from England, suggests that the Canadian Government erect at Liverpool, Southampton, London and Glasgow, cold storage establishments for the reception of cargoes of chilled meat from Canada.

"I have on former occasions predicted," said the alderman in an interview, "a great future for our cattle trade both in dressed meat and live cattle. On each of my visits to England within the last ten years I have found a great increase in the consumption of chilled meats, imported from the United States, South America and other countries. This fact is, no doubt, having a great effect upon our live cattle.

"The prejudice of eight or ten years ago against chilled meat has almost entirely died away, and chilled meat is quoted in England to-day for 10c to 12c per pound, or within a fraction of the quotation for the live animal. When the difference in the cost of transportation of the living and the dead is taken into consideration, it may easily be seen that with proper facilities the chilled meat business is much the safer, but it will require a strong company organized in this country to start a concern of sufficient magnitude to compete with the American who is well established in the British market."

Continuing, the alderman said the Government could not aid in the development of the dead meat industry better than by erecting cold storage depots at several British centres. The cost of cold storage in London, Liverpool, Southampton and Glasgow was so very expensive that it practically debarred people from going into the dead meat business, when they had to depend on private corporations for storage facilities. He was told that all the big dead meat exporters of the United States had their own cold storage facilities.

Preservation of Butter

The French National Society of Agriculture has recently received from one of its members an interesting communication on the preservation of butter by fluoride of sodium. The writer says this substance is not hurtful unless administered in doeses of some 30 grams (463 grains) a day for animals weighing 125 pounds From one-quarter to 1 gram (1 gram—15.43 grains) in a pulverulent state suffices for 2 pounds of butter, which it will preserve indefinitely. It is stated that the strength of the fluoride, so far as its effect upon the health is concerned, is diminished one-half by mixing. If, however, it retains its full strength, no inconvenience can result, as many physicians prescribe as much as 40 centigrams (6.16 grains) every twenty-four hours in order to regulate digestion.

It is further stated that the fluoride can be used in infinititesimal quantities as more than half a gram (7.7 grains) to a pound of butter renders it unpalatable, but that instead of making the butter ndigestible and less nutritive, the fluoride, when used properly, is considered an aid to digestion.

Live Stock Show Dates.

At a meeting of the directors of the Eastern Ontario Live Stock and poultry show, it was decided to hold the next show in Ottawa from March 6th to 10th, 1905. The show will be run on much the same lines as in previous years—the exhibits consisting of horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep, swine and poultry. Liberal prizes, such as will bring out large and excellent exhibits, will be offered in all classes.

Their Next Annual Meeting.

The next annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario will be held in Stratford on January 17, 18, and 19, 1905. The Dairy Exhibition will take place at the same time.

Stock Farm Incorporated.

A charter has been granted Stephen, George and Henry Price, of Peel County, and Thomas and Arthur Price, of Toronto, incorporating them as the Erindale Stock Farm, Limited, with a capital of $20,000. Stock farming and general farming will be carried on.

A New Preserving Machine.

On his recent visit to England, Hon. John Dryden, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, inspected an apparatus in London for preserving milk cream without chemicals. He was much pleased and said he would lay the matter before the Dairy Association of Ontario with the view of putting Canadain cream on the British market.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The hot weather has stimulated demand for smoked meats. The lumber camps are also beginning to lay in supplies and as a result there is a more active feeling in provisions and prices are firm. This same feeling is also found in lard, which is on a very low basis. Advances are noted in small and medium hams and also in short cut and plate beef. We quote:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 07½	$0 08
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12	0 12½

Butter—The market for creamery is a little firmer this week. Receipts of dairy are heavier with no change in price. Complaint is still heard of inferior stuff which brings very low prices. We quote:

Cheese—Reports from the boards this week show a stronger and healthier feeling due to better export demand. The board sales on Saturday were as follows:

Belleville offered 3,700 white July cheese; sales were 2,700 at 7 7-8c.

Cowansville, 27 creameries offered 1,642 boxes of butter, and 30 factories offered 1,567 boxes of cheese. Butter sales ranged from 18 3-4 to 19 3-8c. Cheese sales from 7 3-8 to 7 13-16c. Three hundred and sixty-four boxes of butter and 380 boxes of cheese held over.

Watertown, N.Y., 9,034 boxes at from 7 1-2 to 8c.

Canton, N.Y., butter, 18 1-8 to 18 1-4c, with 18 1-8c ruling. Cheese, twins, 7 3-4c.

London, 13 factories offered 1,070 boxes, 360 boxes at 7 3-4c.

Cornwall, 1,875 cheese were boarded, 950 white, 925 colored; all sold; white at 8c, and colored at 8 1-2c.

Alexandria, 976 white cheese and 360 colored were boarded; white sold at 8c, colored at 8 1-8c.

Locally prices are firm at last quotations.

Provisions—Business in bacon and hams is good, both locally and from country points. Prices, however, show no change as supplies have been ample to fill all demands. There is a fair trade in both compound and pure lard. Dressed hogs are stronger and advanced 25c per 100 lbs; demand good and supply limited. Fresh killed abattoir dressed stock sold at $7.75 to $8 per 100 lbs.

Butter—An unsettled feeling prevails and holders are asking more than can be realized. Finest Eastern Townships held at 19 1-4c, but it is claimed that equally as good can be bought at 18 3-4 to 19c. Quebec choice offered at 18 1-2 to 18 3-4c; creamery, good to fine, selling at 18 to 18 1-4c. The English market is showing a better front and holders are looking forward to a chance to turn over their stock.

Cheese—Cheese maintains its peculiar position. At the end of last week an advance at country boards was noted and maintained at the early part of this week. It is feared that there is some strong manipulation of the market under way and efforts have been made to get English buyers to respond, but nothing tangible has resulted. In some quarters it is thought that higher prices must shortly come. There is certainly something peculiar and unusual in the continued weak position of the market. Receipts are about equal to same week last year, though exports are 34,941 boxes less than last year this time.

Persons addressing advertisers will kindly mention having seen their advertisement in The Canadian Grocer.

Provisions—There is very little doing in barreled pork and beef. Pork is rather firmer. Lard is in light demand even at the extreme low prices which continue to rule. Hams and rolls are out of season except in a retail way. In fresh meats prices are lower and the market is rather dull, this is particularly the case in beef. Lamb has a steady sale, mutton and veal are lower. Pork is in light demand with prices fair for the season:

MOLASSES AS FEED FOR HORSES.

CONSIDERABLE has been said and printed within the past year or two on molasses as a food for horses and cattle, and all agree tnat while it is very beneficial to the animals, it cannot be given in quantities with safety. Many are the mixtures that have been and are being offered, that claim to have successfully grappled with the question of feeding the molasses in proper proportions, and have met with more or less success. One of the most successful of such feeds is "Molassine Meal," which is said to be a pure vegetable matter scientifically blended with molasses in the proper proportions, and is meeting with very large sales,—in Europe alone the sales during 1903 having reached over 100,000 tons. Mr. J. H. Maiden, of Montreal, the Canadian agent, has been successfully pushing the sale of Molassine on the Canadian market, and is very optimistic regarding its future. He has at the present time a shipment of fifty tons in transit.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Henri Jonas, of Henri Jonas & Co., Montreal, has returned from his annual tour to the European markets.

Mr. J. E. Davidson, postmaster and general merchant of Cowley, Alberta, has just returned home from a holiday trip to Nova Scotia.

Mr. C. H. Crawford has opened a flour and feed store in the stand lately occupied as a machine shop, opposite the New Daly, King street, Ingersoll.

Mr. J. A. Mathewson, jr., of J. A. Mathewson & Co., Montreal, is back into harness again after a three weeks' outing at Lake Charlebois, P. Q.

Mr. J. H. Maiden, Montreal, manufacturer San Toy Starch and Eagle Baking Powder, has returned from a two weeks' trip through the Maritime Provinces, visiting St. John, Halifax, Moncton, Truro, and the larger cities and towns. This was Mr. Maiden's first trip east, and he speaks very satisfyingly of the results of his tour. He was much impressed with the manner of his reception by the eastern merchants.

Mr. Geo. H. Palmer, well and favorably known to the trade in the Maritime Provinces, has joined the traveling staff of S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal. Mr. Palmer has been on the road in the provinces for 26 years, and in that time represented some of the best houses in the east. That he is known to the trade goes without saying. Mr. Palmer spoke of the prospects for business as being good, a fairly large apple crop and successful fisheries on the whole tending to make trade good. He left on Thursday for Woodstock, N. B.

COMMON SENSE.

The Common Sense Manufacturing Co., 381 Queen street west, Toronto, are putting on the market a rat exterminator that is said to be remarkably efficacious in doing away with these pests. It has the additional advantage of being non-injurious to other animals and of causing the rat to dry up after taking the paste. They also put up roach and bed bug paste under the same label.

THE PRESERVATION OF APPLES.

The conditions under which the prolonged storage of apples may be successfully carried out has been studied during the past two years by the United States Department of Agriculture, and the cold storage of apples has now made this fruit available practically the whole year round. Several hundred different varieties were stored in order to make the tests. It appears that there is no difficulty whatever in storing apples in the autumn and keeping them until late in the following Spring. All that is apparently necessary is to keep an equable temperature; just about freezing point is the most satisfactory.

ENGLAND'S AGRICULTURE.

The agricultural returns for 1903 tell a pitiful tale of England's unsettled acres, and her dependence on outside sources of food supply. They are of immense importance to Canada, for the decrease in acreage of land under the plow means larger markets for her wheat. Why should Argentine show the greatest increase in the exports to Great Britain, particularly when the bulk of her exports rival those of Canada? A careful perusal of the figures given in the returns may awaken all concerned to the immensity of the opportunity at hand.

Since 1875 there has been a steady reduction in the area of land under the plow, and last year 172,000 acres were withdrawn from arable cultivation. This brings the total under cultivation below 15 1-2 million acres, or 3,000,000 less than a third of a century ago. The decrease in wheat acreage has been 8 1-2 per cent. or 145,000 acres, leaving only 1,528,000 acres to wheat; while the barley acreage fell by 51,000 acres, reducing the total acreage to 1,858,000 acres, the lowest on record. Even the lands in potato cultivation are less by 10,000 acres.

TO BE WOUND UP.

The Stratford Wholesale Grocery Co., after being in operation about a year, have decided to go into voluntary liquidation. The liquidator is Mr. A. H. King, and the inspectors Messrs. J. C. Monteith, A. Dempsey, J. P. Mabee and George Ballantyne. The liquidator, it is stated, has an offer for the stock, including the lease of the premises, from the Wholesale Grocers' Co., and it will possibly be accepted. Twenty-five per cent. of the subscribed capital stock of $100,000 was paid in, and this will cover the loss. It is understood that the business will be continued by the prospective purchasers.

BRITISH TRADE WITH CANADA.

The British Board of Trade returns for July show a decrease in imports of $23,483,500, principally in foodstuffs, $18,284,445, and wool, $3,345,265; and a decrease in exports of $5,460,000, mainly in iron, steel and manufactures thereof.

The imports to Great Britain from Canada during the month of July were as follows:

Cattle, 14,391 head	£255,815
Sheep and lambs, 5,274 head	8,676
Wheat, cwt., 814,100	292,379
Wheat, meal and flour, cwt., 235,830	110,893

Fresh and Cured Fish

How Herrings Are Caught.

THE method of catching herring and sprats is not, as might be supposed, universally understood, writes Mr. Frank Bullen in Sunday at Home. Very briefly it is this: Of stout, well-tarred twine a net is constructed about 20 feet wide and in 120 foot lengths, making up for one boat about 200 fathoms. At the top and bottom are stout ropes, the lower rope being slightly weighted with sheet lead lapped round it in places, and the upper buoyed with pieces of cork. The meshes are made just large enough for the herring or sprat, as the case may be, to get its head through. There it is caught, for the pectoral fins and swell of the body will not allow it to go any further, while the opening of the gills prevents it from moving backwards. When the nets are shot, as it is termed, they oppose to the passage of the army of herrings an invisible fence through which it is impossible to pass, but which is, of course, attempted. Presently an enormous number of fish are entrapped by the neck, but so lightly are they held that when the net is hauled into the boat a gentle shake in quite sufficient to dislodge them, and they fall into the boat dead, for the herring dies almost at once upon leaving its native element.

The Salmon Shortage.

ACCORDING to figures recently received from British Columbia the pack on the Behring Sea is short 400,000 cases. In Middle and Southern Alaska the shortage is two hundred and fifty thousand cases. British Columbia is two hundred and twenty-five thousand cases short and Puget Sound sockeye chinooks. Columbia River and Sacramento River are one hundred and twenty-five thousand cases short, a total of one million cases. Another's figures are substantially that the shortage is one-half of last year, which was 2,570,042, leaving a total pack of 1,335,000 cases this season.

From another source come estimates of a total pack of pink salmon of 335,000 cases. The total pack of pink salmon and chums last year was 709,235 cases. In 1902 it was 876,768 cases, and in 1901 804,549 cases.

Visitors From the East.

A party of prominent capitalists who are largely interested in the British Columbia Packers' Association reached Vancouver from the East on July 29. The party consisted of E. W. Rollins of the firm of E. H. Rollins & Sons, Boston; Edward Cronyn, of the firm of Aemilius Jarvis & Co., Toronto, and Charles E. L. Porteous, of Montreal, and Ashton Rollins. They went out West to see something of the salmon run and also to attend the annual general meeting of the British Columbia Packers' Association, which was held in Vancouver on August 1.

Indignant.

The Anglers' Association of the St. Lawrence River at their 21st annual meeting, held at Thousand Island Park on the 3rd inst., protested against a new regulation of the Department of Fisheries of the Province of Ontario, which requires that every American fishing in the waters of the Province shall be required to pay a fee of $5 for each rod fished, unless he is a guest at a Canadian hotel or boarding-house, or has purchased his supplies in Canada. A committee of three Americans and two Canadians was appointed to make an effort to have the regulation rescinded.

Restocking Inland Lakes.

The Fisheries Department of Ontario have completed their work for the season in connection with the restocking of the inland lakes with bass. Altogether over 10,000 parent bass have been transplanted, and the angling in the inland lakes is reported to have been improved accordingly. In the lakes in the vicinity of Huntsville, where up until four years ago no bass were to be found, the work of the Department is reported to have been very noticeable, and the tourists now report good bass fishing.

New Use for Dog Fish.

Several recent tests by fishermen in Nova Scotia of dog fish as lobster bait give fair promise of a successful issue. There are about 10,000 fishermen engaged in fishing lobsters, using nearly 150,000 barrels of herring as bait, at a cost of approximately $225,000 a year. The same quantity of dog fish at the proposed rate of bounty, would be worth a little over $100,000,—not half as much as if used for bait. While this quantity would be far from reducing to an appreciable extent the swarms of dog fish on the Atlantic coast, it is a side of the problem which cannot be overlooked.

Herrring Curing Experiments.

The curing of Canadian herring by the Scotch process is likely to result in greatly enhanced prices for Canadian fishermen. An experimental shipment to New York recently of herring cured by the Scotch expert, Mr. Cowan, and his assistants, realized from $10 to $12 a barrel, an increase of about 50 per cent. on prices under the old method.

Remedy for Dogfish Evil.

The proposed payment of bounties for the destruction of dogfish has been abandoned by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. In its place he will construct three factories in the Maritime Provinces for the reduction of dogfish and fish offal into oil, glue, etc. Each of these factories will cost about $9,000, and will be constructed on the plans of the factories in operation in the United States. One will be located in Gloucester County, a second on the south shore of Cape Breton, and a third probably in the Magdalene Islands. In the United States these factories realize a handsome profit, and it is hoped that the Canadian reduction stations may be made self-sustaining.

B. C. Salmon for New Zealand.

There are indications that New Zealand is interested in British Columbia salmon, and that before long a market for the canned product from this coast will be found in that part of the Empire, says the Vancouver News-Advertiser. At present a New Zealand buyer of salmon is in British Columbia and may make a number of contracts for the shipping of salmon from the Fraser River. It is his first visit to British Columbia on such an errand, but since the preferential tariff in favor of Canadian products has come into froce in New Zealand, merchants are beginning to look this way. Large quantities of salmon have hertofore been obtained from Puget Sound, and it is very probable that the trade will come now to Vancouver.

SPECIAL NOTICE to the TRADE.

IN a previous issue of the Grocer we called the attention of the Trade to our very tender Sugar Pea. We now beg to call the attention to another line of peas which we believe to be first-class value. We refer to our brand "Midget" Peas. This is a pea just one grade larger than Petit Pois, and is selected from what is the most tender peas in the entire pack. It can be retailed at ten cents at any point in Ontario where the freight rates are only ordinary. As a straight ten cent line we believe it the best value to the consumer of any pea we pack. At the same time the retailer should have 25 per cent. profit on it at the price we are quoting it. We finished packing peas on the 30th July, and all through the pack the weather was perfect for packing peas, cool and moist, so that the raw material was kept in fine condition. Taking the pack as a whole we have every reason to believe it is the finest in quality that we have ever packed.

HANDSOME BROKERAGE OFFICES.

ON this page The Grocer takes pleasure in presenting two illustrations of the sample room and business office respectively of the brokerage firm of J. L. Watt & Scott, in the Royal Insurance Building, 27 Wellington street east, Toronto. The main office, situated on the first floor of the building, is guarded at the entrance by a neat brass rail beyond which is the receiver's counter. In this office is conducted the correspondence and bookkeeping of the firm. The southeast corner of the office is separated from the main portion by a glass partition, framed in solid oak, forming the private office of the senior of the firm. The sample room is entered from the main office through a wide archway in the middle of the partition wall, as shown in the illustrations.

Business Offices, J. L. Watt & Scott.

The offices are capacious and thoroughly lighted. The floors are of polished hardwood and rendered quieter by a judicious disposition of Oriental rugs. The length of the office is 50 feet and the breadth of office and sample room is 30 feet. One is impressed on entering with the fact that these are premises of a thoroughly up-to-date and orderly business concern.

The business was commenced in 1885 by Mr. J. L. Watt as a foreign agency, i.e., Mr. Watt acted as agent for foreign shippers. At that time the most important agency business in this line was conducted by the late Mr. E. Bendelari in Toronto. The difficulties of introducing to the trade shippers who were unknown to the importers was much greater in those days than at the present time. It was not until seven or eight years had elapsed that these difficulties were successfully overcome and the firm of Watt & Scott were recognized as one of the leading sources of information and supply.

The business had been established several years before the firm took up the sale of teas and, although still most widely known as agents for the most reputable shippers in all lines of European produce, their connections in this line covering the whole Dominion from Halifax to Vancouver, their tea department at the present time is looked upon as one of the most important in the business.

Soon after Mr. A. H. Scott's entrance into the firm in 1890, he went to Montreal and established a house there, from which centre the firm of Watt, Scott & Goodacre (Mr. E. B. Goodacre having been subsequently taken into partnership) conduct an important business for the same European shippers.

Some of the chief agencies conducted by the firm are Harrisons & Crosfield, London, England, Crosfield, Lampard & Co., Colombo, Ceylon, and Lampard, Clark & Co., Calcutta, India, in teas, and Dem Shisas, Patras, Trenor & Co., Valencia, and Wm. Rogers & Co., Denia, in fruits. In addition they have direct connections for all classes of European and foreign produce, with shippers that stand high in the estimation of the trade. Watt & Scott are also sole agents for Van Houten's cocoa and selling agents for the Anglo B. C. Packing Co.'s brands of salmon.

Quality—the highest standard.

Prices—no higher than for common brands

Our first consideration with every shipment on every line is quality.

Our customers' trade depends on the quality of the goods we supply them and we make it our business to see that they cannot get quite as good quality from any other house.

Prices—We buy in such immense quantities and direct from the countries of production that no other house can undersell us.

We take just as good care of our little customers as the large—they'll grow and we want to keep them.

If you want your orders filled promptly we can make shipment the day we receive your order.

All our lines are covered by catalogue—do not hesitate to write for folders on any line—we are glad to supply them.

Years and Years!

For years and years the most persistent buyers of Windsor Salt have been the most successful cooks. One woman has told another about the salt that doesn't cake, the salt of unequalled purity, whiteness, dryness, and each woman is a link in the chain that has been forged from one little word, "confidence."

A woman can make or mar your success in business. She can influence trade—above all, she does like to talk. Think of the cumulative effect of years and years of constant talking—constant praise for Windsor Salt.

DEDICATION.

THE GROCER is a firm believer in the future of the Canadian West. This belief is attested to by the present number, which has been prepared in honor of the Dominion Exhibition, which came to a successful termination last week in Winnipeg. In another portion of the paper, we devote considerable attention to the various phases of the Exhibition and illustrate a few of the notable displays. These in point of beauty of arrangement, and general interest were the equal of anything ever before shown in Canada. Altogether the Exhibiton was a remarkbale success and the directorate are to be congratulated on their enterprise and good management.

A REGRETABLE INDISCRETION.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S speech in the House of Commons the other day in defence of the appointment of Mr. Jackson as commercial agent at Leeds is one of the most regretable incidents in Canadian public life for some time.

Although we have with the Boards of Trade and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association had on more than one occasion to complain of the lack of energy displayed by Sir Richard Cartwright in the administration of the Department of Trade and Commerce ever since he came into office, we have always held that he was a type of politician superior to most of the men in public life to-day on both sides of the House. He was a strong politician and an ardent Liberal, but his record on the whole has been a clean one. He did not stoop to the questionable methods of the average politician. His fall from grace, therefore, comes as a great disappointment to a great many people of both political parties.

Liberals everywhere are regretting his indiscretion of the other day. It is true he was responsible for the appointment of Mr. Jackson, but it would have been infinitely better if in the heat of party debate he had not allowed himself to be lead into the discussion.

Sir Richard Cartwright's public life cannot necessarily be many years longer. His age precludes this. It is, therefore all the more to be regretted that in the closing years of his public career he was lead to enunciate principles which even in political affairs are morally unsound.

We have watched with a good deal of interest the reports of Mr. Jackson since he began his duties as commercial agent in Leeds. He has certainly exhibited more ability than we anticipated. He was a lawyer and not a practical business man, but since his appointment he has evidently done his best (and his best has been by no means bad) in the interest of Canadian trade. We have been particularly struck with the zeal which he has displayed in suggesting ways and means whereby Canadian exporters might increase their trade with the business men in his district. He has made some mistakes but his record has on the whole been fairly good.

It is to be regretted, however, that his political career in Canada was not so creditable. The methods he employed to secure evidence designed to unseat a politicial opponent were dispicable and no stronger words in condemnation of his conduct have been used than those of Judge Street, before whom the South Oxford election trial was heard. For Sir Richard Cartwright, therefore, to attempt to condone what Jackson did was most unfortunate.

It was unfortunate indeed, in the first place, because of the bad political doctrines which it enunciated. It was bad in the second place because of the reflection it must necessarily cast on Canadian public life in Great Britain, where Mr. Jackson is a representative of the Dominion Government. Political life in Great Britain is on a higher moral plane than political life in Canada, but it is not about the opinion of the public men in Great Britain that we are so much concerned; it is the opinion of the business men there.

To know that one of the officials who is representing the Dominion in a commercial capacity has been guilty of political practices which were so strongly denounced by a Canadian judge, and yet condoned by Sir Richard Cartwright, the head of the Department of Trade and Commerce, will certainly not tend to strengthen the credit of Canada in British business circles.

A DANGEROUS THING.

A DOLLAR is sometimes made or saved by a dishonest action; but it is a dangerous practice. From an economic standpoint, dishonesty is unprofitable. Business is based on presumptive honesty. Men transact business with each other because they believe that honesty is the rule and not the exception.

"We live by faith, not by sight," is just as true in business affairs as in orthodox religious conduct, and is just as essential in the one as in the other. It is true the banks do not set much value on faith. They pin their belief in collateral security. Faith they rarely practice. It is not taught in their text books. Business men, on the other hand, walk by faith to a great extent, and when any of them stoop to dishonest actions they not only do that which, in the long run, is unprofitable to themselves, but that which tends to disable and weaken the chief superstructure of trade and commerce.

WAGES AND COST OF LIVING.

THE Washington Bureau of Labor, in its last monthly report, contains some remarkable statistics, comparing the increase of wages since 1890 and the increase in the cost of living over the same period. An extended investigation was made. Families in 33 states, representing the leading industrial centres of the country, were taken and their income and expenditure figured out.

Data as to wages and hours of labor were collected from 67 leading industries, embracing 519 distinctive occupations in 3,429 establishments. This data showed that the number of employes in 1903 had increased .3 per cent. over 1902 and 33.2 per cent over 1890. The wages per hour in 1903 had increased 3.6 per cent. over 1902 and 16 per cent. over 1890. With the single exception of 1896 there was a continuous and steady increase in wages from 1894 to 1903, and this was accompanied by a decrease in the hours of labor per week of 3.2 per cent. and an increase in the number of employes in the establishments reported on of 34.3 per cent. in that period.

The weekly earnings per employe in 1903 were 2.7 per cent. higher than in 1902, 14.9 per cent. higher than in 1894 and 11.2 per cent. higher than in 1890. The weekly earnings of all employes covered by the reports were 5 per cent. higher in 1903 than in 1902, 54.4 per cent higher than in 1894 and 48.1 per cent. higher than in 1890.

Comparing the increase in the weekly earnings per employe with the changes in the retail prices of food weighted according to family consumption it is seen that weekly earnings in 1903 were 2.7 per cent. higher than in 1902, while the cost of food was .5 per cent. less. The weekly earnings per employe in 1903 were 4.9 per cent. greater than in 1904, while the cost of food was but 10.6 per cent. greater. The weekly earnings per employe in 1903 were 11.2 per cent. greater than in 1890, while the cost of food was but 7.7 per cent. greater.

EXHIBITION VISITORS.

THOUSANDS of buyers will be in Toronto during the exhibition, combining business and pleasure. Many of these will be unacquainted in the city and almost all of them will find addresses changed since the fire. At any rate, there will be bits of information desired by them all in their purchasing rounds.

The offices of The Grocer at 10 Front street east will be thrown open to our readers as an information bureau, where answers to all questions regarding the city and its business firms will be cheerfully given. Our offices are situated almost in the heart of the business section, and buyers will find them most convenient for finding out what they wish to know or for having a rest between their business calls. All the city papers will be on file, as well as the greater number of newspapers published from one end of Canada to the other.

THE BILLBOARD EVIL.

IN the United States the billboard evil has grown to such proportions that stringent legislation has been necessary to abate the nuisance. Some of the most beautiful suburban scenes along country roads or beside railway tracks have been completely spoiled by the unsightly boards which rise up and deface the landscape. For mile after mile the traveler's weary eye is confronted with these hideous spectres, and no wonder there has been a loud outcry against them.

The Municipality of Cleveland has just adopted a comprehensive building code, which contains a most significant provision relating to signboards, and the City of Boston has done the same. Societies have been formed and agitations started which will certainly bring about good results.

We in Canada have not yet had our fairest scenes invaded by the billboard, but the day will certainly come if something is not done to prevent it. With the principle of billboard advertising we have no quarrel. There are instances when billboards have been known to shut out most unpleasant prospects from the vision, and there are dreary and barren spots where the colors of a bright billboard add life and relieve monotony. There are also many legitimate positions where billboards may be erected to advantage and no complaint will be heard.

But the placing of signboards in the very centre of a beautiful natural scene is going a little too far. Would Muskoka and Georgian Bay be the same delightful and restful spots if at every turn the weary business man, seeking repose, were to confront a green and yellow signboard? Only a very sordid individual would think so, and there are few such in this country, let us hope. Even the wisdom of the advertiser might be questioned in this case. There is such a thing as aversion.

Signboards, like everything else, have a use, and a big use, but they must be used at the proper time and place.

TIMELY LEGISLATION

TIME alone can fully reveal the effects of the anti-dumping clauses of the new tariff; the workings of every change in the law are more or less veiled. One thing is certain, however, that the attempt to protect Canadian manufacturers against this evil has been made at a most opportune moment.

Difficult as it is to account for in all its phases, the presidential election year in the United States is usually attended by a serious slackness in trade that is thoroughly understood and prepared for by merchants over the entire country. So pronounced is the decrease in the business done that, it is said, buyers have the strictest orders to cut down their purchases fully 25 per cent. In fact, it is not unusual for foreign buyers to remain at home for the entire year.

This straitened outlet for the products of the factories, combined with the desire to maintain prices at home, calls for an increased exportation, and Canada has heretofore been the first choice as a customer. During the election year, accordingly, we have been flooded with surplus United States goods, and prices have corresponded with the oversupply. A large part of these receipts has been sold at prices intended only as a provision for the retention of workmen and as a means of disposing of what was already made. Profit was a secondary consideration.

This year has witnessed no change in the preparations for a smaller volume of business, and the same oversupply in the United States markets is sure to follow. Under the new tariff, however, not only will a great part of these goods be kept out of the country, but the remainder is likely to enter only at regular prices, thus preventing any interference with our own production.

BUSINESS MEN'S VACATIONS.

IT is a mistaken idea on the part of many that because a man has two weeks' vacation in the Summer he should crowd every minute of the time with physical exertion of one kind or another,—tramping, canoeing, hunting, golfing, or the like.

To men who have been accustomed to sedentary occupations the good of such a radical change in their mode of living is doubtful. What most persons need is genuine rest. The trouble is that the majority who get a vacation are so afraid that they will not have a good time that they tire themselves out in trying to get it. So far for the physical side of the case.

Mentally the situation is different. If a man is of a social nature and does not see much of people in his business, he will be profited by going to some place where they are congenial people. If, on the other hand, his business requires him to meet many people, he will find recreation in solitary places.

BACK FROM THE OLD LAND

MAJOR JOHN SLOAN, head of the wholesale grocery firm of John Sloan & Co., Toronto, is again back to his business after a three months' trip to England, Scotland and Ireland. Major Sloan is delighted with his trip, and gives visible evidence of the benefit it has been to his health. In conversation with a representative of The Grocer recently Mr. Sloan expressed his admiration for the City of London, in which he spent three weeks.

"The cleanliness of the city struck me more than anything," remarked Mr. Sloan, "and the municipal management must be wonderfully good to keep the sanitary condition of the city so well nigh perfect. London is the healthiest city in the world."

Asked what impressed him most in London, Mr. Sloan replied: "The remarkable sagacity of the municipal government in having so many beautiful parks and breathing places dotted all over London, and the way they keep them and the streets in such a splendid condition; the very cleanliness of the streets is a revelation. They are continually cleaning the streets, Sunday as well as every other day.

"Another thing which struck me very particularly," continued Mr. Sloan, "was the great facility given the population to enjoy healthy open air recreation. On Sunday, as well as any other day, all refreshment places are open, and the people can buy anything they want, and although I do not approve of it, public houses are open on Sunday afternoons. Notwithstanding this freedom, I failed to see in Hyde Park, Regent Park, or St. James Park, a single drunken person, man or woman."

In reference to the grocery trade, Mr. Sloan was greatly struck by the scrupulous cleanliness everywhere evident, and the effective way in which goods were displayed, considering the limited space available. In the grocery shops, butcher shops, and provision stores, everything was as neat as could possibly be. The clerks were very smartly and neatly attired.

Asked if he had discussed Canada much, Mr. Sloan smiled genially. "I was greatly pleased," he said, "to notice the change in regard to Canada since I was in England last. Where before gross ignorance prevailed as to Canada, I was delighted to find all changed. They are all taking great interest in Canada, in Canadian goods, and in the Canadian people.

"At Henley I saw the Canadian win the diamond sculls. There was an immense crowd and, of course, an English crowd, and naturally it wanted to see the Englishman win, but when the Canadian won they accepted the situation like the true sports that they are. I heard no ill-feeling expressed, but the very opposite. The English sculler was very much exhausted, poor fellow, when he reached his boat house. I went in and shook hands with him and told him he had rowed a great race, and that to be beaten by a Canadian was nothing to be ashamed of. I then went on to where Scholes was and congratulated him. He was in splendid condition of body and spirits, and a few Torontonians who were there were simply wild.

"Henley is the greatest sight I ever saw. It is well worth going the distance to see. England's best is there on holiday bent, and the sight of the boats on the river and the coaches on the bank is one never to be forgotten.

"When in Scotland I visited the castle at Edinburgh and saw the 42nd Highlanders, the Black Watch. They are a fine regiment, but I think our own 48th takes the palm for physique and general appearance. I saw some of the members of the band to be at the Toronto Exhibition, and they were very much elated at the prospect of visiting Canada. The 'Fourty Twa's,' as they are affectionately called in Scotland, are indeed a crack regiment.

"I was very much pleased in Dublin at the general improvement in the place since I was there last. In Phoenix Park I heard the band of the Royal Irish Constabulary, one of the finest in the world. The electric railway system in Dublin is the finest I have seen anywhere. In Ireland generally the old spirit of discontent and disloyalty is no longer seen. The New Land Bill which enables the people to own their own land gives great satisfaction. The King is a great favorite with the Irish people, and when in Dublin a month before my visit he received a reception second to none anywhere.

"Just a word on the fiscal question. It is the great topic of conversation all over England, Scotland and Ireland. The people are thinking it over very seriously. The majority of business people with whom I came in contact are entirely in accord with the reform movement, and I believe Mr. Chamberlain will win out yet.

The Dominion Exhibition at Winnipeg

July 25 to August 6, 1904

"In my opinion, this is the psychological moment for the holding of the Dominion of Canada Exibition at Winnipeg."

IN the above sentence Hon. Clifford Sifton, Minister of the Interior, expressed, in his address at the opening of the Dominion Exhibition, the view of the most progressive element of the west. Those intimate with the history of Winnipeg and the wheat lands of the west recognize that the past six or seven years have marked an epoch in the history of the country; that in those years a point of advancement had been reached that was worthy of more than even national attention.

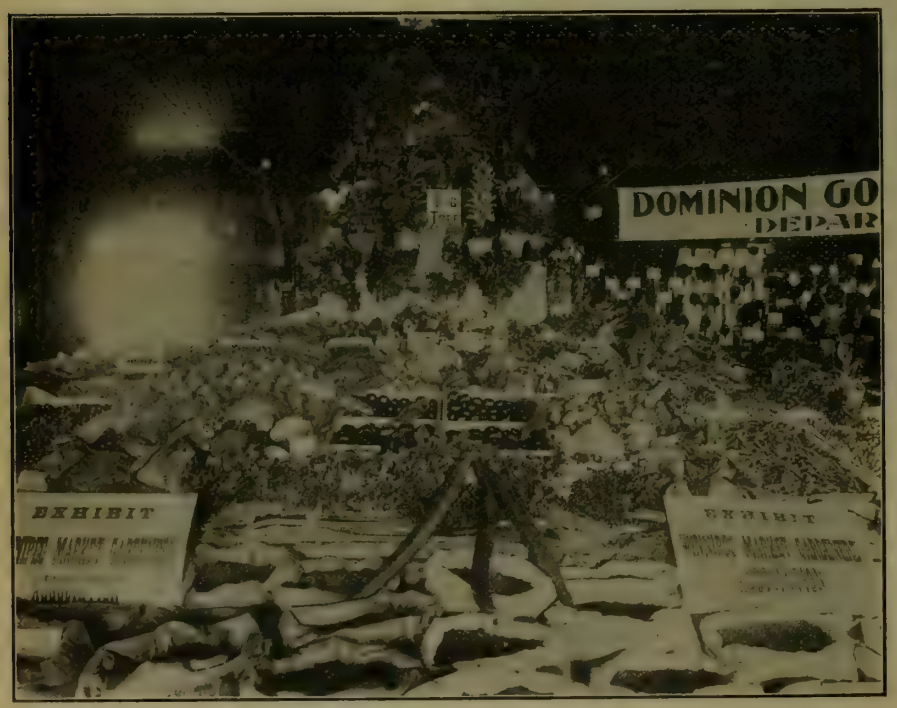
For 150 years Manitoba and the Canadian Northwest have attracted the attention of the hardy pioneer. At first the land was exploited as a fur country, and its fame as such is still expressed in the prosperity of the Hudson Bay Co., who eventually secured control of that trade. Later, the hardy settlers found the soil fertile and the climate suitable for farming. The most far-sighted of these predicted, more than a generation ago, that the Canadian west would some day be famous for its wheat areas.

Opinion regarding the possibilities of the west differed so radically in early years that it was only the great political sagacity and the determined conviction of Sir John Macdonald, Lord Strathcona, and a few others, that made possible the construction of the C. P. R.

A Vital Step .

The completion of the C. P. R. marked a vital step of progress in the Canadian west. The consequent inrush of immigration, the boom in Winnipeg, and later the depression following, are all part of that era of development.

It is recognized that the past six or seven years have constituted another epoch, an era of expansion surpassing in magnitude any previous records.



Vegetable Display by Winnipeg Market Gardners' Association.

Good crops and good advertising (for the west as a farming country has been advertised in the United States and Europe with a persistence and discretion that would be a credit to any advertising expert) have made a combination which has resulted in an influx of population and a remarkable increase in the area of wheat lands under cultivation. A reflex result has been an expansion in Winnipeg which, though partaking of all the characteristics of a boom, is looked upon by conservative business men as not merely legitimate but inevitable.

Time Ripe for Exhibition.

Realizing the extent of this forward movement and the impression it could not fail to leave on visitors, it was recognized by many that the time was ripe for an exhibition in Winnipeg which should be national in scope, and which would attract visitors from Great Britain as well as from the United States and eastern Canada. Not only would the best class of settlers be thus influenced, but the exhibition would serve to knit more closely together the bonds that unite the east with the west.

The people of Manitoba and the Northwest are as patriotic in their business relations as are those in any portion of the Dominion. They would appreciate, as would the manufacturers of the east, any factor which would furnish opportunity for the manufacturers to demonstrate to them the excellence of their wares. It was deemed that if the manufacturers came into close touch with, and studied closely the needs of, the western trade, that the result would be to extend the demand in the Canadian west for Canadian goods, and thus make the great expansion of the west of direct benefit to eastern Canada as well as to the west.

Many, however, have maintained that the time is not yet come for a Dominion Exhibition at Winnipeg. A year from now, they argued, would be soon enough. But it may be fairly said to be characteristic of western methods that if the time is not ripe for any development they force it, just as a gardener would force to fruition a backward plant.

Obstacles Surmounted.

Unquestionably the obstacles that have been surmounted have been so exceptional that only men of strong conviction would have attempted the task. In the first place the buildings were poorly placed and woefully inadequate; they were remodeled and greatly enlarged. The hotel accommodation for exhibition visitors was almost a negligible quantity; an accommodation bureau was established, and although tents and unfinished houses had to be called into service, all visitors were placed.

True, when the exhibitors arrived the cartage and power facilities were far from satisfactory; the buildings were not completed; the details of management neither complete nor fully understood. Yet, despite the difficulties met at every turn by exhibitors and management, and despite the fact that the number of visitors at the industrial displays was not up to the expectation of many exhibitors, the Dominion Exhibition at Winnipeg in 1904 will be looked back to as one of the mile-stones which are marking the rapid progress of the west.

The exhibition was national in every respect. From British Columbia were exhibits of fruit and timber that would have been a credit at a world's fair. From Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces came a group of manufacturers—of practically every class of goods—who had learned of the great market opening up and wanting to win the attention and patronage of the western buyer.

An indication of the extent of the lines shown is given in the following descriptions and illustrations of the various displays :

The B. C. Fruit Exhibit.

"Oh, this is the British Columbia Fruit Exhibit," was the expression heard thousands of times during the two weeks of the Dominion Exhibition at the Prairie City of Winnipeg. In varying keys was the expression repeated, but all were indicative of surprise, delight and admiration. And truly the exhibit, which was sent by the British Columbia Government was worthy of all the praise lavished on it. "Made in Canada" the marching slogan of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, had to give at least equal place in the public favor with "Grown in British Columbia" at the big Fair.

Some of the most perfect samples of fresh cherries possible to imagine were opened to the astonished gaze of the Western wheat-growers. They joined in saying, "Why do you not send more of this to Manitoba?" The reply to be truthful had to be, that the Pacific Province had not been in position in the past to make sufficiently large shipments of fruit to fill the demand which would be aroused by exploiting the trade. Now, however, it is beginning to be different. The fruit supply of the Canadian Northwest is to come from British Columbia and the latter province has by its recent exhibit, demonstrated that it is capable of getting from the soil the most magnificent quality and the greatest quantity required by the big demand market of the broad Western prairies.

Too late in the season for a large exhibit of small fruits, for which British Columbia is famous, and too early for the big line of plums, pears, apples, peaches, etc., which will be in plentiful supply, and full maturity in the next month or six weeks, the British Columbia exhibit yet had a most attractive display. During the first week a large portion of the space on the tables was occupied by the large early varieties of sweet cherries, Lamberts and Bings, two distinctive and celebrated Pacific coast varieties, being exceptionally good. The red were easily as large as good-sized plums. Splendid blackberries, raspberries and Loganberries were also shown several days, and one small crate of early peaches grown at Victoria arrived one day.

During the second week the late cherries, of varieties suited to preserving, were in abundant display. There were Morello, Nouvelle Royal, Olivet and it was explained to the visitors who thronged the British Columbia building, that these kept on ripening until the latter part of August. Many orders were sent to the coast as a result. Vancouver Island, at Victoria and vicinity is specially prolific in raising these late preserving varieties.

Exhibit of British Columbia Fruit.

Windsor, another dark cherry and the Royal Ann, the well known light red cherry, were well represented. In size and eveness of color and fineness of texture these cherries could not be surpassed, while the manner of packing (in ten pound boxes, with a division across the centre) was the equal of the best California packing, every row of the monster fruit being a marvel of precision and perfection. A large quantity of this fruit was distributed gratis during the week, so that seeing was not alone depended on to prove the excellence of the quality.

Another display which attracted much attention was that of the English gooseberries, a crate of which ripened to deep

Early as the time was there were a large number of boxes of apples received from the Chilliwack and Victoria districts. The varieties known as Yellow Transparent and Red Astrachan were the principal, and were very well matured. Some peach plums and Tragedy prunes, the latter from Victoria, and some of the others from the Okanagan were shown. In bottled fruits, preserved to show the natural color and appearance of the fruit, there was a large display sent from the Department of Agriculture at Victoria. At least 15 sorts of plums were shown and the bloom on each specimen was perfectly preserved. A grand collection of peaches, apples, pears, apricots, cherries, currants of all varieties and every other small fruit was also shown.

The display was artistically decked out with branches of fresh cherries showing the heavy fruitage of the branches in British Columbia orchards. Branches of the cedar, spruce, fir, and other native evergreen trees were used for garnishing the tables, and were much appreciated by the prairie folk. A magnificent collection of enlarged and framed photographs of British Columbia landscapes and orchards were hung on the walls of the building and formed a handsome attraction.

Mr. R. M. Palmer, Commissioner of Immigration for British Columbia, represented his Government at the Dominion Fair, and all through the two weeks he and Mr. W. J. Brandrith, secretary of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association, were indefatigable in explaining to the visitors who thronged the building all that the exhibit meant. There was but one opinion of the benefits which will accrue to the fruit-growing industry in British Columbia from this practical demonstration of the progress the province has made in modern methods of growing and packing fruit. Incidentally, as before remarked, the excellent quality and magnificent appearance of the fruit were given a practical demonstration, and the people will not soon forget the object lesson. Many from Ontario and other portions of the Dominion were forced to admit the superior quality of fruit from British Columbia.

Exhibit of Cowan's Chocolate and Cocoa.

The Exhibit of Royal Crown Soap.

Cowan Co., Limited.

The Cowan Co.'s elaborate and well laid out exhibit, made up of a most attractive assortment of cream bars, chocolate wafers, Swiss milk chocolate, crystalized ginger and chocolate ginger was most appealing to the sweet tooth of many a sightseer. The demonstration of the merits of the products of the company was carried on principally by Mr. C. Dimmick with the greatest success. During these demonstrations the aisle in front of the demonstrating counter was so crowded that at times it was practically impassable..

Royal Crown Soap Co.

A large space on the north side of the Winnipeg building, exceedingly well decorated in colors of blue and white bunting, drew the attention of visitors towards the exhibit and on approaching everything was seen to be bustle and excitement. This was the display of the Royal Crown Soap Co., of Winnipeg. This company, which manufactures such a great variety of soaps and perfumes had some half dozen of their employes on hand under the supervision of Messrs. J. H. Murphy and J. R. McMullen. The necessary machinery for manufacturing the Royal Crown brands had been installed and was run continuously to give the sightseers an idea of the method used in manufacturing this household necessity. A guessing contest on a large bar of soap was in progress, for which numerous valuable prizes were awarded. Three large bars of different soaps, made at the company's factory, attracted much attention and many small samples of the product of the company were freely circulated among the visitors.

Force Food Co.

A noticeable and most attractive exhibit was that of the Force Food Co., the temporary home of "Sunny Jim" during the Dominion Exhibition. It was in the form of a parlor-like booth, finished off with a drapery of blue and yellow bunting, daintily arranged. From early morning till late in the evening, the surging crowds were to be seen satisfying their curiosity with a very liberal dish of this most tasty food. Mr. P. W. Nesbitt, who was in charge of the exhibit and his ever attentive assistants were always ready to interest those who were anxious to know the merits of this renowned cereal food. They were indeed well rewarded with a satisfactory explanation and a large sample package of Force to take home. By their smiles it was easy to see their appreciation of their treatment.

The Canadian Salt Co.

In the western end of the Eastern Manufacturers' Buildnig was located the compact and attractive exhibit of the Canadian Salt Co., of Windsor, Ont. The neatly and well displayed goods were gotten up in large glass receptacles, arranged to great advantage with the contrasting effect of the stand of dark wood. Mr. P. H. Pennock, the company's representative for Western Canada, was ever ready to demonstrate the qualities of the Windsor salt and with most interesting explanations.

J. Y. Griffin & Co.

In the Winnipeg building, at the south entrance, the visitors were confronted by the excellent display of the J. Y. Griffin Co., of Winnipeg, pork packers, produce and commission merchants. comparing it with other like exhibits, it can well be said that the display put before the public was unique in every respect. As a background were displayed the finished products of their establishment, consisting of hams, bacon, and various lines which they manufacture. In the foreground, upon a counter convenient in height and distance so that the most casual observer might take in each and every particular, stood a glass case wherein were a number of cured specimens of bacon and hams in sections, showing the excellent process through which they had been put. The booth itself was draped with bunting, the hues of which blended harmoniously and served to show off to a large extent the well arranged display contained within. In summing up this exhibit it is only necessary to state that this firm received the bronze medal as a recognition of the excellence of their products and display.

Christie, Brown & Co.

The exhibit of the Chrstie, Brown & Co. in the Eastern Manufacturers' Building readily attracted the attention of passers by. A magnificent square with the four sides closely packed and bricked in with numerous kinds of fancy biscuits neatly and attractively gotten up in glass-faced boxes made a most interesting and striking appearance when the many softly tinted lights illuminated the contrasting effects of the dainty and pretty display. Being situated at the west end of the north aisle in the building it was most conspicuous and ornamental. This greatly added to the beauty of the west end of the hall.

A Successful Enterprise.

One of the most successful enterprises of the last few years, is that of the introduction of Lipton's teas on the Canadian market. There is no doubt that a great measure of the success is due to the fact, that they are put on the market first-hand, thus insuring finest quality at the lowest possible prices; a pleasing and telling combination. Sir Thomas J. Lipton, the proprietor of these teas, whom it is not necessary to introduce to the Canadian public, is the leading grower of Ceylon, and owns the largest number of estates situated in the finest tea growing districts of the island, such gardens as Dambatenne, Laymastotte, Mousakelle and Pooprassie are well-known to all who are interested in tea, as producing absolutely the finest grades of Ceylon tea. Lipton's teas have a world-wide reputation, as they are being used in every quarter of the globe, the sale for 1903 exceeding the enormous quantity of 93,000,000 packages. Any Canadians who intend visiting the World's Fair at St. Louis should see Lipton's attractive exhibits in the Ceylon court, the Agricultural Building and the Irish Exhibit.

Walter Baker's Cocoa.

A pretty and one of the most effective exhibits was that of Walter Baker's Cocoa and Chocolates. An appropriate dark rich brown burlap added greatly to the charm of the booth's interior. On the counter a show case displayed a most beautiful assortment of cocoas and chocolate and the young lady attendants were arayed in dainty and picturesque costumes representing the La Belle Chocolatiere, the trade mark of the Walter

At early morning the demonstrating commenced and many delicious cups of steaming hot cocoa were handed over the counter to the ever-ready and much appreciating patrons of the counter, until the hours of closing would oblige them to withdraw. In the year 1780, twenty-seven years before the electric telegraph came into use, the Baker cocoa and chocolate factory was established in Dorchester on the site now occupied by the large mills of that company.

Pugsley, Dingman Co., Limited.

A most interesting and attractive display was that of the Pugsley-Dingman Co., Limited, of Toronto, manufacturers of Comfort Soap. A massive four-sided column, running to a spiral-like roof, papered on all sides from about three feet from the base with soap wrappers, produced an excellent effect.

The guessing contest, which caused no end of comment regarding the weight of a gigantic cake of Comfort Soap, was placed on the platform slightly to one side of the column. This brought Mr. F. C. Cockburn, who was in charge of the exhibit, many thousands of answers, which were handed in on the company's ingenious little dodger and placed in a ballot box. To the person who gave the answer nearest to the correct weight of the soap, a beautiful upright piano was to be given, valued at $500.

Goods That Are Always Dependable.

That quality counts is evident in the rapid growth of the three large factories that manufacture Boeckh's standard brushes and Cane's Newmarket pails, brshes and Cane's Newmarket pails, tubs, washboards and clothes pins which have for the last half century been turning out manufactures of a set standard that has gained for them an enviable reputation. It has become generally known among the trade that goods bearing this firms' trade mark "are business bringers of intrinsic worth, being quick selling lines which afford a good margin of profit." They are "Made in Canada" goods and are of the reliable kind that help to make this phrase a guarantee of good value.

Edwardsburg Starch Co.

A splendidly designed representation of the Fort Garry Gateway at Winnipeg was erected for the Edwardsburg Starch Co. in a conspicuous location near the end of the north aisle in the eastern manufacturers' building. The material used was entirely made up of the company's neatly labeled package goods, of Benson's enamel, a cold water starch, and Benson's prepared cornstarch, which caused no end of complimentary remarks being made by the many thousands of sightseers as they passed this most attractive and ingenious get up, which showed up the goods to a splendid advantage. The works of the Edwardsburg Starch Co. are situated at Cardinal, Ont., with offices at Montreal and Toronto, and with their western representatives, Nicholson & Bain, at Winnipeg.

Red Rose Tea.

An artistic and inviting parlor-like booth was that of the Red Rose tea. Comfortable chairs were nicely arranged around numerous tables, while courteous assistants poured out the clear rich liquid. The trimmings of the booth were of a red and white character. Being located in the Eastern Manufacturers' Building at the west end of the south aisle it was in a very conspicuous corner. Mr. Arnold, who was in charge, kept up pleasing and indefatigable demonstrations from early morning till the doors of Manufacturers' Hall closed for the night.

Canadian Milk Products.

This company's exhibit in the eastern manufacturers' building about the centre of the north entrance aisle, was one of particularly pleasing appearance. Turide was a splendid display neatly arranged and gotten up in packages of various sizes of the Canadian Milk Products Co.'s Lactomen, which is a form of sterilized milk. The demonstrating was carried on by Mr. Alexander, who was in charge of the exhibit. A bright yellowish flaky powder was shown which had the taste and odor of milk. This was explained to the interested spectators as being produced by drying milk rapidly at a high temperature between two steam-heated cylinders. The milk solids come off the drying rolls in moist sheets, which dry when cooled, and are passed through a sieve. The Lactomen creameries are located in Frownsville, Oxford County, Ontario, and the sales department is in the Mail building, Toronto, Ont.

Truro Condensed Milk and Coffee Co.

One of the best exhibits from far Eastern Canada was that of the Truro Condensed Milk and Coffee Co. This enterprising company, which was represented in Winnipeg by Nicholson & Bain, had their space in the Eastern Manufacturers' Building about the end of the north aisle. Their exhibit was artistically arranged in a number of pyra-

Lever Bros. Soaps.

Near the centre of the south aisle of the Eastern Manufacturers' Building, well situated and most conspicuous to the eyes of the visitors, coming in either by the main or back entrance, stood the exhibit of the Lever Bros. soaps. Displayed in a number of show cases splendidly arranged by Mr. W. Bird and Mr. C. R. Temperaton, who were in charge of the exhibit, the many different makes of soap, such as the Sunlight, Lifebuoy, Monkey Brand, Y.-Z., Crests, and the Coral all now well known to the trade were on display.

Malta Vita Co.

The Malta Vita Co. had perhaps one of the most artistically arranged booths at the Dominion Fair. The colors selected were strong ones, and they were very harmoniously blended, so that the effect was both rich and effective, and the display stood out in bold relief among the heterageneous mass of colors. Oriental rugs of rich coloring, easy chairs of various designs, together with cut flowers, palms and ferns, were tastefully arranged, and the soft light reflected at night from a number of shaded lamps added a fairy like effect to the whole surroundings. The counter was presided over by Mr. F. J. Meagher, the general representative of the company, and the effect was increased by a bevy of comely young women who served the multitude with good old Malta Vita.

Frontenac Cereal Co.

An elaborately decorated booth was that of Orange Meat, which is made in Canada by the Frontenac Cereal Co., of Kingston, Ont. On a counter artistically draped in with the large labels used on the company's package goods were the numerous little dishes that Mr. B. H. Blakeslie, who had cnarge of the exhibit, used in the demonstrations of the various ways of preparing this most delicious cereal food. An interesting feature that caused no end of comment, and that drew many thousands around the Orange Meat booth, weighing 560 lbs., whose robust health and generous proportions were to be at-

The National Cash Register.

One of the most interesting displays was that of the National Cash Register located about the centre of the north entrance aisle of the Winnipeg Building All the machines were displayed on beautifully illuminated pedestals, square in shape. On each side of these were handsome pictures of the different departments in their enterprising manufacturng plant in Dayton, Ohio. Mr. C. J. Whipple, the company's Western manager, in his indefatigable demonstrations on the operating and the use of this time-saving machine, had constantly a crowd of interested spectators listening and watching the explanations illustrated.. The National Cash Register Co. besides their extensive factory at Dayton, Ohio, were obliged to erect a large factory at Toronto in order to cope with the demands of the Canadian trade.

Dominion Packing Co.

Another of the far eastern Canadian firms whose exhibit aroused a widespread attention was the Dominion Packing Co. This firm, whose head quarters are at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, and who are represented in Winnipeg by Nicholson & Bain, were situated in the eastern manufacturers' building, and made an excellent showing of their various products. The canned goods on exhibition were very neatly arranged in the shape of pyramids, each package or can with its descriptive label. Probably the most conspicuous portion of the exhibit from a dealer's viewpoint was the first-class showing made of the special brands of hams and bacons cured and put up by the company at their headquarters, and known as the "Beechnut" brand.

Hamilton Coffee and Spice Co.

Near the centre of the south aisle of the eastern manufacturers' building was to be found the exhibit of the Hamilton Coffee & Spice Co., which was most strikingly neat and artistic. In the background, attractively arranged on numerous shelves, were the various brands of McLaren's extracts, jellies, spices and coffees, interspersed with gracefully arranged bunting of blue and white, giving an effect to the entire exhibit that was most interesting. The demonstrating was carried on by Mr. W. H. McLaren and his attendants, interesting the many visitors who were very anxious to see the results produced from the extracts by the makers themselves.

D. S. Perrin & Co., Limited.

Entering the eastern manufacturers' building from the north entrance, about half way up the aisle was located the interesting and most attractive display of D. S. Perrin & Co., Limited, of London, Ont., with Mr. Chas. Grundy, manager of their western branch at Winnipeg, in charge of the exhibit From a two-foot base about 40 feet in length, rose an inclined shelving attractively arranged with neatly assorted biscuits in glass-faced boxes, extending from the base of the display to about 10 feet up the wall. The picturesque effect was increased by a beautifully and artistically arranged Union Jack flag set in the centre of the exhibit.

conspicuous, was the daintily gotten up booth for the display of Bovril extract of beef. The facings were entirely of white, with most exquisite trimmings of gold lines bordering the white background. On the counter all day long the dainty cups and saucers were being filled with this most nutritious and stimulating beverage by Mrs. Small and her ever attentive assistants.

Libby, McNeill & Libby.

About the centre of the south aisle of the Eastern Manufacturers' Building was to be found the exhibit of Libby,

McNeill & Libby, of Chicago, who manufacture over 74 brands of tinned meats. This display of the good things arranged neatly on the counter was indeed striking. Mrs. L. S. Thorman, who was in charge of the exhibit, demonstrated the good qualities and gave to the many thousands of passers by generous samples of the leading lines. The interior part of the booth was beautifully decorated with numerous prettily arranged palms and ferns..

St. Lawrence Starch Co.

A most attractive and compact exhibit was that of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., Limited, of Port Credit, Ont. In a show case were the various brands of starch put up by the company, with a foundation of loose starch in the lump. This made a splendid background for the package goods of Ivory Gloss in the 6 and 1-lb. sizes, together with an assortment of No. 1 white and Ivorine water starch for all kinds of cotton and linen goods, which were piled in the shape of a pyramid in the centre of the case.

Blue Ribbon Tea.

The space laid out for the Blue Ribbon Tea Co. was most commodious, and gave the ever attentive assistants sufficient room to move around comfortably. This attractive and pretty booth was draped most artistically with blue and white bunting, and the splendid illumination brought out a most beautiful contrasting effect throughout the entire display. Mr. J. H. Morrow, who was in charge of the exhibit, saw that all operations in the brewing of the tea were carried out in such a way as to produce the very best quality of the product.

At the extreme end of the south aisle of the Eastern Manufacturers' Building attractively decorated in a blue and white design was the exhibit of the Canada Maple Exchange under the supervision of Mr. R. Small. The booth was beautifully gotten up and bordering the blue and white bunting were the maple leaf labels, the company's trade mark.

The Brantford Starch Works.

A splendid corner laid out in a most conspicuous and artistic way was utilized to show the goods of this company. It was arranged in the shape of a large pyrimid, lightly framed in by an attractively decorated railing and dome-like roof, neatly covered with red and white bunting. It was easy to see that the splendid display of Celluloid starch for linen and Crystal Maize corn for cooking purposes was the work of an adept and Mr. D. T. Williamson proved himself proficient in this pursuit.

BANANA CONSUMPTION IN U. S.

One of the many proofs of the vastly increased consumption of fruits among the American people is seen in the fact that in 1899 a little more than a million bunches of bananas were exported from Honduras to the United States. In 1903 the total exceeded two millions, and consular estimates put the probable aggregate in 1904 at three millions.

TRADE WITH JAMAICA.

TO encourage trade between Jamaica and the balance of the British Empire, a permanent exclusive exhibition and sale repository of the food products and manufactures of the different portions of the Empire has been organized at Kingston, the capital of Jamaica. Circulars are being sent to all the leading boards of trade and commercial bodies throughout the British possessions.

Jamaica's imports for the fiscal year ending march 31, 1903, bordered on $10,000,000, of which but $600,000 was drawn from the Dominion, as against $4,000,000 from the United States, and this, too, notwithstanding that no single item, whether farm product or manufacture, aggregating this very appreciable amount, could not have been supplied equally satisfactory from Canadian sources.

It is felt that a permanent exhibition and sale rooms for the food products and manufactures of Canada will supply to the traders and consumers in these markets the much-needed opportunity throughout the year for inspecting and obtaining importations from the Dominion regarding the goods in which they may be interested. Everything will be done to interest the local trader and reach the actual consumer, with a view of aggressively diverting trade into Canadian channels.

Arrangements can be made for the sale of food products, and the handling of further consignments, as also the sale and booking of orders for any articles exhibited or catalogued. Correspondents may order direct, but agencies, if desirable, can be arranged.

All sample shipments and exhibits, addressed "Anglo-Canadian Commercial Museum," Kingston, Ja.,—together with the name and address of the exhibitor—through the courtesy of Messrs. Pickford & Black, steamship agents, Halifax, will be conveyed free of all freight charges. All local incidental expenses are inclusive of space charges.

It is contemplated to open the first series of the Canadian section on or about September 1, 1904. But, while there is no time limit for the acceptance of exhibits, space being limited, it will necessarily be a case of "first come first served."

A tourist information bureau, reading room and commercial library is attached, and every endeavor will be made to attract and induce the many thousands of tourists and in-transit passengers constantly visiting the islands from Europe, the United States, South and Central America, Panama, Mexico and Cuba, to inspect and note the various exhibits.

PERSONAL MENTION.

TESTING DAIRY HERDS.

THE Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, has for some time been recommending the establishment among Canadian dairy farmers of co-operative testing associations, somewhat similar to those which have had such a marked effect in increasing the milking capacity and reducing the cost of production in Danish dairy herds. Under the direction of the Minister of Agriculture, an object lesson along that line is now being given in the district about Cowansville, Que., with the Government Cool Curing Room as the centre where the testing is done and the records kept. Arrangements have been made whereby 82 farmers in the vicinity undertake to keep accurate records of the daily milk yield of each cow in their herds. Samples of both morning and night's milk are taken three times a month and tested for butter fat at the Cool Curing Room. The milk records sheets are collected monthly and these are compared with the books of the cheese factories to which the farmers send milk, so that a fairly efficient check on accuracy is provided. Some 1,450 cows are concerned in this Cowansville cow census, which shows that the large dairymen of that district are alive to the importance of weeding out the unprofitable producers. The testing association is, as yet, merely in the experimental stage, but if it works out satisfactorily, it will doubtless lead to a considerable extension of the movement.

THE WEEK IN CALIFORNIA FRUIT.

Toronto, August 10.— The arrivals have been fairly heavy, although the market was well sustained, and fairly good prices have been realized. Bartlett pears are in their prime now, being evenly packed and free from scab. Some very fine peaches, Fosters, Crawfords and Elbertas, have come forward, and, from the prices realized per box ($1.15 to $1.50 per box generally), it would seem a favorable opportunity for preserving, a box containing as much as 1½ baskets. It is probable that local peaches will not be very plentiful this season owing to the severe Winter. A few grapes, of the Fountainbleu variety, have been noticed and have commanded good prices.

ENORMOUS GROWTH OF LAKE COMMERCE.

THE people of the United States have thus far scarcely realized the importance and magnitude of the traffic on the chain of lakes. Only a short time ago Detroit stood second as a port of entry in the United States, and by this time she may possibly stand first, as she handles over 17 per cent. of the exports of the entire series of northern border and lake ports. It has long been a proud boast of the City of the Straits that more than twice as much tonnage passes through the Detroit River during the season of lake navigation as through the Suez Canal during the entire year. This is literally true. The figures for 1902, for instance, as given by the Blue Book of American Shipping, are 48,000,000 tons for the Detroit River, as against 11,248,413 tons for the international waterway.

The summaries of the tonnage passing the Government locks at Sault Ste. Marie afford the best indication of the enormous growth of lake commerce, as the greatest development of the grain and iron ore trades has been through ports at the head of Lake Superior. These reports show that the freight movement in 1902 had reached the enormous total of 35,961,146 net tons, against 11,214,333 tons in 1892, only ten years previous, and against only 1,567,741 tons in 1881, the first year in which the number of tons of freight was recorded. Similar gains are shown in the registered tonnage of vessels, which amounted to 31,955,582 tons in 1902, as compared with 10,647,203 tons in 1892. In 1903 the totals were: Iron ore, 21,654,898 tons; coal, 6,937,633 tons, and grain, 93,480,198 bushels.

VISITING THE EAST.

Mr. Geo. W. Baynes, representing the Preston Metal Shingle and Siding Co., Limited, was a visitor to the Montreal and Quebec trade this week. This was Mr. Baynes' first trip east since the destruction of their factory by fire a month ago. Though almost completely wiped out they have everything in good running order again and the wants of their customers are receiving close attention.

A FLYING TRIP.

Mr. Geo. H. Macfarlane, assistant manager E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, Toronto, was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer on Tuesday. Mr. Macfarlane was taking a flying trip to Quebec and Sherbrooke. He reported that though his company had been handicapped in getting their orders out since the destruction of their Toronto factory, they were now getting into fairly good shape. They will be in their new King street west factory, October 1st, and with every convenience and improvement in same anticipate having every order promptly attended to.

TIDINESS IN DISPLAYS.

TIDINESS and neatness in dress are to be commended in every walk of life, and the well-dressed man or woman unconsciously commands deference and respect. By "well dressed" is not meant richly or gaudily dressed, but merely an appearance indicating care and attention. The sloven in dress rarely commends himself to consideration.

Just so is it with the store or the window. It is quite as important for the grocer to have neat and fresh displays as it is for him to be careful in his dress. His store will become so much the more interesting, not merely to every customer who enters it, but to every passer-by who glances at the windows.

Changes of dress on the part of persons are frequently effected for the mere sake of show, and are thus not exactly commendable, but it must be said on the other hand, that frequent changes and rearrangements of the contents of the store serve a useful and praiseworthy end. Every idle moment can with profit be spent in devising fresh ways for adding variety to the stock.

VICE-VERSA.

MANY years ago, before the production of grain was equal to the demand, wages of farm hands were high, but as production increased, the prices lowered faster than the rate of wages.

A farmer employed an industrious Irishman for five years, at the rate of fifty dollars a month "and found"—board, lodging, washing and mending. At the end of the term, he said to his man:

"I can't afford to pay you the wages I have been paying. You have saved money, and I have saved nothing. At this rate you will soon own my farm."

"Then I'll hire you to work for me," said the other, "and you can get your farm back again!"

The Blue Ribbon Tea Exhibit.

Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, the Red Rose tea man, has returned to St. John, N.B., from the Winnipeg Exhibition. Mr. Estabrooks writes The Grocer that in his opinion the exhibition reflected great ctedit on the management, and will result very satisfactorily to the eastern manufacturers.

The International Stock Food Co.'s Exhibit.

INTERNATIONAL STOCK FOOD CO.

In one of the tents near the fruit, flowers and dairy building, the International Stock Food Co. had a display which caught the fancy of the farmers. During recent years stock food has become a special in many stores and the International Stock Food Co. always take the retailer into account when dealing with the farmer. The purpose of the display at the exhibition was to demonstrate the value of the various lines to the visiting farmers, a method that assists the sale of the line in every retail branch. In addition to the stock goods and remedial preparations for stock which were shown an important feature of the exhibit was a model dipping trough, designed to show stock raisers a sure way of ridding cattle and sheep of mange or scab. The extensiveness of range and the merits of "International" foods and remedies are well known to The Grocer readers and the exhibit at Winnipeg did much to extend the reputatoin of the line throughout the West. In addition to literature distributed the firm gave away "Dan Patch, 1.56 1-4" buttons until the rapid demand had exhausted the supply. Any enquiries from dealers seeking agencies for stock food are requested to write to the Toronto or Winnipeg offices of the Company.

LOYALTY.

LOYALTY is the first qualification which is required of every employe by the successful merchant. Loyalty does not mean fawning; it does not imply the currying of favor by sinking all your own dignities; yet it means more than simply doing your specified work well. It means faithful service plus a whole-hearted, personal allegiance.

Loyalty in the employe is necessary to the merchant's getting-on; but it is just as necessary to the employe himself. You cannot rise far nor fast if you do not have fervent faith in the "boss"; and if you lack that faith, change your boss.

The loyal employe does not sacrifice his own opinions, nor the right to express them; but he will choose to express them face to face with the "boss." If it is a good criticism, it may carry weight and will then be appreciated; but if the criticism is not worth while, is not worth making to him face to face, the loyal subordinate will certainly not bauble it to the other hands, or to his outside friends, or at home.

The trade journal ad that aims at nothing more than immediate orders interests that very small fraction of readers who are contemplating purchases. But the advertising built for general simplicity impresses every reader, and when purchases are made a year later, or five years later, the advertiser is still a factor to be reckoned with.—Mahin's Magazine.

Nor will you listen to the babbling of others concerning your employer, except to answer them then and there with a protest. You will defend him any time, anywhere, with the same spirit as if your father, or yourself, were the subject of the babbling.

The loyal employe stands up for his own opinions before his employer and stands up for his employer's opinions before the world.

Loyalty in the employe counts for much in helping the good impression which the shop attempts to make upon the public at large. If the hands show lack of enthusiasm for the shop the customer will soon show lack of confidence. On the other hand, if you show in your manner and words that you believe the shop is "the real thing," the contagion of that belief will spread to the customers and must influence favorable opinion for the store.

An Interesting Exhibit at Winnipeg.

Merchants and storekeepers found much to interest them at the "Pay Roll" plug chewing tobacco booth during the Dominion Exhibition at Winnipeg. The exhibit was in the Winnipeg Building and as will be seen from the photograph it is a regular eye-opener as indicating the splendid value of the premiums which dealers and consumers get by saving snowshoe tags and certificates from "Pay Roll." Silverware, musical instruments, clocks, bicycles, cutlery and all kinds of useful and fancy articles were tastefully displayed and the actual sight of these gifts afforded convincing proof of the way in which the manufacturers of "Pay Roll" plug chewing tobacco share profits with their customers.

A slovenly advertisement may attract attention, but it is likely at the same time to breed disgust and fill the mind with distrust as to the thing advertised.

Messieurs the Ambassadors of Trade

TO WIT, THE SALESMEN CALLING ON THE GROCERY TRADE OF CANADA:

To employ your leisure moments while on your holidays, tell us the best story of a clever business deal in your own experience, or in the experience of any of your acquaintances.

What is the Best Stroke of Business you ever heard of?

This is the question. We offer three prizes for the three best answers.

A Silk Hat
for the best story;

A Silk Umbrella

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, August 11, 1901.

Groceries.

IN view of the fact that the travelers are off the road, trade conditions are reported to be remarkably good. Mail orders are coming in well, and a good Fall's business is generally anticipated, especially as crops are generally good and money appears to be circulating freely throughout the country. The general feeling in the trade is optimistic. In canned vegetables peas are attracting some attention. Canned meats have a fair demand, and salmon are likely to be high in view of the short pack. Sugar has taken another rise of 5c, and is firm at present quotations, one firm having withdrawn from the market. Syrups and molasses show no new feature since last week, and teas locally are not eliciting much interest. Coffees are higher and firm, but local jobbers have not yet decided to go into the market. Spices are meeting a seasonable demand, while foreign dried fruits are largely nominal at present, although some buying has been done in California raisins at a low figure.

CANNED GOODS.

Peas are the only commodity in the canned goods line attracting much interest, as no prices have as yet been made for corn or tomatoes. The market, however, is strong. The canned meat trade is reported as fair. In salmon reports from the coast confirm the expectation of a short pack and high prices are inevitable. We quote :

SUGAR

As we went to press last week we had to advise an advance of 5c per hundred pounds in local quatations. We have again to note a further similar advance, effective at noon on Tuesday, 9th inst., in accordance with which we list Montreal granulated, in barrels, $4.60 ; Acadia XXX granulated, $4.50, and Berlin granulated, $4.50, basis f.o.b. Montreal. This marks an advance of 65c per hundred pounds from the lowest point of the year, and our readers will have noticed that this advance has been gradual, and in no sense spasmodic or speculative, for it has been based upon actual conditions, and has been in close sympathy with outside markets, where there has been a steady progression, with only occasional fractional reactions. The prime factor in the recent advances has been the very severe and prolonged drouth in Europe, particularly in Germany and Austria, which has continued since the early Summer. So little rain has fallen since May 1st that the water in the rivers Elbe and Oder has fallen so low that navigation has been greatly retarded, and, at present, remains closed, causing continental refiners to buy back sugars previously sold for July and August delivery. It is stated that the drouth has been unexampled since the year 1839, so far at least as Austria is concerned, and the damage to growing crops has been irretrievably serious. It is estimated by Mr. Licht, the well.known statistician, that the beet crop has been damaged to the extent of 10 per cent. in Germany and 15 per cent. in Austria, which, it is figured, will amount to fully 400,000 tons. This added to an estimated deficiency of 400,000 tons in the sowings, will mean a crop of say about 5,000,000 tons for all Europe compared with last year's 5,850,000 tons. This will be the smallest European production for several years past. In this connection it is interesting to note the increased consumption of Europe, which is apparent in all the principal countries, and amounts to 662,156 tons, or, 25 per cent. since September 1, 1903, when the Brussels Sugar Convention went into effect. Coupled with these conditions we have the gradual absorption of the Cuban crop, which for all practical purposes will be little or no factor for the current campaign. Total stocks in the island are 96,500 tons against 106,500 tons last week and 266,500 tons same time last year. The statistical position in the United States and Cuba together shows total stocks of 263,373 tons against 559,492 tons last year, a decrease of 296,116 tons from last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,035,376 tons as against 2,503,970 tons last year, a decrease of 468,594 tons. Reciepts at the three Atlantic ports for week ending August 3 were 42,863 tons, with meltings increased to 42,000 tons, leaving stocks practically the same as previous week ; and, it is interesting to note, there remain unsold in importers hands only 17,500 tons. Sales for the week record an advance in raws of ⅛c per lb. for spot sugars, which are now quoted firm at 4⅛c for 96 test centrifugals, duty paid, while sugars for shipment are held at higher prices, with no transactions at the moment. There have been considerable sales of Java sugars to arrive, but at moment offerings are confined to those for September shipment, which would mean November arrival. It is estimated that total sales of Javas to United States of present crop cannot be far short of 250,000 to 260,000 tons, leaving only a small balance of 40,000 to 50,000 tons for sale, from which it will be seen that these sugars and Cubans need not be considered factors in the situation for the balance of this season, and that American refiners will have to devote more attention to Europe, where the conditions are already well known. Beet sugars for the week have advanced from 10s to 10s 1½d per cwt., and, at the close, owing to reports of rain in some parts of Europe, the market has reacted and declined 3 farthings on realizing sales. The quotation is now nominal at 10¾d, basis f.o.b. Hamburg, for August and September shipments, which is equal to duty paid parity of 4.13 for 96 test centrifugals, or, say equal to price last paid for these. There is a good demand locally for refined, and we are informed that one refinery has withdrawn from the market for the present. We quote :

TEAS.

Messrs. Wisner & Co.'s Shanghai circular to hand this week gives some interesting information on China teas. The market is reported steady on black teas, with common still in demand. The green tea market is supplied with fair quantities, and ready sale is found on basis of prices established, varying from 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. below last year, on the higher grades of tea. Quality generally is somewhat poorer than last year, but there is still a full average crop. In style the teas are satisfactory. Ping Sueys have had a slow market. Prices of chops have been maintained owing to the firmness of holders. Prices of pin heads and extras have advanced somewhat. Recent arrivals show that the quality is not very satisfactory, the amount of scum being especially noticeable. An arrangement has been made among the native tea men not to import any more Ping Sueys into Shanghai for two months, an arrangement which it is thought in Shanghai they will be able to carry out. Even should the present dull condition continue it would appear that there is no hope of getting Ping Sueys at a low price during the current year. The quantity of black tea shipped from Shanghai to Canada for the season up to July 15 was 493,334 lb., and of green tea 37,333 lb. In Japans business locally is still very slow in face of excellent values being offered in new teas. It is not thought the market will be lower on Japans, and yet the general dullness in green teas and the fact that many buyers are out of town on holidays has prevented any important operations, but if the best class of tea is to be secured buyers cannot defer long as the quantity of tea available in Japan falls off rapidly during the current month and till the end of the season. Ceylon greens share the dulness in the Japan trade, but they have the great merit that good quality can be obtained all the year round. In Indian and Ceylon blacks there is steady business doing, good medium teas being very cheap, though generally the quality is much inferior to that of some months ago, but is now improving. Tea for price is firm in all three markets—London, Colombo and Calcutta. Good Pekoe Souchongs costing from 6¾ to 7½c, c.i.f. We quote :

COFFEES.

There is a fairly active market for coffee in New York, and prices have advanced. Foreign markets are higher and the trade are buying more readily. Arbuckle Bros. are reported as buyers. SPICES.

The New York market is generally active and a little higher, both for spot and to arrive. The demand is normal and steadily expanding with the natural progress of the season. Those needing supplies will do well to anticipate needs. Stocks now available are small and prices generally stiffer. In London prices for both black and white pepper have risen and are very firm. Foreign Dried Fruits

The currant crop, which was reported for various purposes by interested parties in Patras who had sold on too low a level, as likely to result in over 200,000 tons, has recently been estimated after careful investigation by the Government, at 145,000 tons. Since this estimate was given serious and continued rains have occurred in many of the districts, and considerable damage has been done, with the result that an advance of 2s has taken place, and the market is very unsettled and firm offers difficult to obtain. Retention this year is fixed at 35 per cent, which, on an export of 100,000 tons, would absorb 35,000 tons, or, practically the whole of the crop. But as the average export in normal seasons is about 135,000 tons, it will be seen that not more than two-thirds of a normal export is available for that purpose, and, therefore, low prices for any part of the season are entirely out of the question. Valencia raisins are reported to be a moderately good crop. Malagas are also about average. Orders are being placed for California raisins, and considerable business is resulting from the low range of prices. We quote :

Green Fruits.

The market has been fairly good this last week with local supplies light. Raspberries have been the principal factor locally, with a sprinkling of early peaches and plums from the Niagara District. The holiday season has made trade a little quiet, but there is a heavy demand for California fruits, of which the price is reasonable and the quality fair. A fair crop of peaches is expected this year, but commission men do not expect low prices. A fair crop of plums is also predicted, but not at all equal to last year. The apple crop promises to be good generally, and the English ap-

A Good Repeater

A prominent grocer, when recently asked what kind of goods he liked to sell best, replied:—

"Give me a good repeater like Royal Baking Powder; an established article of undisputed merit which housekeepers repeatedly buy and are always satisfied with."

NEW baking powders and new foods, like new fads, come and go but Royal goes on forever. Grocers are always sure of a steady sale of Royal Baking Powder, which never fails to please their customers, and in the end yields to them a larger profit than cheaper and inferior brands.

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

During the week under review the demand on the wheat market has been good. As a result of an excitable market prices have advanced, nevertheless trade is very brisk. Manitoba northern Nos. 1, 2, and 3, have each advanced 3c per bushel; red has advanced 4½c per bushel; white has advanced 4c per bushel. Oats are a trifle firmer, having advanced ½c per bushel. White peas advanced 1c per bushel. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Groceries.

Montreal, Aug. 11, 1904.

AMONG the jobbing trade a general feeling of quietness seems to prevail, some claiming that while trade is quiet, and as expected for the time of year, it is nevertheless better than last season, while others are very pessimistic. The western idea of allowing the travelers two weeks' vacation at this dull season is approved of by some jobbers, who say they might as well save the traveling expenses, as the "boys" don't seem to get heavy orders. Money is coming in in a fairly satisfactory manner, due no doubt to the fact that Quebec farmers, on account of the poor prices ruling in cheese, have turned to the manufacture of butter, and are thus receiving ready cash to turn into the country merchants. Sugar advanced 5c per 100 lbs. on Tuesday, with a firm beet and raw market statistically, and from German and French crop reports it will be wise to consider present prices as favorable purchasing figures. In teas things are very quiet, little trading going on. New low grade Japans are reported stronger on account of none being offered by the farmers; prices are so low that it does not pay them to work the low grades. Ceylon and Indians, as well as Chinas, are dull, with nothing to report of interest. Local business is small and few parcels are turning over. Canned goods are quiet; new raspberries, strawberries, peas and beans, are being delivered to the jobbing trade. salmon and lobsters are high. Syrups and molasses are unchanged and uninteresting from a life point of view. In dried fruits, currants are looking better; California prunes are very cheap and are being freely sold. Bananas are a glut on the market and selling as low as $1 to $1.10 per bunch. Canadian apples are making their appearance and receiving attention. In fish a stillness prevails. Fish eaters are out of town, and the heat has also a good deal to do with restricting consumption. The cheese market is a conundrum, and a bad one financially to many in the trade. In butter, exporters are buying more freely at higher prices. Flour is firmer and millers have advanced from 10c to 20c per bbl. this week. Eggs are not coming in as freely as last year, and prices have shown an advance of ¾c to 1c doz. Spices remain unchanged. Coffees are strong in New York and are held firm here.
